He said that the apartment where several teen-agers have testified they had sexual intercourse was used to store used clothing and furniture given to the church.

"I've never seen anyone have sexual intercourse, let alone in the apartment," the minister said.

The Commons, in its seventh day of debate on the measure, gave third reading to a bill authorizing loans to syndicates of farmers for purchases of farm machinery.

An amendment proposed by Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) to have a farmer's liability equal only to his share in the syndicate's loan was defeated 64 to 42.

NDP Leader Douglas objected to the floating interest rate on loans and the one per cent service charge. He sought a fixed rate of five per cent.

Another amendment, by Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River), seeking to make farmers not responsible for changes in the agricultural regulations, was defeated 67 to 35.

At its evening sitting the house debated the pre-bill resolution relating to the federal government to pay about 75 per cent of provincial crop insurance losses in any given year.

The resolution was passed and the bill given formal first reading.

SIU Member In Court on Bench Warrant

MONTREAL (CP) — Eldon Jack Richardson, charged with conspiring with Hal Banks to establish a Great Lakes captain, was brought into court Tuesday on a bench warrant and was remanded in custody.

His $2,000 bail had previously been cancelled.

Banks, deposed head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), was convicted of conspiring to assault Capt. H. F. Walsh in Owen Sound in 1957. He was sentenced to five years in penitentiary. Banks subsequently fled to the United States, forfeiting $25,000 bail, while awaiting appeal of his sentence. The appeal was dismissed.

Richardson, 38 - year - old Montrealer and a member of the SIU, was arrested Monday night at Blackpool, Que., on his return to Canada from the United States.

The trial date on the conspiracy to assault Capt. Walsh had previously been set for Nov. 2.

A third accused, Paul Carsh, 37, pleaded guilty to the same charge recently and sentence was set for today.

Lord Thomson Fights Back To Gain Control of Two Scotch Dailies, Weeklies

LONDON (CP) — Publisher Lord Thomson fought back Tuesday night in his attempt to gain control of two important Glasgow daily newspapers and a string of weeklies.

He improved his offer to shareholders in the George Outram group that owns the mass-circulation Glasgow Evening Times and the Glasgow Herald.

In effect, Thomson bids 25s 6d for each Outram share. This is nearly two shillings more than the offer made Monday by Sir Hugh Fraser, department store millionaire and Outram chairman.

Thomson's bid technically is one share of his Scottish organization, unquoted on the stock exchange but estimated at 22s 6d, plus three shillings cash.

There has been controversy here over Thomson's offer. Some critics of the proposed deal feel control of Outram newspapers would give him a dangerous monopoly in Scotland because he already owns the Edinburgh Scotsman and the Scottish television network.

"Lord Thomson has more very firmly returned the ball into Sir Hugh's court," The Daily Telegraph says.

"Even though some Outram shareholders may be favorably inclined towards Hugh on Scottish nationalist grounds, there is no doubt his present offer is the inferior of the two."

The Times says it believes Lord Thomson is "a beneficient force" in the newspaper world but "even if he were the Archangel Gabriel, we would also believe he had quite enough papers in the United Kingdom already."

The newspaper was coon meeting in an editorial on the bid of the Canadian-born publisher to take over the Outram group.

The Times says newspapers occupy "a place of their own" in community life and nothing has emerged "adequate to replace their function in the democratic process, or in the life of the nation as a whole."

"It is that aspect of the battle that has caused so many people in Glasgow and beyond to be concerned. Their concern is justified."

Lord Thomson "is a man to be admired" but "it cannot be right that in any one there are two leading papers in Scotland, they should be in the same hands."

Federation Urges Ban On Picket Line Injunctions

NORTH BAY (CP)—Court injunctions issued by judges to restrain picket - line activity have become a vicious anti-labor strike weapon for employers, the Ontario Federation of Labor was told Tuesday.

The 1,000 delegates at the federation's annual meeting voted unanimously to ask the provincial government to restrict the issue of injunctions, which one delegate said "are being handed out like peanuts" by judges blasted against trade unions.

A resolution asked that injunctions be granted only after a trial and processed through the Ontario Labor Relations Board. Under present law, an employer can obtain an injunction by giving evidence to a judge that there has been violence in picketing.

Cliff Pilkey of Oshawa charged that labor's right to picket is a right that is fast disappearing. Using injunctions, employers were picking off the latter unions "one by one" and breaking strikes with "scab labor" brought through undermanned picket lines.

The 500,000-member federation winds up its three-day annual meeting today.

In other action Tuesday the delegates:

1. endorsed a resolution calling for legislation that would give unions the right to strike during the life of a contract.

2. Supported the provincial government's Canada Pension Plan proposal, calling on the Ontario government to help put it into effect.

3. Urged an increase in limited earnings for those who dispute after hearing a criticism that judges should not be called to settle contracts because most of them are "members of the establishment" and opposed to labor.

4. Backed the Toronto newspaper printers' strike in a resolution urging all union members to cancel their subscriptions to The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail.

5. Supported a strike by the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) against the Perth Utilities Commission.

Rule Against Taxpayers In Judgment

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Bill of Rights does not grant taxpayers the right to be present at a hearing at which their financial affairs are being investigated by officers of the department of revenue, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday.

The court made the decision in a judgment granting an appeal by the revenue department against Quebec court judgments ruling that Rene Lafleur of Montreal had that right.

The case dates back to 1960 when Philippe Guay, an officer of the department, was instructed to investigate the affairs of Mr. Lafleur and 13 other businessmen, corporations and estates.

At the opening of the inquiry, counsel for Mr. Lafleur asked that Mr. Lafleur be allowed to be present and be represented by counsel. The request was denied by Mr. Guy.

Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott, who wrote the Supreme Court decision, said the trial judge appears to have based his judgment primarily on the provision that in refusing Mr. Lafleur permission to be present Mr. Guay had infringed a provision in the Bill of Rights.

This provision ensures the right of all persons to a fair hearing in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice for the determination of his rights and obligations."

Mr. Justice Abbott said that with respect to this provision it can have no application since no rights and obligations are determined by the person appointed to conduct the investigation.

Image of Gen. de Gaulle Seems to Improve With Age

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The image of Charles de Gaulle is catching the eye of greater numbers of people as the 73-year-old French president grows older.

At the same time this image tends to blur the American spotlight that has stayed so dominantly in many corners of the world scene since the Second World War—especially in Southeast Asia and South America.

De Gaulle seems to have phenomenal energy as he continues to hold a firm grip on domestic politics with one hand and with the other keeps reaching beyond the French horizon as he will appear to be a successful effort to spread his influence.

The French president's current 10-country tour of South America follows similar visits to the blocking of Britain's entry into the European Common Market and the boisterous call for the neutralization of Southeast Asia, where France once reigned as a colonial power.

The French leader generally has received a warm welcome during the tour from a people conditioned for years to a Latin-American variety of dictatorial rule.

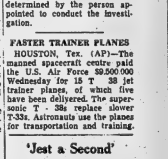
But it was from the followers of former Argentine dictator Juan Peron de Gaulle received his greatest welcome—to the embarrassment of both de Gaulle and the present Argentine government—as numerous demonstrators broke through police lines to greet the French head of state.

These followers carried sides by side pictures of Peron and de Gaulle and attempted to present a more vivid image of Peron and to overshadow the presence and movement of President Arturo U. Illia.

The pro-Peron demonstrators today greeted the visiting Frenchman to transform the Argentine tour by the French leader into the stage for a speech calling for creation of a force to balance the "competing hegemonies and the rival ideologies" that split the world.

Most of the communiques called for increased trade between Europe and Latin America, expansion of educational exchanges between the two, and increased European assistance.

In the past Latin America generally has been considered politically the backyard of the United States and economically the area of instability, failure and government interference, thus largely remaining isolated from countries other than the U.S.



Soon after the end of de Gaulle's South American tour, Prince Philip, now accompanying the Queen on a tour of part of Canada, will visit Mexico and Panama.

The current interest of such countries as France and Britain, as well as of China, may eventually lead to the rediscovery of Latin America.

Little Progress In GM Talks

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs mounted and local plant negotiations dragged today in a U.S.-wide strike of the United Auto Workers union against General Motors, the world's largest automobile manufacturer.

As the walkout entered its 13th day, there was little progress reported in local bargaining on union demands at individual plants.

Battle of Bulge Described In New Book by Ralph Allen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In The High White Forest (Doubleday), a novel about the Second World War Battle of the Bulge, Ralph Allen gives a vivid description of what it meant to the ordinary soldier in terms of human ordeal and suffering.

This is a story of what happens to a group of Allied and German soldiers in the ranks of their respective armies during the last furious counter-offensive launched by the Germans to halt the Allied thrust across Western Europe towards their homeland. It brings home through the eyes of men on both sides the cruelty, the slaughter and the destruction wrought during those bitter days of 1944.

Allen tells it a series of flashbacks of the lives of his protagonists. Among them are two brothers from Western Canada, one of whom enlisted for service service after deciding he was cowardly enough to be a hero, an American of German parentage who became a Bund leader in New York and followed his star to Germany to end as a soldier fighting against Americans, and a Seventh Day Adventist from Michigan who battled his own conscience as well as the Germans.

FUTILITY OF WAR

Allen, himself a war correspondent, a newspaper man, author of several other books, and now managing editor of the Toronto Star, lightens his story with touches of humor.

But basically it is concerned with men fighting and dying in sudden savage encounters with cowardice and heroism with selfishness and self - sacrifice, with fear and bravery.

The High White Forest depicts war in terms of men as confused and disorganized as the battle in which they were involved. It leaves the reader with a sense of revulsion at its futility, mixed with admiration for the endurance of the men caught up in it.

Echoes of Rebecca sound through Phyllis Brett Young's new novel Undine (Longmans). The first wife is dead. The second wife is haunted by her imagined ghosts, real or manufactured, by her real and repellent brother, and by real or imagined efforts to force her into the dead woman's image. Mrs. Young has given the heroine of her romantic thriller the vivid imagination of an actress and gives the reader enough flash backs and innuendo to create for both a breathless muddle of natural and super-natural. This is the fifth book by Mrs. Young, a Torontonian. Her first was Psyche, published in 1936. —

Two of Canada's wittiest journalists, George Bain of the Toronto Globe and Mail and Eric Nicol of the Vancouver Province, have in print their own collections of humorous writings.

Bain, now writing a daily column from Ottawa, is author of I've Been Around . . . (Clarke Irwin). A book of light-hearted articles he has turned out as a correspondent in Washington, London and Ottawa over the years.

It's a tribute to his comic skill that, although most of the articles are closely tied to major stories of the day, they were rather well and in many cases are almost as funny today as when originally written.

NEWS IN VERSE

Bain's specialty is commenting on the news in verse and his rhymes are liberally sprinkled throughout the book.

On the possibility that Britain may join the Common Market, for example:

There'll be cog-au vin in Cheddington,
Fish and chips in Montparnasse,
There'll be bratwurst sold in Oireland,
And Italians drinking Bass.

All will admit that it pains me a bit
To reflect on the mountain of stories
For which in the year I'll get less than you, dear
For telling a tale on some Tories.

SOCIAL COMMENT

Nicol, who has scored in the past with such books as Say Uncle, Russia, Anyone and A Herd of Yaks, has titled his new selection Space Age, Go Home! (Ryerson).

He also uses news stories as pegs for articles at times but emphasizes social trends and is therefore less likely to find his stories dated.

therefore less likely to find his the wonderfully horrible puns for which Nicol is noted but he manages the odd one. In a story explaining football for women who plan to watch the Grey Cup game, he defines a defensive end as an aggressive player assigned to knock down opposing players as roughly as possible, and adds. "In football the end justifies the mean."

Nicol reveals his wit also in his comments on the current age. He laments the emphasis on deodorants and fears that "misguided researchers are perfecting a cow fodder that will deodorize manure He admits he can remember serious movies "in which the heroine had a legitimate child" And he can even recall the time when "complications were usual people died of . . . because they were too poor to succumb to something more specific."

Matches Start More Fires Than Volcanoes

By HAL BOYLE

Mother sarah lives in eternal happiness. . . . She is like a fat lady with a tight girdle. . . . Every day there is an average of 85 earthquakes, most of them harmless.

One of the biggest but least known causes of private melancholy is the people wear shoes too tight for their feet . . . you can't feel free in the head if your tootsies hurt.

. . . Waiting with the army infantry taught me that most of my life I had been wearing a shoe half a size too short—9½ instead of 10.

Now Irving J. Bottner, Esquire Shoe Polish proxy, reports Frenchmen wear shoes three sizes too narrow, Italians two sizes too narrow, and Israelis shoes that are 1.8 sizes too wide and 2.9 sizes too narrow. . . . How can we ever hope for international understanding until we all get on a fitting footing?

This reminds me of the new joke about the fellow who were pointed shoes

"They are a great help in stamping out cockroaches in corners," he explained correctly.

NO FROST

It also reminds me of an old joke—a fellow is talking to George Ade — about the shrewd advantage of wearing white shoes: "They don't show frost."

Helpful hints for the old-fashioned housewife: Apples stored in the basement with potatoes will keep the potatoes from sprouting.

It's hard to figure why people still feel so brisk as or so full of energy their grandparents. . . . Considering, there are now 8,000 drugs in use . . . It could be just plain human contrariness.

Worth remembering: "Dentopedalogy," said Prince Philip, "is the science of opening your mouth and putting your foot in it. I've been practising it for years."

Folklore: Sunset in clouds, rain tomorrow. . . . Freshcaught fish exposed to moonlight will spoil. . . . If you dream of a funeral, it is a sign of a forthcoming wedding in the family . . . A dream about a snake means an enemy is cluring in on you. (But if you dream you kill the snake, you will defeat the enemy.)

FALL A MYSTERY

HOME OF THE WEEK

The clean cut lines of this contemporary split level emphasize the modern trend in architectural design. There are three bedrooms on the upper level and underneath is an extra room which would be suitable for a study, den, office or even an extra bedroom. There is a handy washroom convenient to the back door. Furnace and utility area are located in the full basement beneath the kitchen-dining area. There is also ample space for a large recreation room if desired. This home offers an exceptionally convenient layout for a growing family. Because of the very efficient use of the floor area, cost of building would be quite reasonable."

Standard blueprints for this design No. 806 cost $15. for the first set, and $5. for additional sets. They are available in Canada by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 3% sales tax). Now available at this newspaper office is our new design book entitled "Suburban and Country Homes designed for Canadians," price $1. tax free. This 160 edition included information on cost of building and financing in Canada, heating, insulation, constructional details, etc., plus many outstanding new designs — ranch, one and one half storey, split level, two storey colonial and duplex homes. Also included in this book are full details on how to order blueprints.

Gang Hunting for Deer On Prairies Permissible

By IRA DRYSDALE

Part of the gang would drive a herd through a pass. Gunners positioned in advance along the pass would fire down on the herd.

Today the buffalo no longer roam the Prairies but the hunting method remains in essence.

Out of a bluff a deer bounds terrified by the scent of a man and running as fast as he can. Men with rifles blast away, throwing all the lead they can, trying to bring down the animal before it reaches the next cluster of trees.

This is the most common method of hunting deer on the Prairies, from the sandiland woods of eastern Manitoba to the foothills of the Rockies in Alberta.

"Is it sporting?" a couple of wildlife authorities were asked.

Paul Murphy, executive director of the Manitoba Federation of Game and Fish Associations said that perhaps some hunters from Eastern Canada — where stalking deer is still in style — would consider it unsporting. But the federation had taken no stand against gang hunting.

G. W. Malaher, Manitoba's wildlife director, says the provincial government does not officially oppose this kind of hunting.

In all fairness to Prairie hunters, he says, there are areas where it would be difficult to get deer by another means than gang hunting.

Personally, he favors "quality hunting," and the story of his own biggest hunting thrill explains why.

He picked up a buck's trail in fresh-laiden snow, followed it 2½ hours, the deer feeding along the way. Eventually it stopped feeding and started to curve to the left. Malaher figured it would travel in a half circle and find a place to lie down to rest where it could watch its backtrack.

Malaher cut straight left, shortly found the buck and shot it. To confirm it was the same deer and that he had outwitted it, he retraced his steps and followed the buck's tracks back to the spot.

Hunting in groups appears to have increased since the Manitoba government began issuing licences for party hunting in 1961. Murphy said under a party licence one member of a party—which may not exceed four—is permitted to shoot the quota for the party. This fits in with the method of gang hunting.

A party, or more than one party, drives to a bluff in good deer country. Part of the group walks through the cluster of trees, driving ahead any deer the bushes may contain. Other party members are stationed at points on the opposite end of the bluff. When the deer burst into the clear the shooting begins.

Malaher says there are indications that party hunters are about 10 per cent more successful than individual hunters in Manitoba. And from the overall success of the Manitoba deer hunter it appears the method compares well in effectiveness with methods used elsewhere.

The wildlife director says the hunter success in the province averages about 65 per cent, or about twice that of some hunting states in the United States.

As for sportsmanship, he says that's something you "can't regulate." After all, it wasn't nearly as bad as stampeding buffalo herds off a cliff as western Indians used to do

U. S. Election Still in Shadow-Boxing Stage

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—American politicians have pretty well confined themselves to shadow boxing in the early stages of the campaign for the Nov. 3 U.S. presidential election.

President Lyndon Johnson, at the top by virtue of office, has been cultivating an Olympian detachment in the search for votes. He speaks of "progress, prosperity and progress," of unity and of a great society.

Arizona senator Barry Goldwater as the Republican challenger is more restrained so far than he has been in the past but he's hitting the president hard when and where he can.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, Democratic vice - presidential nominee from Minnesota, is the man who has been on Goldwater's tail from the start. His assailant, meanwhile, is his Republican counterpart, Congressman William E. Miller of New York.

And Miller has been attacked by senior Democratic congressional leaders in language remarkably frequent for so early in a campaign.

This pattern has been planned in large part, it may shift as the election day nears. Certainly the president will become more active.

However, the president's grand design now, observers agree, is to offer himself, his faithfully, personally direct all the strings as a non-party politician and strike a picture of a man who barely is aware that an election is looming.

NO PLANS YET

As he told a recent press conference:

"We are not going to plan our activities for the next few weeks based on the activities or any practices of presidents who have preceded us. Our first obligation is to do this job that we are doing here today and I will be doing it all day today all day tomorrow, right in this house."

Johnson has two main objectives. One is to strike a contrast with the Democratic picture of Senator Goldwater as wild and trigger-happy. This is aimed at dissident Republican voters unable to stomach the Goldwater-Miller ticket.

The other is to make the greatest use of the presidential tool represented by the office of the presidency. Examples lie in the frequency with which Johnson tends to make announcements and summon impromptu press conferences without needing to make a speech.

He is also raising the vice-presidential candidate's duties to a new level, observers suggest, partly from his own often frustrating experiences as No. 2 man in the Kennedy administration. In Senator Humphrey he has a tireless, campaign-loving politician who can set up Senator Goldwater much more effectively than the president can, or would, himself.

Not that the president is expected to let the whole campaign go by without getting into it more actively; but at this stage, it is being suggested on the basis of polls and other evidence, the only man who can beat the president is Johnson himself.

Senator Goldwater has said the choice Congressman Miller as his vice-presidential candidate because he could get under Johnson's skin and Miller has started out on that tack.

But much of his ear' firing has been directed at Humphrey as a liberal radical, a man who if not soft on communism is at least a little tender towards that ideology.

He called the Humphrey record one of the most radical in Congress and linked him with a small left-leaning organization called Americans for Democratic Action, which Miller described as "unquestionably the most influential organization in our nation's capital attempting to subvert and transform our government into a foreign socialistic totalitarian state."

Democratic Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee and noted as a mild - mannered internationalist, has unusually strong retort even for Senate debate.

He said Miller's statement was "one of the most vicious false and malicious documents in American political history." agree. Appeal Against Deportation Is Turned Down

TORONTO (CP)—An appeal against deportation order issued for Daisy Maud Henry, a Jamaican nurse's aide who did not tell immigration officials she had two children born out of wedlock, has been turned down, a Jamaican-born clergyman said Monday.

Ronald Blackwood, minister of the Presbyterian Church Episcopal Church here, said in an interview Miss Henry is a victim of discrimination policies on the part of immigration officials. She has been in Canada a year.

Mr. Blackwood said Clifford W. Demorrance, a special immigration inquiry officer, told him during a hearing on the case Aug. 27 that Jamaicans are not allowed to enter Canada if they have had children born out of wedlock.

Mr. Blackwood said Mr. Demorrance told him Jamaican women have illegitimate children, and they don't want that sort of thing in Canada.

CANADIAN MONEY AIDS GUIANESE — Better things have come to 18,000 British Guianese who live and work in and around the bauxite mining town of Mackenzie. About $85,000,000 has been invested by the Aluminum Company of Canada for the operation of the Demerera Bauxite Company, an Alcan subsidiary, and the welfare of its employees. Part of the welfare is education for the children of employees. Here a teacher conducts a geography class in the playground of a primary school. (CP Photo)

Canada Has Economic Empire In Heart of British Guiana

At a time when foreign-owned plants in developing countries are sometimes in danger of takeover, a Canadian bauxite subsidiary in British Guiana appears to be secure. In this story, Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press, tells why.

By PAUL KIDD

GEORGETOWN (CP)—Canada has a small economic empire in the heart of British Guiana.

It is known as Mackenzie.

There, in bauxite mines, plants and a town, Canada has more dollars than any other nation invested in the riot-troubled South American colony.

The figure: $85,000,000.

Almost every building is owned by the Demerara Bauxite Company, a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of Canada and virtually every family in the place depends on the firm for a livelihood.

There are primary and secondary schools, a trade school, a 125-bed hospital and nursing pavilion and flood-lit pitch, a pure water plant, three swimming pools and a golf course, stores, a bank, a cinema and a public library.

RENT ARE LOW

A 15,000 - kilowatt thermal power station supplies electricity to the bauxite industry and to communities on both banks of the river.

Housing — some of heat-reflecting aluminum construction —is available to employees at modest rents and the company now is making it possible for tenants to purchase the homes in which they live.

With the aid of company-provided interest-free loans, several hundred workers have built homes in Wismar, a community across the river from Mackenzie.

The 18,000 Guianese who live in the Mackenzie area have, on average, the best living conditions in the colony.

The bauxite company, known as Demba, has 3,500 employees. Represented by a long-established union, the hourly-paid workers earn an average wage of nearly $40 a week—about twice the national average.

40 NEGROES KILLED

For years, East Indians and Negroes, who comprise the bulk of British Guiana's population, worked side by side in the bauxite industry.

Then with the blowing up of a river boat, resulting in the deaths of 40 Negroes, the predominantly Negro population of Mackenzie drove the East Indian minority from the town.

To reach the modern mining town carved out of the jungle wilderness, one must travel by flying boat or launch. Only the toughest vehicles, and drivers, can negotiate the rugged, twisting overland route.

FOUND BAUXITE

A visitor to Mackenzie is impressed by the self-sufficiency of the community. Although a certain amount of machinery has to be imported, Demba has its own engineering and electrical workshops for manufacturing and maintaining equipment.

It was about a half-century ago that a Scots - American named George Bain Mackenzie took a boat up the broad Demerara River to a little logging village and went ashore.

Exploring creeks and hillsides, he discovered that the scrub bush and jungle hid bauxite, the ore of aluminum.

Thus, with the incorporation of the Demerara Bauxite Company in 1916, the town of Mackenzie was born.

Today, bauxite and alumina from the jungle community, 3,000 miles from Canada, feed the world's largest aluminum smelters along the Saguenay River at Arvida, Que.

With an ocean-going fleet of 50 vessels, Saguenay Shipping Limited, a fully owned Alcan subsidiary, ships nearly 2,000,000 tons of bauxite and alumina from British Guiana every year.

THIRD OF EXPORTS

Mackenzie was the place where calcined bauxite was pioneered after the Second World War.

Used in the refractory and abrasive industries, nearly a half - million tons of calcined bauxite is shipped from British Guiana to some 30 countries, accounting in value for half of Demba's bauxite sales.

The company's overseas shipments, worth about $50,000,000, amount to more than one-third of the colony's exports.

Half the company's profits go in taxes and royalties and represent some 10 per cent of the British Guiana government's revenue.

Demba's mines, bauxite processing plant and alumina plant comprise the biggest industrial project in a country which otherwise would be almost entirely reliant on its sugar and rice crops.

While of reasonably high grade, British Guiana bauxite is covered by greater depths of sand and clay than any similar deposits in the world. The 30-foot deep layer of bauxite is uncovered by huge earth - removing equipment.

THIRD LARGEST

The bauxite mines are scattered as far apart as 35 miles with the ore hauled to Mackenzie over an 85-mile rail network.

Production from the Demba mines represents about 50 per cent of the output of British Guiana's bauxite industry; the remainder comes from American-owned mines.

Today, the crown colony is the third largest producer of bauxite in the world, contributing one-seventh of total output.

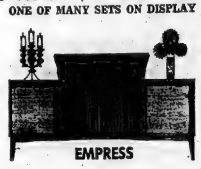
Both Premier Cheddi Jagan and Opposition Leader Forbes Burnham claimed, when I posed the question, that they had no plans for nationalizing the bauxite industry.

Burnham, however, indicated that he would like to see the industry more heavily taxed, greater parity in wage structure between foreign and Guianese workers and an ending to what he termed "segregated" white and colored residential sections at Mackenzie.

FUTURE SECURE

Nevertheless, in contrast with the "imperialist" taint carried by many foreign companies in South America, Demba has a good image.

The Canadian company, which has operated for more than 40 years in British Guiana, has agreements which guarantee its future for a further 70 years.



Speaking as the colony's minister of trade and industry, Senator H. J. M. Hubbard declared: "It is not often the case that a giant company in an under-privileged country conducts itself as a good citizen, living within the law and not seeking to be a law unto itself.

"I wish to pay a tribute to this attitude which others here and in other lands might emulate with profit both to themselves and those with whom they have to live."

Mackenzie could be one overseas economic empire, at least, upon which the sun may be a long time in setting.

Every Male Has A Gun

Cyprus Island Of Guns, Forts

Exactionism is an important factor in the trouble between Greek and Turkish Cypriots on Cyprus. The complex situation is explored in this story by Peter Buckley who spent 3½ months in the Mediterranean island reporting on the crisis for The Canadian Press.

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Aphrodite, the goddess of love, were to return today to her legendary birthplace in Cyprus she would be lost.

Guns are everywhere. An adult male who is not in the fighting forces somewhere on the island will inevitably have a weapon hidden in his home.

People who welcomed thousands of tourists to the cool mountains and sunny beaches a year ago now build rows of fortifications and fill their windows with sandbags.

A Western diplomat in Nicosia remarked in a recent conversation that 'a psychologist should be brought in to solve the Cyprus problem.

"No one who doesn't understand the emotional basis of this mess is going to find a solution," he said.

Smiling wearily, he mused: "It's the sort of problem that could be solved overnight by a completely unexpected, generous concession by one of the parties involved. That kind of gesture would reduce everyone to tears of gratitude and brotherly affection, and a solution could then be found."

The role played by emotionalism is crucial both in the origins of the current troubles and in the failure thus far of a host of mediators and packages to end the impasse.

TRADITIONAL ENEMIES

The feeling of Greek-Cypriot toward Greece is built on unquestioning love of all things Greek. The Turkish-Cypriot is fed from birth on awe for Turkey. Both are welded to their respective motherlands by language, religion, custom and tradition.

On an extent, the two communities share the mother countries' feelings for each other. Greece and Turkey are historical enemies, and only the new enemy of Communism has brought them together in NATO. On Cyprus, the two nationalities have lived side by side for four centuries without really mixing.

For political reasons, the Greek-Cypriots now insist that the two communities lived "like brothers" before the current troubles, and there is no reason why they couldn't do it again.

For the same reasons, the Turkish - Cypriots now emphasize the past differences between the two, accuse the Greek-Cypriots of genocide, and insist that the two people will never again live together.

There are five traditional parties in the Cyprus dispute — Greek - Cypriots, Turkish - Cypriots, Greece, Turkey and Britain. But only two of them—the Greek - Cypriots and Turkey — have been given the power to produce a quick solution to the problem.

ARCHBISHOP ON SPOT

Archbishop Makarios, the strong - willed president and leader of the Greek - Cypriot community, could have ended the dispute on several occasions. But it would have meant sacrificing his long-term and complete independence for the island.

Makarios compromised on the same demand in 1959 at the insistance of Britain, Greece and Turkey. The compromise ended British rule in Cyprus and halted four years of EOKA terrorism, but it also produced an unworkable constitution. In the end, it led to the current struggle.

Even if Makarios gave in to external pressures and made major concessions, he would have difficulty swinging many of the 450,000 Greek Cypriots behind him. Greek-Cypriot temperature has soared since Turkish air force planes attacked the northwest coast two months ago.

And another, a usually mild-mannered young businessman, slammed a table in front of him and shouted: "I am sick and tired of hearing that we must compromise. It is a question of principle, whether we as a majority can govern our own destiny as a free nation or not. We will not compromise."

PRESSURE AT HOME

As for Turkey, she too could end the dispute. But her policy of shelving most of her claims to an interest in Cyprus "A weak policy toward Cyprus could shake the entire Turkish political structure, and the formidable Turkish army could force would well take over the government.

Cyprus has seen the march of foreign armies across her soil for nearly 30 centuries. The last of these invaders were the Ottoman Turks, crossing the 40 miles of Mediterranean separating Cyprus from Turkey in 1571 and conquering the island with bloody ruthless rule.

Turkish rule — and Turkish colonization—lasted until 1878, when a defensive treaty gave administration to Britain. The island was annexed by the British when Turkey sided with Germany in the First World War.

There are 100,000 Turkish-Cypriots in Cyprus and their fate has been a hot issue among the mainland Turks for years. Turkey insists she must have the right to protect the Turkish - Cypriots from the Greek-Cypriot majority.

The other three traditional parties in the dispute sometimes look like bystanders, involved against their will.

Britain has sovereign rights under the constitution to military bases occupying some 100 of the 3,500 square miles of Cyprus. But she is being outpassed by the Cyprus problem for decades, Britain now wants only to see the end of trouble.

The British are in an awkward position. They are regarded by the Greek-Cypriots as allies because of Britain's long-standing support of Turkish interests in the island.

The Greek - Cypriots have turned more and more against Britain. They now accuse them of fomenting the troubles for international diplomacy reasons and of supporting the Turkish - Cypriot "rebellion" against the Makarios government.

The Greek government is also reported to be a party to the dispute. Greece actively encouraged the EOKA movement — which demanded union (or) of Cyprus with Greece— but has recently had serious disputes with Archbishop Makarios.

The Greek - Cypriot cause stirs strong emotions among mainland Greeks, and the shilling of the Cyprus issue could conceivably bring down the Greek government.

Diplomatic sources in Nicosia say it is possible for Makarios to agree to a solution which would not please Athens, but next to impossible for Greece to impose an unwanted solution on Makarios.

For eight months the Turkish-Cypriot leadership tried in vain to force Turkey to intervene on their behalf. There was jubilation when the Turkish aircraft attacked, but it was short lived.

Greek-Cypriot economic pressures have made life increasingly difficult for the Turkish-Cypriot and many now would like to abandon their bid for division of the island into Turkish and Greek sections.

MORALE SAGS

Reliable sources say morale among the Turkish Cypriot armed forces is sagging. Several cases have been reported privately to the United Nations lately of Turkish-Cypriots being beaten by their own people on "disappearing" after saying they wanted to end the current hostile separation of the two communities.

When it comes to possible solutions to the Cyprus problem, one starting point seems to be common to all. Enosis has become almost a fad among those putting forward formulas to end the dispute.

Turkey and many Turkish-Cypriots now believe their interests would be safer if Cypriots were part of anti - Communist Greece than if the island remained independent and subject to the influence of the powerful Communist faction among the Greek-Cypriots.

Despite the pressures from inside and outside Cyprus for a peaceful settlement, sources say there remains a frighening potential for more bloodshed.

The frustration and hatred built up by months of strife, working among people who are emotional by nature, may yet place more victims on the unwilling altar of Aphrodite.

Hamilton Man Acquitted on Rape Charge

HAMILTON (CP) — Edward Koczak, 26, of Hamilton, Tuesday was acquitted by an Ontario Supreme Court jury on a charge of rape.

Koczak had pleaded not guilty to a charge of attacking a 32-year - old Hamilton waitress dancer as she was sleeping in bed with her four-year-old child June 23.

The woman, mother of two, testified Monday that Koczak and another man came to her apartment and forced her at knifepoint to submit to Koczak.

Koczak faces three more charges before the Ontario Supreme Court, of rape, assault and breaking and entering in another attack on the same woman June 27.

Mr. Justice King set the trial over until the spring assures and set bail at one surety bond of $2,000. Bail was previously two surety bonds of $3,000 each.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Manuel Ray, Cuba's exile leader, is planning a third attempt to enter Cuba—not with less militants on Florida as a centre of operations.

"I do plan to go to Cuba this year," Ray said Monday in a view at his home here. He said his presence in Cuba is necessary to organize the underground operations of his anti-Castro organization, the Revolutionary Junta (Junu).

Ray has spent most of his time since mid-July 1963 working in the Caribbean. He said he is finding new bases from which Juns can operate with greater efficiency.

"We have placed too much reliance on Florida in the past," Ray said. "It wasn't possible to do anything and keep it secret."

Both Ray's first attempts to reach Cuba originated in Florida. Both were made aboard fast motor launches. A British destroyer's crew caught Ray's first party June 1 on a tiny Bahamas key 90 miles north of Cuba. The U.S. Coast Guard halted his second try July 11, stopping Ray's boat in the Florida Keys.

DELAYED BY FAILURES

"After those two failures," Ray said, "we decided to post pone for a very short while further attempts to enter Cuba and to study carefully how to avoid future failures."

One result, Ray said, was the diversification - of - bases program. He would not give details, except to say that the bases would be used to supply the underground.

He has been a controversial exile leader since. His views on social reform had led his critics to say he is as advocate of "Fidelismo without Fidel."

If Gulls' Knees Are Above Water Hebrides Airport Ready for Use

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

NORTHBAY, Barra (CP) — The quickest "road to the Isles" in this modern day is by air—the "gull road," if you like.

Listening closely on the way you may hear something like this:

"Morning Katie, Peter here. How's the tide? Half an inch on the middle of the Bay? That's fine. See you in half an hour."

This is the pilot's informal patter at your 14-seat Heron aircraft flies from Renfrew near Glasgow, and he talks like that because there are a couple of interesting things about Barra airport.

—It's a beach, Traigh Mohr (great beach) — a sanding, white cockleshell crescent of a type usually associated with exotic strands in the South Seas rather than with the Outer Hebrides.

—It's run by a poised young woman in the blue uniform of British European Airways. Catherine (Katie) Macpherson is the only female superintendent of a passenger airport in Britain and, as far as BEA knows in Europe.

Seagulls sweep down and land when planes aren't about. Part of Miss Macpherson's job is to keep watch on the tides, prompting an airman to quote this whimsical rule of thumb:

Airmen are sometimes a bit startled to find their airline time-tables marked "landings subject to tides" but the skilled island-popping pilots maintain a daily schedule. Aircraft cabin instructions are in English and French, as usual, although the conversation of passengers indicates that Gaelic would be more appropriate.

The relaxed atmosphere is reminiscent of airline operations 30 years ago, as seems fitting for this beguiling, rocky purple-patched island at the southern tip of the Hebrides.

It's also similar to Canadian bush-flying but the Herons have four engines and there's never been a serious accident at Barra.

Close by Traigh Mohr is the house where novelist Sir Compton Mackenzie wrote the hilarious Whisky Galore, which became the movie Tight Little Island.

GOOD WEATHER

"We arranged a pretty day for you, didn't we," smiled Miss Macpherson when this visitor confided he was coming for the first time to the land of his ancestors.

"On a good day, this place is Paradise," said Glasgow dentist W. G. Burnside, making a regular working visit to the isolated isle of 1,300.

City-dwellers in the "south" —Londoners, for instance—are firmly convinced that the Hebrides, 400 miles away, are semi - Arctic territory. This mystifies local folk.

Composers and poets have been inspired to lyricism by the gilded beauty of the island and Scotland's northwest coast but they, too, have added to the strange, misty reputation of "the farthest Hebrides."

The islands are certainly exposed to the full blast of Atlantic gales. Yet a comparison of temperature records shows that, thanks to the Gulf Stream, some of them have a better average warmth than numerous English south coast resorts.

"That's why so many Barra women, and the children, have strikingly pure complexions — the soft, warm winds," said one proud fisherman.

EXTOLLED IN COMMONS

Anyway, the area was beating back from the hard, silver age when we arrived. Earthy urchins, bursting with importance, manhandled luggage from the beach while Miss Macpherson shepherded passengers to her two-room head quarters.

Many new arrivals have already heard of the light-haired Katie—and small wonder since she was even extolled in the House of Commons in London Neil Marten, parliamentary secretary to the aviation minister, recently told how she observes the weather and tides, marks out where planes should land, acts as air control officer, makes reservations and looks after passengers.

Technically on 24-hour duty, she is in charge of the Barra end of the Scottish Air Ambulance Service, a vital link since the island has no hospital. She more or less lives in a house held by her late father, John (the Caddy) Macpherson, one of Barra's great story-tellers, and by her brother.

Asked for an interview, Miss Macpherson's smooth efficiency slipped a notch, but only momentarily. With becoming Hebridean modesty, she produced a rather faded paper with an account of her duties.

"This is not everything about me that you will want to know," she said firmly.

"You are left there that it gives me a thrill every time I see a plane come down on the sands."

Color Issue Losing Votes For Some Labor Candidates In U.K. Election Campaign

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—It has taken nearly 200 years and the tensions of a tight election campaign for the most of Britons to realize they can be just as irrational on the color problem as the next man.

No candidate in the Oct. 15 election can ignore the fact Britain now has 800,000 Afro-Asian immigrants and that most are having difficulty integrating themselves into the established social structure.

With immigrants arriving at the rate of 50,000 a year, the situation isn't improving. White resentment mounts; colored suspicion hardens. Britain's already class-fissured society is beginning to split into the most basic division of all.

How did it happen? Certainly, constitutional civil rights for any British resident, whatever his color, have been guaranteed since a historic judgment by Lord Mansfield in 1772 freed all the 15,000 Negro slaves then in Britain.

That particular minority merged without incident into the mainstream of English society. Racial intolerance appeared to have been legislated out of existence.

British complacency about color wasn't washed away until the first big wave of West Indian immigrants arrived in the mid-1950s. It wasn't long before anti - Negro slogans appeared on bombsite walls, proving that the seeds of racial hatred, given a chance, grow just as well in England's green meadows as they do in the cotton fields of Dixie.

MOSLEY DEFEATED

In the 1959 election the color issue was mostly confined to London's crowded North Kensington where Fascist leader Sir Oswald Mosley campaigned by "Britain White."

Mosley's goon squad succeeded in touching off the Notting Hill riots, but when it came to poll day Mosley got only six per cent of the votes and lost his deposit.

He's not fighting this election and all is quiet in North Kensington. But the conditions that ignited Notting Hill six years ago have become commonplace in dozens of other London districts and throughout the industrial Midlands.

At least 15 marginal seats—eight Labor, seven Conservative—could be swung on the color issue alone. One theory is that Labor must take them all to win the election. Expert observers doubt it will.

Labor's main difficulty is its ambiguous stand on the immigration Act — controls reluctantly introduced by the Conservative government two years ago when the flow of immigrants reached a peak of 113,000 a year.

From the first, liberal-minded politicians attacked the bill as a violation of Britain's traditional open - door policy. Recently some right - wing politicians have attacked it as well, contending the controls are not strict enough, particularly since they permit free entry for dependents.

WANT HALT

Even with present controls, they say, the colored population will climb to 3,000,000 by 1980. Maintaining that the saturation point has already been reached in many areas, they want to stop drastically or call a complete halt to immigration from non - white Commonwealth nations.

Candidates in constituencies with large colored populations are, in some cases, faced with an agonizing dilemma, aware that any approach will both win and lose them votes.

Conservatives have perhaps the easiest time, standing pat on the official party line that the 1962 act is a distasteful necessity that may prevent greater evils.

Labor's policy is left open. Originally the party was against the bill but now the program recognizes there must be controls of some sort. But it doesn't specify what they should be.

Labor candidates are left to improvise on the color question. Few deny it is losing them votes.

After contests and games, Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the address and Barbara was seated at a table of gifts where she was assisted by Miss Wanda Neal in the unwrapping. The bride-to-be received many lovely gifts and thanked everyone for them.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. D. Bateman and Mrs. J. Fraser.

SAVES ELECTROCUTION

LONDON (CP)—A man placed his finger on a 240-volt electric circuit and received only a mild shock. He was demonstrating a new circuit - breaking device which cuts out power when anything causes a short-circuit. The device will cost £40 to install when marketed.

TRAFFIC BY TV

LEEDS, England (CP) — A closed-circuit television system is proposed for a new highway circling this Yorkshire city. It is intended to act as a "seeing eye" for traffic problems on a part of the road that passes through a tunnel under the precinct: of Leeds University.

CRUCIFIX FOUND

YORK, England (CP) — A crucifix has been found in archeological excavations at St. William's College. It is believed to be part of a rosary, probably 15th century or earlier.

CULDROSE, England (CP)—A new method of fire-fighting with a high-pressure jet of bicarbonate of soda was demonstrated to defence department chiefs at the RAF station here in Cornwall.

Hydro Mars England's Meadows

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Stark, 150-foot-high steel pylons are beginning to stalk across England's green and pleasant land.

And every Englishman who hears hearty cuckoo sing or cherished a glimpse of golden daffodils is writing protesting letters to government ministers, local councils, the Central Electricity Generating Board and, of course, The Times.

At the centre of this storm is the electricity board's dynamic young chairman, Sir Christopher Hinton. Hinton says he was born in the age of oil lamps and is perfectly willing to go out that way.

"But my wife wouldn't care much for having to trim oil lamps every day," he adds, putting the convenience-versus-beauty problem in a neon-lit nutshell.

WILL REDUCE COST

The pylons are prompted by plans for a new 400,000-volt network of electrical transmission lines called the "super-grid"— to be superimposed on Britain's already extensive grid system.

By forming direct links between groups of generating stations and areas with a high demand for electricity, the super-grid system will consuderably reduce the cost of ordinary electric power.

But unfortunately many of the power lines and their ugly five - to - a - mile pylon supports will be forced to march across national parks and areas designated as being of outstanding natural beauty.

Some of the vast affected are the rolling South Downs, the Chilterns and Cotswold Hills and the south coast of Devon and Cornwall. Naturalists deplore the prospect of having historic views — some barely changed from Chaucer's day — punctured by garish symbols of the 20th century.

Hinton counters with the argument that Britain's grid systems are a cheaper and pleasanter way of conducting power than hauling tons of coal by rail.

INSULATING PROBLEMS

Moreover the power lines mean the smokey, coal-powered generating stations that provide most of Britain' selectricity can be sited far away from urban areas. Even when the nuclear power stations are fully developed, he says, peopl ewill want them far away from their cities as well.

Why can't the cables go underground? Because of insulating problems, the cost would soar—to about £1,182,000 a mile for underground cables from the current £54,000 a mile for pylon cables.

But it seems that despite the anguish of the outdoor-lovers, the new super - grid will go ahead. Even with their hatred of central heating, Britons still like to turn on an electric heater in winter.

And Sir Christopher believes that some day tradition-loving Britons will come to treasure their pylons for their aesthetic and historic value. He has already submitted one of his latest pylon designs to the Royal Fine Art Commission.

Cocktail Lounges, Cafes Flourishing in St. John's

By ED WALTERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — This city swings after dark with a quantity and variety of night life surpassing anything in other parts of the Atlantic provinces.

Nightclubs have been part of the scene since before the Second World War but lately have become more ecstatic.

Combination cocktail lounges and restaurants are blossoming along Water Street, the city's main commercial area and oldest street in North America. Eight have opened in the last four years and more are planned.

Newfoundlanders love to dance, a fact long recognized by the dozen or so nightclubs situated on roads leading out of St. John's or tucked away on intimate little byways in the suburbs.

With one or two exceptions the clubs provide orchestras most nights, all serve both beer and liquor and about half serve food. Informality used to be common but of late clubs have been suggesting that male patrons wear ties and jackets.

Downtown the lounges have changed the night-time face of Water Street which until five years ago was deserted on week nights except for a few beer taverns and second-rate restaurants.

BUSINESS IS GOOD

Although the city's metropolitan population is less than 80, 000, all establishments appear to have plenty of customers, including tourists.

Ian Stephenson, Halifax, with almost 93,000 people, and Saint John, N.B., with more than 55, 000, haven't got nightclubs, although relaxation of liquor laws has allowed lounges to open in Halifax and a couple now permit dancing.

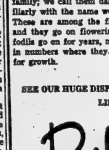
Gene Stephens, manager of El Tico, newest Water Street lounge, says people here are looking for more and better services and better entertainment" and he thinks St. John's may soon rival Montreal in night life.

Many establishments import entertainers from the United States and mainland Canada and within two or three years, Mr. Stephens says, "name stars" will probably be appearing here.

The attitude of St. John's residents has changed, Mr. Stephens says, and it now is fairly common to see girls come into lounges without male escorts, something that was unheard of a few years ago.

Some of the girls are out for a good time and are not averse to accepting invitations from strangers, he says, but "mostly the girls we see in here alone at night are straightlaced they won't even look at a stranger."

11 P.M. CLOSING



The city's night life starts in late afternoon, about the time old establishments like the Board used to the lingering English colonial ritual of afternoon tea.

The lounges stay open until 2 a.m. Saturday nights until 1 a.m.

And some managers say the limit is probably not far off when they will be allowed to serve liquor on Sundays.

RERIG AND SPLICE

PORTSMOUTH, England (CP)—Sixteen deckyard riggers dressed in the naval uniform of Nelson's day "spliced the main brace" with double tots of rum aboard the Victory after spending a year rerigging Nelson's famous old flagship.

"Narcissus" is of course the botanical name for all the family; we call them daffodils or jonquils, naming them familiarly with the name we came to know them by as children. These are among the first flowers to bloom in the Spring, and they go on flowering well into May. Once planted, daffodils go on for years, many varieties thriving and increasing in numbers where they have reasonably good soil and room for growth.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

It's pool-time in the neighborhood and I've bought enough tickets out of hats, boxes, and numerous other containers to make a suit of underwear for Jumbo the Elephant-series bunting.

I've invested in all sizes and values of the little pieces of paper with the lucky or unlucky numbers. And because I have a secret yen to see the Cardinals defeat the Yankees, 99 per cent of the tickets pulled bore the letters "NY".

But there is a couple in Alba, Missouri, who, if it were possible, would like to see both teams take home the world series bunting.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Vern Boyer, parents of seven Boyer boys and seven Boyer girls. Included and of special interest in this case, are Ken Boyer, third baseman for the Cardinals and Clete Boyer, third baseman for the New York Yankees.

An Associated Press despatch quotes Mr. Boyer as saying, "Oh gosh, we couldn't favor one team over the other," while Mrs. Boyer said: "We'll just be rootin' for each of the boys every time he's involved in a play."

They will go to St. Louis to see the boys play and there is a strong likelihood they will journey all the way to New York to watch their sons in diamond action.

All the Boyers' seven sons are or have been in professional baseball. Five of them were signed originally by the Cardinals. Three are in the Yankee organization.

Cloyd Boyer started the family parade in the monied ranks of baseball back in 1954, signing with the Cards as a pitcher. He's now pitching coach in the Yankee farm system.

Wayne and Lyn Boyer were signed by the Cardinals. The former is a dentist now and Lynn is the high school coach at Walker, Missouri.

Ken signed with the Cardinals and Clete signed a bonus contract with the Kansas City Athletics and was traded to the Yankees.

Ronald signed a Yankee contract in 1963 and played at Shelby, North Carolina, this season. Leonard signed a Cardinal contract for 1965 on August 31st.

Their father was a saw operator in a quarry at nearby Carthage, Missouri, before he retired some time ago. As was noted the Boyers also had seven girls. One died and two of them reside at home.

By the time this is ready the first game of the world series will be history and either there is an upset if you are an odds believer—or the favored Yankees will be resting on opening game laurels.

I do not know how true they are but some hard-working statistician dug up some facts that you can believe or follow your own hunches.

He says the team that wins the second game usually wins it all. A team that gets behind one win to three has a handicap that's been overcome but very rarely. The Yankees swept six series in four straight, the Dodgers one and the Braves and Giants one.

If it's a shutout the score will likely be 3-0 or 1-0. There has never been a 0-0 or 2-0 blank. Unless it happened in the past few years, the statistician claims, no player has stolen home with the winning run in the ninth.

The famous Yankees of 1927, claimed to be the most powerful club ever assembled, took a new twist when they met the Pirates in the series that year.

They used psychology served with a good dose of pre-series power. It worked. The Bucs went out to watch the Yankees in batting practice. Waite Hoyt was tossing them in for the artillery.

Straight as a string he put them in there and as straight into the stands, against the stands and over the fences the power-laden shillalaghs of Ruth, Coombs, Mark Koenig, Lou Gehrig, Bob Meusel, Joe Duggan, Pat Collins and others blasted the pitches to smithereens.

In the stands the Waner brothers, two little guys, saw the awesome display. "Golly, they're big guys," said one. "Let's go," said the other. They went and the whole Pirate team followed them, defeated, the experts said, before a game had been played. They lost four straight to the powerhouse of the Bronx.

Mexico To Get 1966 World Golf

ROME (AP)—The World Golf Council has selected Mexico City as the site for the 1966 World Amateur golf champion ships. Mexico was chosen over Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Peru.

The decision was taken by the council at a meeting Tuesday at Rome's Olgiata Golf Club where the fourth world amateur championship will start today. Four-man teams from 53 countries, including Canada are entered in the four-day competition for a trophy donated by former U.S. president Eisenhower.

The championship is held every two years.

TAKE LEGAL SEP

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council on Wednesday took the first legal step that could lead to construction of an $8,000,000 coliseum early in 1967. Aldermen received the formal notice of motion moved that the deal will be submitted to ratepayers for ratification at the Dec. 9 civic election. The proposal was made earlier by Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Home-Run Power Gives Yankees Nod

By JOE REICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP)—It's New York power against St. Louis speed, crafty Whitey Ford against youthful Ray Sadecki, and world series-hardened veterans against a relatively inexperienced crew as the Yankees and Cardinals open the autumn classic today.

The best-of-seven series will decide baseball's world championship.

The Yankees, 17-to-10 favorites to win their 21st post-season title in 29 attempts, were handicapped somewhat by the absence of regular shortstop Tony Kubek. He had injured the last two weeks of the season because of a jammed wrist.

Phil Linz will play shortstop and lead off. The Cardinals, too, are not 100 per cent physically fit.

But Julian Javier and third baseman Ken Boyer, injured in weekend games with New York Mets, both assured manager Johnny Keane Tuesday they were ready to play.

"You couldn't keep those fellows out of the series," said Keane. "They played too hard to get into it."

SEELOUT ASSURED

A sellout crowd of 32,000 was assured with speculators getting as much as $100 for a pair of box seats.

Temperatures were expected to be 85 to 90 for the Cards' first World Series since 1946.

Starting time was 2 p.m., EDT.

On the basis of experience, the Ford-Sadecki duel appeared to be a mismatch. This was the eighth opening game assignment and the 22nd series start for the 35-year-old Ford who turned in a 17-6 record during the regular season. On the other hand, it was World Series baptism for the 25-year-old Sadecki, the Cardinals' lone 20-game winner.

"If there is an edge," said Keane, "I guess you have to give it to the Yankees because of their home run power. They hit more homers than we do ove. a season's play, but in one game or in a short series, we can hit as many home runs as they.

"We've got three or four men who can hit the ball out of the park. Lou Brock can bat Gelder, can hit the ball as hard as anybody in baseball and that includes (Mickey) Mantle."

"TOUGH" SERIES

Yogi Berra, St. Louis-born manager of the Yankees, like Keane, expected a "tough" series.

"They've got a good hitting club," he said. "And they've got good speed. You can't take them lightly."

The Cards outhit the Yankees .273 to .233 during regular season play, but the Yankees had more home runs, 162 to 109.

Individually, the Cards' Brock led all hitters with a .315 batting average, Boyer was tops in runs batted in with 119 and Curt Flood had the most hits, 211.

Mantle was the leader in home runs with 35.

Outlast Blue Bombers 22-22

Esks Finally Beat West. Foeman

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos scored their first victory against a Western Football Conference team since 1962 Tuesday night as they outlasted Winnipeg Blue Bombers 23-22 before 12,463 fans.

Eskimos had lost 18 games in succession against western rivals. Their two victories last year and two previous triumphs this year were recorded in Canadian Football League interlocking games.

Eskimos were sparked by the fine passing of quarterback Jon Anabo, who completed 10 of 15 before he retired with an injured leg late in the game. The loss was the 10th in a row for Winnipeg, a record since the interlocking schedule was introduced.

Anabo passed to end Tommy-Joe Coffey and Bill Tobin for first half touchdowns. Tobin plunged over from a yard out for the other Eskimo score. Bill Mitchell added three converts, a 45-year field goal and a single to complete the Edmonton total.

Leo Lewis, Art Perkins and Norm Rauhaus scored Winnipeg touchdowns. Lewis converted twice and two points were added when Marcel Deleeuw, Edmonton punter, conceded a safety touch in the third quarter.

The result left Edmonton with three victories in 11 games for six points. Winnipeg has one win and one tie for three points.

Milwaukee Should Get 1s. Chance

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick says he will insist that Milwaukee interests be given a chance to buy the Braves if the present owners decide to move, the Milwaukee Sentinel said Tuesday night.

Red Thisted, Sentinel baseball writer, said in a story from St. Louis that Frick told him the Braves might have a "verbal understanding" with another city to which they would move. There have been rumors, unconfirmed by the ball club, that the franchise would be moved to Atlanta in 1965.

"But this I want to insist upon," Frick was quoted as saying "that if it is their decision to move, they should give the Milwaukee people an opportunity to buy the club and keep it there in Milwaukee."

Frick added, according to Thisted:

"Braves officials may have given their word to some city that they would move there if conditions forced them out of Milwaukee. I have insisted that they supply me with every figure on their Milwaukee operation if and when they should ask league consent to move the franchise."

Olympics Athletes

Stage Dress Rehearsal

TOKYO (CP) — The Tokyo Olympics organizing committee, leaving nothing to chance, today staged a dress rehearsal for Saturday's opening of the 1964 Olympic Games.

School children occupied some of the 75,000 seats in Olympic stadium as flag-bearers from many of the 96 countries competing marched around the red cinder track and came to attention before the box where Emperor Hirohito will sit Saturday.

Highlight of the dress rehearsal came when Hoshinori Sakai entered the stadium bearing a replica of the Olympic torch, and climbed up to ignite the flame in the Olympic bowl.

The flame was extinguished when the hour-long rehearsal ended.

Meanwhile, a wave of shoplifting kept the operators of the Olympic Village's athletes shopping centre baffled.

Guards at Olympic Village said shoplifting was outside their jurisdiction and the Olympic organizers were loath to risk international ill - will by bringing in full-scale police intervention.

'WE WERE WARNED'

Ichitaro Eguchi, manager of the Olympic Village branch of one of Tokyo's biggest department stores, said, "We were warned that this sort of shoplifting had gone on in the village at Rome. It was foolish, but we had hoped we would escape."

The International Olympic Committee Tuesday re-elected Avery Brundage of Chicago as president.

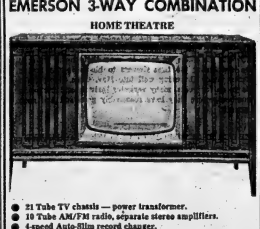
The vote was announced as unanimous but this was on a motion by Pakistan after the sealed ballots had been counted. It probably was fairly close in the 70-man committee.

The IOC accepted the resignation of Prince Albert of Belgium as an IOC member and named Prince Alexandre de Merode, also of Belgium, in his place.

Recognises 26 World Swim Marks

TOKYO (AP)—The International Swimming Federation announced Tuesday the recognition of 26 world records established since May.



American swimmers dominated the records with 17, followed by The Netherlands and the Soviet Union with three each and one each by Britain, Canada and France.

The records included:

Minor league clubs upset Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night, but four days before the National Hockey League swings into action with the annual all-star games.

Providence Reds of the American Hockey League defeated the Canadiens 5-2, and Portland Buckaroos of the Western League edged the defending Stanley Cup champion Leafs 3-2.

Elsewhere, Chicago Black Hawks defeated New York Rangers 4-2, and Detroit Red Wings shutout Tulsa of the Central Professional League 6-0.

It was the final exhibition game for Chicago and Toronto.

Boston Bruins wound up their pre - season schedule Sunday, and New York Rangers, Detroit and Montreal finish today.

RANGERS AT WINGS

Fred Stanfield, Doug Mohns, Al McNeil and Bobby Hull got a goal each as the Hawks dumped the Rangers, Phil Goyette and Rod Gilbert were the New York marksmen.

The regular 70-game NHL schedule begins Monday with Boston visiting New York.

Favor U.S. Amateurs In World Golf

ROME (AP) — The fourth world amateur golf team championship begins today on the 6,878 - yard, par-72 Olgiata Club course, with the United States foursome slightly favored over Canada and Britain among teams from 33 nations.

At stake is a huge silver cup, the Eisenhower Trophy, donated by the former U.S. president. Play is over 72 holes, 18 a day for four days. Each team's three best scores of each day are counted.

Canada is represented by Nick Weslock of Toronto, Gary Cowan of Kitchener, and Doug Silversberg and Keith Alexander, both of Calgary.

Ottawa Riders Corral Saskys 27-3

—Lancaster Out Early

OTTAWA (CP)—"I hear Russ Jackson played a good game," said Saskatchewan Roughrider quarterback Ron Lancaster after his Western Football Conference team suffered a 27-3 setback by Ottawa Rough Riders Tuesday night.

Lancaster didn't even get to see most of the action, although the interlocking game attracted 18,710 fans to see what was expected to be an aerial battle between Lancaster and Jackson, the Ottawa quarterback.

Lancaster used his passing to set up a first-quarter field goal by veteran Reg Whitehouse and give his team an early lead, but Lancaster was injured a few plays later and spent the rest of the game in the Saskatchewan dressing room.

The third-place WFU team didn't score a single point after Lancaster's injury, although they did stay within a touchdown of Ottawa until the Eastern Conference leaders exploded for 17 points in the last quarter.

The win broke a first-place tie in the Big Four, and gave Ottawa a two-point lead over Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Saskatchewan remains in third place in the West, two points behind Calgary Stampeders and three behind B.C. Lions.

Lancaster suffered a possible rib separation when he flopped on the ball to recover a fumble, and 230-pound Ottawa defensive end Billy Joe Booth landed on top of him.

Jackson had his trouncers passing, but more than made up for it along the ground as he scampered for 134 yards in 10 carries, almost half of Ottawa's total 304 yards gained rushing. Fullback Dave Theien also turned in a strong effort, scoring two touchdowns of four and five - yard plunges. Ottawa's other touchdown was scored by rookie end Jay Roberts on a nine-yard pass from Jackson.

Moe Racine contributed the other nine points with two field goals, from 19 and 20 yards out, and three converts.

Saskatchewan's offence crumbled without Lancaster and his replacement, defensive halfback Bob Ptacek, who was the Roughriders' quarterback until Lancaster was acquired from Ottawa two years ago stayed mainly on the ground.

Ptacek completed three of seven pass attempts, good for 41 yards, the same total as Lancaster managed with four completions in seven attempts before he left the game.

Jackson didn't have much more success in the air completing six of 13 for 93 yards, although one of his serials did go for a touchdown. Roberts was his favorite target, catching four for 56 yards.

Tribe Move Remains A Question

CLEVELAND (AP)—Whether Cleveland Indians will move the American League franchise they've had here since 1901 remained a question Tuesday night after a four-hour meeting of club directors.

The 22-member board, four of whom were absent, recessed until Oct. 16, pending further examination of the advantages and disadvantages of proposed moves.

General manager Gabe Paul, owner of about 20 per cent of the club's stock, said no votes were taken and told reporters:

"Basically, the situation is the same as it was Monday."

Offers for the Indians have been made by Seattle and Oakland, Calif. Atlanta and some other cities have figured in the summer-long speculation about a possible move.

DISCUSS PROPOSALS

Paul said the directors discussed proposals from other cities in Tuesday's session but he would not say which cities or how many. He said no outside representatives appeared before the board.

Paul's statement said the directors reviewed preliminary figures on the club's 1964 operations and recognize "the Indians cannot continue to operate on the same basis as in 1963 and 1964."

In the season just ended the Indians drew a home attendance of 653,233 while finishing in a tie for sixth place. Paul said the club's loss would be "in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. Earlier he had said the Tribe lost $1,200,000 in 1963 when it had a home gate of 562,507.

Japanese Official's Hazard

Noisy Dogs, Semi-Nude Girls

By WILL GRIMSLEY

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese Olympic officials are concerned about two major hazards to the games: Barking dogs and semi-nude girls.

They announced with solemn faces Tuesday they are taking firm steps to get rid of both.

The noisy hounds and the scantily clad musume - san—the local term for dame—dot the routes of the marathon runners and the road cyclists.

The dogs run out and yap at the jogging cross-country runners and the bicycle racers.

They can kick at the dogs, but lose valuable time. The runners may lose a chunk of thigh. The cyclists could have a dangerous spill.

Despite laws imposed for the duration of the games, these comely daughters of Yipon, wearing considerably less than the bikini seen on the beaches of the Riviera, stand in front of their establishments, smiling and giggling.

This could cause more than accidents, the officials say. It may provoke outright, desperate violence. The manufacturers and cyclists may never finish their races.

A team of dog-catchers has been dispatched to the race areas. The health department is trying to police the nudity hazard.

Olympic distractions are not confined to the Japanese countryside.

SERIOUS IN CABARETS

Here pretty Japanese girls, many of them tall and leggy like the comic-strip Dragon Lady come to life, stand behind a lattice curtain and send provocative messages with their eyes toward customers drinking at the bar.

Unlike the B-girls operating in some American saloons, they aren't permitted to solicit companionship. They can only stand and smile fetchingly until a male customer, like picking out a can of beans in a supermarket, makes his choice.

The Trots

NEW YORK (CP-AP)—Two Canadian horsemen and a New York State veterinarian were suspended indefinitely by the state harness racing commission Tuesday after tests indicated a horse had been given tranquilizers.

Owner-trainer-driver Pat J. Crowe, 27, and owner-groom Douglas Whitton, 38, of Elmvale, Ont., drew the suspensions along with Dr. Paul J. Phillips of Batavia, N.Y.

The commission said examination of Gratten R. Direct after he won the fifth race at Batavia Downs Sept. 30 indicated presence of the drugs promazine and chloropromazine. The horse, driven by Crowe, returned $6.70.

The commission did not indicate Phillips' connection with the case. The investigation is continuing.

World Series Fever

There's Color In St. Louis

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis has been taken over by the World Series.

Tickets and hotel rooms were running low, but tensions and enthusiasm were fast increasing as the city prepared for its first fall classic in 18 years.

Talk of the chances of a St Louis Cardinals' victory over New York Yankees was every where—taverns, restaurants, office, in the street.

Signs boosting the Redbirds could be seen throughout the city.

Tickets for the bleachers went on sale at 9 a.m. today and the line stretched for blocks, with many well-bundled fans having spent the night in temperatures that dipped to 36 degrees.

Two men began a two-day pinochle game. Others sat in folding chairs or slept in nearby autos while a friend or relative waited in line.

Third in line stood hard-luck Robert Hunt, who spent hours waiting Monday night and Tuesday morning for a pavilion ticket, obtained it, and within an hour, lost it.

SCALPERS BUSY

Police stood by to nail such operators as a tavern owner who hired four boys to get in line in chairs, which he planned to sell to the highest bidder early today. Only bonafide fans could hold places in line and tickets sold for as much as $100.

Inside the stadium, decorators were hard at work installing a row of field boxes, bringing total capacity to about 30,500. Standees are expected to swell the crowd to more than 32,000.

Restaurants were full. It was almost impossible to get a taxi cab; and worst of all, hotels were almost full.

Hotel managers and desk clerks spent unending days answering telephones with apologetic responses.

Hotel officials uttered a common prayer for the Cardinals to win the series in five games so it will not return to St. Louis next week.

"If they come back here next week the city will have to set up tents in Forest Park," said George Harry, assistant manager of the Statler-Hilton Hotel.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) Ko Ko C. scored a popular victory in the eighth race at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night when he zoomed out of second place to win by 2¾ lengths over Dolly Dale B.

The Frisco Reno-sired pacer who races in the interests of Toronto sportsman Hector Noble won in 2:06.1, the fastest mile of the night.

Jim McIntyre drove Kingston to an upset win in the first race and Greentree Judy was a head victor in the second for a $114.10 daily double payoff.

Superior Dale regained his winning ways in the sixth race to eke out an attempt to hire a student to stand in line for a bleacher seat.

"They told me they couldn't even get enough students to sell beer at the game," Forman said. "So I asked them if I could donate."

He was referred to the Missouri state employment service and got the beer-vending job.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Four horses hit the finish line almost at once in the sixth race at Woodbine Tuesday and it took the keen eye of the placing judges to finally give the decision to Latin Artist, owned by Gardiner Farms.

Built behind Latin Artist, ridden by George Gorden, were Already Dia, Albion Star and Royal Maple. Jockey Euler, which finished fifth in the five-horse field was in the picture, too, less than two lengths back.

Stock Broker Sells Beer To See Series

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A suburban Visita Park stock broker, desperate to see the World Series, has taken a job selling beer at the ballpark.

Robert Forman said he tried every way he could to obtain tickets. Finally, he called the Washington University student placement bureau in an attempt to hire a student to stand in line for a bleacher seat.

"They told me they couldn't even get enough students to sell beer at the game," Forman said. "So I asked them if I could donate."

He was referred to the Missouri state employment service and got the beer-vending job.

Tougher For Fours

Canada's 8-Oar Favored

By ED SIMON

TOKYO (CP) — Canada's eight-oar entry is favored by the first-round draw in Olympic rowing competition, but her four-man crew faces tough going, says their coach, Glen Mervyn of Vancouver.

"We couldn't ask a better draw for the eight," said Mervyn in an interview, shortly after the Canadian octet had been drawn against New Zealand, Czechoslovakia, Cuba and Japan for their first heat over the course on the northern outskirts of Tokyo.

Mervyn pointed out that in this heat, to be rowed Oct. 12, the Canadians won't have to face top-ranked Russia, nor the United States, Germany, Italy, France and Australia, all rated along with the Canadians as strong contenders.

He saw the Czechs as the chie, danger to the Vancouver Rowing Club eight in this heat, but said the West Coast men, mostly University of British Columbia graduates, have a good chance to win and gain automatic entry into the Oct. 16 final.

Heat losers must win two races—repechage and semifinal—to reach the final.

FOURS FACE FIGHT

In the fours without coxswain, in which Canada is represented by a St. Catharines, Ont., crew, it's a different story.

"The Danes are in wonderful form," Mervyn said.

The second heat will have Argentina, the United States, The Netherlands, Italy and England. In the third heat are France, Russia, Germany and Austria.

All the draws have been made dependent on good weather. In case of high winds, the heats will be reshuffled to include three crews or even two.

The finals for all seven events are to be raced Oct. 15.

BANTAMS TIED

SARNIA (CP) — Sarnia handed Niagara-on-the-Lake a 10-3 drubbing Saturday to deadlock their best-of-three Ontario Amateur Softball Association southern Ontario bantam final at one win apiece. The visitors took the opener 16-2 at home and the deciding game is expected to be played early next week on neutral ground. The winner of the series is slated to play at Larder Lake in the all-Ontario finals, Thanksgiving weekend.

FORCE DECRIED

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—India expressed the view Tuesday that no country can be compelled to help pay for UN peacekeeping operations without agreement with the nation concerned.

Indian Ambassador Birendra Narayan Chakravaty told the 21-nation working group on peacekeeping finances, "We do not think that any member state can be forced to make contributions beyond what it has specially agreed to."

Several Calls, Offers

Chuvalo Now In Demand

TORONTO (CP) — Manager Irv Ungerman would like to display fighter George Chuvalo's talents in his hometown here and so would Toronto promoter Frank Tunney, but so far the two haven't got together to line up a match.

Ungerman said Tuesday he has had phone calls from Houston, Hull, Que., and New York offering matches for Chuvalo, who jumped into fourth place in the World Boxing Association rankings last Friday with an 11th round technical knockout over Doug Jones in New York.

"We're open for a fight right here," Ungerman said in an interview. "I've reserved George's time for the next six few Tuesdays and I'd like to show him in our home town.

Hard to Get Interested In 'Peyton Place' Serial

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's most daring experiment is in progress these days on ABC. It is called "Peyton Place," after a book of the same name. The daring is not in the subject matter nor the format, which is good grey soap. It is that "Peyton Place" must have a completely faithful audience to survive, and night-time television audiences are notoriously fickle.

The series had its premiere Sept. 15 and other pressing television-viewing chores zept me away from that emotion-tossed New England community for three weeks.

But when I returned Tuesday night, it was obvious I was a stranger in town.

It was all completely incomprehensible to one who had not been curled up with ABC every Tuesday and Thursday for the last three weeks.

The soap opera pace — leisurely and slow-is unusual in evening television, whose shows usually move right into the plot in "Peyton Place" the characters amble along, with introspective conversations and meaningful looks.

A viewer who has been hooked by the daytime soaps for years once said the way to get the habit was to watch one show faithfully for a week thus getting involved with the char acters. It would take longer than a week with "Peyton Place," and it seems like a painful ordeal.

Recommended tonight:

"CBS Reports," 7:30 - 8:30 EDT — "Gideon's Trumpet—The Poor Man and the Law".

"Shindig," ABC, 8:30-9—with The Beatles and some new songs;

"See how they run," NBC, 9-11, a full-length film feature made for TV broadcast starring John Forsythe and Jane Wyatt.

RETRIAL ORDERED

DEVON, England (Reuters) — A 22-year-old laborer Tuesday became the first person in British legal history to be retried for murder. Michael Isaac, convicted of murder in April and sentenced to life, stood trial once more, charged with the same crime. His second appearance in the same dock was ordered by the Court of Criminal Appeal in July under the Criminal Appeal Act, then a week old.

Arden

ARDEN — Mr. and Mrs. Brian Hocker, and family of Knob Lake Labrador, also the former's mother, Mrs. Howard Jackson of Arden have returned home after spending two weeks with friends at Kenora.

Mrs. Edith Hartwick and sister, Mrs. John Newton of Sandra Dale were recent guests of friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clake Hugh and family of Kingston visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hugh recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Loyst visited their son, Mr. Grant Loyst and Mrs. Loyst at Scarborough recently.

Mr. Arthur Shaw of Peterborough spent the weekend at his cottage here.

Mrs. Annie Barker has returned home after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Reg. Dunham and Mr. Dunham at Tweed.

Mrs. Andrew Parker has returned home after visiting friends at Welland.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Loyst of Camden East visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Loyst, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Ferrier and son Arden of Kingston spent the weekend at their cottage at Big Clear Lake.

Liquor Vote Will Be Held In Wellington

PICTON (Staff)—Wellington is quietly preparing for the vote on the establishment of a government liquor store and a beer outlet in that village.

The questions to appear on the ballots, Wednesday, October 28, are as follows: "Are you in favor of the establishment of government stores for the sale of liquor?" "Are you in favor of the establishment of government stores for the sale of beer only for residential consumption?"

At a recent meeting the affirmative supporters named G. C. Armstrong, tourist resort operator, as their manager. The negative supporters named James A. Clemenson as manager.

Others on the "vote no" committee are James Dent, president; Milton Sadler, secretary; Leonard Wiltse, treasurer; J. A. Clemenson, organization chairman; Rev. J. J. Shannon, publicity chairman; Mrs. H. Pierson, finance chairman.

9 Candidates Take Oath Of Allegiance

PICTON (Staff) — On Monday afternoon, Judge G. F. Smith conducted the Citizenship ceremonies including the oath of Renunciation and the oath of Allegiance. Nine new Canadians took the oaths and received their citizenship certificates. Each person repeated the oaths after Judge Smith:

"I hereby renounce all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign sovereign or state of whom or which I may at this time be a subject or citizen."

"I swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second, her heirs and successors, according to law, and that I will faithfully observe the laws of Canada and fulfil my obligations as a Canadian citizen, so help me God."

Following is a list of those who became Canadian citizens: Gerhard Westerveld and his wife, Florentina Dorothea "Johanna Westerveld, R.R. 1 Carrying Place; Mrs. Moon Lau Lum, 65 Mary St., Picton; Theodor Hermann Kaminik, R.R. 2 Consecon; Wouter Koryer and his wife, Aartje Koryer, R.R. 1 Consecon; Philip Fiegeman, R.R. 1 Carrying Place; Mrs. Marit Vogel, Redmond Rd., Picton; Mrs. Ruth Wagenaar, 282 Main St., Picton.

After the impressive ceremony, Judge Smith spoke to the new citizens reminding them of the responsibilities of citizenship. Judge Smith stated it was his duty and privilege to welcome them and every person from Belleville,

Canadian Priest May Be Chosen Head of Jesuits

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A trim, thick - browed Canadian priest will be elected head of Roman Catholicism's biggest order of priests for the next half year.

And when a general chapter of the order meets here next spring, he may well be chosen 28th Father General of the Society of Jesus, the Jesuits.

Rev. John L. Swain, 56, became acting head of the 36,000 Jesuits upon the death Monday of the man he assisted for 44½ years, Rev. Jean Baptiste Janssens.

Father Janssens, a 74-year-old Belgian, had headed the Jesuits for 18 years. Father Swain was his personal vicar and Father Janssens had chosen him to be acting head of the order in case of his death. By Jesuit custom the nomination was left in an envelope which was opened after the Father General's death.

Like all Jesuits, Father Swain put in several years as a teacher. But the major part of his career has been in administration and spiritual direction of other Jesuits.

HAS READY SMILE

Hollow cheeks, a stern jaw and deep-set features give Father Swain a severe look. But he has a ready smile, and his appearance may be a reputation for cheerfulness and for generating confidence.

Father Swain was born Dec. 13, 1907, at Kemptville, Ont. H. joined the Society of Jesus in 1923 and has spent all his Jesuit period of study with four years in Rome. Italian Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani ordained him a priest in July 1935. Father Swain is fluent in eight years made him familiar with Roman life and fluent in Italian.

He spent three years as a Jesuit professor in Canada and was Canadian delegate to the Jesuit provincial for English-speaking Jesuits in Canada. He was Canadian provincial from 1941 to 1947, giving his province a reputation for a modern, vigorous outlook.

Father Swain next served four years as master of novices — the new seminarians — in Canada, then was sent to Addis Ababa as inspector of Jesuit missionary activity in Ethiopia.

TAUGHT IN JAPAN

In early 1957 he went to Japan as a teacher of Japanese Jesuits in their final pre-priesthood years. He had been there barely nine months when word came, on Nov. 2, 1957, that he had been elected on the first ballot at a Jesuit meeting in Rome to become assistant to Father General for England, Ireland, Canada, Belgium, The Congo and Malta.

Less than three years later he became the Father General's personal vicar.

The Jesuit order was founded in 1534 by the Spanish ex-soldier St. Ignatius Loyola. Jesuits have long been entrusted with some of the top papal and Vatican jobs, including the Pontifical Biblical Institute. A Jesuit traditionally serves as personal confessor to the Pope.

And to Think We Can Only Call It a Satellite

By JORIE LUELOFF

NEW YORK (AP)—When the receiving line forms to welcome the first earthman to the moon, it might include a rabbit, Hiawatha's grandmother, lovely maidens, doves and a wood thief.

The cameras of the recent U.S. lunar rocket shot caught none of these, but centuries-old legends say they are there.

Since the beginning of time, the human race has regarded the moon with fear and dedication.

That heavenly body is all tied up with primitive tribal dances, nursery rhymes, pagan worship and modern super - stition. Through the centuries it has symbolized contradictory forces — good and evil, life and death, male and female.

The South Pacific islanders, according to Captain Cook, imagined the moon a lush country to which white winged spirits carried all who died, there weaving a forehead band. Once a month she stops long enough to stir a drink of immortality and her cat unravels all her work. Then she is condemned to weave forever, knowing she'll never finish her task.

The Eskimos say that today's moon-gazers can be grateful for the bad temper of a magician who lived long ago. He made a trip to the sky to create the sun one day and left his wife and sister, who had begged to go along. For some reason he became angry with them and burned the side of her face with the sun. Angry and humiliated, she fled and vowed to become the moon.

As for the "man in the moon" — a figure similar to him in all children in the Western world — there are several explanations of his arrival.

A Cherokee story tells of an old man who cut sticks in the forest on Sunday. When a passer-by reproached him for working on the day of rest, the woodcutter replied, "Sunday on earth or Monday in Heaven, it's all the same to me." The stranger's retort was: "Then bear your bundle forever! And as you value not Sunday on earth, yours shall be a perpetual moon-day in Heaven. You shall stand for all eternity as a warning to all Sabbath breakers." And there he remains to this day, the bundle of sticks still on his back.

If only a fraction of the creatures said to reside on the moon really do, astronauts might better be anthropologists.

One of the most famed residents is the rabbit sent there by Buddha. The prophet was wandering through the forest one day, lost and hungry, when he met a hare who said, "If you are hungry, I'll make a fire, kill and roast me." Buddha made a fire and the rabbit, true to his word, jumped in. Overcome by the sacrifice, Buddha restored the animal all its animate nature, using his magic power, placed him on the moon to live forever.

Now, for two thousands of leg ends about the moon there have been numerous versions, most of which continue to carry weight today.

The ancient Rome, farmers reliziously followed this rule: When you want something to grow, plant it during the waxing moon: when you want something to dry, cure or diminish, plant it during the wane of the moon.

The theory eventually became fashionable until it was gradually discerned that lunar phases actually do influence many areas of human life, not the least of which is fertility.

The seventeenth of the moon has been heralded as a day favorable to fishermen, hunters, planters and lovers.

And, of course, the theory that the moon exerts a strong influence on man's mind has survived through the ages contributing, among other things, the word "lunatic" to the English language.

Crude Oil Exports Up, Fear U. S. Curb Reaction

WASHINGTON (CP) — The latest figures on crude oil imports from Canada could add to any pressures in the United States against the whole import program.

The U.S. Interior department announced recently that oil imports for the first six months of 1964 were among other things a record rate of entry by Canadian crude and allied petroleum items for any similar period.

The figures showed both a rate growth in excess of the targets outlined by interior officials last December and higher growth than contemplated in the area most sensitive to criticism by independent U.S. producers.

So far, oil has been a surface issue in the U.S. election campaign, partly because it lacks political sex appeal. Another reason is that observers believe that President Johnson, with an oil-state background from Texas is not anxious to deal with oil now.

But here are plenty of signs nevertheless that the question of oil import curbs is alive and kicking. With a number of the congressmen who seek re-election from oil-producing areas. Thirty - six senators recently asked President Johnson to cut oil imports for the remainder of the year.

REAPPRAISAL HINTED

There also is some informed speculation that the white must await the post-Nov. 3 election period, that the oil-import program as it stands may be in for a thorough reappraisal in the actual change.

Johnson left the administration of oil policy with Interior Secretary Stewart Udall when he took over the presidency 10 months ago, but Udall is not regarded as sure bet to continue in that office if the president is re-elected.

The figures for January to June show that Canadian oil imports amounted to 290,100 barrels daily, or 13.9 per cent of all imports by the U.S. Both Canada and Mexico enjoy exemption from import controls, although Mexico has agreed to limit its flows to 30,000 barrels daily and did so in the first half of 1964.

Canada had been assured a growth rate of 10 per cent for the same period—or a daily rate of about 274,500 barrels — with 290,000 barrels in the last half of last year.

She exceeded this by about 25,000 barrels a day, mainly in the areas east of the Rockies which took 153,800 bbr/ds a day against a target of 130,000. This is the area where independent producers complain.

West of the Rockies, where Canada competes mainly with other imports, Canadian oil rose slightly to 145,300 barrels daily, against a target of 141,000 anticipated by the interior department last December.

Canadian national oil policy set out in 1961 to light a fire under the flagging industry, expects that by the end of this year the surge in higher output will be attributable half to exports to the U.S. and half to higher home consumption west of the Ottawa Valley and particularly in Ontario.

One sample of election-year climate is a letter sent to President Johnson earlier this month by 36 senators headed by Louisiana Democrat Russell Long urging the president to cut imports in the last half of the year and curb defense use of light petroleum products from other countries.

The situation as to employment, drilling reserves, prices and earnings in the domestic petroleum industry has deteriorated as compared to last year, the letter says and even five years ago," they wrote.

The 36 senators said they "have fully lost faith" in the Independent Petroleum Association of America, a 6,000-membership group containing most of the oil-import critics.

No country is mentioned but the group of 36 includes senators from North Dakota and other areas open to Canadian oil, including influential Democratic Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Rude Reds
Their Manners Are Really Frightful!

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Rudeness or indifference, notably among people who are supposed to be serving the public, are two features of the Moscow scene that impress the recently arrived foreigner

There are inevitable exceptions, of course but visitors are you'll hear a surprisingly emphatic "no-yet" when being asked something you asked for is not available in a store.

And the belligerent attitude of waitresses and waiters in restaurants can be enough to take much of the pleasure of eating out.

In some eating places—fortunately not all—you are left with the impression that the help considers it an imposition for you to expect service.

In one major hotel for example they wave you away from certain tables supposedly reserved without making any attempt to find you another place to sit.

In such cases you're likely to wander about bumping from one table to another and end up walking out embarrassed and bewildered even though it appears there is seating space available.

SERVICE SLOW

If you do get a seat you may wait as long as half an hour before being served unless you force the issue by chasing down the maitre d'hotel and demanding attention.

The more leisurely approach to dining in the Soviet Union as compared with Canada may go part way toward explaining why it takes so long to be served. But deliberate disrespect or apathy are also factors.

The exceptions — restaurants with excellent service and stores where the staff goes out of its way to oblige customers — are all the more pleasant because of the contrast.

But discourtesy and indifference are widespread enough to have occupied the attention of Premier Khrushchev particularly as they affect the working population.

He told the Supreme Soviet July 13 "a great role in reorganizing the living conditions of Soviet people along Communist lines belongs to public catering." It was necessary to expand the network of canteens, cafes, snack bars and how service kitchens.

BLAMES SCOUNDRELS

"However the main thing is to show concern about the receiving people receive tasty food that they get rapid and efficient service."

Selection and education of workers in trade should be improved he said adding that "scoundrels and swindlers" had taken advantage of past weaknesses in this area.

Not long ago Pravda complained about the "mask of phlegmaticism" on the faces of female assistants in a foodshop in Komsomolsk Prospect.

After criticizing the slowmoving girls with their look "always aimed over the heads of customers" and their purposeful silence in reply to queries and polite questions" the newspaper declared:

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 8

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be specific in your view of security, money affairs. Tendency is to be too subtle. Profitable road is one which is direct. One who is glamorous may not be on your side. Be practical!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Key is to maintain dignity, poise. You gain if you permit logic to rule emotion. Otherwise, confusion takes the reins. Be especially considerate of marital or business partner.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Organize thoughts. Key to happy day is moderation. Lean to both sides of important question. Then decide on merits of issue. Many look to you as example. Don't disappoint them!

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Temptation is to forego practical matters. But you should not permit emotions to cloud vision. Tendency is toward self-deception. The more realistic you are . . . the happier you will be!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Situation which creates tension is but temporary. Know this and remain true to principles. Would be mistake to argue with family member. Get some needed privacy, rest. Then face world with smile!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Think twice before embarking upon search, journey. You learned recently that what you seek may be not so far away. Watch budget. Be sure you obtain the best for outlay of cash.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Realize that others intend to help . . . but may not have the means. Stress practical approach. Promises concerning money require "insurance."

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Maintain aura of glamor. Don't tell all you know. Others prefers to be "mystified." Know this and act accordingly. Apply stamp of individuality. Avoid the "mob." Remain active, alert.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Many persons and situations appear "fragile." Peculiar day in that the unorthodox takes over. Best bet is to be keen observer. Don't commit yourself. And don't believe everything you see!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Be realistic — especially where friends are concerned. Your judgment upon facts, not fancy. You could be caught up in web of romantic illusions. And this would prove costly!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): What you know to be true may not be pleasant . . . but condition due to work out in your favor. Keep an open mind, act in tactful, mature manner. One in authority simply is having "shaky day."

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Key is getting correspondence in order. There are communications due from afar. Your intuitive intellect works overtime. Have confidence in convictions. Others will follow your example.

If today is your birthday . . . you are capable of succeeding as business organizer, accountant and attorney. More freedom due next month.

General Vendemiaire: Deception involving huge financial scheme could come to light.

Lagoon Type of Sewage Plant Explained to Council

CAMPBELLFORD — Municipal Council met for their regular October meeting on Monday evening. All members were present except Councillor Hughes, who is in hospital.

The first deputation heard was from James Forestell asking permission to excavate a trench and lay water mains to Heathcote property at no expense to the town. Permission was granted.

Howard Wilson addressed Council in report on progress made toward building a community centre. In the fund raising campaign over $9,500 cash and $5,500 in pledges have been subscribed.

SURVEY COMPLETED

The survey for the Centre has been completed and two copies of the survey and plans have been turned over to the lawyer. Details of structure have been given to Lumber Structures in Peterborough who expect to complete estimate in two weeks. Agreement has been made between the township and town, a motion has been made to draw up a by-law for town to accept the agreement and also gift of land.

There has been some delay in the Centennial grant, the Department of Municipal Affairs will not accept fund raising plans as assured income. The Department insists the committee must have funds in hand to complete the project or hold enforceable commitments as assurance of financial stability. If not met they suggest temporary financing by debenture or otherwise and all information must be in the Department by November 9th. A joint meeting will be held with town, township representatives and Centre committee.

LAGOON TYPE SEWAGE

Much of the time was taken at council meeting regarding the feasibility of a lagoon type sewage disposal as opposed to a sludge plant.

Don Barker of the firm of British Consultant Engineers, was present to answer questions. A sewage pond on the industrial site might be chosen to accommodate 5,000 population but it would require 60 acres of six cells on each 8½ acres.

Two disadvantages were listed, one the odor for a month in spring and secondly the large acreage of land involved. The cost including pumping station and forced main would be approximately $390,00, as compared to $460,000 for sludge plant, assuming there was a minimum of rock for excavation and a sufficient soil for dikes, also Industrial land for any other purpose would be no longer possible. There has been so far no soil drilling.

A councillor present asked where he could see an activated sludge plant in operation, and Mr. Donald Dunk, a ratepayer present, replied, having recently lived in Elmira, stated a new plant had recently been built there with a particular problem of taking care of sewage from Nongrohl Chemicals. The chemical company which produce sprays, insecticides, etc., realizing the problem of effects on any plant have assumed approximately 40 per cent of the cost of the plant. Mr. Dunk said the Grand River was most polluted.

MADE PERSONAL SURVEY

W. A. Skinner asked if sewage plant would take sewage from Ward 1 and not dump it in Mr. Skinner's basement to which Mayor Tanner replied, no, to which Mr. Skinner asked "What good is it then?"

Another ratepayer present, F. M. Butherford, spoke of having made a personal survey of Trent system in Lindsay, Fenelon Falls, Port Perry, Bobcaygeon, Lakefield, Peterborough, Hastings and Campbellford. Of these areas Peterborough has both old and new plants together giving city adequate disposal with the exception of an area not yet serviced. They are not under the control of O.W.R. Lindsay built a plant some ten years ago which has been put out of operation by an acid from an industrial plant. Instead the sewage is taken care of by seven lagoons at a cost of 300 acres about a mile out of the city in an area suitable for cells and dikes, at an inital cost of $7,000 for operating, much less than the operating cost of original sludge plant.

Fenelon Falls use septic tanks and no sewers as does Bobcaygeon, Buckhorn, Hastings and Port Perry, where Hon. Matthew Dymond, the Provincial Minister of Health, lives.

Lakefield in their application for sewage disposal was refused by the Municipal Board as being too costly for them at this time.

A. C. Newman of Campbellford P.U.C., stated from his personal opinion the lagoon system would be more economical to build and operate.

F. Mayhew inquired concerning the sewage from a lumber plant be taken care of in the proposed plant.

Councillor Bennett asked that the engineer prepare a report of lagoon type system for the town making use of local contractors if possible for drilling and soil test and alternate sites.

Some time ago it was suggested to the Department of Transport that safety chains be placed on the cement walls at Trout Creek. The department suggested life rings, and the corporation, if it wishes chains, to install them at their own expense. As the walls were constructed by the department and are a definite life hazard, council feels the department should change their policy and request will be made to the department in Ottawa for the chains to be installed. Lowering almost occurred and the rescuers, Everett Steel and helper H. Beattie had a difficult time to rescue the child.

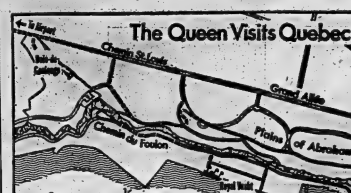
Man Acquitted On Charge of Interference

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A bespectacled assistant journalism professor who failed in his bait - ditch attempt to save 13 maple trees from the saw was acquitted Tuesday on a charge of interference.

Earl Beattie of the University of Western Ontario organized a "committee to save the trees" after maples lining Talbot Road in the nearby village of Lambeth were ordered cleared to make way for a street-widening project.

On Aug. 26 Prof. Beattie led 50 children in worrying tactics against workmen sent to drop the trees. The sawers retreated, but came back two days later, supported by 10 provincial policemen.



Mr. Beattie, a ladder under his arm, announced: "I'm going to climb this tree and sit in it. It's on public property."

He was arrested before he could climb the ladder, and the trees came down.

Magistrate C. G. Marshman dismissed the charge on submissions by defence counsel that no survey had been made of the road, so there was no way of establishing that Mr. Beattie had no lawful right to interfere. In addition no bylaw had been passed by county council authorizing removal of the trees, a necessity under the Ontario Municipal Act.

Hardwood Lots Are Rapidly Being Depleted

TORONTO (CP)—Hardwood lots, including stands of maple trees, are rapidly being depleted in Canada, experts at the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry report.

The hardwood stands are mostly on private property in Ontario and Quebec, David V. Love, professor of forestry at the University of Toronto, said Monday: "The problem of getting sustained growth on these lots is increasing.

"If hardwood stands are harvested on a partial-cut basis the let's rule if recovery is equal to that of coniferous woods. But too often this is 'not done.'"

On the brighter side of the maple tree—Lloyd D. Hswboldt, of the Nova Scotia department of lands and forests, said: "The sugar bush will become something more of a cultivated orchard than a wild stand. This will promote tree-breeding and grafting to take advantage of those trees which consistently give greater flows of sap with higher sugar content."

Myth Exploded

Victoria and Albert Not Calm Lovebirds

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Remember all that stuff about Victoria and Albert—the Royal lovebirds living in constant wedded bliss?

Well, you can forget the 100-year-old myth. Queen Victoria and her beloved consort, it turns out, were no strangers to tears, tantrums and rages.

And what about that endlessly quoted expression of Victoria's that "We are not amused." The fact is that Victoria could get a smile out of practically anything. Her diaries and letters abound with the words "very amused."

Prince Albert, by the way, was not the starchy figure of popular caricature. He was a Teutonic tummy, according to Victoria. She wrote after he just came to London that Albert "kept the breakfast table in a roar with his witty remarks."

All this is revealed in Lady Longford's 600 - page Victoria R.I., the first biography written with full access to the Royal archives of the Queen who gave her name to an era of history.

The Royal Family quarrels; an early case of friction was the upbringing of the baby Princess Royal, one of nine children. She was pale and thin as a child.

WRONG LETTERS

One day in January, 1842, Victoria's temper flared. Albert's "pent-up fury came roaring out." There was a quarrel, a flood of tears. The seething princess Royal, one of seven letter to "take the child away and do as you like and H she dies you will have it on your conscience."

The Queen and Albert, incidentally, exchanged letters constantly while living in the same house and even though she followed him from room to room when they quarrelled.

Albert, with his passion for efficiency, was goaded beyond endurance by frivolity in the court. As it apparently, in fact her husband, he never penetrated the female mind

"He was no tactician in the field of feminine emotions," writes Lady Longford. "All Victoria wanted was an explosion followed by a good cry, kiss and make up."

They were, of course, a devoted couple despite flareups.

"There were disagreements, there were storms, but more often a day after day of cloudless happiness," says Lady Longford.

The London Daily Mail comments: "How much more likable and warming than the pink-sugared image of the pair we used to have."

Lady Longford's book is "scholarly yet really readable, witty yet wise," says the Sunday Times.

DOTED ON DEATH

The magazine New Statesman, reviewing the biograph, detects an obsession with death in Victoria's character, even with the demise of minor officials whose anniversaries were duly observed.

"In life she treated her motto with a mixture of cruelty and condescension," says the weekly. "But she set up an impressive caterwauling when, in due course, the poor lady died.

Several reviewers, their sensibilities perhaps aberrpeyed by the forthcoming British election, are fascinated by Victoria's purer and stronger views on democracy.

She had "no intention" of becoming "sovereign of a democracy," she once wrote. In 1882, when the Tories were defeated, she added that it seemed a constitutional defect to "have to put up with an admirable government like Lord Salisbury's for no question of any importance but merely on account of the number of votes."

Experts Decide Missile Ships Could Survive

Proposed NATO Fleet Could Evade Red Watch

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military experts of eight NATO powers have concluded that Russia lacks enough long-range bombers, nuclear submarines and fast ships to knock out a proposed fleet of Polaris missile-firing surface vessels.

Government sources told The Associated Press the NATO experts had reached unanimous agreement that the Soviet Union would not be able to keep track of 20 alliance-owned-and-operated missile ship cruising at random in almost 4,000,000 square miles of the Atlantic Ocean and Mediterranean Sea.

Critics of the proposed NATO nuclear force have questioned whether it would survive in a war situation long enough to launch its 2,875-mile range Polaris missiles at Communist targets.

U.S. officials said the NATO military experts, in effect, endorsed the force's "survivability" after a 20-month study.

Most opposition to the plan has come from Britain.

The NATO fleet concept calls for constructing 25 merchant-type ships, each carrying eight of the longest - range Polaris missiles.

Twenty of these vessels, powered by high - speed engines, would be at sea at a given time, with the five others in port at special bases in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic.

The military study found that future provinces a built-in defence for the force. In addition to the vast oceans it would roam, the military group noted, there are some 12,000 miles of NATO coastline along which the ships could be dispersed. Also, shallow waters and inland water systems provide natural defences against submarines.

The military experts held that the endurance and speed of the proposed vessels, their design permitting them to look at sea like many cargo ships, and freedom of movement provided by their long - range missiles all contributed to the safety of the ships from searching planes and craft.

STUDY FLAG DESIGNS — Members of the Commons flag committee are surrounded by 1,200 designs for a new Canadian flag which they are considering. Off-Cuff Jibe Hogs Limelight

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — Quintin Hogg's off-the-cuff remark to a heckler continued to hog the limelight today and speeches by the major party leaders were all but ignored.

Hogg, tears in his eyes, explained to a London audience Wednesday night what he meant when he said Tuesday night: "If you can tell me there are no adulterers on the front bench of the Labor party, you can talk about Profumo."

He admitted making the statement but attacked the Labor-supporting Daily Mirror for putting a "misleading headline" on its report of the speech. The newspaper's headline was "Hogg blows his top—he makes a fantastic smear against the Labor front bench."

Hogg, choked with emotion, shouted against more hecklers and said: "I meant that that kind of filth should be kept out of public affairs."

The heckler had brought up Profumo Tuesday and Hogg said "his testy remark about adultery among Labor men" only that the heckler should have realized no party has a monopoly on vice.

HEADLINE MISLEADING

"They put that misleading headline on the report, knowing that there was nothing in the report to suggest it, and knowing it was the opposite to what I was saying, for the worst possible reasons — to smear my character and try to destroy the chances of the Conservative party," the Tory science minister said.

"I say this to them: They are a millionaire corporation — am only a man with a limited amount of money with a budget of five to keep. Let them not rest on their wealth and try to

Maple Leaf Dominant

Committee Shows 1200 New Flags

Special by Richard Jackson

Covering its four walls in a rainbow splash were 1,200 flags. These were new flags — of both strikingly beautiful and widely strange design — and the committee was viewing them in addition to the 3,000 old flags collected by an earlier parliamentary committee 10 years ago.

The committee put the 1,200 new designs on display to mark half-time in its six-week deadline. But whether it was making any real progress towards deciding on a distinctive Canadian flag remained secret.

After 16 committee meetings and inspection of a total of 4,200 designs, did Chairman Batten have any sort of preference at all? "They are all interesting aren't they?". He parried. But there was this strikingly dominant, occurring in two out of three of these 1,200 new designs was the Maple Leaf, the Red Ensign and the Union Jack were just nowhere.

If Mr. Batten would not concess to any personal preference, he didn't mind singing out what he considered the strangest of all designs. At the staff of this flag was a green horseshoe and on it 10 gold maple leaves, with a Beaver precariously perched on the upper tip of the shoe holding in his mouth a bouquet of brown flowers. In the fly of the flag's blue and white field was a Union Jack of freak design overlaid by an eleventh maple leaf overlaid in turn by a second Beaver.

Would the committee make its October 29 deadline?

"We have no choice," reported the chairman," make it we must".

Justice Minister Attacked

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau was told he should resign his cabinet post Wednesday during an angry Commons debate that saw him and the government flailed for the handling of Hal C. Banks, former head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) moved an amendment to the justice department estimates to reduce the minister's salary to $1. He said "it is both my belief and the belief of a good many of us on this side that the minister is no longer fit to hold the portfolio. . ."

Mr. Favreau denied the federal government made any "shady deal" to help Mr. Banks escape Canadian justice.

He said the government prosecuted Mr. Banks with determination, had opposed his request for bail, and had argued if bail was granted it should be set at $50,000.

Although Crown counsel did not warn Mr. Justice Tremblay that conspiracy charges are not covered by Canada's extradition treaty with the United States, the judge knew this, and extradition was usually not discussed during a bail application, Mr. Favreau added.

FLED CANADA

The former union boss, fired as SIU president by the government-appointed seamen union trusteeship, fled Canada while awaiting an appeal hearing for his conviction on the conspiracy charge. He had been released on $25,000 bail and faced a five-year jail term.

The Banks issue flared again last week following his discovery by a reporter aboard a yacht at Brooklyn, N.Y.

Debate on the estimates and Mr. Nielsen's amendment is to resume next Wednesday.

Mr. Nielsen charged that Banks was allowed to leave the country by the government's "fumbling and bumbling, intentional or otherwise."

He said there were reports of lapse and flims which might mean some Liberal backbench-

Request Unions Aid NDP

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Labor wound up its three-day annual meeting Wednesday with a fresh call for trade union support of the New Democratic Party.

Bill Joyce, an auto worker from Oakville, said too many union members are giving more lip service to the NDP. They should be out working to elect party candidates.

But there was criticism of the labor - backed party as well.

Roy Stewart of Milton, a member of the Machinists union, said the NDP is not returning the support it gets from labor and this was a major reason for labor's declining interest in the party.

He criticized the staging of an NDP convention at Toronto's Royal York Hotel, scene of a bitter strike two years ago, and held of an NDP seminar at which one of the topics was: "Why do unions discriminate against working wives?"

Another delegate complained that the NDP played down its labor connections during the Ontario byelection campaign last month in Toronto Riverdale, won by NDP candidate James Renwick.

He said he was told that the party did not wish to alienate the anti-labor voters of the riding.

SAYS OVERSIGHT

C. C. (Doc) Ames of Kirkland Lake criticized the fact that Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader of the NDP, was not introduced to the 1,000 delegates and guests at Monday's opening session of the convention. It was "most unfortunate."

Harold Thayer of Ottawa, an OFL vice - president, said the working man must realize that there will be decent social conditions in Ontario only when the NDP takes over the provincial government. If enough people would turn out to work for the party this goal could be achieved.

He also urged that union members contribute as much to the party each year as they pay out in union dues. NDP membership rates for individuals now run between $1 and $5 a year. Union dues average about $5 a month.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Television actor Lorne Greene drew almost as big a crowd as Queen Elizabeth in Charlottetown Wednesday. Police had to be called out to rescue him from a downtown restaurant where a crowd of ardent fans blocked the entrance.

Greene, the silver-haired Ben Cartwright of Bonanza fame, came to Charlottetown to perform in a royal variety show for the Queen.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

And Republican senator Barry Goldwater, battling Johnson for the presidency, charges the president has "based his campaign on political doublespeak as to his own record and political deception as to mine."

Johnson made his two day barnstorming tour of the mid-west today, then heads south, joining up Friday night in New Orleans with his wife, who is chugging across the southland on the Lady Bird special train.

Goldwater, after two days of campaigning in Pennsylvania and new Jersey, heads back into the southwest today for two stops in Texas and a night speech in his home town of Phoenix. Friday, the Arizona senator swings into Nevada and California.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Goldwater flies to Columbus, Ohio, to be honored by the state convention of the Ohio Federation of Republican Women after a one-day campaign foray into her home town, Muncie, Ind.

Johnson spent much of Wednesday needling Goldwater — without mentioning his name — about his views on social security and farm policy. He charged the Arizona senator's proposals would wreck social security and bankrupt one out of every five farmers by wiping out farm price supporters.

Goldwater denied both charges, and in a speech prepared for Lubbock, Tex., snapped back on farm policy:

"Republicans are pledged to return farmers to the free market but they also are pledged to do it without working any hardship on farmers who must now, mainly because of past government failures, depend upon support payments."

Bid Farewell To PEI After Dinner And Ball

Royal Yacht Escorted By Four Destroyers

By JAMES NELSON

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip left at midnight Wednesday after a two-day stay, and so far as Prince Edward Islanders are concerned they'd like more and longer royal visits.

Nearly a thousand of them waited on a chilly Charlottetown dock to see the Queen's departure aboard the royal yacht Britannia for Quebec after attending a state dinner and ball.

Wearing an emerald green satin gown, white Canadian mink stole, and a fabulous sunray diamond tiara that belonged to Queen Alexandra, her great-grandmother, the Queen waved to the crowd and they responded with repeated cheers.

The departure was preceded by a near - accident when the gangplank of the royal yacht shifted position moments before the Queen was to walk up it, but police prevented the visit to commercial, P.E.I. and Charlottetown a success.

SPEND DAY SAILING

The Queen and her husband arrive at Quebec Saturday morning and fly to Ottawa late Sunday. Most of today will be spent on the Britannia in the Gulf of St. Lawrence out of sight of land, sailing almost due north towards Gaspe.

The Britannia is escorted by four Canadian naval vessels—the destroyer escorts Assiniboine, Nipigon, St. Laurent and Yukon. Light winds and sunshine were forecast for today's voyage.

A farewell toast to the Queen's health was proposed in Castle at the state banquet Wednesday night. Four pipers from the Canadian Guards Regiment played Scottish airs.

At the ball that followed, the Queen, Prince Philip and 350 other couples — most of them in evening dress — danced waltzes and fox-trots in the new Fathers of Confederation Memorial Centre, which the Queen formally dedicated Tuesday.

SHOWS NO ALARM

The Queen was apparently not alarmed by the tippy gangplank, although it appeared before it shifted position with the

CAIRO (AP)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Premier Moise-Tshombe stood fast today, with Nasser still holding Tshombe hostage and Tshombe's police blocking off the Egyptian Embassy in Leopoldville.

Tshombe, the Congo's premier, was spending his third day under house arrest in the Aruba palace just outside Cairo. Nasser had ordered him held there to prevent his attending the conference of unaligned nations. Egyptian troops and police kept out all but a few selected visitors.

Nasser sent word to Tshombe that he would not be released until his police lift their blockade of the Egyptian and Algerian embassies in Leopoldville. The embassies were surrounded and all movement in and out was stopped since Tshombe's detention reached Leopoldville.

Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu sent Nasser and Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella letters today denying that the action against their embassies was in reprisal for the treatment of Tshombe. He said the police were to "prevent public demonstrations" after the Congolese learned what had happened to Tshombe.

Kasavubu also denied that any effort had been made to restrict normal diplomatic movement of Egyptian and Algerian personnel. But reporters reported from Leopoldville that no one was allowed in or out of the embassies, even to buy food.

A Congolese Embassy official in Cairo told reporters the Egyptians would have to give way first.

"We will end the restrictions if they end theirs in Leopoldville when they release Premier Tshombe here," he said.

Tshombe had insisted on attending the conference despite a cable from its leaders to Kasavubu telling the president he would be welcome but not the premier. Kasavubu rejected the suggestion, saying it was The Congo's business who it sent to an organization of which it was a charter member.

African chiefs of state at the conference sent a cable to Kasavubu Wednesday night protesting the siege of the embassies. They said the Congolese had no right to retaliate against the Egyptians because the decision to bar Tshombe from the conference was taken by the full conference, not by Nasser alone.

Giant Radiation Monitor Built To Give Readings in Bodies

OTTAWA (CP)—A giant monitor has been built by the radiation protection division of the federal health department to obtain quick readings of the amount of radioactive materials in the bodies of Canadians.

The monitor, known as a whole body counter, is at the division's new two-storey laboratory in south Ottawa, officially opened Wednesday.

Human beings always have had a certain amount of radioactive materials in their bodies. However, fallout from nuclear bomb tests is increasing this amount slightly and it is of fundamental importance to determine this quantity.

Radiation workers also occasionally take in small radioactive materials as a result of accidental contamination of air, food or water. In some cases it is necessary to determine how much has been taken in as a guide for medical treatment.

First of its kind in Canada, the monitor consists of two large rooms with steel walls eight inches thick to reduce background radiation that occurs naturally. Each room is large enough to hold a cot on which an individual lies while his radioactivity is being measured.

Dr. Peter Bird, director of the health protection division, said Wednesday it will be several months before tests on a sample group of 100 people are determined for tests on humans

Further this, one of the first projects will be the determination of cesium-137 levels in Eskimos.

"This is of current interest because the concentration of this fallout isotope is considerably higher in people who eat substantial amounts of caribou meat," Dr. Bird said.

TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: It was milder throughout Ontario during the night as a storm centre moved into the Great Lakes region. A mixture of rain and snow spread across central and northern areas as the storm approached and will gradually taper off this evening when colder air once again slides southward. Clear skies across southern Ontario will give way to cloudy conditions this morning and a few showers are expected during the day. On Friday, gradual clearing and cooler weather is anticipated.

Faiths of Four Religions Represented at Dinner Meeting

Groups of men from churches of four different faiths met at St. Thomas' Parish House on Tuesday evening, for an interesting dinner meeting sponsored by the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen of St. Thomas' Church.

The 118 men present at the dinner represented St. Michael the Archangel Roman Catholic Church, Bridge Street United Church, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

A delicious roast beef dinner, prepared and served by Mrs. McKenna's group of St. Paul's mission, was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Ronald Keel, president of the B.A.C., welcomed the groups from the four churches and stated it was gratifying to see so many men of different religious denominations gathered together in Christian fellowship. Mr. Keel introduced the head table.

Mr. John A. Pringle, chairman of program, introduced the speakers who were:

Right Rev. J. P. Sullivan, St. Michael the Archangel Church; Rev. H. M. Davis, Bridge Street United Church; Ven. Archdeacon J. S. McConnell, St. Thomas' Anglican Church; Rev. A. L. Sutherland, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Each speaker spoke for 15 minutes on the topic "My Faith" and described briefly the Articles of Faith on which their own Churches are based. It was noted that although there are some significant differences in the beliefs of the four Churches, they have many things in common.

Each speaker also stated his views on "Christian Unity." The views expressed were somewhat different with regard to the timing and degree of church unity, but all four speakers agreed that closer cooperation between churches of different faiths is most desirable. It was noted that times are changing and churches are closer together now than in the past. For example, a few decades ago, a dinner such as this would have been almost impossible to organize.

Dr. P. G. Loder thanked the speakers, the executive of the B.A.C., for their most interesting addresses.

Right Rev. J. P. Sullivan pronounced the benediction.

Theological College Appeal Will Be Staged

Plans are now under way for a financial appeal to the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada on behalf of Queen's Theological College.

The Bay of Quinte Conference meeting in May past authorized the College to proceed with a campaign for $500,000 to assist in its endowment and to support the work of the College generally, particularly the recent appointment of an additional full time Professor in Practical Theology.

A campaign committee is presently being set up, and it is hoped that details concerning the campaign will be in the hands of the Churches early in the new year.

Queen's Theological College has begun the fall session with the largest registration in its history.

The Quinte Marksmen held their initial shoot of the winter season in the armories Thursday evening.

Frank Allin, with 290, led the club. Walter Messer had 288, Harry Hodgkinson 283, Don Parks 281, CMP Smith 239, Elton McMurray 208, Howard Lynch 230, S. Kerr 217, George Vojtasavitz 343, Louis Kulscar 347.

Five Members Honored by Senior Citizens

The first October meeting of the Belleville Senior Citizens' Club was opened by President Mrs. Casey with the National Anthem, followed by a singing. There were five members with birthdays and they were appropriately honored with the singing of "Happy Birthday". One minute's silence was held for the passing of one of the beloved members Mrs. Casey with the group sang "Nearer My God to Thee" with Mrs. Shirley at the piano.

The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Livingston.

A short entertainment was rendered by five girls from the Ontario Hydro, Belleville Regional Office. These girls were considered to be Belleville's answer to the "Beatles," they called themselves the "Hydro-peds." They pantomimed two Beatle records which brought laughs and amusement from the club members. The names of the Hydro group were: Linda Jones, Joan McCafferty, Brenda Brown, Dianne Fleming and Gert Brooker.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to cheers, and the prize winners were: Ladies, Mrs. Bye, Mrs. Reed; Mrs. Tyran. Gents, Mrs. J. Doyle, Mrs. McKinnon and Mrs. Scales.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Taylor and her committee and appreciated by the singing of grace brought a very enjoyable meeting to a close. The members sang "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

Old Landmark Torn Down to Provide Exit

One of the oldest residential properties in the city, the Alexander house behind the hill at the north end of Church Street is today going under the wrecker's hammer.

The old two-storey frame house, unoccupied for more than a decade, is being torn down to provide a Church street exit from the A. and P. supermarket on Dundas Street.

With permission from the CNR to use the railway right-of-way, an 80 foot wide at Church street will be provided. The property widens to about 90 feet at the supermarket parking lot boundary.

Donald J. Whaley, whose realty firm handled the sale, said the supermarket exit only will be temporary, as was stated by the one-way traffic in effect on Pinnacle Street.

Former Christ Church Rector Installed Dean

KINGSTON (CP) — Rev. Richard G. Fleming, 53, inducted Wednesday as the incumbent of St. George's Cathedral here, was also installed as the youngest dean of Ontario in the same ceremony Dean Fleming holds the title of rector of Kingston.

The appointment fills a vacancy created when Dean A. T. Briarly Browne, 69, retired after 40 years in the Anglican priesthood.

A native of Brockville, Dean Fleming had until recently served as rector of Christ Church in Belleville. He previously served parishes in Hammors and in England.

Believe Stolen Car Involved In Accident

Provincial Police are looking for the man who stole a car from a Trenton car lot last night, involved the vehicle in an accident at the Miller corners and then from the scene. The car a 1962 model, was apparently stolen from the land Peter Potter car lot in Trenton, after the lot closed for the night at 9 o'clock.

The accident occurred at the crossroads in Glen Miller on the Glen Miller Road, involved the stolen car and a car driven by Miss Cathy Rankin, of Trenton Miss Rankin and her passenger, Mrs. Bertha Faul, were slightly injured. Damage to Miss Rankin's car has been estimated about $450, details on the damage to the stolen car are not available.

Cardiff Zoning Control Ordered

The Honorable J. W. Spooner, Minister of Municipal Affairs, has announced that a temporary order has been made under The Planning Act prescribing zoning controls on the community of Cardiff in the Improvement District of Bicroft.

The order, made at the request of the Improvement of the Improvement District, limits new buildings and uses to single-family dwellings, subject to certain standards.

Queen's Has 4,100 Students

KINGSTON — With registration figures still incomplete at Queen's University, the total number of undergraduate students in all faculties will be about 4,100 the University announced today.

This is an increase of 12% over last year's total of 3,700 which setting a record enrolment within the target of projected annual increases to 5,000 undergraduate students at Queen's by 1970.

Research Into Prevention Of Retardation Stressed

The October meeting of the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children was held on Tuesday evening at the school, 321 John Street. Reports from committee chairmen concerned the bowling and parties of the past year and the satisfactory results of the recent tag day. Twenty-five pupils are currently enrolled in the school.

CUB PACK

The Cub Pack will begin its fall program on Tuesday, October 13th, and it is hoped to form a small Scout troop if a leader can be found.

The main part of the program consisted of reports of the delegates to the 7th annual conference on mental retardation held in Toronto last week. Belleville was well represented with nine members attending all or part of the conference. It was stressed throughout the conference that research into the causes and prevention of retardation and also into the most beneficial programs for the training of the mentally retarded aspect of our work at present.

The Flowers of Hope Campaign, a nation-wide money raising campaign to be held each year, Mother's Day, was highly praised, by experts in the fields of advertising, public relations, radio and T.V.

TWO PATROLS

Delegates were impressed by the performance of two well-disciplined patrols of retarded Boy Scouts, and also by the swimming prowess of 25 of the boys from the Bayridge Street School in Toronto. The annual Ontario Teachers' Conference was held in conjunction with the Canadian Conference and our three teachers attended several helpful and informative sessions, including those on multiple-handicapped children, the use of music and dental problems.

The November program will be a new film "And Crown Thy Good," followed by an auction sale, to which the public is cordially invited. The proceeds from this auction will go to the Belleville Hospital School swimming pool fund.

Woman's Silent Wednesdays Hamper Hunt for Lost Python

LONDON (Reuters) — Police today limited a seven-foot python which escaped Wednesday night from the home of a London woman doctor—but this was only part of the problem.

They had the utmost difficulty getting the facts from the python's keeper, Guy Wednesday 54-year-old Mr. Rachel Pinney never speaks to anyone.

Dr. Pinney, daughter of a British Army general is a Buddhist nun who she took a vow never to speak on Wednesdays as a protest against Britain's possession of nuclear weapons.

Only in emergencies will she break the pledge, and a lost python, she decided, was not an emergency.

So the policemen's questions Wednesday night were answered with an apologetic smile, graphic gestures and a scribbled note from the doctor.

Police today described the non-poisonous python as dangerous, adding: "Although he is a crushing type, a bite could prove serious."

Dr. Pinney had been looking after the snake for a friend.

Business Briefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
SALES DROP

Sales rung up by Canada's department stores in the week ended Sept. 26 were 8.4 per cent below those in the corresponding period last year, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

WAGES HIGHER

Canadian average wages for male factory hands in mid-August were 5½ per cent higher than a year earlier in cases where board is included, 5.2 per cent without. Rose about 7.3 per cent in that period. The bureau of statistics said average farm wages with board at Aug. 15 were $1,540 a year compared with $1,460 a year earlier. Wages without board climbed to $2,130 from $1,985.

WANTS MANUFACTURING

Canada is looking for opportunities to have products made on the island under licence and Canadian companies will be given considerable attention in this search, Danlie J. Powell, general manager of the Jamaican Industrial Development Corp., said Wednesday in Niagara Falls, Ont. He said in an interview Canadian manufacturing experience in limited products or lines is considered ideally suited to meet Jamaican needs.

OPPOSE PLAN

Board of control recommended Wednesday that London city council reject a Toronto development company's request for a new city hall in the Ontario city and then rent the building to the city on a 25-year lease. Oakport Developments Limited, of Toronto, last week submitted a plan to board of control to construct a new city hall downtown and rent it to the city at $309,000 annually, excluding maintenance and operating costs.

MAIL TO BE PERMANENT

Ottawa's temporary shoppers' mall will become a permanent fixture in the spring of 1966, the merchants' group in charge of the project announced Wednesday. Three blocks of Sparks Street in downtown Ottawa will be developed into a year-round shoppers' promenade with limited traffic access. The same section has served as a temporary mall each summer since 1960.

Commons Paves Way to Take Holiday Monday

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons wednesday paved the way to take a unified Holiday on Thanksgiving Day, Monday, Oct. 12, when the Queen and Prince Philip will be in the capital.

The Commons procedures committee introduced a unanimous report recommending nine fixed holidays for the Commons, including Thanksgiving Day.

The government had earlier given notice of a motion to provide a Thanksgiving holiday this year but Creditiste Gilles Grégoire (Lapointe) indicated his group would attempt a blockade.

He declined to say publicly why but reliable sources said the Creditiste MPs harbored grievance because Prime Minister Pearson had declined to support efforts for a Commons holiday on Jean Baptiste Day, last June 24.

BYPASSES PROBLEM

The procedures committee report, endorsed privately by all party leaders before it was introduced, bypasses the thanksgiving holiday problem by including St. Jean Baptiste Day on the list of nine holidays to be observed in future by the Commons.

The committee's recommendations, expected to be adopted formally Friday, are for holidays on New Year's Day, Good Friday, the sovereign's birthday, St. Jean Baptiste Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Remembrance Day and Christmas Day.

Parliament At a Glance

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 7, 1964

A government-promised debate on the disappearance of former union leader Hal Banks produced a demand by Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) for Immigration Minister Favreau's resignation.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said a judicial inquiry should be started to investigate "serious rumors" of Liberal connections with Banks.

Mr. Favreau denied there had been any "shady deal" to allow Banks' bail-jumping to the United States following conviction for conspiracy, a non-extraditable crime.

H. A. Olson (SC — Medicine Hat) said it was "hardly credible" Mr. Favreau would not have known Banks' whereabouts.

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to consider spending estimates of the trade department. The Senate stands adjourned until Oct. 13.

No One Will Be Placed Under Arrest

QUEBEC (CP) — A spokesman for organizers of the royal visit to Quebec City said Wednesday security arrangements here will be no more severe than they were in Charlottetown.

The spokesman flatly denied reports that known extremists in separatist organizations will be placed under preventative arrest during the Queen's stay.

At a special press briefing, the spokesman said everyone who wants to see the Queen will have an opportunity to do so.

He said the provincial legislature building, where the Queen is scheduled to speak Saturday, will be closed to all but accredited persons as of Friday noon.

The public will be allowed to move through the Chateau Frontenac Hotel without restriction until shortly before the Queen's arrival for a state banquet Saturday night, the spokesman said.

In most areas her car will move at about 20 miles an hour on trips through the city but it will slow down to about 10 miles an hour in upper town streets, site of the Chateau and other landmarks.

The spokesman reiterated that the Queen will not spend past crowds but the procession will travel at about the speed it takes to travel from the city limits en route to the airport for the Queen's departure Sunday.

Doctor Says Man Suffered Intense Pain

Charges against an Oak Lake man were dismissed this morning in county court, after a doctor testified that he may have been suffering intense pain before a three-car accident on Highway 14, July 9. Dr. Peter Scott of Belleville today told the court that William Detlor of Oak Lake had a perforated ulcer when admitted to Belleville General Hospital after the accident, and that the ulcer had probably perforated just before the accident. He said Mr. Detlor may have had no warning of it before the accident and the pain of the perforation probably would have made him unable to control his car.

Charge of Car Theft Laid Against Man

Returned to Belleville yesterday, Robert Edward Walters of Belleville and district, has been charged with car theft. He was arrested about 2:30 a.m. Wednesday, near Orillia in a Corvette sports car stolen from Woodley Motors Ltd. of Thomas Woodley, of Belleville. A second person in the car ran, when Provincial Police officers stopped the vehicle, after a high speed chase. A second car stolen from Woodley Tuesday evening, was abandoned in Frankford, its engine apparently wrecked. Police believe Walters was en route to Orillia when the car was stopped.

CHURCHILL'S HOPE

LONDON (Reuters)—Former prime minister Sir Winston Churchill, 89, said Thursday he is confident the British people will "again demonstrate their good sense" by returning the ruling Conservative party to power in the Oct. 15 national election. He made the statement in a message to Prime Minister Douglas-Home.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The long shadow of an empty till hangs over the scheduled meeting here Nov. 24 of the representatives of 28 countries to exchange technical information on United Nations peacekeeping operations.

Officials here stress the meeting will not touch on any political issue. This means, for instance, that financing of UN peacekeeping missions will not be discussed.

Officially, it was stated that the UN's continuing financial crisis will have no bearing on the meeting among representatives of all countries, except the major powers, which have contributed to UN peacekeeping operations.

Unofficially, it was conceded that discussion of methods to improve these operations might be dulled by the prospect of the UN never being able to finance them properly.

Though the UN Security Council unanimously approved extension of the mandate of the UN force in Cyprus to Dec. 26, it did nothing about collecting or sharing of the costs.

Canada is bearing the costs of its 1,150-man contingent in Cyprus and by Dec. 26 they will amount to $2,915,000.

MET BY FUND

Costs of other contingents, except Ireland's, are being met by a voluntary fund set up by UN Secretary-General U Thant and to which only two or three countries, chiefly Britain and the United States, are contributing.

About the final straw for Canada was a UN request that this country contribute to the voluntary fund as well as paying for its contingent in Cyprus. The government refused.

The UN force in The Congo had to be withdrawn because of lack of funds. The UN went into debt trying to maintain it.

France, for instance, not only refused to make any contribution toward maintenance of the UN Congo force but even stopped Congo-bound RCAF refuelling flights en route to the planes from flying over France.

Russia has contributed to neither and now owes assessments of more than $54,000,000 to the UN. Twelve other countries are also in arrears. France owes $16,144,000.

Russia continues to insist it won't pay the debt and that only the UN Security Council, not the UN General Assembly, can initiate and arrange financing for peacekeeping operations.

The International Court of Justice has ruled that assessments for both the UN Middle East and Congo forces, approved by the General Assembly, have the same mandatory status as those for the UN's regular budget.

Article 19 of the UN charter provides that members be deprived of their voting rights in the General Assembly if their debt total more than their assessments for the last two years. Russia, but not France, now is in this position.

"The government believes that Article 19 of the charter is automatic, and that the failure of a country to extricate itself from the application of that article means that it would lose its vote at the General Assembly."

FILCHES FUNDS

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater's campaign fund is out $17. Two men entered the Evansville headquarters for the Republican presidential nominee Wednesday, asking for bumper stickers. When a clerk went to look for the stickers, one of the men fished $17 from a bowl containing donations.

Mental Patient Kept Under Close Watch

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — RCMP kept an escaped mental patient from British Columbia under close watch here Wednesday as the Queen conducted her three - day visit to Prince Edward Island.

Insp. J. O. Gorman, the Mounties' royal - tour liaison officer, said Edward Coulston-Janes, 55, of Kelowna, B.C., will likely be placed in protective custody today after examination by provincial authorities.

Coulston - Janes disappeared from Essondale mental hospital at New Westminster B.C., Aug. 8. A Vancouver Sun reporter, Jack Cahill, tipped police the man was hiding out in Charlottetown, saying he had received a phone call from the escapee at the royal-visit pressroom here.

The man was arrested in Kelowna in June last year on a charge of using a firearm with intent to wound. He was remanded to the mental hospital.

Red Feather Report

Belleville people are giving more, this year, than ever before to the Belleville United Appeal Campaign, but it is impossible to tell as yet just how much more. Money and pledges are turned in to the United Appeal office in the Kiwanis Centre total about $9,700 today, an increase of about $1,800 over the seventh day of the campaign last year, but most of the payroll giving cards are still in the hands of in-plant canvassers, and total receipts are impossible to measure accurately. The $22,000 figure printed in the feather on the front page is a conservative estimate.

At least two firms have collected between two and four thousand dollars each and several more are known to have collected about one thousand dollars each already, but several major firms have no count yet of collections. Several firms which last year refused co-operation have decided in favor of payroll giving this year, and two bank branches whose employees last year gave a total of about $380 now have collected a total of $440, and expect to collect more. If the trend continues through other branches, gifts from banking personnel are expected to be about 60 per cent higher than last year.

No Dumping Of U.S. Turkeys Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Hays said Wednesday there is no dumping of American turkeys on the Canadian market but the imports of such turkeys are continuing to be "watched closely."

L. Elston Cardiff (PC — Huron) raised the question in the Commons when he said one-third of a million pounds of American turkeys have been shipped into Canada since Mr. Hays met turkey producers in Winnipeg a month ago.

Mr. Hays said Mr. Cardiff's statement was not accurate. He said Canadian producers get a 7½- to eight-cents-a-pound protection against U.S. turkeys and this is considered ample when viewed beside other goods crossing the border.

Queen Praised For Remarks About Song

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Mirror praises the Queen today for Her Majesty's goodnatured remarks in Canada about the old song: There Was an Old Man and He Had an Old Sow.

The Queen said in Prince Edward Island that she knows the song and can make the appropriate whistling, honking and snorting noises that are an integral part of it, but daren't do so when she's wearing a tiara.

"This surely is one of the most human remarks she has ever made in public," The Mirror says in an editorial. "She ought to make more like it.

"Many people admire the Queen for going ahead with her Canadian tour despite threats to her safety. And everyone will warm towards her for making this delightfully feminine aside about an old English classic.

Army Signaller Shot to Death At Mother's

HAMILTON (CP) — A 22-year-old army signaller who recently returned from Cyprus was shot to death Wednesday in his mother's east-end apartment. The mother was in critical condition in hospital with a bullet wound in the face, and police said she was under guard.

Arthur Zeilek, based with the Royal Canadian Army Signal Corps in Kingston, was shot twice in the chest with an old .303 - calibre army rifle. His mother, Jennie, 44, was found in the living-room by police called in by neighbors.

Arthur Zeilek, Sr. estranged husband of the woman, said his son was planning to get married and Mrs. Zeilek did not like the idea. The youth was to marry Bonita Sadowski, 20, of St. Catharines.

Mrs. Joan Bashista, a next-door neighbor, said Mrs Zeilek seemed to dislike women and would not respond to a greeting on the street.

Firemen Cut Inspections to Bare Minimum

TRENTON — Fire Prevention Week activities have been vastly curtailed in Trenton this year, due to a failure of town council and local firemen to see eye-to-eye over a question of overtime pay for inspections carried out after working hours.

Other years, the men have inspected stores, industries, churches, schools, and some private homes where the owners requested the service . . . after regular duty hours and with overtime pay.

This year, council declined to pay overtime . . . and the men decided to cut their inspection program to a bare minimum. School drills and inspections were the sole activity carried out. The existing work schedule, approved by town council, leaves two men, plus Chief Cecil Ellis at the hall. Council issued an edict this spring that the men must take statutory holidays, rather than working them at overtime pay, and this has the result of leaving the department "short", when these holidays and regulation annual holidays are considered.

ASKED TO WRITE BOARD

Persons with "beefs" against zoning regulations in any particular part of town have been invited to make written submissions to the Trenton Planning Board. The board has embarked upon a program designed to change some of the zoning, which some residents find "restrictive" and would like a sounding of public opinion. Public meetings will be held with a view to (a) making the average citizen conscious of the benefits of planning, and (b) finding out what "beefs" there are in the town about the existing zoning.

Modern Decor In Papal Apartment

VATICAN City (AP)—Pope Paul has brought modern decor into the Vatican's papal apartment, discarding the centuries - old ornate baroque and replacing his elaborate throne with a simple modern marble affair.

Results of a 40-day renovation of the papal quarters were described Wednesday by L'Osservatore Romano — and the look is clean, uncluttered and airy.

Gone is the gold-enamelled carved baroque throne with five fat cherubs. The new marble throne in the papal throne room is without gold-fringed red canopy.

DESIGNS SOUGHT

LONDON (CP)—Design specifications for Cunard's proposed £22,000,000 super liner have gone out to five British shipyards. Tenders to build the 58,-000-ton prestige ship must be submitted by late November.

Final Phase of Foxboro, Madoc Road Completed

Long time dream on the part of county councillors and of motorists in the area, the hard-ings county road between Foxboro and Madoc has now been completely rebuilt and paved.

Paving of the final phase of the rebuilt county road between Foxboro and north of Hallowray has now been completed and the detour signs have disappeared.

Traffic is now passing over the newly-paved stretch but the go slow sign is still in effect as workmen complete shouldering on the roadway.

The Foxboro-Halloway section of the county road now passes almost entirely through open country with only one or two houses on the new route.

Re-building of the Madoc road has been extended over several years and was actually completed in four stages.

The first stage south from Madoc to just below Moira Lake was completed several years ago. The next section to be completed was from south of Moira Lake to Ivanhoe, and then from Ivanhoe to north of Halloway, which was completed last year.

For many years efforts have been made by the county council to have the Madoc county road taken over as a provincial highway.

This, however, was not agreed to by the Ontario Highway Department, which in turn referred to rebuild the road as a development road project with the county to continue responsibility for maintenance.

Clerk T. Rollins, M.A. for Hastings East, along with the county road committee took a leading part in getting the Madoc road rebuilt.

An Unique Visit

The Queen is in Canada.

She seems happy.

Canadians are not.

They are worried.

Prince Edward Island gave her a welcome fitting her rank and her personal charm.

That was to be expected.

Unfortunately, we do not know what to expect when she visits Quebec City.

But there may be a minority prepared to demean themselves by insulting, or even injuring, a person who has never done them any harm, because they regard her as a symbol of a political system to which they object.

That is what worries most Canadians, most Canadians of all racial extractions, French as well as British.

It is an unique royal visit.

For the first time, the majority of Canadians will be glad when it is over—safely.

Tax Policy Could Be Costly

A financial weekly estimates that on the basis of the April-July tax revenue figures made public by Ottawa the government's income for the full fiscal year could be more than $700,000,000 higher than forecast in the March budget. In that event, states the Financial Post, Finance Minister Gordon's expected deficit of $455,000,000 will be replaced by a surplus of about $250,000,000. This is extremely good news, not only because it will strengthen confidence at home and abroad in Canada's continuing prosperity, but also because it could make it possible for Ottawa to match Washington's recent tax cuts.

"Canada cannot afford to allow its tax burden—particularly its corporate rates—to remain for long significantly greater than in the U.S.," states the Post. "Even now, lumber and company officials say that some U.S. companies are choosing to expand at home instead of here in Canada, because of the lower corporate tax rates in the U.S.

"Forcing any Canadian firm to operate on uneven tax terms inhibits its ability to compete with American companies in Canada as well as abroad. Added to all the other disadvantages with which our companies must contend—shorter production runs and costlier research are two of their more serious handicaps—an unequal tax burden could nullify the hard-won gains that devaluation of the Canadian dollar and more efficient production and marketing have recently made possible."

Political considerations may be the major factor standing in the way of early tax cuts—the government's hope that it could gain kudos from expanded spending programs, or a deliberate policy of withholding tax cuts so that they could be introduced later as ammunition in an election campaign. However, this could produce an unpleasant result. The government is committed to helping business create more employment, but to keep tax rates higher in Canada than in the U.S. could create unemployment here.

Nasser's "Guest"

They have principles.

Moise Tshombe, who hired white mercenaries in an effort to keep the tax revenues of Katanga for the exclusive use of that province and who was finally chased out of the Congo by the United Nations, is now premier of the Congo.

In the civilized world, handsome is as handsome does and anybody who holds the reins of power is entitled to be treated with respect, no matter what may be his past record.

When Tshombe arrived in Cairo bent on attending a conference of the leaders of "nonaligned nations," (in the main lands which have only recently achieved independence and whose leaders are inexperienced,) he found a red carpet awaiting him. He was invited to Uruba Palace, as Premier Nasser's guest, and there virtually placed under house arrest.

Which is, of course, a far better deal than Tshombe gave Patrice Lumumba, whose murder he is said to have arranged when the unstable and unhappy first premier of the Congo was sent to Katanga for "safe-keeping" and was promptly slain.

Commons Roll-Call Might Cure Chronic Absenteeism

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — As the fall days shorten, more and more MPs are slipping out of the House for a couple of days, or a week or more at a time, and heading off across the land.

They do it as quietly and unobtrusively as possible.

For they have been becoming increasingly aware — with Parliament, except for last January, having been in uninterrupted Session for 18 straight months — that just as Prime Minister Pearson warned them, the business of an MP, suddenly, now is a full-time occupation.

It was in July of last year, after they had voted themselves that nearly 100 percent pay increase to its annual $18,000-plus, that the committee of them that Parliament would be taking all their working time and attention. They almost had been in Session three months.

Since then, the Commons sat through that Autumn of 1963 on into the winter, recessed for a month just before Christmas and returned to work, there to remain through eight successive months without a break to this very day.

And they're still at it, without any real hope of recess until Christmas again brings a short release.

THE HOME FIRES

Parliamentarians are a special breed of political businessmen, busy with their trade — the selling of themselves and their parties — in two separate but inter-dependent shops, one here in the Commons, the other home in the constituency.

With no recess, no holiday break so far this year, and only a few weeks at Christmas in the past 16 months, it has been finding it something of a problem to keep the political home fires burning.

So, as casually as possible, hoping that nobody will be watching too closely, they have attended to essential constituency chores.

With all the continuing uproar over absenteeism and the high $18,000 cost of Parliamentary membership, it has been almost feel as though they must actually sneak away.

But in the process, absenteeism — and in a continuing minority Government situation, politics has become almost as attractive as you would care to get — if they are to survive politically, they can't afford to be absent from front.

For sheer self-preservation, they must keep not only in constant touch, but at work in the constituency.

But let them vanish, quietly, from the Commons, and somebody notices all the empty benches in the House and there is talk of chronic absenteeism.

The fact, that it has been so much beat on Parliament, so much public criticism of this absenteeism, means that it has got almost to the point where some MPs simply do not dare go home — even on urgent constituency business.

CAN'T WIN!

For if they do go, they can be sure now that when they return, they will be applauded — sarcastically — by the House itself.

So sensitive has this Parliament become over its own inefficiency, or the suspicion of doing less than its reasonable duty, that MPs openly resent the small minority that still regards the Commons as only a parttime occupation.

The applause for returning truants has a nasty ring to it, and that is the way it is intended to sound.

If they do not appear to get the point — and some people, recklessly, have attempted to brazen it out — then they have invited shouts to remind them that they have been away "two months," or "ten weeks," or "all summer" as the case, in a few instances, has been.

But even these long-time absentees sometimes have reasonable explanations, or at least excuses.

What has been happening, then, is that the very few timechaste have-been politicians longs for the vast majority of Members who keep honest Parliamentary hours, dividing their days as best they can between the Commons and the constituencies.

There are, perhaps, not more than a half dozen chieftens cynical enough to let their constituents thinking they are in Parliament but Parliament thinking they are in their constituencies when, in fact, they may be gallivanting around Europe, ostensibly at taxpayer's expense.

What is needed, is a roll-call of some kind — the Senate is not too proud to have one — so that a record can be kept of those who are at work in the Commons, busy in their constituencies, away on some official mission — or just having fun on their $18,000 a year.

Birth Control Ban Should Go

Victoria Times

It was no credit to parliament that a bill to amend the law on birth control was talked out in a flood of objections bordering on hysteria. The matter of legalizing birth control is a serious national problem which deserves the mature consideration and action of the nation's legislature.

In the first place, birth control is practised today by nearly everyone in Canada who wishes to do so. The rich of the average Canadian family, the production figures for various pharmaceutical and manufactured means of contraception are obvious evidence of the widespread use of birth control methods. Thus for opponents of legislative reform to object on the ground that married and young persons would thereafter have access to contraceptives is foolish. They already have such access, as any physician or druggist could affirm. And in any case, the married persons who wish to limit their families also have their rights.

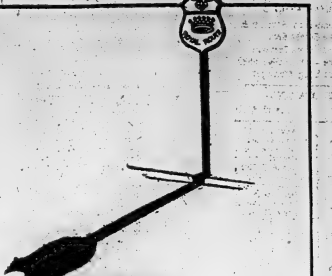
Medical social, church, feminist and other national organizations have all been in favor of revision of the birth control law. But apart from the specific arguments in favor of such action, there remains the wider reason — the law is unreasonably observed. A law which is ignored by a large proportion of the population — embracing all social strata is not a good law; it is a law which is imposed on the public rather than one which reflects the public will. It should go.

There is, of course, the sizable portion of the population which is irrevocably opposed on religious grounds to controlled birth control. Such persons should have every right to observe their preference but should their preference be imposed by the law of the land on persons who do not share their religious beliefs? Should all food stores be closed on the fast days of certain sects?

It would be better law for Parliament — while guaranteeing the rights of those who wish personally to refrain from reading about, purchasing or using contraceptive devices — to legislate what limits of thousands of otherwise law - abiding Canadians do as a matter of course. This action is long overdue.

Canada Leads In Lake Ships

Windsor Star



Much has been said of Canadian lack of facilities all to trade and commerce. It is pleasant to find examples of enterprise and how it is put to use.

Vice-Admiral James A. Hirsh, field, president of the Lake Carriers' Association, had some interesting facts to reveal before a United States senate subcommittee. He said that by 1965, and since 1960, Canadian operators will have built 194,000 tons for the United States fleet.

This Canadian expansion, he said, is aimed at capturing the international trade in bulk commodities between Canada and the United States. "In this endeavour the Canadians have been incredibly successful, for they now carry more than 80 percent of this trade," he stated.

It would be nice to attribute all this to Canadian private enterprise, but Vice-Admiral Hirshfield indicates it isn't so. He gives credit, in part, to Canada's tax depreciation system and subsidies. And he was urging some similar action in Washington.

What he was saying was, in effect, that Canadian shipping is taking advantage of the St. Lawrence Seaway more than is United States shipping. It is good to know that, for once, Canada is in the lead.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 8th, 1944

While playing along the Canadian National right-of-way on Sunday two local boys found a white envelope. Childish curiosity urged them to open the large envelope to ascertain its contents. Naturally the boys were more than surprised when they discovered $65 worth of war savings certificates inside.

During the absence of the occupants of an apartment at 318a Front St. last week, burglars are reported to have entered the premises and stolen a number of household articles. The robbery was reported by the occupant of the above property, who informed the police her family had been away for a few days last week during which the apartment had been ransacked.

Nasal Disorder Could Be Cause of Constant Coughing

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been bothered with colds and a hacking cough every winter. I have had TB X-rays and they are negative, and I do not smoke or drink. So what could cause these coughs? I am 58. — H. M.

A good many things besides colds and tuberculosis can cause coughs — although these are frequent causes. So is smoking, but you don't smoke.

Post-nasal drip, resulting from something wrong in the nose, often quite minor, can instigate coughing, and it is commonly more severe at night. Bronchiectasis, chronic bronchitis, various inflammations of throat or bronchial tubes, chronic or acute lung conditions other than tuberculosis — all of these add to the immense amount of coughing we do collectively.

It is virtually impossible to make a valid guess as to the cause of a cough from even the most detailed description. And sometimes it isn't easy to track down the cause without a searching examination of nose, throat and lungs. Sometimes allergies are responsible. " 'ever-your-cough" is not unknown.

The cause may be serious, or it may be trivial. Bet it is worth consulting your doctor.

A cough, even from some trifling cause, can do its share of damage if allowed to continue indefinitely. It can interrupt sleep. It can be tiring. A hard coughing spell can make a rupture worse, and can aggravate emphysema. So if you have a chronic cough, find the cause and get rid of it. Cough drops and cough mixtures may be fine for brief episodes of throat irritation, but they do nothing to cure the cough that bangs on.

Dear Dr. Molner: Two years ago I broke my foot. Now, every so often, about 24 hours before it rains, my foot starts hurting. Is there any scientific reason for this? — P. L. F.

There probably is a reason, but it is hard to say what. Perhaps it is a result of an abrupt change in barometric pressure. After all, we know that a falling barometer presages storms, rain or change in weather. For many years, some people with "rheumatic" have said that pains in their joints foretold the weather much the way a barometer helps to do so. When your foot was broken, it is likely that there was some damage to the joints. It may be from mechanical terms, some "arthritic change."

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Some nights my wife, a diabetic, awakens with her heart pounding like a hammer. She has no pain. And if she gets up and moves about, a little, it goes away. What could be the cause and what can she do? — W. H.

This sounds like paroxysmal tachycardia — a period of rapid heart beat — which can occur with many ailments, or indeed, when there is no apparent one at all. This sudden racing of the heart often starts suddenly. People that anything is wrong with the organ. Usually not, in fact. With diffferent people, it occurs under different circumstances: at times of tension, after a big meal, and so on. Simple measures such as changing position (getting out of bed, as your wife does), holding the breath, or taking a drink of cold water often serve to restore normal heart rhythm. As simple as that!

Since your wife is diabetic, and the attacks come when she is asleep, there may be a connection with the diabetes. Perhaps at night her blood sugar is the right, and it might precipitate the racing of the heart. She should tell her physician about it. He may see fit to adjust the insulin dose, or her diet.

Strictly Personal

Manners More Familiar Than The Face

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Parody Personal - Prejudices: On the wild semantic merry-go-round of politics, "loyalty" is doing more than any other parties of you, while "partisanship" is the other fellow doing what his party expects of him.

To dismiss someone else's pain by saying glibly, "It's only in the mind" is false even when true — for where is pain more real than in the mind?

One reason the world moves ahead so slowly, if at all, is that the people who are brimming with confidence are usually confident about the wrong things.

Men are much less realistic about women than women are about themselves — as evidenced by the fact that many men envy other men's wives, but most women pity other women's husbands.

The only valid purpose of economy is for the sake of a wild extravagance at the right moment; economy for its own sake is debilitating to the spirit.

Petty spite is the high office ought to ponder Napoleon's astute remark: "There is no greater immorality than to occupy a place you cannot fill."

Nobody at any cocktail party can resist a delicate blend of homage and malice as one noted musician talking about another noted musician to strangers.

Since many readers have asked, my darling shows Goldwater's bid for the Presidency was expressed by the old lady who told McKinley to "run her second choice" for President. When he pressed her to name her first choice, she replied: "Anybody else."

The most graceful rebuke to a host of boring guests given by Athenens, who tells of a Greek host pouring very little wine into a guest's glass. On the prideful remark that the wine was 20 years old, "It's very small for its age" observed the guest.

"Discretion" and "tact" are not the same thing: discretion is a virtue, while tact is an art; the discreet man knows how far to go, but the tactful man knows how far to go too far — and this is why he is more successful than the more timid man.

The only maxim of freedom that makes good psychological sense is Emerson's statement that "Everyone has an inalienable right to some one place on this earth where he can wholly himself." In an increasingly mechanized and conformist society, how many "free" men have this right?

Gregory Butler Is Acclaimed In Brilliant Piano Recital

By EUGENE LANG

Last evening a good-sized crowd was in attendance at the B.C.I. auditorium to hear Gregory Butler, pianist in recital. Gregory is well known to Belleville audiences, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ormonde Butler, Dundas Street East. Music has been his whole existence since a young child, and although only in his early twenties Gregory seems to be the seasoned mature artist of double his youthful years in certain aspects of his playing.

In his formative years he studied with Miss Leona Riggs of this city, then began a long period of instruction with Mona Bates, renowned teacher and keyboard coach of Toronto. Gregory also spent two years at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York. He has given many recitals in the past, first in duo form with his sister Cara, then in solo appearances over the past seven years. Two years ago this fall Gregory embarked on a recital tour of the Western Provinces that encompassed seventeen performances in the space of twenty-two days. At present he maintains a studio here in the city with a large roster of pupils under his tutelage.

The program chosen was one of familiarity yet of taxing demands on the part of the pianist. To regular pianistic fans the fare was one of well known works from the pens of the master keyboard composers of the last two centuries.

The two opening selections by seventeenth century Italian composers were very delightful in the arrangement conjured up by Isadore Philippe. Pasquini's Prelude in C was given inflections of poise and grandeur as against the poignant and soulful searching of Mr. Butler's rendition of the Largo by Vinci.

The Liszt transcription of Bach's Organ Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor is one of the Hungarian virtuoso's most masterful examples of his supreme art of arrangement for the piano from other media. The towering tonal columns of the Fantasia were given a feeling of massive solidarity in Gregory's conception with the ensuing Fugue traversing its many arduous pages with clarity and brilliance. This is a very demanding work on any performer's abilities yet Gregory gave it a convincing performance with intense feeling. It was only through his joy at finally arriving at his destination after the tangled terrain of the tortuous fugue that he forgot himself and unmusically pounded his way through the final measures of peroration. Straighten out these bars and the rest will fall into shape most admirably.

MAJOR WORK OF RECITAL

Beethoven's Sonata in C Major Op. 53 (known as the "Waldstein") was the major work of the recital with Gregory here exhibiting not only his technical skill (such as the careening glissandos toward the end of the final movement), but also his emotional probing as witnessed in his lovely singing tone in the Adagio Molto. This Sonata abounds in technical barriers, but Gregory hurdled all of them with ease in his performance. There were unusually long retardations (such as ten measures back from the end of the exposition) not called for in the score, but then, every artist has his right to his subjectivity in interpretation. There could have been a lot less pedalling in the first movement for a better clarity of line, and the expository repeats would have added more to the overall message. The last movement fared very well in Gregory's treatment of same — no mean feat to accomplish.

Following intermission four short compositions by Claude Debussy were given imaginative telling under the nimble fingers of the artist. In each he excelled in his shadings and moldings with the result that here he came through with model showings of his affinity to the meanings inherent in these piano paintings of delicacy and detail. The four selections were "Clair de Lune," "Voiles," "Minstrels," and "Reflects dan Yean."

Three Chopin favorites brought the program to its conclusion. The Ballade in G Minor Op. 23 was given a very pastiniate approach of unrestraint that culminated into a fiery ending. The Nocturne Op. 15 No. 2 in F Sharp Major was played revealingly with certain melody notes shining out like stars, this accentuating the nebulous measures of the middle section. The Scherzo in B Flat Minor Op. 31 was excitingly done, yet care was taken in the slower sections that paid off in their bridging to the livelier counterparts, here making for a grand buildup of anticipated thrills. Mr. Butler knew his audience well when he chose this.

Two encores were graciously given, "The Little Shepherd" of Debussy caressed with light textured nuances and the "Ocean Wave" (Op. 25, No. 12) Etude of Chopin thundered across the keyboard with agility of fingering and power of tone. A fitting close to a well played recital by a young man of whom this city is proud for his great musical talents.

The recital was sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Belleville Branch. Following the performance Mr. Butler was honored at a reception given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Stock, East Bridge Street.

That's balance!

The feel of that baseball bat standing straight as an arrow off his nose is the proudest sensation he's ever had. Perfect balance. And he did it. One day, he'll learn how very important balance is to the prosperity of his nation. He'll recognize that balanced trade means security, employment, a future to be happy about.

Balanced trade results from the realization that it is as vital to sell as many goods and services to the world as we buy from the world. It comes from businessmen working to open up and broaden overseas markets. It comes from Canadian manufacturers and workers taking deep pride in the quality and workmanship of their products, so that people abroad will look for things Canadian.

Balanced trade also comes from you, the Canadian consumer, making a point to look for products "Made in Canada". When you buy goods manufactured at home, you help our industry grow. You help create new jobs for people you care about. You help keep our living standards high. You help keep Ontario the Province of Opportunity.

Quinte Area Girl Guides Hold Dinner

PICTON (Staff) — Wednesday evening the annual Quinte area Girl Guide dinner took place at Prince Edward Collegiate with some 250 guiders present. The Guides were from all over the Quinte area.

Speaking on behalf of the town of Picton, Mayor E. J. McFarland welcomed the guides and praised them for the fine work that they were doing in their respective communities. Reeve Gordon Lloyd also welcomed the guides on behalf of County Warden K. Hicks. Following the banquet speeches were given by guides on their trips to Great Britain and Mexico. The talks were short but interesting. The talks were given by Dorothy Cameron, Lynn Neill, Blaichford. The Mexico trip was described by Nancy Workman.

A surprise presentation of a Life Membership certificate was awarded to Mrs. Richard Whalen of 585 Homewood Ave., Peterborough, Ont. Mrs. Whalen has had 30 years of guiding. Twenty girls were presented with their all-round cord certificates. Nine of the guides were from Peterborough, two from Belleville, two from Trenton, one from Brighton, one from Napanee, three from Keene and two from Picton. The certificates were presented by Mrs. H. Lount, Deputy Provincial Commissioner. The guest speaker for the evening was Miss Shirley Cameron.

Fire Prevention Week Observed At Camp Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Fire Prevention Week is being observed at Camp Picton with a series of lectures, demonstrations and inspections all this week. The fire hall is open daily from 2-4:30 4 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and those interested are invited to come and see the equipment, note how an alarm is received and acted upon and discuss any fire safety problems.

Camp Picton once again is holding Fire Prevention Week demonstrates a good fire loss record. This fact alone indicates that fire consciousness does prevail at Camp Picton. No community can afford to become complacent with respect to fire and with this in mind the Fire Prevention Week has been declared to stimulate interest and refresh fire consciousness so that the year ahead may see everyone free from the ravages of fire.

Many Cases Heard in Police Court

PICTON — In Magistrate's court Wednesday morning 17-year-old Roger Wayne Ferguson with three charges of breaking and entering was ordered by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to make restitution and pay costs to the amount of $17.50. He had entered Hallowell township school, two miles east of Picton, a school in Sidney township, two miles north of Frankford and Queen Elizabeth public school in Picton.

Donald Lockwood of Campbellford was fined $1 and costs for operating a vehicle without the consent of the owner, Mrs. Hazel Henry of Picton. A warrant for the arrest of Lockwood had been issued but not executed. Twenty-nine-year-old Lockwood had returned the car voluntarily to Mrs. Henry.

A charge of break and entering against Donald Bongard, who elected to be tried by jury was put aside and Bongard discharged for lack of evidence.

19-year-old Robert Carr was fined $20 and costs for assault against Murray McCullough. The assault took place at North Bay beach, near Consecon, Ont. during a grade 13 high school party on the beach. McCullough charged that Orr and some other boys had been jumping on the back bumper of his car and that Carr had come around to the car window and told him to get out of the car. When McCullough did not he was grabbed by the coat collar and a bottle of beer was poured over him. Carr, a Trenton youth, has a previous record for uttering and breaking and entering.

Robert Cook of Belleville appeared in court after having been charged with theft of articles from the residence of John Syrett, Picton, on the night of October 6th. Cook is being held pending the arrest of two other suspects who were involved. Picton police are still investigating. Two cameras and an electric shaver were among the articles stolen to the value of $850.

HE LIKES BILLY

BOSTON (AP)—Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, urged Catholic youths and college students Wednesday to attend Dr. Billy Graham's crusade in Boston Garden, adding "I am 100 per cent" for the evangelist. And near the end of a 45-minute chat at the cardinal's residence—with reporters present—Dr. Graham said: "I feel much closer to Roman Catholic tradition than in some of the more liberal Protestants."

Fashion Show By Auxiliary Huge Success

PICTON (Staff) — The Women's Hospital Auxiliary held their autumn carousel in the Picton armories on Wednesday afternoon with some four to 500 fashion conscious women present. This is the 6th annual carousel put on by the auxiliary. Door prizes were given, and baked goods and preserves as well as home made candy were offered for sale. The fashion show sponsored by the Association was conducted by George Fraser of Fraser's Grey Room in Picton. Some 40 styl'ngs for fall and winter were shown, by seventeen attractive models. Commentator for the event was Merle Pearsall.

A runway was not used this year as in previous shows. The models this year circulated between the tables in the audience giving the ladies a first hand view of the clothing. Music was provided for the occasion by Dan Fairman's group of musicians "Ricky's Trio".

Arena Board Install Four New Directors

PICTON (Staff) — A meeting of the Prince Edward County Arena Commission was held in the County Centre Tuesday evening. Representatives from various organizations were in attendance along with regular members of the commission. Chairman Don Walker welcomed everyone and gave special thanks to last year's committee for all the help given to him during his term in office.

Minutes were read by the secretary, Avis Head, and approved after a motion was made by Dr. L. Dockrill that the county council representative be made a permanent member of the commission. The treasurer's report was submitted by Art Kearney. Two cheques of $50 each were given by the Kiwanis Club and K & A dance club as a donation towards skating time for younger children.

At the meeting four new directors were elected for the coming season. Dr. E. Taylor, Avis Head, Al Bailey, Don Walker. The new commission proceeded to elect Avis Head as secretary, Art Kearney was re-elected as treasurer. Don Stanton was elected as vice chairman and Fred Welsh was appointed as representative to the new figure skating club. It was decided to hold another meeting of the commission October 13th and invitations will be sent out to various hockey representatives to attend. It is hoped that there will be ice for the week ending October 17.

Given 3 Months For Assault

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — United States Marine Robert Ian Gibson, 19 in London on compassionate leave for his father's funeral, and 18-year-old Richard Root, of Detroit, Mich., were each sentenced to three months in jail Wednesday for assaulting a city policeman.

They were arrested early Wednesday after Const. Steve Howarth, 25, was beaten and kicked in an alley next to a restaurant where Gibson earlier attached two London men.

The 200-pound marine told the court he is scheduled to be shipped out to the Far East soon and had been undergoing heavy training with the Marines. This, combined with his father's death a week ago, built up pressure which led to the assaults, he said.

Gibson, formerly of London, was also sentenced to three concurrent terms of 30 days in jail for under-age drinking and the common assaults of Dick Williams and William Ross Moore, both of London.

The court was told Gibson, who had seven previous convictions for drinking under age, was on 29 days compassionate leave from the U.S. Marines at Memphis, Tenn., to attend his father's funeral.

WEDDING

OSBORNE — BROWN

MARMORA — St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora was the setting for the wedding of Laura Mae Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leard Brown of Marmora and Beverly Richard Osborne, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Osborne, Marmora on Saturday, October 3rd. Rev. J. M. D. McLeod officiated at the ceremony before a background of pink lady asters.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Maurice McLeod and the soloist was Mr. Raymond Dickens.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full-length gown of white bridal taffeta featuring a bouffant skirt, fitted bodice with semi-scoop neckline at front and a "V" shape at back outlined in Alencon lace applique. Front of skirt also carried appliques of lace and a large cabbage rose of matching material marked the waist line at back. A bandeau of rhinestones held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a cascade of bettertume red roses centred with nylon net.

Attending the bride was her sister, Mrs. Percy Blakely as matron of honor and sister-in-law, Mrs. George Brown and Mrs. Fred McMaster as bridesmaids were gowned in identical ensembles of short sapphire blue peau de soie with three-quarter length sleeves, scoop neckline at front and featuring a "V" at back. Their headpieces were of matching "V" shaped rings of the dress material with windblown veils and each carried a bouquet of mums of white mums sprayed with delph blue.

The flower girl, little sister of the bride, Pamela Brown wore floor length replica of bridesmaids in white mums sprayed orchid color. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. George Brown and Mr. Reginald Brown as usher brothers of the bride. Mr. Paul Banks, cousin of the bridegroom was also usher.

A reception was held in St. Andrew's hall where the bride's mother wore a royal blue jacket dress, blue hat, black gloves and shoes. Her corsage was a pale green cymbidium orchid accented with green ivy on leaves and lace bow. The bridegroom's mother chose for wearing a cranberry two-piece suit matching hat and black accessories, corsage of pink cymbidium orchid and lace.

For their wedding trip to the Ontario, Tennessee, the bride wore a teal-blue wool suit, white hat and gloves, black shoesh and purse and corsage of pink briarcliff roses.

Fresh mushrooms are a smooth white or brown color, firm and not fully opened. Food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, recommend washing mushrooms very quickly in cold water. Do not let them stand in water as they become limp and lose their full rich flavor. Fresh, firm caps do not need to be peeled.

Donald Clan Holds Reunion

A family reunion was held at O'Hara Mills recently when members of the Donald clan numbering 47 were in attendance from Lakefield, Trenton, Halloway, St. Thomas, Whitby, Brampton, Eldorado, Redneyville and Belleville.

A tasty lunch was served with the younger set enjoying a weiner and corn roast.

Numerous games, contests and races were conducted with winners of these as follows: one to five years, race, Timothy Donald; six to nine years, race, Cathy Derry; teenage contest, Larry Dawson, Mary Vanclief and Francis MacKenzie; lawn croquet, Mac Derry and Alec Stickle; men's contest, Richard Derry and David Faul; women's contest, Mrs. Ray Stickle and Mrs. Olga Donald; baby prize, Patsy Dombroski; the most recently married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stickle of Belleville. The door prize was won by Ray Dombroski.

An election of officers for 1965 will held with the executive to make plans for next year's reunion.

To bring a most pleasant day to a close everyone enjoyed a sing-song with old and trusting through the many trails so colorful at this time of year.

District W.M.S. Holds Workshop

MARMORA — The Peterborough District W.M.S. met in Harmony Free Methodist Church on October 3rd to hold a Workshop meeting.

Mrs. Kenneth Bauder local president welcomed the ladies and Mrs. Hendy Belleville, district president led the devotional period.

MISSIONARY'S ADDRESS

This was followed by an address by Miss Jessie Kresge of Winona Lake, Indiana, who is a returned Missionary having served in China and Africa.

She was editor of Missionary Voice for years and being elected to the office of President General of W.M.S. which is a world wide office she now serves.

The group divided for workshop period in the afternoon and Mrs. Kresge convened the reports from different avenues of service sharing with the group her enthusiasm.

A noon hour dinner was served by the Marmora Hills recreation room where members of WMS were present from Picton, Belleville, Peterborough, Lindsay, Campbellford, Cordova, Warkworth, Frankford and Marmora.

Singing groups entertained throughout the day.

When a recipe calls for garlic make certain you use the correct amount say food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. A clove of garlic, often used in meat or vegetable dishes, is one of ten to fifteen cloves or bulblets found in a bulb or root of garlic. A peeled whole or half clove may be added to a dish while cooking. But do not forget to remove it before serving. Rub the inside of a wooden salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic for additional flavor in salads. Garlic powder, in small amounts (try 1/16 teaspoon), may be used to replace garlic cloves. Garlic salt should be used when just a hint of favor is desirable.

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH GARY REID

Reid — Stephens

Christ Church (Anglican) was decorated with white 'mums and gladioli for the wedding of Patricia Rosalie Stephens, daughter of Mrs. J. E. Stephens, 10 Harriett St., to Kenneth Gary Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Elgin Reid, 170 Fairley Ave.

Rev. James H. Smith performed the ceremony, and the choir provided wedding music.

Mr. John Harwood Stephens, brother of the bride, gave his sister in marriage. She was dressed in embossed brocade sheath with Empire waistline, the train flowing from a scroll collar, and a Cleopatra headdress. Her cascade bouquet was of white orchids, yellow threaded, with stephanotis and ivy leaves tinted gold.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Gerald Jones of Belleville, and the bridesmaids were Miss Joanne Bowers of Belleville and Miss Faye Robinson of Corbyville. Their gowns were fashioned in the new dieclothpse look with elongated bodice and flounces in almond green peau de soie. Their flowers were white Shasta daisies with ivy in cascade bouquets.

Misses Joan and Julie Stephens of Toronto, nieces of the bride were flower girls, dressed in white batiste terylene with Empire waistline and tiers of flounces. They carried little gold baskets with white Shasta daisies with butterflies.

The groomsman was Mr. Gerald N. Jones, and the ushers were Donald Little, Shannonville, and James Stephens, Brantford.

At the reception in Christ Church parish hall the bride's table held the bridal cake with four layers between mirrors, and flowers on top, flanked by almond green candles.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Stephens wore an embroidered flowered brocade dress of taupe with matching chiffon three-quarter coat. Her feathered hat was moss green with matching satin shoes, and handbag, and corsage of bronze 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother wore a white beige brocade dress with matching hat and accessories. Her shoes and hat were of white beige satin, and her corsage was rose 'mums.

For travelling to Lake Placid, Glen Falls, Vermont, and Montreal the bride chose a three-piece knitted suit of gold and deep brown with matching shoes handbag. Her deep brown velvet hat was trimmed with white feather, and she wore white gloves and a corsage of white orchids.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Brampton, Carrying Place, Stirling, Plainfield and Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid will make their home at 236 Farley Ave., Belleville.

Showers honoring the bride were given by Mrs. Ray Di-Francis and Mrs. Jack Kennedy; Mrs. Gerald Brennan; Mrs. Gordon Meinroy and Mrs. Garnet Maines, all of Belleville.

Holy Rosary C.W.L. Sponsors Fall Tea and Bazaar

The Knights of Columbus hall, Front Street, was a hub of activity yesterday afternoon when Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League held their annual fall tea and bazaar.

The color decor was in keeping with the League colors of blue, yellow and white and everywhere about the hall this was much in evidence. The convener for this most successful event was Mrs. A. Ryan, who along with the president of the C.W.L., Mrs. E. Reed, warmly greeted guests at the entrance to the hall, and Mrs. J. Fobert was co-convener.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

Mrs. T. Morrison was hostess in the tea room where the entrance was sentinelled with an eye-catching arbor adorned with blue, yellow and white streamers and foregrounded with two large baskets of colorful dahlia and cosmos blooms. Pouring tea at the attractive tea table covered with ecru lace cloth and centred with an artistic centrepiece consisting of gold sprayed white and blue tinted 'mums highlighted with four lighted candles were: Mrs. A. Hochreiter, Mrs. M. Bradden, Mrs. H. Glenn and Mrs. M. Wall.

Mrs. M. Horne was in charge as kitchen convener with a number of ladies of the social group helping with the serving and replenishing of the tasty refreshments.

SALES TABLES

The various sales tables encircling the hall were escorted with colorful streamers and each was laden with a bountiful supply of their respective sales goods. These included: a fancy sewing table with numerous sets of towels, pillow slips and luncheon cloths; a candy table with a generous supply of fudge, nut and other delicious cellophane bags of popcorn; a variety table with many miscellaneous items as well as a display of Christmas cards which the C.W.L. has taken on as a project for the year to sell; a knitting goods table with a number of sweaters, baby sets, slippers and mittens; and a spare booth with a fine assortment of overall and half size aprons in cotton broadcloth, print and organdy; the homecooking with a large supply of delicacies including homemade bread and buns, tarts, pies, cakes, muffins and cookies; a parcel post with all shapes and sizes of mysterious looking parcels; a doll's clothing table with everything imaginable in the line of doll's clothing to delight any little girl's heart; also the religious table with a wide assortment of religious pictures, crucifixes, statues of the Saints and many other items.

These were convened by the following: aprons, Mrs. F. Sedard; homecooking, Mrs. J. Darlington; fancy sewing, Mrs. E. Fox; candy, Mrs. D. Winder; knitting, Mrs. A. Kerry; variety booth, Mrs. M. Waller; parcel post, Mrs. A. Adam; dolls' clothing, Mrs. J. Doran and religious booth, Mrs. P. Schreiber.

The ticket convener for the event was Mrs. H. Lyons, while taking tickets at the door was Mrs. R. Huffman.

EUCHRE ENJOYED

A fine crowd was in attendance for the evening when 15 tables of euchre were played with the winners as follows: ladies, Frances Guay, Elsie Welbourne (who also won the lone hand prize); consolation, Celia Latzedne; men's, Mrs. F. Walsh, Mrs. Newsy; consolation, Ethel McQuaid; lone hands, Barbara Lyon.

Grand draw winners were: $50, Ray Ryan, Foxboro R.R. 1; $15, Mrs. D. Fobert, Lemoine Street; $10, Ray Lacroix, 17 Elvins Gardens.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

QUESTION: When one sends a wedding gift, to whom is it addressed? I know it is sent to the home of the bride-to-be, but does one her name appear on the package? I have to send a gift soon, but I've never met the girl. The groom is a good friend, however, and I think in this case the package should be addressed to him.

Would it be correct to direct it to: "Mr. John Jones and Miss Mary Smith," and send it to both at her present home address? I want to make sure she knows that the present is from a friend of the groom. — K. L. A., Providence, R.I.

ANSWER: Even though you've never laid eyes on the intended bride, all gifts should be sent to her at the home of her parents, or at her own apartment if she lives alone. Packages are addressed to her, but your return address should be on the outside wrapping so she'll know where to send a thank-you note.

QUESTION: My husband's godparents, who are quite elderly, are coming for a visit and I'm giving a dinner for them so they'll see many old friends and relatives they haven't seen in a long time. They are very progressive people, so I wondered about seating them at the table.

Should they be given places at either end of the table as guests of honor? This would leave no place to them proper prominence at table, but a friend who is well versed on formal details told me this would be incorrect. What would be the proper seating arrangement? — Mrs. E. G., Baltimore, Md.

ANSWER: The host and hostess take their usual seats opposite one another. The male guest of honor then is assigned the seat to the right of the hostess and the female guest of honor is seated to the right of the host.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

We smile at the young teenage girl whose first encounter with what she calls "love" leads her to insist that she would rather die then give up this boy. For her, he's the only boy in the world. Grow up, my child, we wiser ones advise; grow up to see there's more in store.

But when we grow older we don't seem too much wiser ourselves. When we react nervously to the world's hates, we often act as if we didn't believe in love at all. This day's crisis we think, may be the last — and then, no tomorrow.

Some time ago, as a lesson in history, the New York Times published two front pages: one was the news of that day, the other, a front page ten years old. Yet, upon scrutiny, it seemed as if nothing had changed in the intervening decade — neither the names, the trouble-spots, the difficulties nor the crises. History, the Times seemed to be saying, teaches that history teaches — nothing. Nothing seems to change, not even our troubles.

LIFE'S CHALLENGES

This is hard-won wisdom all of us need know in learning to meet life's challenges.

Was there ever a time when children were not a source of parental concern and anxiety? A time when there were no enemies, no conflicts, no disputes and tensions? The real world we inhabit is always the worst and the best of all possible worlds. It is the only world we have in which to match our faith against our doubts, our trusts against our fears. Indeed, life that has meaning must be wound up, as the watch runs when its spring is tensed, not relaxed.

As long as we move, we will move where someone else is moving; as long as we live, we will live with antagonisms and conflicts. There will always be friends and enemies, those who understand us and those who don't, some darkness and some light. A sensitive man will be hurt, will have concern, and will struggle. He will seek the light, the way to peace. But he will not run away from the darkness cursing and fearing it. It was so in the days of Isaiah, Amos and Hosea. And it is so, so much so, now.

The real coward is not the man who is afraid to die, but the one who is afraid to live. And the courage to live is especially tested when the lights seem to be going out. Scripture reminds us that "seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter and day and night shall not cease."

The rainbow after the storm is no guarantor of no more storms. But as there will be storms, so will there be rainbows.

Ann Landers

Slap Across Face No Way To Deal With Unruly Child

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A few days ago I did something horrible. I slapped a stranger's child right across the face.

While shopping in the supermarket my four-year-old son, Tom, broke away and began to chase around. I threatened, scolded and even shook him but it did no good. He continued to run the aisles, whooping and hollering.

ANN LANDERS

When my back was turned a youngster sailed into me with a shopping cart. Without looking, I wheeled around and slapped him across the face. To my horror it was not Tom, but another little boy the same size.

The child's mother rushed over and shouted, "Keep your hands off my son or I'll give you what you gave him." I was so ashamed I apologized for five minutes. Today I learned the woman's name. I'm tempted to telephone her and apologize again. My husband says, "Skip it." What do you think? — K.D.S.

DEAR K.D.S.— I agree with your husband.

May I suggest, however, that you go to the public library and get some books on child-rearing. A slap across the face is no way to deal with an unruly child in a supermarket — or anywhere else. You need help, Mother, and I earnestly hope you get it soon.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm 36 years old, attractive and have been self-supporting for six years. My problem? I have the world's loniest luck.

At 18 I fell in love with a married man. Nick was twice my age, owned the cafe where I worked and he was good to me. Nick kept promising to work things out with his wife but after four years I decided it would never happen so I quit him.

After Nick I began to see a man who was separated from his wife. We lived together three years before I realized he was using his religion and his children to stall me.

My next sweetheart was a man who told me his wife was in a mental hospital. Every few months he'd say she was coming home "next month" and he'd start divorce proceedings.

Why am I so unlucky? I want to get married but I don't know what kind of a husband to look for. Can you help me? — WISHBONE.

DEAR BONE — Stop looking for husbands and try a single man for a change. Your "luck" might improve.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was happy to read your advice to the mother who snooped in her daughter's diary, bureau drawers and pocketbook.

My parents never pry or ask questions, but they know all about me because I tell them. Our relationship is based on friendship and respect. I value their opinions and seek their advice. If my folks had spied on me and listened in on my telephone conversations I would have cut them out instead of in.

Now that I am 18 I find myself making decisions on the basis of what I feel is right — not what I can get away with. The girl in our crowd who does the most lying and has the loosest morals is the one with the snoopiest mother.

I feel lucky to have been brought up in a home where there is trust, confidence and love. — ROBIN.

DEAR ROBIN — Thank you for more evidence that if you give children something lofty to shoot at they'll aim high. I received hundreds of letters from teen-agers but yours said it best.

• • •

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 40c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Menu Ideas for Thanksgiving

by Mary Moore

Have you donned your thinking cap and planned your Thanksgiving Dinner menu for next Monday? If not, these ideas might start the wheels turning.

THANKSGIVING DINNER MENU:

Melon Ball Cocktail with Green Grapes (see below)
Roast Stuffed Turkey (see below)
Turkey Gravy (see below)
Spiced Cranberry Sauce
Or
Cranberry Orange Relish
Turnip Macedoine (see below)
Or
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes
Or
Fluffy Mashed Rutabaga
Buttered Squash
Broccoli with Hollandaise
Spinach, Celery and Tomato Salad with Italian French Dressing
Pumpkin Meringue Pie (see Wednesday)
Or
Pineapple Bavarian (see Wednesday)

MELON BALL COCKTAIL:

Allow a 2-3 cup portion for each guest.

Scoop out balls from ripe cantaloupe and ripe watermelon with smallest ball cutter. Cut seedless green grapes in half. Three cups each cantaloupe balls and melon balls and 2 cups halved grapes (8 cups in all) will serve 12. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons each lemon juice and fine sugar. Mix gently, cover and chill until serving time. Serve in stemmed glasses.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY
(Guests)

Thick Swiss Steak with Rich Brown Gravy; Corn Popovers; Spinach; Mixed Bowl Salad; Plum Cobbler; Pouring Cream; Tea.

SUNDAY

ROAST STUFFED TURKEY (12 to 15-lb. oven-ready bird):

Stuffing: One standard loaf bread, pulled into crumbs, 1 cup sliced mushrooms, 1 cup sliced celery, ½ cup chopped apple, ¼ cup chopped parsley or flakes, ½ cup butter, 1 to 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ to 1 teaspoon sage or rosemary or thyme or 1 to 2 teaspoons poultry seasoning. In large frying pan melt butter and saute all vegetables and apple until wilted. Add to breadcrumbs in large bowl and add seasonings and mix.

Roasting: Dry outside of stuffed bird, spread all over with soft butter, roast at 325 deg. Fahr. for 4½ to 6 hours, without water or cover, basting occasionally when drippings collect in pan.

NOTE:

If desired, cover with tent of foil for first 4 hours, then remove to allow skin to brown and cristen.

TURKEY GRAVY (8 cups):

Transfer turkey to hot platter. Pour excess fat from pan but leave a little more than ½ cup fat and all sediment in pan. Place over low heat and blend in ½ cup flour Now add 4 hot cups water (including liquid from cooking peas if used) and stir until thick. Add salt to taste.

TURNIP MACEDOINE (serves 12):

3 cups turnip, diced small, 4 cups fresh frozen green peas, 2 cups scrubbed and sliced mushrooms, ½ cup butter.

Cook turnip and peas separately until tender. Drain and combine. Saute mushrooms in butter until barely limp. Add to turnip and peas. Add salt to taste.

TIMELY TIPS

Plump, deep-colored Ontario tomatoes are still a good buy and will probably remain plentiful until fall frosts, point out food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Fresh tomatoes and cottage cheese make an attractive, nutritious salad, especially suitable for weight watchers. Remove stem and core from medium sized tomatoes; cut in six wedges, leaving the base uncut. Open tomato wedges slightly and fill with cottage cheese. Serve on lettuce with your favorite dressing.

Shy and Retiring Wives Help Douglas Home and H. Wilson in Campaign

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP) — Two shy clergymen's daughters — Lady Douglas-Home and Mrs Harold Wilson — straighten the political hopes of their husbands with quiet devotion, commonsense advice and the knack of making their men feel like winners.

They both do all they can to help without diverting the spotlight from their husbands.

Elizabeth Hester Douglas-Home, 54, and Mary Baldwin Wilson, 48, come from rival political camps, yet their personal experiences are remarkably similar.

They travel endless miles, smile until their faces ache and meet floods of people at Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Conservative party leader, and Harold Wilson, head of the Labor party, stump the country asking for support in Britain's Oct. 15 national election.

OFFER ENCOURAGEMENT

Each woman travels with her husband, sits on the platform with him, keeps his sense of humor functioning and offers encouragement if the day has been rough.

"I like my husband to know he's nearby when he speaks," said Lady Douglas-Home. Mrs. Wilson felt the same way.

In a series of recent interviews the two women have given a clear picture of what life is like for the wives of British political leaders.

Campaigning usually starts in the morning and runs through a series of meetings in cities and crossroads until late at night.

The wives hear variations of the same speech over and over. They have learned to laugh on cue, to appear grave-faced at the proper passages and above all never to get sleepy or seem bored no matter how chilly the hall or hot the lights.

Lady Douglas-Home, tall, distinguished looking and self-assured, wants her husband to sense her boundless confidence in him. She explained:

"I have always known he was capable of holding any political office in the land. He is tough both mentally and physically. He can really lash out quite well. . . .

Lady Douglas-Home does not let rowdy incidents bother her. She resents what she regards as emotional, unfair criticism of her husband but she is too well bred to allow her feelings to show.

Mrs. Wilson also knows how to mask her emotions. She has fair hair, cornflower blue eyes and a peaches-and-cream complexion.

Widely read, a spare time writer of poetry and an accomplished singer, Mrs. Wilson up to now has kept her family's incongruous, white washed home in London's Hampstead Garden suburb separate from the bubbling political world of her husband.

CHANGED PERSONALITY

People used to say that Wilson projected a personality of chilly, machine-like efficiency — that he was so stuffed with facts and figures he lacked appeal for women voters But he has a warmer platform personality now, and much of the credit is given to Mrs. Wilson.

"I rarely give him advice," she protested. "Often I can spot little things which would never have occurred to Harold."

Mrs. Wilson would have preferred her husband to have continued his early career as a member of the Oxford University faculty.

"I'm not a bit ambitious," she said. "If things were left to me, I would rather we lived a quiet life out of the public eye."

Susanna's Family Fare

SHE SLURPS THE TURPS-

Dear Susanna: If I do say so myself, I've hit upon a brilliant method for removing the fronts of red brick houses.

I do not like the look of painted brick, but on the other hand the walls of my verandah were scratched and dirty. Here is what I did:

I took some reddish orange paint and a quantity of turpentine, and by putting about a cupful of turps at a time into a can, then dipping the brush once into the pain' and then rinsing the brush in the turpentine, I obtained a weak solution, and went over the old bricks with this. It has made a vast improvement.

Do not mix too much at a time as the turpentine evaporates and old brick absorbs the solution very quickly. I used about five quarts of turps before I had it finished, but it soaked in and covered all the white scratches and scars.

Here is something else. I never shake a mop. I have a cylinder type vacuum cleaner and I use the end o. the metal pipe to draw all the dust out of my mops, soft brushes and brooms. — Geraldine McIntyre

How your next door neighbors must love you — with nary a worry about a hint of lint floating down on them. — Susanna.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be

ALBURY — On Tuesday evening Mrs. Hugh Weese entertained several ladies at a surprise shower for Miss Barbara Mallory a bride-to-be who is to be married October 10.

The signing of the bride's book and the conducting of games were in charge of Mrs. Neil Peck and Miss Linda Peck. A number of favors were awarded.

Mrs. Weese presented Barbara with a beautiful corsage and invited the guest of honor to an appropriately decorated chair and a table laden with many beautiful gifts.

Barbara expressed sincere appreciation for the many fine gifts, after which the hostess assisted by Mrs. Lorna Bowerman and Miss Marjorie Peck served refreshments.

Another shower was held at the Mallory home on Wednesday evening with a number of ladies in the neighborhood sponsoring the event. Mrs. Burke was in charge of the bride's book. At the close tasty refreshments were served.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL

Mrs. D. Wetsch, president of College Hill U.C.W., presided for the September 23rd meeting held in the church parlor with a number of the members and three visitors.

Business included plans for packing a bale in October for the Fred Victor Mission in Toronto and the annual bazaar to be held November 11th at the church.

Mrs. Helen Hunter had charge of devotions, assisted by Mrs. K. Belcour, Mrs. A. Dickens and Miss Neal contributed a duet and readings were given by Sue Moorcroft, Barbara Reid and Ida Dafoe on the theme "Service to Others."

A social hour was spent sewing quilt blocks. Lunch consisting of fortune cookies, which caused considerable merriment, was provided by the committee in charge.

FEARS THUNDER

WATNALL, England (CP)— An unidentified housewife rings the meteorological station at this Nottinghamshire town every day to ask if there will be thunder. If the answer is yes, she seeks refuge with a neighbor.

Gas? Oil? Electricity?

Here's some plain talk about home heating

Every home heating fuel claims to be clean, safe, economical, convenient, healthful and dependable . . . and they are. But, when you compare one fuel to another, it becomes evident that one is cleaner than the others, one is more economical than the others, one is more convenient than the others . . . and so on.

Which will be best for your needs? How do you weed out all the half truths from the truths? We hope to end any confusion once and for all with some plain talk about home heating. Let's start by examining some claims about the costs of heating a home. .

Natural gas costs less—Electric heating claims "to cost no more than other forms of energy." Well, 1¢ worth of electricity will produce 3,413 BTU's of heat. However, for that same 1¢ Natural Gas will produce 10,000 BTU's of heat. So, for the same money you get almost three times the amount of heat with Natural Gas. Or to put it another way, it will cost you far less to heat your home with Natural Gas because you need less. you use less.

To bring electric heating costs close to Natural Gas you need extra heavy and costly insulation in walls, roof and basement; tightly fitted storm windows and doors; individual room thermostats that need constant attention and adjustment; perhaps even close off some rooms part of the time in order to save on the cost of heating electrically. Not so with Gas heating.

Gas is economical enough that one thermostat controls the heat for a whole house with standard insulation, including basement. Each room is heated evenly. Why, if you went to the extra expense of insulating your home to electrical heating standards and then put in Natural Gas heating, the saving with Natural Gas would still be in the same proportion.

Natural gas is cleaner, healthier—Natural Gas burns completely, quietly. All of its volume is transformed into heat energy. It is clean heat . . . instant heat. Oil burners are not quiet and fuel oil has sediment and impurities. It burns with a very fine oily soot. With oil, the pump, the burner, burner nozzle and the oil filter must be serviced and cleaned regularly.

With Natural Gas, there are no moving parts, nothing to wear out. When service or adjustment is needed, it's free. Both oil and gas forced air heating systems have air filters for trapping the dust and the dirt that circulates in every house. Not so with electric heating. The hot elements incinerate the dust in the air and the evidence is in full view on the walls and drapes above each heating unit. Electric heating is quiet, but uncirculated air is stale air.

Natural gas is safe, dependable and convenient—Gas supply lines are buried underground. Storms, fallen trees, blocked roads or adverse driving conditions cannot cut off your supply of fuel. Power failure or blown fuses do not stop the flow of warmth and comfort. A properly installed forced air gas system, is truly trouble-free, automatic heating and with the modern safety controls, it's as safe a heating system as you can find anywhere. The fact remains: electricity heads the list of fire causes over all other forms of energy (*Ontario Fire Marshal's Report).

Conclusion: All home heating fuels claim to be safe, economical, clean, convenient and dependable. But Natural Gas is best when compared to all the others. Don't take our word for it. Almost 90% of new homes have Natural Gas . . . ask any of their owners or ask a building contractor or architect.

Successful Living

Narrow Neighbors Cause New Canadian Unhappiness

DEAR DORIS — I want to understand why my neighbor is behaving like he does. I am a newcomer to Canada. If is hard to talk the new language so I don't talk to them very much.

Night after night my neighbor makes lots of noise; one night with firecrackers and the next night with a party in the back yard. It was close to my baby's window so the baby kept waking up.

DORIS CLARK

When I asked him why he made all that noise he said if he wanted to have a party he would have it. At ten o'clock that same night he began tearing down his fence, and the baby woke up again.

His wife said to my wife that we might as well go back to the old country, because nobody around here liked us anyway.

What do you think about behavior like this?—NEWCOMER.

* * *

DEAR NEWCOMER — That I'd hate-to live next door to it.

Part of your trouble is not expecting firecrackers on Victoria Day; part of his is provincialism—an inability to see that anyone not born right where he was, and not speaking his language, could have just as much intelligence, as many good ideas, as delicate feelings, as he has.

Believe me, many of us Canadians welcome our Newcomers with open arms. Work hard on the language — and this is for the mother of that babe too — and make friends with the neighbor on the other side.

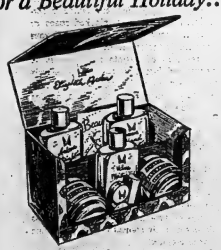
* * *

DEAR DORIS — I tried giving my little girl love and encouragement, as you suggested. Now, instead of crying, she has the idea she can get away with anything.

While I am saying "No, Sally," she ignores me and jumps out of bed, lightning-quick, to reach for a little glass bird or other forbidden object. Then she giggles and coaxes me to give in. Goodness knows I love her, but is it a kindness to let her get away with things? — WHAT TO DO.

* * *

DEAR WHAT — You're making progress. Far better for her to express herself in action than in tears. I agree she does need controls or she'll never learn self-discipline. Most of us can lap up all the encouragement we can get and be the better for it. Demonstrations of affections should be plentiful.



Your precocious daughter could take positive challenges like washing and drying the dishes, learning piano, baking a cake. A system of rewards rather than punishments. And lots of hugging and conversation from her pal — you.

* * *

Coffin's Lawyer Maintains Rifle Spirited From Camp

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — The late Wilbert Coffin's two principal defence lawyers contradicted one another flatly Wednesday on a key point as the Quebec royal commission inquiring into the Coffin case rolled to a close.

The contradiction left Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, who is to hand in a report to the Quebec cabinet by Nov. 15 saying he hopes Providence will help him "distinguish the truth from the lies" in the often-contradictory testimony of some 220 witnesses since Feb. 29.

Francois Gravel, 39, testified that both Raymond "Buddy" Maher, Coffin's other main defence lawyer a decade ago, and Maher's secretary Jean Guy Hamel, told him they had spirited a rifle away from Coffin's camp in the Gaspe late Aug. 27, 1953, and disposed of it.

But Mr. Maher, 44, and Mr. Hamel, 39, now a house painter, denied this.

Mr. Maher earlier had testified he went to the camp that night and took away a package. He said the package neither contained a rifle nor anything incriminating to Coffin but he refused to say what was in it.

TESTIMONY CONFLICTS

Police witnesses told the commission that Sgt. Henri Doyon of the Quebec Provincial Police was told by Coffin early Aug. 27 that the rifle was at the camp. But there has been conflicting testimony about why it took police 22 hours to get to the camp, a 15-minute drive away from the Gaspe QPP post.

Coffin was held criminally responsible in 1953 for the death of two of three hunters from Pennsylvania found dead in the Gaspe forest. He was charged with one shooting convicted in 1954 and hanged in 1956. He maintained his innocence until the end.

The commission was charged with inquiring into the conduct of authorities in the case and their handling of evidence.

In the late stages of the public hearings, attention focussed on the .32-40 calibre Marlin rifle Coffin borrowed from a relative shortly before the hunters were killed. Coffin told police the rifle was near his camp but when they went there a few hours after Mr. Maher's visit there was no trace of the weapon. It hasn't been seen since.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) said "vicious rumors" are being spread in labor and newspaper circles that former members of the Louis St. Laurent cabinet and present Liberal backbenchers from Montreal have "close connections" with Mr. Banks and the SIU.

He said there were other rumors about SIU contributions to Liberal election campaign funds and backed Mr. Diefenbaker's call for a judicial inquiry.

Although Mr. Favreau maintained the RCMP had asked the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation to search for Mr. Banks, several opposition members said it was incredible he had not been located when a reporter found him in a matter of hours.

The justice minister said letters were sent to the FBI on Aug. 18 and 21, and that an FBI Halson officer acknowledged the second letter on Aug. 26.

Mr. Nielsen said Crown counsel always makes certain there is a provision in a bail bond to assure a person remains within the court's jurisdiction, but Mr. Favreau countered that the form Banks signed was the normal one used in Quebec.

CAUSES OUTBURSTS

Mr. Nielsen's speech produced angry outbursts from government members.

When the Conservative member asked whether there was not justification for concluding there was a deal between the government and Mr. Banks, Trade Minister Sharp shouted: "Not at all—that is a lie."

Both Mr. Nielsen and Mr. Orlikow suggested Mr. Banks' presence on the yacht, which they said was provided by the SIU, indicated he has retained influence in the union.

"....Let us not believe for a moment that the SIU would provide such facilities for Mr. Banks if he had lost all his usefulness to that union organization," Mr. Nielsen said.

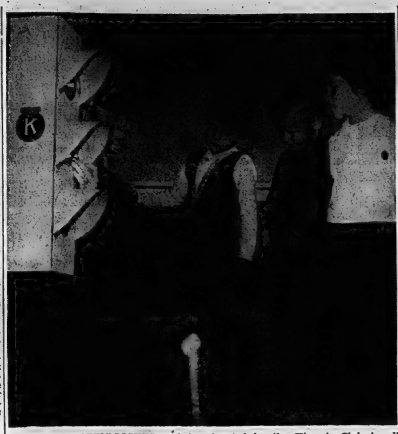
take my character away, and let them come out in the open and fight."

Hogg's speech received front-page treatment in most British newspapers Wednesday, but The Mirror buried Hogg's comments deep in another story.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home stood in a wrestling ring at Watford, England, surrounded by children shouting slogans demanding that Britain give up her independent nuclear deterrent, and said: "I will not disarm Britain when other countries in the world are arming."

ACCUSES WILSON

Douglas - Home accused Labor leader Harold Wilson of taking a "completely unreal view" of international politics by suggesting that Britain can take part in world councils without having nuclear weapons.



Wilson spoke at Luton, England, and hammered again at the Tory economic policies. "Sir Alec and his box of spent matches constitute a tedious irrelevance," he said.

He said the Conservatives had caused a giant balance-of-payments crisis in Britain, and asked rhetorically whether the prime minister lives in a "dream world where he cannot tell a plus from a minus."

Standing of the House at dissolution was: Conservatives and allies 333; Labor 260; Liberals 7; independent 2; vacant 8—total 630.

EXPELS NEWSMEN

BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany expelled Wednesday two journalists of the West German weekly Der Stern, charging that their magazine had financed the weekend tunnel escape of 57 East Berliners during which an East German border guard was killed. The East German news agency ADN said the journalists were accredited here for the East German 10th anniversary celebrations.

Court Extends Injunction at Kingston Plant

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday extended an injunction limiting the number of pickets at the Aluminum Company of Canada Limited's Kingston plant until a strike there ends.

It increased to four the number of pickets allowed at each of the plant's gates. An injunction granted in Frontenac county court Monday limiting the number to three expired Wednesday.

About 300 members of Local 54, International Association of Machinists CLC went on strike Friday to back up demands for higher wages and improved fringe benefits. The plant employs 2,000.

Bid Farewell

rising tide she eyed its steep angle and said with a laugh: "I'm not going up there."

Crew members from the Britannia swarmed down the gangplank and shifted the platform back into position. The job was done with whispered commands and completed before the Queen had finished saying goodbye to Lieutenant - Governor W. J. MacDonald and other island dignitaries.

Sharp at midnight, on schedule, the Britannia eased away from the dock. The band of the Royal Marines aboard played Auld Lang Syne, the crowd cheered and waved, and $1,000 worth of fireworks flashed out from nearby Victoria Park.

VISITS CHAMBER

The Queen's day started Wednesday with a visit to the Confederation chamber in Province House, where the first meeting of the Fathers of Confederation was held in 1864. She had visited the chamber twice before.

Then she drove through rain-wet streets to the city's fair grounds to appear before 8,000 school children waving Union Jacks. She presented boy scout, girl guide and school achievement awards.

After lunch at Government House, the Queen and her husband rested aboard the yacht and prepared for the evening dinner and dance.

At the banquet, held in the ballroom of the Charlottetown Hotel, Premier Walter Shaw first proposed a toast to "the Queen of Canada," which the guests drank in champagne after dinner of lobster and roast beef.

Then four pipers, led by Pipe-Major A. M. Catrus of Hamilton and Camp Petawawa, Ont., marched the length of the ballroom and stood immediately behind the Queen at the head table, playing Scottish airs.

After their departure, the pipe-major returned for his traditional quaich, a draught of whisky in a silver bowl which he got to keep.

He proposed the toast in Gaelic: "Slainte do ur reasdimidh, Rhan - righ Eslasaid (good health to our chief, Queen Elizabeth)."

The Queen remained vivacious and at ease throughout the long day and into the night. She started the ball, dancing a waltz with her husband.

The crowd swarmed around her when the music stopped and the royal couple were escorted by Mounties to a roped-off area in one corner of the ballroom.

But Philip wasn't content with that and danced with Mrs. MacDonald, wife of the lieutenant - governor. The Queen followed him on the dance floor with Dr. Frank MacKinnon, president of the Confederation Centre Foundation.

She danced also with Premier Shaw.

PRIZE BELGIANS — This four-horse hitch owned by Keith Hebden of Brooklin won top honors in its class at Madoc Fair. Horse show included two, four and six horse hitches as well as carriage and saddle horses.

Variety of Entertainment, Splendid Exhibits Make Madoc Fair Big Success

Second largest annual agricultural show in the county, Madoc Fair is being extended into a "one day, two-night affair" with a wide variety of entertainment being offered to please the fair going public.

This year was no exception and Tuesday evening saw the tune-up for Wednesday's all-day affair.

The fairgrounds Tuesday evening saw a talent show, an exciting display of horsemanship with barrel racing and pole bending, ending up with a display of fireworks.

Wednesday, the annual fall fair was staged, featuring the usual fine horse show and livestock display, along with three classes of harness racing, Junior 4-H club events and displays of domestic science and products of garden and field.

WARDEN OPENS FAIR

County Warden Tom Surnside, reeve of Madoc village, officially opened the fair, urging residents of the Madoc district to support their fair as only through everyone's co-operation could it continue to be a success.

Fair President Cecil Woods added his own words of welcome, while Clarence Fitchett, district fairs representative, and Clarke T. Rollins, M.A. for Hastings East, also took part in fair opening ceremonies.

This year, in an effort to get a full program of fair events over earlier, horse judging was commenced in the morning, thus allowing the main horse show events, including the four and six-horse teams to be completed before the fair going crowd started home.

START WITH PARADE

Getting the fair program underway yesterday morning was a parade led by the Centre Hastings High School Cadet band and high school cheerleaders. Also taking part were members of the Margo-ettes baton group of Wellington, a high school drill team and several floats.

The Wellington Margoettes twirled their batons, there was old time fiddling, step dancing, nail pounding, bag tieing, and even a couple of Beatle acts to entertain the fair crowd.

BIG CATTLE EXHIBIT

Sunny skies favored the Madoc fair, but a chilly wind and the fact that the International Plowing Match of Peterborough was being held at the same time may have cut attendance slightly.

This year special police and high school cadets patrolled entrances and the back fences in an effort to cut down on the number of fence hoppers seeking free entry to the grounds.

There was a big showing of cattle with beef breeds as usual being well represented along with Holsteins and Jerseys. There was the usual big sheep and swine exhibit, while local cheese makers put in a good display to observe the centennial year of cheese making in Ontario.

And there were all kinds of horses, ranging from the smallest ponies, to the big four and six horse teams of Percherons and Belgians.

JUNIOR FARMERS COMPETE

Madoc township and county junior farmers had a big day with several achievement days being run off in connection with the fair program.

Lloyd Bateman of Eldorado was top member in the Madoc 4-H Calf Club, ending up as top boy in his club, showing the best calf and was the top showman for both his own club and the inter-club dairy showman events.

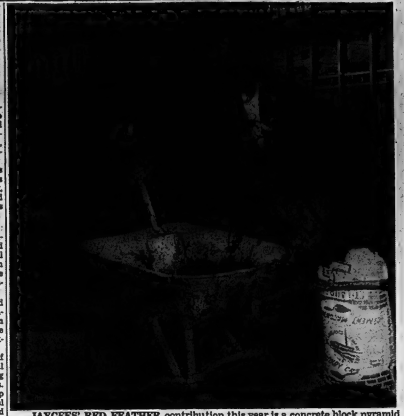
The Stirling 4-H Calf Club had the top group of calves shown by Calvin Sharp, Judy Bush and Fred Sutherland.

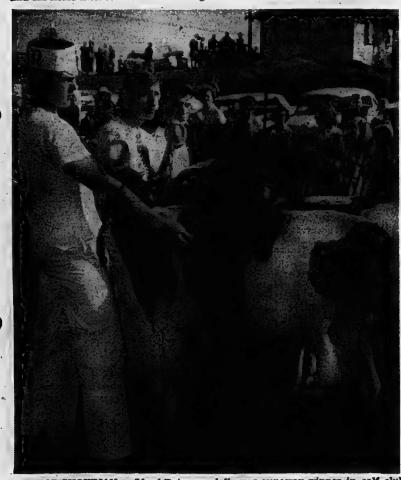
The Tweed group of Neil, Karen and Janice Rearie, showing Herefords, was second, while the Belleville group of Doug and Bob Jarrell and Robt. Hamilton showing Jerseys, were third.

The Forestry Club, Grain Corn Club and Potato Club had fine exhibits in the junior building.



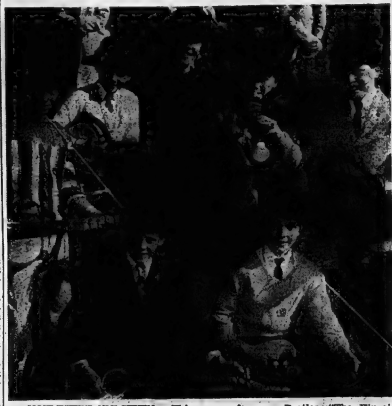
MACHINERY EXHIBIT

As usual the fair midway with its varied rides, concessions and eateries, along with the amateur contests on the grandstand, was the big attraction for many of the fair - goers.



For the more serious minded adults there were harness racing, the horse and cattle shows and the big farm machinery exhibit featuring the latest mechanized farm equipment.

For horse racing fans there were three classes of sulky races, with a once around the track race by four high stepping pairs of roadsters thrown in for good measure. Lorne Urch was the announcer for these events.



Then for the evening crowd, there was the annual dance in the fairgrounds agricultural building.

JAYCEES' RED FEATHER contribution this year is a concrete block pyramid on which the club hopes to paint a red feather to show progress of the campaign. Delayed a week, work on the project started yesterday at the site, on the Ben Safe property on Bridge Street between Front and Pinnacle. Mixing mortar for the city employees building the pyramid Jaycee in charge of the project, Earl Amyotte, helps city workman Robert Bartley.

TOP SHOWMAN — Lloyd Bateman, left, was runaway winner in calf club events at Madoc. Lloyd was top showman for both inter-club and Madoc Calf Club events, and also showed the best calf and was top boy in the club achievement day. Others in the picture are Ronald Broadworth and Wayne Bailey.

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It is not usual for the head of a foreign state to visit Washington officially in the midst of a presidential election campaign.

But President Diosdado P. Macapagal is not a routine caller—either normally or right now when the U.S. can use all the friends it can get in Southeast Asia.

President Johnson bit into his campaign time to make the visitor feel at home. In return, President Macapagal said a number of things which the U.S. likes to hear from its allies and doesn't always get.

Perhaps more important, he indicated the Philippines may step up its aid in South Viet Nam, something the U.S. has been striving to encourage from Europe and Canada.

Macapagal, joining Johnson in the usual communique, expressed concern that "should South Viet Nam fall to communism other Southeast Asian countries on the mainland, including Malaysia, will in no time follow."

He also had some blunt words about Indonesia's limping but persistent attack on Malaysia and suggested failure to solve the dispute may push Indonesia definitely into Communist ranks.

He also had some blunt words tion in the Gulf of Tonkin against North Viet Nam and it is reported privately he recommended U.S. attacks on North Viet Nam supply lines.

Carrying such ideas, it is doubtful that President Macapagal will get much farther than he has as a would-be negotiator in the Malaysia-Indonesia dispute. But in terms of political stability and resources he is a comforting ally from the U.S. point of view.

Spring Wheat Estimate Is Confirmed

OTTAWA (CP)—The bureau of statistics Wednesday confirmed its August estimate of a 573,000,000 bushel crop of prairie spring wheat.

However, DBS estimates for all other prairie grain crops were reduced from the August levels due to cool, wet weather.

Basing its forecasts on Sept. 15 returns from field correspondents, the bureau made these revisions:

The prairie oats crop was reduced by 2,000,000 bushels to 204,000,000; barley by 4,000,000 to 155,000,000 bushels; rye by 400,000 to 10,800,000 bushels, and flax by 600,000 to 18,000,000 bushels.

With Ontario's winter wheat added, plus other spring wheat crops, the all - Canada 1964 wheat harvest is estimated at 505,680,000 bushels compared with last year's 723,443,000.

Resigns Post To Continue Fight for Group

LONDON (CP) — Scottish millionaire Sir Hugh Fraser resigned from his post as chairman of the Outram groups of newspapers Wednesday to continue his fight with Lord Thomson for control of the company.

Thomson and Fraser now are locked in a £8,000,000 battle for Outram's two important Glasgow dailies—The Evening Times and The Herald—and a string of local weeklies.

The Candian-born Thomson told a reporter today his latest bid of 25 shillings, sixpence for each Outram share should prove attractive to shareholders.

"We now have made a very generous offer," he said in a telephone conversation. "Anyone who beats that is paying too much for the business."

OFFERS CASH

Thomson's offer consists of one share of his Scottish organization plus three shillings cash for each Outram share. The Thomson shares are unquoted on the London Stock Exchange but the internation-al Thomson organization has guaranteed to buy them at 22 shillings, sixpence anytime during the next three years.

Fraser, who owns several department stores including London's well-known Harrod's, was recently promoted to chairman of Outram from deputy chairman to lead the fight against Thomson.

At the time Fraser said he was determined to prevent Outram from falling into non-Scottish hands.

In his letter of resignation Wednesday, however, Fraser said it would be improper for him to continue as chairman while he was in the bidding for Outram.

Clergyman Says He Advised Teen-Age Couple Against Having Pre-Marital Sex

CHATHAM (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh testified Wednesday that after counselling a teen - age couple against having premarital sex and getting married be made no mention of the matter to their parents or teachers.

Under cross-examination by Crown Attorney Blake Ward, the 45-year-old pastor of Park Street United Church said he picked up the couple, aged 16 and 18, and brought them to his office after he detected a note of urgency in the youth's voice on the telephone.

Earlier in the trial, which enters its 12th day today, the 16 - year - old girl testified she had sexual intercourse in the church apartment above the minister's office after Mr. Horsburgh said there was nothing wrong with premarital sex, provided the participants respect each other.

Mr. Horsburgh has pleaded not guilty to eight counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency and is being tried before juvenile court Judge W. H. Fox of London, Ont.

During his three hours of cross - examination, Mr. Horsburgh, who has repeatedly denied that he encouraged or permitted teen-agers to have sexual intercourse in his church, told Mr. Blake he found it "very difficult" to understand why Crown witnesses had testified that he did.

The final five witnesses called in the Crown's rebuttal Wednesday included a Chatham weather office official who told the court that no rain had fallen March 19, the date Mr. Horsburgh testified he picked up the couple because it was raining so hard.

Summations and arguments by the counsels will be heard today.

Referring to the 14-year-old girl, Mr. Ward asked: "Did you call her mother and tell her she had better discuss the facts of life with her?"

"I made no contact with anyone," Mr. Horsburgh replied.

Mr. Ward said a Crown witness had testified that Mr. Horsburgh asked her how the television was when she returned from having sexual intercourse in the church apartment during a Friday night dance.

HARDLY KNEW GIRL

Mr. Horsburgh testified Tuesday he gave the boy accompanying the girl permission to watch television in his home if his step - son did not object. Wednesday the minister admitted he scarcely knew the girl and had only known the boy a week.

He said that he would permit them to go into his house and watch television if his wife and son were present. He said he had made several trips to his house that night and was sure his family was there.

On several occasions Mr. Ward criticized the clergyman for including in his answers such phrases as: "I don't remember, it could have been," or, "I don't recollect."

Mr. Horsburgh agreed with the Crown attorney that he had a very poor memory, saying with a smile: "I am getting old."

Grivas Shuns Publicity

Guerrilla Leader Likes Canadian Major

By RUSSELL PEDEN

NICOSIA (CP)—Just mention the name Grivas in the marketplace, the sidewalk cafe or the Cyprus government office if you want to put a damper on the conversation.

Cypriots art great talkers, and are more than willing to enlighten the visitor on their politics, their grievances and their place in world affairs But no one seems anxious to chat about the wiry, nut-brown guerrilla leader who organized EOKA terrorism in the late 1950s and now is regarded as "the power behind the throne" in his native Cyprus.

Gen. George Grivas himself shuns publicity Since he returned to Cyprus from Greece in mid-June to direct the 30,000-odd Greek-Cypriot "security forces," he has seldom been seen in public and has maintained an iron rule against granting interviews to reporters, even the local press.

But there is one outsider who sees the general at least once a day—a French-speaking native of Edmonton doing a fascinating liaison job for the United Nations peace force on Cyprus.

NEEDED INTERPRETER

Maj. J. Louis Lessard, a Canadian on "entrance" to Corps officer, got the job in mid-August, just after the Turkish air raids on the west coast.

At that time, India's Gen. K. S. Thimayya, the UN peace force commander, asked to see Grivas and the two generals toured the stricken area together. They found out, how ever, that they had no common language. Grivas speaks Greek and French. Thimayya English.

The communication problem was solved with the appointment of Lessard, who deals personally with the former Greek army officer and goes along as interpreter when he meets Thimayya.

"This has been working extremely well and I am very satisfied," Thimayya says. "We had a tremendous amount of trouble getting things done before a liaison man was appointed.

"Maj. Lessard has been very useful, and has established very good contact with Gen. Grivas."

Lessard, 46, has a high regard for the former terrorist.

"When I enter his office I always salute and he shakes hands. I like the cut of his.

"He is crisp, dynamic very definitely a forceful character. I would describe him as likeable."

He advanced, hand outstretched, from behind the huge desk that dominates his austerely furnished office.

Radiating authority despite his 66 years and his casual dress — a grey cardigan and slacks — he appeared much taller than his five feet three inches.

This was the man who, with some 280 EOKA followers, eluded 25,000 crack British troops on a tiny island for more than four years.

No guard was present, but visitors are screened carefully before they reach the office on the second floor of the heavily guarded Athalassa police station, Nicosia's largest.

First comes a sandbagged roadblock at the police station entrance, then the 10-foot-high gates surrounding the courtyard. Once inside, the visitor must pass a reception desk swarming with policemen on the ground floor and a barred and guarded corridor upstairs before reaching the general's anteroom.

From the inner sanctum. Grivas has brought many disciples to the thousands of "security ..forces," most of them hastily conscripted within the last few months. Under his direction are some 1,500 police, 5,000 auxiliary police and 15,000 soldiers of the national guard.

GREEKS IMPORTED

The government won't say how many trained Greek nationals have come to Cyprus to serve their former commander but informed observers put the figure somewhere between 7,000 and 10,000.

Officially, Grivas is described as military advisor to the president, Archbishop Makarios. But by all indications his powers are second only to those of the president himself, and he is generally regarded as the only man with enough of a following to assume leadership of the country if anything should happen to the archbishop.

During the EOKA campaign, the Grivas directives were signed "Dighenis," the name of a legendary hero of medieval Greece. Today, his correspondence goes out over the signature of "George Grivas-Dighenis, General Commander."

The man nominally in charge of security forces is Polycarpos Georgadjis, a former EOKA lieutenant now minister of the interior in the Greek-Cypriot cabinet. It is noteworthy that when Grivas comes in, instead of the other way around, and the general has been known to keep the minister waiting in an anteroom while dealing with other business.

Grivas came to Cyprus at the invitation of Makarios, and the two are not regarded as political rivals. Neither has even hinted at any other long-term goal than ensuring the union of Cyprus with Greece.

Grivas has made a number of ineffectual attempts to enter Greek politics, but he denied any further political ambitions on coming to Cyprus. He would not see any reporters, he said, because his sole concern was for military matters Statements on politics were for politicians.

ODDS AND ENDS

Cards Whip Yankees 9-5 In Opener

By JOE REICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"So the Yankees want to scramble. It's all right with us. We're the best scramblers in baseball."

Southpaw star Curt Simmons summed up St. Louis Cardinals' attitude going into Thursday's second game. The Cards handed New York Yankees their fifth straight World Series defeat 9-5 in Wednesday's opener.

He now has his ace pitcher, righthander Bob Gibson, to fire against the Yankees in the second game of the Series.

Rookie Yankee manager Yogi Berra must rely on a rookie, Mel Stottlemyre, to pitch the first Yankee post season victory since October 1962.

Stottlemyre, a 22-year-old righthander, was a key factor in the Yankees pennant victory this year. Brought up from Richmond Virginians of the International League in mid-August, he posted a 9-3 record with a 2.16 earned run average.

PENNANT CLINCHER

Gibson (19-12) was to have been Keane's opening game pitcher but the fire-balling native of Omaha, Neb., had to be summoned from the bullpen for the pennant clincher Sunday against New York Mets.

"Winning the first game means a great deal, of course," said Keane, "but what pleases me most is that we're now got our pitching rotation straightened out.

"I think we're in good position now with Gibson going for us in the second game and one game in the bag. I like Gibson any time he goes out, no matter who we're playing."

In the opener neither starter, Whitey Ford of the Yankees or Ray Sadecki of the Cards, had it and each team cracked a dozen hits.

Mike Shannon's two-run homer, a towering 450-foot blast, which tied the score at 4-4 in the sixth inning, started Ford's downfall. Tim McCarver's follow-up double finished him.

Sadecki was credited with the victory but it took a three-inning relief job by Barney Schultz, the 36-year-old knuckleballer, to preserve the triumph.

Curt Flood, Lou Brock, McCarver and Shannon each had two hits and the Yankees committed two errors and New York catcher Elston Howard was guilty of two passed balls.

Tommy Tresh whacked a double and home run for the Yankees, who grabbed a 3-1 lead in the second inning on five hits off Sadecki.

But Ford was cut down at the plate on a fine throw by Brock from left field. That proved to be the turning point of the game.

"If Ford had scored," said Keane, "I would have taken Sadecki out. Even then, another hit and Ray was gone."

Stottlemyre, an avid observer from the Yankee dugout, took note of the short confines of Busch Stadium and a 16-mile-an-hour wind that contributed to Ford's downfall.

HEROES — Mike Shannon (18) and Barney Schultz (33) of the St. Louis Cardinals whoop it up in dressing room at Busch Stadium after they and their teammates whipped the Yankees 9-5 in first game of the 1964 World Series. Shannon hit a two-run homer in the sixth to tie up the Yankees and the Cards went on from there for their victory. Relief hurler Schultz pitched the last three innings to preserve the victory for starting Cards hurler Ray Sadecki.

Young Irishman Hero

Shannon Shillalagh Sparked Cards' Win

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Left-hander Whitey Ford of the New York Yankees winced at the curve ball left his hand. Young Mike Shannon of the St. Louis Cardinals swung, bat hit ball, and Ford pounded his glove in disgust.

"I knew it was gone without looking," said Ford, 35-year-old veteran of many a World Series.

Shannon's two - run towering drive in the sixth inning Wednesday travelled more than 450 feet, struck the beer sign atop the scoreboard in left field and tied the score at 4-4. It spurred the Cardinals to a four-run inning and a 9-5 victory in the first game of the World Series.

"That homer gave me the biggest thrill in my life," Shannon told reporters huddled around him in the clubhouse. "But it won't be the longest I ever hit.

A grin crept over his Irish face.

"I even hit a longer homer in Dublin — Dublin, Georgia, of course," he said, "I really shillaleghied that one."

The lanky 22-year-old right fielder, a bit embarrassed by the attention given him, took it all in stride.

"Dick Groat, Ken Boyer and Bill White are the big men on this club, but every day one of the rest of us comes through to help out," he said. "Today, it was my turn."

His turn has been a long time coming. Once famed more for his football ability as a quarterback with Christian Brothers High School in his native St. Louis and then as a freshman at the University of Missouri, Shannon still snapped up an offer to play baseball.

He signed with St. Louis for $50,000 in 1958 but spent five years in the minor leagues before he got a chance with the Cardinals in 1963. He played in 36 games but spent most of the time as a defensive replacement for Stan Musial.

Musial retired after that season and Cardinals gave Shannon a good chance to stick in spring training. But he had a terrible spring and was sent back down with no options left. If the Cardinals had not recalled him this season, he would have been subject to the winter draft.

Hitting .280 with 11 home runs, he was recalled from the International League Jacksonville Suns in July. With the Cardinals, in only 253 at bats, he slugged nine homers and drove in 43 runs with a .261 batting average.

Playing in his first World Series, he not only hammered the game-tying homer, but hit another Ford curve ball for a single and scored three runs.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It is a far cry from a church mixed league—which made most of its own rules—to the finals of an Ontario softball championship.

That actually happened—and any resident of the Wallbridge area will substantiate the statement.

Prior to last year when the Thurlow-Sidney Township Softball League was formed from Wallbridge, Foxboro, Centenary and Glen Miller clubs, the young people — both boys and g irls — derived their softball enjoyment from teams representing a church league.

In the first year of its operation, the league sent a junior-studded club from Wallbridge to the OASA intermediate "D" playdowns. Actually the Wallbridge team was pinch-hitting because Centenary won the league title and chose not to enter the playdowns.

Wallbridge, a squad of untried-in-playdowns youngsters with the exception of two, defeated Eldorado, won by default from Townsend and bowed to Williamsford in the third game of the championship series.

Allan Sills, Wallbridge manager, who with Jim Fair, piloted the club to the finals, is extremely proud of the club. "It was inexperience that cost them the title," Allan told this department. "In fact," he said, "there are only five or six players in the Thurlow-Sidney League with organized softball experience.

"The average age of the team is 19," Allan said. "We used three midgets, two juveniles, three juniors with the rest being in their early twenties.

"They made mistakes, it is true, but this came from inexperience when playing with teams many years their seniors. But they learned a lot and this will show next season."

Jack Reid and Ralph Sine were the pitching mainstays of the club, the manager said. "Ralph was invaluable to us in the playdowns series."

Finishing in the finals means a big boost to the young league, Sills said. "The people came to see and they liked what they saw. By season's end three of the four clubs were operating in the black."

Wallbridge, he said, started with no funds whatever. A few of the players signed notes to borrow $60 from a bank which paid for equipment, outside of sweaters.

"Proceeds from a raffle held during the summer helped pay off the loan and almost the cost of travelling during the playdowns," Allan said, "and we deeply appreciate the money donated to the club by the Women's Institute which paid our OASA registration fees."

"There were times when the boys had to chip in to pay the umpires. Each club paid one official. The boys did all the work for the club, selling tickets, etc."

Mr. Sills foresees a fine future for the Thurlow-Sidney township league. "Next year," he said, "it should boom because of more experience and finish. We have a lot of youngsters coming along who will develop into top players. Two midgets Larry Marshall and Ron Geen played exceptionally well during the season."

"The league was formed partly for this reason. We have our own constitution which limits all clubs to two imports only and only one of these can be a pitcher."

Mr. Sills did not do any personal backslapping but anyone who can pilot a club to an Ontario finals series in the first year of organized operation deserves, with his fellow officials, a lot of credit.

'It I Played, We Were Beaten'

Stan The Man-Spectator

ST. LOUIS (AP)—It was Stan Musial's turn to sit and watch Wednesday while Mike Shannon, the man who took his place, helped St. Louis Cardinals win a World Series game.

"It's really a good thing I haven't been playing this year," said Musial, the all-time star who retired to become a Cardinal vice - president after last season. "If I had been, we wouldn't have won."

Nobody believed him.

Musial, 43, tanned and cracking his famous grin, wore a neat business suit and looked the part of an executive.

"I'm feeling good now," said the U.S. physical fitness director who collapsed recently from overwork. "In fact, seeing the Cardinals finally play in a World Series, I've never felt better."

"The World Series is a great thrill for a player. Many don't get in. I'm lucky I got into three. But, much as I'd like to be in it, I have no regrets."

Musial played in his first series as a rookie in 1942 when the Cards upset the favored New York Yankees.

Want League Unified

No Sked Agreement

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of all nine member clubs in the Canadian Football League failed to reach agreement Wednesday on the final aspects of an interlocking schedule between eastern and western conferences.

But they did endorse unanimously the selection of a two-man committee to investigate ways of achieving autonomy for the league.

Club officials who attended the closed meeting told reporters the clubs want to bring about a situation where there is one league with two divisions, rather than the current two leagues operating under a single roof.

The names of the two men who will make the investigation were not disclosed because they have not been approached yet. They were described as being football officials who are no longer active in the CFL.

The only official statement to come out of the meeting was read by CFL commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

"It was agreed that a committee of two be appointed for investigating all aspects of Canadian professional football operations and to make recommendations regarding the method whereby the Canadian Football League may become an autonomous football league; such committee to have power to obtain whatever assistance it requires.

The decision follows years of disagreement among the clubs about television and split gate receipts.

General manager Herb Capozzi of British Columbia Lions said it may not be a large move, but added: "Old Chinese proverb say journey of 1,000 miles starts with single step."

Western conference teams want a share of eastern television income, because of their participation in interlocking games, as well as a bigger share of gate receipts from those games.

At present, the visiting team is entitled to six per cent of the gross gate, with the money being paid into its conference treasury. The West wants a "more equitable figure."

Swiss Hurt In Training

TOKYO (AP)—Two Swiss cyclists were injured in a traffic accident today, one of them, Hans Luthi, suffering multiple injuries which might possibly keep him out of the Olympic races.

Doctors at a Japanese hospital where the two received treatment said it would take three weeks for Luthi to recover. They said he suffered injuries to the chest, left hand and left foot.

A spokesman of Hino police station at Hino, about 30 miles west of here, said Luthi and Heinz Heinemann were struck by a Japanese - driven truck while making a training run over part of the Olympic road race route.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Horatio Lura's four - year - old filly Edmota Wednesday won the $12,050 Nettie Handicap at Woodbine beating Hugh Grant's Menedict by three - quarters of a length.

The chestnut filly came from last place in the field of eight to whisk by Menedict, regarded as the finest filly in Canada. Menedict appeared to be standing still as Edmota, with Paul Bailey riding, moved past her in mid-stretch.

Edmota was timed the mile in one-eighth distance in 1.50 3-5 and collected $7,050 of the $12,050 Nettie purse.

In The Dressing Rooms

By TOM PENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The victor and the vanquished sounded alike, and both dressing rooms were strangely quiet after St. Louis Cardinals defeated New York Yankees 9-5 in Wednesday's World Series opener.

"It was a tough ballgame," said loser Whitey Ford, the crafty Yankee lefthander.

"My control was off," said the winner, southpaw Ray Sadecki of the Cardinals.

Johnny Keane, the Cards' manager was so bombarded by questions he frequently cupped his ear to hear.

"We played methodical ball today," he said. "Our men came through when they had to. The Yankees were tough, but we arose to the occasion."

BERRA FELT SAME

Manager Yogi Berra of the Yankees had about the same attitude.

"I'm not disappointed," said Berra. "It's a strange ball park and we haven't played here. They (the Cards) just found some of the holes for their hits that we didn't."

Both teams had 12 hits and one home run, but the Yankees had two errors and two passed balls by catcher Elston Howard.

Yankee left-fielder Tom Tresh and Cardinal right-fielder Mike Shannon each hit two-run homers. But Shannon's was the turning point of the game, tieing the score at 4-4 in the sixth.

Howard said Shannon's homer "came off a slider by Ford that came up. Some of Whitey's breaking stuff was coming up —not all."

"I knew Shannon's ball was a homer when it was hit, moaned Ford.

Curt Flood, the centre fielder, put the Cardinals ahead in the sixth with a triple off the wall in left.

NOT HARD ENOUGH

Flood, who weighs about 157 pounds, said he thought he hit it hard enough for a homer.

"But that's the way it is with a little fellow," he smiled. "I gave it all I had, but it wasn't enough."

Berra, in his rookie year as Yankee manager, admitted he missed Pete Ramos, his right-handed reliever. Ramos was back in New York, ineligible for the World Series although he sparkled as a late-season gamesaver for the Yanks.

"I felt I could hold 'em," Ford said. "But it was a tough day to pitch—you had to keep the ball low. It's a little easier pitching in New York. You can make a mistake and it's just a fly ball. But not in this small park."

Sadecki praised 38-year-old veteran knuckleball reliever Barney Schultz for saving his game.

"He's great," Sadecki said of Schultz who has been one of the main reasons we're playing the World Series here."

Physical Project Get O.K.

TOKYO (CP) — A message from Canada's Prime Minister Pearson was read Wednesday at the opening meeting of an international medical conference to launch a long-term research project involving Olympic ath letes.

The project, the International Olympic Archives, is being launched by federation Internationale de Medicine Sportive (International Federation of Medicine in Sports) to compile lifetime medical records of Olympic competitors, in an effort to determine the value of physical exercise.

In his message congratulating the federation, Pearson said:

"I share the confidence of leading physicians and scientists that the international Olympic Archives will provide an avenue through which great strides can be made to better health for mankind.

"Canada through the Canadian Olympic Association is in the forefront to share leadership in this challenging scientific field. I am convinced the resulting universal exchange of scientific data will be of immense assistance to our national fitness and amateur sport program."

WINNIPEG (CP)—Key York Rovers of the Eastern American League upset Canada's national hockey team 4-2 Wednesday night in an exhibition game before 680 fans. John McMillan, Trevor Fahey, Terry Pembroke and Brian Cruickshank scored for Rovers. Gary Aldcorn and Bill Johnson replied for the Nationals.

Injured Help Amateur Football
Bombers Not 'Wound-Lickers'

By IRA DRYSDALE

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Blue Bombers camp is no place for wound-licking Players are too battered or sore to get on the field are put to work helping amateur football.

George Coroneos, assistant general manager of the Western Football Conference club says he figures this is unique in Canada as a method of fostering football in high school and junior and senior clubs.

Bombers have been doing it on a small scale for years. But this year, as the team's list of disabled grew alarmingly long, so did the amateur football assistance program.

The result is that the amateurs are benefitting from the miseries of the last-place pro team.

Coroneos, a native of Norwalk, Conn., discussed the program while it was in full swing with seven Bombers on the sidelines.

The idea is simply to "help the kids," he said, suggesting that the Bombers are not particularly hopeful of ending up with a great array of native talent as a result of the program.

The gap between amateur and professional football in Canada has widened in the last two years, and it's becoming increasingly difficult for a boy to take the step into the pro game unless he has exceptional ability.

The way the assistance program operates is to have the disabled players rotate, visiting different schools and football clubs, teaching their specialty.

Another was Steve Patrick, 23-year-old tackle and middle guard, who is also a liberal member of the Manitoba legislature for Assiniboia.

Quarterback Dick Thornton, the only Bomber to make the West's defensive all-star team last year, is another instructor. So is halfback George Fleming, a placement-kicking specialist who was top point-getter in the conference last year.

End Farrell Funston, halfback Gordie Rowland and tackle Neil Thomas were also in the instruction program.

It may offer little comfort to coach Bud Grant, struggling with replacements and trying to rebuild a once-great team into a contender, but there's at least some satisfaction in knowing the club is reaping a few dollars.

And it's always possible a new Gerry James will turn up one day as a result.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) Kelly Mac Hal, the most talented side-wheeler of her age and sex in Canada, went to the front at the quarter mile pole and coasted home an easy winner, over 11 freshman pacers in the $7,302 Supertest Stakes at Mohawk Raceway Wednesday night.

It was the third straight stakes win and the 10th in 20 starts for the little bay filly, owned by Edna and Jack Kennedy of Ancaster, Ont.

HAS BLOWOUT

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah AP)—A tire blowout Wednesday at nearly 500 miles an hour ended—at least temporarily—Art Arfons's hopes of breaking his own world land speed record. Arfons stopped his 17,000-horsepower Green Monster 2½ miles down this western Utah salt flat course after the tire trouble hit.

No Moore For Leafs? Undecided

TORONTO (CP) — Although the Toronto Maple Leafs open their National Hockey League season next Thursday in Detroit, left winger Dickie Moore is undecided as to his future with the club.

Moore, who was drafted from Montreal Canadiens in June for $20,000, said Wednesday: "I haven't made up my mind yet if I will play. My condition must be 100 per cent."

Troubled by chronic knee ailments throughout his career, Moore was forced to sit out all of last season.

My knees are improving, but of course I haven't scrimmaged yet," he said in an interview.

Moore, 33, has not yet signed a contract but will negotiate with coach Punch Imlach when Leafs return from their western exhibition tour today.

World Golf
Britons Lead The Field

ROME (Reuters) — A British team in which the top three men all played par or better held a four-stroke lead after the first round of the world amateur golf team championships Wednesday.

Britain's total was 214, Italy was second at 218, and Formosa made a surprisingly strong showing to tie Mexico for third spot at 219.

The United States team, with 221, was sixth, and the Canadian team 10th with 224. They were winner and runner-up in the last tournament, two years ago in Japan. The U.S. was favore' to repeat its 1962 victory and Canada was also expected to be a strong contender.

Four man teams from 33 countries are competing for the Eisenhower Trophy, donated by the former U.S. president, in a 72-hole tournament that ends Saturday.

Individual leaders, all tied at two-under-par 70s, were Ronnie Shade of Britain, Kiyoshi Ishimoto of Japan and Angelo Croce of Italy.

ARE CANADA'S BEST

Canada's best over the opening 18-holer were Doug Silverberg of Calgary and the veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., both of whom carried 74. Keith Alexander, also of Calgary, went around Rome's Olgiata course in 76 to account for Canada's total of 224 at the end of the first day.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener had 77.

Behind Formosa and Mexico, fifth place was occupied by Argentina at 220, one stroke ahead of the U.S.

Despite Ishimoto's outstanding 70, the Japanese team was no better than 12th with a score of 227.

Weslock, a consulting engineer, seemed likely to be the hero of the day until he went two over par on the 16th and one over on the 18th for a two-over-par 74.

He hooked his tee shot wide of the green at the short 16th, into deep rough, and then three-putted. He also three-putted the 18th.

IT'S ANNOYING

"It's so annoying to have a good score when my grasp and then let it slip," Weslock groaned as he completed a 4½-hour round.

He had mastered the front nine in 36 despite losing his ball at the eighth. He went one under par when his second shot was 15 feet from the pin at the long 13th.

Cowan, individual champion at the 1962 meet in Kawana, Japan, was in trouble from the start, including two sixes in an outward 40.

RICHARD SIDELINED

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Henri Richard of Montreal Canadiens has a severe groin injury and won't be able to appear in the National Hockey League All-Star game Saturday in Toronto, Richard injured the groin Tuesday night in an exhibition game against Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, which the Canadiens lost 5-2.

Red Calls American 'Dictator'

Angry Protests Follow Indonesian Ban

From Reuters-AP

TOKYO (CP) — Indonesia threatened today to withdraw all its athletes from the Olympic Games if a ban is not lifted on its track and field and swimming entries by Saturday, opening day.

The two international organizations ruling track and field and swimming refused again today to permit Olympic competition by athletes who participated last year in the proscribed Games of the New Emerging Forces at Jakarta, Indonesia.

R. Maladi, Indonesian sports minister ,declared that "refusal of entry to the athletes and swimmers means refusal to the whole Indonesian team."

And the council of the International Amateur Athletic Federation today by a 10-to-2 vote reconfirmed its suspension of athletes who participated in the non - authorized Jakarta games. Affected are five Indonesian and six North Korean athletes now in Tokyo.

GROUNDS SOGGY

Meanwhile rain poured down on the 1964 Olympic site for the second straight day, leaving practice grounds soggy and mud-filled. The forecast for Friday was gloomy, but a cheerless sky was predicted for Saturday's opening ceremonies. Some 8,000 athletes from 96 countries will participate.

Goro Nakazoma, a spokesman for the Tokyo Olympic organizing committee, said he did not think the rain would have any affect on facilities. It could only hurt the attendance, he said.

The spokesman said the track at the huge national stadium is made of a special porous mixture that permits quick drainage. Track and field competition does not start until Wednesday, Oct. 14.

UPHOLDS DECISION

The vote of the swimming federation upheld a decision made by its executive Tuesday to exclude Indonesian swimmers from the Olympics because their country organized the Jakarta athletic contests, which proceeded without federation permission.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation, under its British chairman, the Marquess of Exeter, met behind closed doors in the new Imperial Hotel while supporters of the banned athletes gathered in the lobby below.

Some 50 Japanese and North Koreans living in Japan tried unsuccessfully to present a resolution demanding members of the Indonesian and North Korean teams be allowed to compete.

MAKES THREAT

And Indonesian Sports Minister Maladi said that if the International Olympic Committee refuses to lift its ban on the athletes, "we shall take a decision that will have far-reaching consequences in free world international relations and in international sports activities."

Maladi made the statement at a press conference.

The first part of his statement sounded as though it was building up to an Indonesian boycott of the Olympic Games

But questioned on this point Maladi replied: "There are two more days before the games begin. We shall keep trying."

Another touchy issue was dealt with today when the International Olympic Committee put off a decision on the question of whether Germany should be divided into two countries for games competition.

In other developments:

1. The International Football (Soccer) Federation suspended South Africa for its apartheid racial policies.

2. Mexico City was awarded the 1970 world football (soccer) cup finals. It will also stage the 1968 Olympic Games.

No Season For Sin In Tokyo

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP)—Tipping is out. So is running red lights. It definitely is not the season for sin.

Torch bearing is in. So are calling cards. And camera clicking is bigger than ever.

That's the state of fads and foibles in Tokyo on the eve of the Olympic Games.

The typing problem is serious. A fellow who slips a few yen under his plate runs the risk of being chased down the hall by a comely young waitress in Kimono, yearning to give it back.

Bellhops spurn tips. Even taxi drivers won't take them.

That is enough of a upset, but the real shocker is the way the taxi boys are driving.

The kamikaze approach has been waived for the Games. Ordinarily, you can hear the sound of crunching fenders and blaring horns for far away as Nome, Alaska. But now now.

It's all part of the Olympic spirit.

The saloons have got it, too. They are closing well before midnight, until the Games are over.

Even smiling is frowned on. The city fathers, or maybe it was the mothers, flooded the town with instructions directed at the daughters of Nippon. The pamphlets told the girls to be friendly, but to avoid smiling at the visitors.

Even crying is frowned on. The city fathers, or maybe it was the mothers, flooded the town with instructions directed at the daughters of Nippon. The pamphlets told the girls to be friendly, but to avoid smiling at the visitors.

With all these things on the shelf for the Games, what are the Japanese up to these days?

They are running around carrying the Olympic torch, for one. The torch was flown here from Greece, split into four flames and has been making its rounds ever since.

Eventually, one of the torches will make it to every part of Japan and thousands of people will have a hand in the business.

Most of them will hand each other calling cards while they are at it.

All Japanese carry fists full of calling cards and spend most of their time giving them to each other.

Some day these islands are going to sink under the weight of discarded film cartons. The pile is growing huge in front of the Olympic Stadium.

Ford 'Outs' Tell Story

By MIKE RATHET

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Whitey Ford was thrown out and knocked out in the opening game of the World Series.

The two moves in the St. Louis Cardinals' 9-5 victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday told the story of the Yanks' fifth straight series defeat.

The second guessers posed two questions:

Should he have been thrown out? Should he have been taken out?

Let's examine the situations:

At the first key point, Ford was on second base and Phil Linz on first with one out in the second inning. The Yankees had lashed Cardinals' starter Ray Sadecki for four hits, including Tom Tresh's two - run homer, and taken a 3-1 lead.

Bobby Richardson then singled to left, and Ford was waved home but was nailed on a perfect one-hop throw from Lou Brock to catcher Tim McCarver. Linz followed with an out Roger Maris to end the inning.

CHANCE GONE

"Ford should have come in—there's no doubt about that—but the throw got a good hop right into the catcher's mitt," said Yankee manager Yogi Berra. "The catcher might have decoyed him."

The second key point came in the sixth inning. The Yankees were leading 4-2, but Ken Boyer led off with a single and one out later, Mike Shannon hit a towering home run atop the scoreboard in deep left centre.

That tied the score, and when McCarver followed with a double, Ford came out.

With right-handed hitters up, Berra went against the percentage, bypassing righty reliever Pete Mikkelsen and bringing in left - hander Al Downing, normally a starter.

Name Morgan Int. Loop MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Third baseman Joe Morgan of Jacksonville Suns was voted the most valuable player in the International League during the 1964 season, the league disclosed today.

The 33-year-old veteran, who sparked the Suns to the regular season pennant, was named on 15 of 23 ballots cast by the league's baseball writers participating in the voting.

Boyers Will Be Boyers

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Boyer brothers pretty much battled to a standoff in the opening game of the World Series Wednesday but the older Ken leads the younger Clete 1-0 in quick quips.

Ken, 33, St. Louis Cardinals' third baseman, said he gave Clete, 27, New York Yankees' third baseman, some wage advice after he had driven a long fly to centre field in the sixth inning.

"As he passed by me," Ken said, "I told him:

"'Son, you have to learn to pull the ball in this park.'"

Clete, appearing in his fifth series while Ken was in his first, hit the ball hard in all four trips to the plate but collected only one hit, a single in the Yankees' three-run second inning.

Ken drove in the first St. Louis run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning, walked in the third and triggered the decisive four-run sixth with a single. He struck out in the seventh and popped out in the eighth.

Clete was charged with an error on a smash in the eighth that skipped off the hard ground and rocketed past him.

Ken, meanwhile, made a vital decision in the second inning after the Yankees had scored three times and taken a 3-1 lead. With one out, Yankee pitcher Whitey Ford was on second base and Phil Linz on first when Bobby Richardson singled to left field.

Ken stationed himself midway down the third base line in his usual cutoff position but decided not to cut off Lou Brock's rifle throw to the plate. It sailed by Ken on one hop to catcher Tim McCarver, who tagged Ford out.

"Ordinarily I would have cut the throw off," Ken said later. "But I figured Ford's not so fast, so I let it go."

National Hockey League

Dress Rehearsals Are All Over

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League's dress rehearsals ended Wednesday night, just three days before the annual All-Star game at Toronto.

Defending Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs meet the All-Star team at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday night, and the regular 70-game NHL schedule gets under way with New York Rangers visiting Boston Bruins Monday night.

Montreal Canadiens wound up their exhibition jaunt Wednesday night with a 5-1 victory over Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, and Detroit Red Wings shut out New York Rangers 6-0.

Boston Bruins wound up their pre-season encounters Sunday. Toronto and Chicago Black Hawks played their last exhibitions Tuesday night.

The Black Hawks announced from their training camp at St. Catharines Wednesday that All-Star right-winger Ken Wharram had returned to camp. Wharram, who scored 39 goals with the Hawks last season, suffered a slight skull fracture in an exhibition game against the Leafs Sept. 22.

"Kenny isn't in too bad condition physically," said manager Tommy Ivan. "But we are going to keep him out of scrimmages for at least a week. Coach Billy Reay said he won't make the regular lineup for two or possibly three weeks.

Alex Delvecchio, Bob Dillabough, Norm Ullman, Larry Jeffrey, Bruce MacGregor and Al Langlois scored a goal each as the Red Wings defeated the Bruins.

Jacques Laperriere, Billy Hicke, Gilles Tremblay, Yvan Cournoyer and Bobby Rousseau fired a goal each for the Canadiens. Cec Hoekstra replied for Cleveland.

Toronto had an exhibition record of nine wins, six losses and two ties in eight games with minor clubs and nine against NHL competition. Chicago won 10 and lost two in 12 games, eight against NHL clubs. Detroit had 10 wins, two losses and one tie in five games against minor clubs and eight against NHL teams.

Boston, which played four minor clubs and eight NHL clubs, won seven and lost five. New York won three and lost five in eight games, six against NHL teams. Montreal won eight and lost two, all against minor leaguers.

Maple Leafs, All-Stars Clash Saturday

TORONTO (CP)—Hockey fans across Canada will get a chance to see the defending Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs in action when they take on the cream of the National Hockey League in the annual All-Star game here Saturday night.

The game will be the first of the Saturday night NHL games televised nationally by the CBC during the 1964-65 season.

It will be Toronto coach George (Punch) Imlach's third season as coach of the champion Maple Leafs. His team defeated the All-Stars 4-1 two years ago and tied 3-3 last year. He also has a record of two wins, a loss and a tie as coach of the All-Stars.

He will be pitting his capabilities against this year's All-Star coach Sid Abel, who is undefeated in two games. Abel, Detroit Red Wing coach, piloted the All-Stars to a 3-1 win over Chicago Black Hawks in 1961 and tied the Leafs last season.

The All-Stars have the highest number of wins in the annual classic. The cup winners have won only five and tied three of the 15 games.

STANLEY SIDELINED

Toronto defenceman Allan Stanley, injured in an exhibition game at Portland, Ore., Tuesday night, is not expected to play.

Toronto will probably use rookie Ron Ellis who played with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series last season.

Dickie Moore, picked up by the Leafs from Montreal Canadiens in the annual NHL player draft last spring, is not expected to play.

Moore has been working out in Toronto while the Leafs toured Western Canada and the United States in a series of pre-season exhibition games but is not expected to get into the lineup for a week or more.

The All-Stars will be playing without Frank Mahovlich, named to the second All-Star team, and first-team defenceman Tim Horton, both of Toronto. They will play for their own team.

Kenny Wharram, Chicago All-Star, will be missing. He is recovering from a slight skull fracture suffered a few weeks ago in an exhibition game against the Leafs.

Wharram will probably be replaced by right-winger Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers, who was selected as back-up personnel by Abel earlier this week.

Also added to the All-Stars roster are centres Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio and defenceman Bill Gadsby of the Wings, John Bucyk, Leo Boivin and Murray Oliver of Boston, and Harry Howell of New York.

Henri Richard of Montreal and Camille Henry of New York were also selected but are expected to sit out the game with injuries.

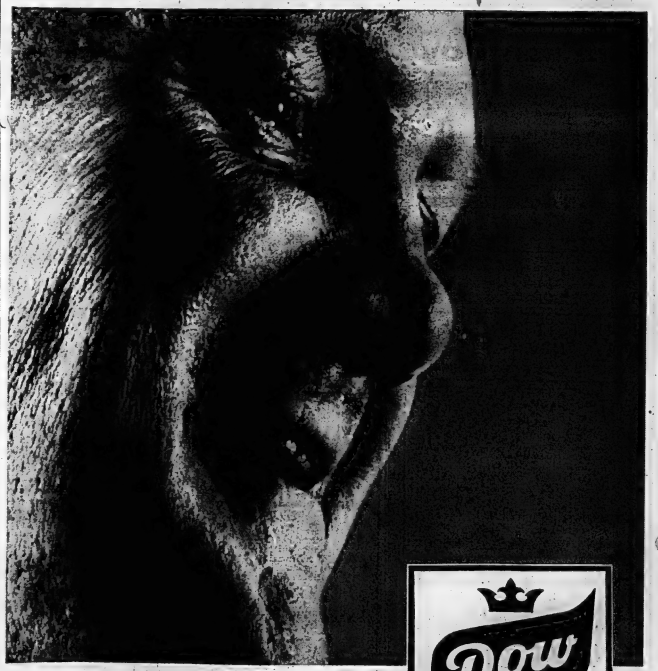
S. Africa Suspended From Soccer

TOKYO (Reuters)—South Africa was suspended today by the Congress of the International Football (Soccer) Federation at a meeting here because of its apartheid (racial segregation) policy.

The action, which was reduced from expulsion to suspension, was proposed by Egypt, supported by Ghana and Ethiopia, and passed by 48 votes to 13.

South Africa was supported by Sir Stanley Rous, British president of the federation, who called for an end to what he called the victimization of South Africa. Rous warned the congress against political bias.



Ghanaian delegate Ohne Djan said colored and white players could not meet on the same ground in South Africa. He declared the anti - discrimination rules of the federation must be upheld.

South African football president Fred Fell declared that the South African Football Association does not practise racial discrimination. he added that its suspension could have a disastrous affect on the sport in South Africa.

TORCH ARRIVES

TOKYO (AP)—The Olympic torch, ignited Aug. 21 by the rays of the sun amid the Greek ruins on Mount Olympus, reached Tokyo Wednesday for the opening ceremony of the 18th Olympiad Saturday. It was one of four torches divided from Olympic flame which arrived in Nabi, Okinawa, Sept. 9, from Athens via land, sea and air. It was divided into four before it arrived in Japan.

Television Certainly Moved Off Beaten Track Wed.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, which often seems to be in a rut, certainly moved off the beaten track Wednesday.

The viewer had on tap the opening game of the World Series, the Beatles and a true story about a pauper who changed the law.

ABC's Shindig at night had the Beatles and a curious assortment of long - haired and strangely-dressed young people. It was a fascinating, puzzling spectacle.

The show was taped in England and the squeals of British girls in the audience sounded just like the squeals from Ed Sullivan's audience under similar circumstances.

CBS Reports undertook to translate into pictures and sound a report of the fight by an ex-convict who succeeded in getting a ruling from the U.S. Supreme Court giving every accused man, including paupers, the right to legal counsel.

TELLS STORY

Material was gathered originally by Anthony Lewis for his book, Gideon's Trumpet. It told the story in the woods of the principal, Clarence Earl Gideon, and many others connected with the case.

Gideon was accused of stealing wine, beer and money from a bar. He was denied court-appointed counsel and had no funds to hire a lawyer. He attempted to defend himself, but was convicted.

In prison he made repeated appeals and one finally reached the Supreme Court which assigned a Washington lawyer to represent him. Result was reversal of his conviction and a legal precedent.

AT THE BELLE — Debbie Reynolds talks in love with romantic gambler Gregory Peck in the fabulous Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer musical production, "How The West Was Won." Campbellford News

MRS. RUTHERFORD

38 RANNEY ST. 653-3822

Mayor, PUC Member Engage In Argument

CAMPBELLFORD — At the council meeting on Monday evening a heated argument took place between A. C. Newman, one of the P.U.C. and Mayor Tanner. Previously in the meeting Mayor Tanner had received two telegrams relating to a lagoon system; one, a system costing $200,000 for six acres, the other a similar comparative price and acreage, $240,000, for eight acres.

Mr. Newman questioned the mayor and asked where these places were with these figures. The mayor refused to divulge the information, saying they were telegrams he had received that day and later in the argument he said he had received the information by telephone.

Mayor Tanner accused A. C. Newman of making a statement that a lagoon system could be put in for $50,000, which Mr. Newman flatly denied saying he said a lagoon could be put in for 50 percent of estimated cost now presented for a sludge plant, or approximately $200,000. The mayor also accused Mr. Newman of criticizing the British Consultant Engineers, which Mr. Newman also refuted saying he had no quarrel with this firm of consulting engineers, when the P.U.C. had had dealings with them previously, but that their report of estimated cost was too expensive for the P.U.C. Another engineer had been engaged to build the filtration plant which was entirely satisfactory without the addition of expensive decorative details and the town had been saved about $300,000.

Will Extend Sewer Distance Of 296 Feet

CAMPBELLFORD — At the council meeting Monday evening Mr. Everett Steele addressed council relative to 296' extension of sewer on Market St. beyond Cromwell. On this new area Mr. Steele stated the possibility of four new houses on the lots next spring. A survey must be made to establish the boundary of the township. Permission was granted according to established regulations.

NOT ALLOWED

Municipal assistance loan placement was the subject of some discussion. It was asked at a former meeting that the loan be applied against sewage disposal cost but this was not allowed because of the financial association with Central Mortgage and Housing. Grants can only come from one source of government. The opportunity of getting the loan will be retained until November 30th until a decision is reached where it will be applied.

REMOVE RESTRICTIONS

A letter was read from Central Mortgage and Mortgage, asking about lifting of restrictions.

Restrictions have now been removed and it was decided to ask a representative of Department of Economic and Development to address council in regard to building of low rental houses in Campbellford

Heard on the street later, one ratepayer remarked: "For whom, we can't rent what we now have."

Industrial Day Huge Success Say Letters

CAMPBELLFORD — Letters of appreciation were read at the council from the head offices of the Royal Bank of Canada, also Bank of Montreal for having been invited to Campbellford's first Industrial Day last Wednesday. Cooke's Chocolate, Canada, also expressed appreciation as did Reeve Free.

The day was considered by council as a successful venture, Campbellford P.U.C. underwrote the luncheon, British American Oil the reception, the town council absorbed the dinner and other expenses to the amount of $150. It was suggested Chamber of Commerce members and council members buy their own tickets at $5.00 each.

With this type of entertainment and appreciation expressed to existing industries for their contribution to the town economy it is expected new industries will show a rapid interest to locate in the area.

LODA Requests Support to Keep Train

CAMPBELLFORD — A letter was received from L.O.D.A. in Peterborough asking for whatever support might be given by the town to keep the Dayliner train in operation as C.P.R. officials have stated it will be taken off the line in October. The Dayliner runs daily except Sunday from Havelock to Toronto and return.

Discussion in council raised opposite opinions. Some said having travelled on the train only three people were left on from Peterborough to Havelock. Mayor Tanner stated he heard there was not standing room and when questioned whether to the full distance, he said go Havelock.

At the present time it is the nearest train service to Campbellford and there are considerable number of citizens who use the service.

BAIL CANCELLED

MONTREAL (CP)—Bail for Jacques Lupien, 25, an Air Canada steward charged with possession of explosives, was cancelled Wednesday when Judge Emile Trudeau heard evidence that Lupien told police he was keeping boxes which contained dynamite detonators "for a friend."

Greying Beatle Foliage Covers J. Barrymore Jr.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Young John Barrymore is back in town and working after an absence of five years.

At least I think it's young John. He says that's who he is, and the Barrymore voice sounds familiar. But it is hard to recognize him under all that foliage.

He looks like a greying Beatle. His wild thatch and luxuriant beard make recognition difficult.

He started acting at 17 as John Barrymore, Jr., the sole name-bearing heir to the great theatrical dynasty. He has undergone a number of metamorphoses since, including two marriages, to Cara Williams and Italian Actress Gabriella Palazollo.

John, now 37, is back in his home town, perhaps to stay. What has he been doing in Italy?

"Sixteen or seventeen pictures," he reported.

Any of them good?

He shook his head sorrowfully.

CRITICISES DIRECTORS

"They started out that way," he said. "But unfortunately the Italian directors don't know how to cut. Well, Fellini knows what he is doing; he envisions the film while he is shooting it. Perhaps one other. But the rest don't know how to put a picture together."

Now he is anxious to show Hollywood producers what he can do. He's starting by playing a heavy in Rawhide

Does he really expect to get jobs with the beard and Beatle cut?

"We'll see how it goes," he remarked. "With some producers it may be a drawback. But when I went in to see about the part in Rawhide, they told me: 'Don't go near a barber; we want you just like that.'"

Young John reported that his mother, former actress Dolores Costello, is well and happy, as is his sister, Dede, who chose not to enter the family trade. John Barrymore III, his son by Cara, is 10 and a tiger, his father said. And the Barrymore profile?

"Yes, it's there," said John, "although you may have to look below several layers of freckles to find it."

OPENS SCHOOL

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen officially opened the $4,150,000 Eastern District Institute of Technology Wednesday. He said the school now ranks with the best of the 37 similar institutes across Canada offering courses at the post - high school level.

TWO OF MARTIN & LEWIS' BEST TOP SPECIAL COMEDY DOUBLE-BILL

You'll laugh as you've never laughed before when you see "The Caddy" and "You're Never Too Young," two of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis' funniest comedy hits which have a special double-bill engagement at the Park Theatre opening tonight for 3 days.

"The Caddy," starring Dean and Jerry and co-starring Donna Reed, Barbara Bates and Joseph Calleia, is a rollicking tale about two fellows, Joe Anthony (Dean Martin) and Harvey Miller (Jerry Lewis), who would rather play golf than work. Of the two, Harvey is the better golfer, but whenever he plays in front of large crowds, he becomes nervous and ineffective. This odd dilemma causes him to become a golf instructor and his top pupil is his friend Joe, who wants more than anything else to become a professional golfer. With this tutorial undertaking, Harvey gets the twosome into some of the most hilarious situations ever seen.

"You're Never Too Young," also starring Dean and Jerry, with co-stars Diana Lynn, Nina Foch, Raymond Burr and Mitzi McCall, has Dean portraying a teacher at a school for girls and has Jerry romping madly around the school grounds masquerading as an eleven year old boy — with 300 gorgeous coeds in hot pursuit. As is obvious, the fun is fast and furious.

"The Caddy" and "You're Never Too Young" were produced by Paul Jones and directed by Norman Taurog.

Complete shows tonight and Friday evening 7:00 and 8:45 p.m. Saturday continuous show from 1:00 p.m.

HOPE-FUL BEGINNING

Bob Hope began his entertainment career when he took up tap dancing while a high school student at Cleveland; he later became an instructor.

Magistrate to Decide Today Whether Judge to Stand Trial on NONG Dealings

SUDBURY (CP) — Magistrate A. G. Marck of Hamilton will announce today whether he will commit Mr. Justice Leo Landreville to stand trial on municipal corruption and conspiracy charges or discharge him.

A preliminary hearing into the charges against Mr. Justice Landreville, mayor of Sudbury from January, 1955, to September, 1956, before he was appointed to the Ontario Supreme Court, was adjourned Wednesday until today after 4½ days of testimony.

The magistrate said outside the court he deferred his decision because he needs time to assess the evidence.

Mr. Justice Landreville is charged with municipal corruption in the acquisition of 7,500 shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company for securing the company's distribution franchise here in July, 1956, for signing the contract; and for conspiring with NONG President Ralph H. Farris on PENALTY.

Two witnesses were called Wednesday by special Crown Prosecutor Harvey McCulloch of Hamilton.

William John Powell, town clerk of nearby Copper Cliff, testified that Copper Cliff entered into an agreement with NONG for natural gas distribution in June, 1956.

Dr. George H. Harcourt, assistant general manager of the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited at Copper Cliff said the company reached an agreement with NONG in May, 1953.

At the conclusion of Crown evidence, John Robinette, defence counsel for Mr. Justice Landreville, moved for the dismissal of the charges against the judge on the grounds there was no evidence to prove "any properly instructed jury could convict Mr. (Justice) Landreville."

"The first count charges Landreville did offer or agree to accept a person, a benefit, being stock, as a consideration to aid in procuring the adoption of a measure, motion or resolution of the City of Sudbury, providing for a franchise agreement," Mr. Robinette said.

The Crown alleges the benefit was in the form of stock, not an option. The Crown must show also that a benefit in the form of stock was given in consideration to aid in procuring the adoption of a measure, motion or resolution."

The fact that Mr. Justice Landreville made money on the deal does not make the offence and is irrelevent, Mr. Robinette said.

He said the Crown must show that while being a municipal official Mr. Justice Landreville agreed to accept the benefit of NONG stock.

"There is no evidence that he offered or agreed to accept a benefit in the form of shares while he was a municipal official," he said.

"If Mr. Landreville were tried in October, 1956, there would be no evidence of benefit . . . no evidence of stock worth more than $2.50 a share . . . that the jury ought not on the evidence, be put on trial. It would be a gross misdirection to tell it he were forced to stand trial."

Mr. McCulloch submitted that the crux of the issue was that the accused was jockeying to become a NONG shareholder early in July, while the franchise issue was being debated in council.

The timing of the stock option and transfer of shares were nothing more than plague," he said.

Assistant To Goldwater Resigns Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — William R. Seward, legislative assistant to Senator Barry Goldwater since 1957, resigned, saying he was "disappointed and concerned" with some recent positions of the senator, the Washington Post reports.

The Post quotes Seward, who is one of the three ranking members of Goldwater's 15-member Senate staff, as saying he felt the Republican presidential nominee has in effect been captured by a "small, but vocal, knit group of new activists" who are putting words into his mouth and "are pushing him further to the right."

One Killed In Mishap

OSHAWA (CP)—A man was killed and a girl seriously injured Wednesday in a two-car collision between Oshawa and Whitby.

Dead is William Goodwin, 63, of Brooklin.

Miss Carley Seymour, 18, also of Brooklin, was a passenger in the other car and is in Oshawa General Hospital with a concussion, multiple lacerations and fractures.

Answer Critic Of Services Provided Deaf

TORONTO (CP) — Extensive services in education and job placement are provided for Ontario's deaf population—an estimated 5,000 — provincial and Canadian Hearing Society officials said Wednesday.

The officials were replying to Rev. Robert L. Rumball, pastor of Toronto's Church of the Deaf, who said Thursday deaf persons are being kept in mental hospitals in some cases because there are no other facilities available for them.

The officials said there was some truth in Mr. Rumball's claims that more money, staff and specialized services are needed to help the deaf, but added that he unfairly ignored all that is being done.

Pope Receives Sixty Anglicans

VATICAN CITY (CP AP) — Pope Paul received 60 Anglicans from Britain and Canada in a special audience Wednesday and said he was grateful their church had sent observers to the ecumenical council now in session.

The group, led by St. Rev. George Luxton of London, Ont., bishop of the diocese of Huron, was welcomed by the Pope in English.

"We express once again our gratitude and appreciation for the fact that the great Christian church to which you belong sends its representatives to the ecumenical council now meeting in St. Peter's Basilica," Pope Paul said.

Report Proposes Commons Committees Be Set up for Lifetime of a Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—Speaker Alan Macnaughton's committee on parliamentary reform proposed Wednesday that Commons committees be set up for the lifetime of a Parliament and be permitted to conduct inquiries when Parliament is not in session.

The proposal was contained in reports of the reform committee presented to the Commons. It would alter the present practice whereby committees are appointed for one session and cease to exist whether they have completed their investigation by the time Parliament adjourns.

The all - party committee made a number of other recommendations including:

1. Establishment of a research service for MPs, aiming at a staff of one research assistant per 10 MPs.

2. Free mail privileges for MPs year round, rather than only for the period Parliament is in session.

3. Private offices for each MP with an adjoining office which his secretary could share with the secretary of another MP. Most MPs now share an office with a secretary.

4. Training courses for new MPs to teach them the rules, the services available and the administration of various government departments.

5. Rule changes to impose a one-day limit on debates in the preliminary stage before introducing bills to spend public funds.

6. Abolition of appeals from rulings by the Speaker against attempts to set aside daily business for special emergency debates on questions of urgent public importance.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 9

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Recent emotional-financial pressure lifts. You are in better position for change, travel, variety. Tonight favors social affair. Bring sense of humor to forefront. Relax.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Look behind the scenes. What you seek is within range. But object of your search may be covered or obscured. Day to be analytical. Take nothing for granted. Ask questions. Obtain answers.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Much optimism surrounds you. Key is to share joys, problems with family members. Business or marital partner needs reassuring. Strive for greater harmony. Be realistic.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Key is moderation. Finish basic tasks. Relax tonight. But remember past resolutions concerning proper diet, rest. Avoid individual who constantly "sings the blues."

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Remember basic practicalities. Keep tighter hold on purse strings. Your desire to entertain and be entertained could prove costly. Day for face facts, issues. Be responsible.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Spotlight is on security, plans for future. Important- to complete major task. Avoid needless delay. Feeling of restriction vanishes if you are active. Seek entertainment tonight.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid trying to do too much at one time. Best to concentrate your forces. Catch up on reading, correspondence today. Don't be caught off guard by "surprise visitors."

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your instinct concerning money matters is accurate. Heed inner voice. Do some thinking concerning a change. Don't continue to spend on project which returns little. Revise methods. Enlarge your horizons.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Cycle high. Stress independence, personal appearance. Be confident. Say what you think — mean what you say. Others are attracted to you, your ideas. Circumstances due to work out in your favor.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Seek companionship if one who is "quiet." Avoid individuals who are overly aggressive. Kind of day which less you in reflective mood. For once, let others bear your troubles.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Social contacts made tonight can prove valuable. Be charming, aware, alert. Personal magnetism rating high. Cycle on upgrade. Overcome tendency to be obstinate. Give a little. You'll gain much.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Attend to duty before seeking pleasure....this is key to happy day. Some duties affect security, family welfare, financial. Do more listening than talking. Fine evening for gathering with friends.

If today is your birthday you have excellent sense of humor....and awareness of needs of others. You are attracted to medicine, social work and the theatre.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Leo: Romantic interests highlighted....but remember health and budget requirements.

Teenage Canada Beatles and 'Tom Jones' Affect Our Clothing Styles

By JACK HUTTON

It seems strange that a novel poking fun at 18th Century English society and a quartet of 20th Century shaggy-haired singers are influencing what's worn into the 1964 Canadian classroom.

But it's true.

Our cross-Canada correspondents report that our friends, the Beatles, and Tom Jones, the award-winning film based on Henry Fielding's 18th Century novel, are having a big impact on clothing styles.

"And the strange thing is," wrote one correspondent, "that I haven't been able to find one salesman or salesLady who's cheering. They'd rather see students buying a traditional, solid wardrobe."

SENSIBLE

The majority of students are sticking to sensible styles, our survey found. But you'll see more jackets minus lapels trousers minus cuffs, narrow trousers cuffs, Tom Jones blouses and other style changes around you this fall.

The brave souls in the front line of style trends know, of course, that what they buy this fall may be outdated by next spring. They've got more courage — and apparently more money — than I ever had.

You may be interested in the other conclusions of our correspondents, based upon their conversations with clothing store owners and sales staff:

CLOTHING TIPS

1. How much should you budget for clothing? The experts say you should budget at least $5 a month to make sure you aren't suddenly faced with replacing everything in your closet at once.

2. What advice would you offer if you only had one sentence to do it? Avoid being carried away by extreme styles of the moment. Aim for a basic wardrobe that will be just as useful next spring.

3. What is a basic wardrobe for a Canadian high school or college student, breaking it into male and female categories?

Girls: You should have several skirts with which you may wear sweaters, blouses and a variety of combinations. (Your salesLady can suggest one or two basic colors that will be right for you: use them as a foundation); a blazer to match one of the skirts or a suit; one or two party dresses, a dress-up suit.

Boys: Sweater and slacks are still the most sensible outfit for school wear, although some schools insist on shirt and tie. A blazer is a perfect combination with the slacks for dress-up time, or one suit. (Our correspondents found dungarees are on their way out, but many found corduroy or other hard-to-wear-out slacks popular.)

SHOES

Styles are changing slightly in shoes, but you can't go wrong with the traditional models. Desert boots, the rage in some parts of Canada last winter, are giving way in male wear to loafers or moccasins.

Concentrate on building up this basic foundation in your closet before even thinking about the frills and extras that look so inviting on the store window model.

4. What's the biggest mistake young people make in buying clothes? The answer: the same mistake their parents do — buying clothing on impulse and often regretting it later.

A Vancouver salesman summed it up this way: "This may sound strange coming from me, but I don't believe you should buy clothing immediately. Go home and think about it, a week if necessary. Three times out of five you'll change your mind.

If you go back to buy your original choice, you'll know it was right for you. And that's the way it should be.

The most intriguing but confusing youth poll I've seen in years was carried out last week in Montreal where a radio and newspaper asked listeners whether they were satisfied with the Warren report on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Eighty-three percent of the boys said no and 78 percent of the girls said they were dissatisfied. The radio station and newspaper reported the results, but said nothing more.

Why were they dissatisfied? We'll never know.

STAR AT HOME

Want to be a family hero? Chuck Marshall, 15, of Halifax, N.S., has an idea for you. "I've had such an inspired idea for Christmas gifts that I thought I'd pass it on to you," he writes.

"After reading a gardening column, I decided to try forcing some spring bulbs in small pots. Then I got the idea: give them away as surprise packages at Christmas. All you do is stick the bulb into a pot, water it, then shut it away for 12 weeks in a cold, dark place.

"At Christmas, the receiver keeps the pot in a dark, cold spot for one or two weeks gradually shifts it into a sunlight window, and, presto — a midwinter spring flower. You're a hero at little cost."

Car Production Drops Sharply Due to Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Lay-offs at the giant General Motors plant in Oshawa, caused by the strike of 200,000 GM workers in the United States, is causing a sharp reduction in total Canadian car and truck production, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association said Wednesday.

The association's weekly report shows 6,828 cars and trucks scheduled for production this week, compared with 11,691 actually turned out last week.

The drop is caused by GM cutting operations back to 370 vehicles compared with 6,109 last week.

Total vehicle production to the end of last week, however, continued to be well ahead of last year's record-setting pace for the comparable period of time — 524,289 against 442,947.

SEES SOLUTION

ANKARA (AP)—UN Mediator Galo Plaza said Wednesday the Cyprus problem may be on the way to a negotiated solution and has somewhat lost its earlier "hard frozen aspect." But he warned at a press conference that the dispute must be promptly settled to eliminate the lurking danger to peace.

19 KILLED IN CRASH

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—Ten persons were killed and 45 injured Wednesday when a bus carrying pilgrims overturned near the town of Leon, 200 miles northwest of here.

Justice Cleared Of Charges In Sudbury Court

Freed of Municipal Corruption, Conspiracy

SUDBURY (CP)—Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court had charges of municipal corruption and conspiracy against him dismissed at a preliminary hearing in magistrate's court Thursday.

The charges arose from dealings for a Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company franchise for Sudbury during the period Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of the Northern Ontario city.

Magistrate R. J. Marck of Hamilton said in his judgment Thursday: "A properly charged jury could not find the accused guilty and I cannot find sufficient evidence to place him on trial."

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of Sudbury from January, 1955, to September 1956 when he was appointed to the bench.

He and three other former Ontario mayors were charged last Aug. 4 with accepting NONG shares as a consideration for getting the company's franchises through their councils and with agreeing to accept NONG shares for signing the agreement. They were also accused of conspiring with NONG president Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver to further the company's cause at that time.

MUM ON VERDICT

Mr. Justice Landreville had been granted leave of absence from his judicial duties pending the outcome of the preliminary hearing. He declined to comment on whether he would return to the bench.

Two weeks ago Magistrate Marck ruled that a former mayor Wilbur Cramp of Orillia to stand trial on the three charges. Cramp's hearing started out as a magistrate's court trial, but Magistrate Marck turned it into a preliminary hearing under a seldom used section of the Criminal Code at the request of Cramp's lawyer.

Former Bracebridge mayor Glen S. Coates appears before Magistrate Marck in Bracebridge Oct. 14, and will be followed by former Gravenhurst mayor Wanda Miller. Both face similar counts of municipal corruption and conspiracy charges involving NONG stock.

Britannia Now Into The River

By JACK BRAYLEY

ON BOARD HMCS NIPIGON (CP) — The royal yacht Britannia steamed into the St. Lawrence River early today carrying Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Quebec City, the second stop on their Canadian visit.

The Britannia sailed into a beautiful sunset Thursday night as she steamed between the Gaspe coast and Anticosti Island, ending a peaceful day's journey from Charlottetown.

The day's events included a fast shift in course by the Britannia and her destroyer escorts to give a tiny fishing vessel the right-of-way, and an official statement from the yacht on the "gangplank incident" in Charlottetown Wednesday night when the Queen ended her three-day visit to Prince Edward Island.

As she prepared to board the Britannia in Charlottetown for the cruise up the St. Lawrence to Quebec, a gangplank slipped.

The incident was greeted by the Queen and Prince Philip with good humor, but royal party officials shuddered at the thought of what could have happened a few minutes later while Her Majesty was embarking.

ISSUES STATEMENT

A statement from the Britannia said:

"When normal preparations were being made for departure just prior to Her Majesty's return on board, a slight movement of the ship, due to the stretch of a nylon rope, brought the end of the brow gangplank to the edge of the platform on which it rested.

"Normal traffic on the brow was stopped until the ship was breasted in again, but not before the brow slipped off the platform. The brow was immediately replaced by men on board assisted by those ashore and Her Majesty's embarkation was delayed about two minutes. The royal yacht sailed as planned."

Higher Prices Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid a quiet Commons airing of Canada's trade practices and problems, a former Conservative cabinet minister Thursday called for an entirely new Canadian approach to international business—placing the interests of developing countries above Canada's.

Alvin Hamilton, former agriculture minister, said Canadians should pay higher prices for products from developing countries that depend on one or two basic exports.

"We could double their income and it would not mean that much to us at the retail level," said Mr. Hamilton. "In that way we would give them a chance to buy the things they need from us."

This new attitude would mean "we will have a better feeling and can look ourselves better in the face than we can with this present attitude."

Mr. Hamilton's suggestion was one of several tossed out to the government as the Commons devoted the day, with little controversy, to the appropriations of the trade department. Trade Minister Sharp had to absorb little criticism through the mellow, businesslike debates.

One suggestion, from Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow, River) was that Canada get on with the business of recognizing Red China as a country regardless of what the attitude of the United States might be.

"Remember, there are 600,000,000 or 700,000,000 human beings there and they cannot be ignored."

Gilbert Rondeau (Creditiste—Shefford) asked for government promotion of heavy industries as imports of such items as steel and aluminum could be reduced.

Theogene Ricard (PC — St. Hyacinthe - Bagot) suggested more attention on the textile industry. The Liberals had decided it was hopeless to try to save the industry in the face of outside competition, and this was wrong.

Mr. Hamilton's suggestions were the most far-reaching, though. Canada should come out and say "we are prepared to pay a higher price" and developing countries would know that this country is out to help them get richer instead of grinding them down to the lowest prices.

Earlier, Hamilton suggested the Canadian consumer would not object to paying higher and conspiracy charges involving NONG stock.

Dangerous Coexistence Game Played by LBJ Says Goldwater

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senator Barry Goldwater returned to California today, and charged President Johnson with being afraid to stand up to communism and with playing a "dangerous game" of coexistence with Russia.

Goldwater, in the state where his primary victory last June nailed down the Republican nomination for president, lashed out at the president in a speech prepared for the World Affairs Council in Los Angeles. He said.

"In defence of freedom—and if ever the boundaries of the free world are to be enlarged —there will always be risk.

"But I submit that the greater risk, in the face of communist aggression, is to do nothing—still worse, to submit —and worst of all, to seek new and illusory accommodations with an antagonist that has never retreated an inch from a resolute purpose that contemplates the destruction of the world.

"All three scores," Goldwater said, "the present administration is playing a dangerous game — filled with risks for American security, and for the hopes of free men everywhere for a just peace."

Johnson was in the third day of a six - day campaign trip through 11 states.

Goldwater, several weeks ago in Knoxville, Tenn., said he still believed it would be desirable to sell portions of the TVA, not directly connected with flood control or hydro-electric power.

"I am not going to sell TVA," said Johnson.

"In the first place, it doesn't belong to me, it belongs to the people of the upper south," Johnson said. "It belongs to the people of America."

Tshombe On Way Home

By WEBB McKINLEY

CAIRO (AP) — Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe left for home today after stealing the show from the conference of non-aligned nations he was not allowed to attend.

The Congo's 44-year-old premier took a commercial airliner to Athens and then Paris. In Paris he was to take a chartered plane back to Leopoldville.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser, who had held Tshombe under house arrest since his arrival Tuesday, freed him after the premier ordered his government to lift the retaliatory blockade it had put on the embassies of the United Arab Republic and Algeria in Leopoldville.

In Leopoldville, 24 Egyptians and four Algerians from the two embassies left the Congolese capital Thursday night and crossed the Congo River to Brazzaville, capital of the neighboring Congo republic.

U.A.R. Ambassador Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel said the hasty departure did not mean a break in diplomatic relations with The Congo but he had been instructed to close the embassy temporarily.

HELD IN CUSTODY

Tshombe had come to Cairo for the non-aligned conference despite a telegram that he would not be welcome. Nasser clapped him into Aruba Palace on the outskirts of Cairo and the conference voted not to admit him.

Olympic Torches Are Reunited After Journeys of 12,000 Miles

TOKYO (AP)—Aleka Katselis, classic Greek actress, who lit the Olympic torch from the rays of the sun in Olympia Aug. 21, participated today in a ceremony reuniting the torch that was split into four flames for its journey through the Japanese islands.

"I have been awaiting this occasion for almost two months," Mrs. Katselis said today. She is visiting Japan as guest of Setsutaro Kobayashi, president of Fuji Film Company.

The Creditiste and NDP blockade against a routine private bill sought by the Bell Telephone Company continued as the measure to add directors to the company's board was talked out for another week.

Extra Measures Being Taken To Protect Queen

Cars Entering the City Thoroughly Searched

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—Old Quebec finds itself practically sealed off today as security measures for the royal visit this weekend begin to make themselves felt.

The feeling isn't pleasant for this city, which is known for its hospitality. The cloak of security is not tight, but itchy.

Traffic became clogged Thursday at entrances to the city as police stopped incoming cars, searching some. This measure, which stirred a good deal of grumbling, will continue until midnight Sunday, after Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have left for Ottawa.

Some rifles have been seized from persons not having hunting licences or lacking "a good reason" for carrying the weapons.

Yellow wooden barricades already are in evidence on routes the royal party will follow—mostly across the Plain of Abraham—and strollers on the plains find themselves giving a wide berth to police dogs on short leashes.

During the weekend, more than 1,000 police, backed up by soldiers and fire brigades on standby, will be on duty.

TO SEARCH SEVERANTS

Civil servants have been told to leave the legislature buildings by noon today. They will be thoroughly searched, and 300 police and soldiers will ring the legislature when the Queen goes there Saturday morning.

Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois' official residence at Bois de Coulonge, on the Plains, was searched because of a bomb threat last Sunday. It has been under close guard since. The Queen will lunch there Saturday.

The Chateau Frontenac, where Quebec will give the Queen a state dinner Saturday night, is crowded with police and journalists.

Claude Wagner, the tough Montreal judge turned politician, is also acting attorney-general. He met with Premier Jean Lesage Thursday and later with the police security committee.

"I'm completely satisfied we are ready for any eventuality," he said in an interview.

Police have indicated they will keep a close eye on parents of such as tonight's downtown rally of le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, a separatist group which plans a "passive demonstration" Saturday.

Students of Laval University's suburban campus have threatened to stage a demonstration and instead will mock the visit, choosing a "queen" in their own election. Candidates by students dressed up as the Fathers of Confederation.

Mr. Wagner said there will be

Collectors Snap up Old Coins Recovered From Treasure Ship

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — A small portion of a 250-year-old sunken treasure find was snapped up Thursday by collectors from as far away as Spain.

Spanish gold coins from what is considered one of the biggest treasure hauls in the western hemisphere in 400 years, were sold at auction. The 119 coins brought $51,166.

The coins, minted in the 17th and 18th centuries were scooped from the ocean bottom of Fort Pierce, Fla., where they had been scattered since a Spanish treasure fleet of 11 ships sank in 1715 during a hurricane.

Most of the buyers were from the International Association of Professional Numismatists, but buyers from Barcelona, Spain, to pay $17,000 for a handful of pieces, including $3,600 for a 1711 four-escudo piece.

The $2,000,000 find was made last May by a band of treasure hunters after almost a year of dredging foot by foot through nine acres of ocean bottom.

William Phipps, a British adventurer, recovered $4,000,000 worth of gold from the wreckage of one ship in 1687.

Since May, two groups of searchers have extracted more than 4,000 gold pieces, thousands of silver coins, silverware, pewter, muskets, swords, cannon balls, anchors, ballast stones, iron fittings, silver and gold buckles and rusty but rare navigational instruments.

Most people don't care how much they pay for something as long as it's not all at once.

TEMPERATURES

Synopsis:—A slow moving disturbance centred over northern Lake Huron is causing an extremely variable weather pattern over Ontario. Communities north and east of Lake Superior are experiencing an early taste of winter with cold northerly winds, temperatures around the 20-degree mark and several inches of snow on the ground. In southern regions mild 50-degree overnight temperatures, rain and a few thundershowers complete the weather picture.

Janitor Gets $5,000 Pay Cheque, That's All for This Computer

LOS ANGELES (AP. — So many companies were turning to automation that people began to wonder where it would all end.

Well, it already has ended at the clothing firm of Phelps-Terkel, which operates six stores in the Los Angeles area and decided its punch-card accounting system had too many hoses in it and that automation should end.

With their latest monthly statements, Phelps - Terkel customers received a machine card with this message:

"You are holding the last punched card you'll ever receive from Phelps - Terkel. We've tried to make our peace with automation But it hasn't worked. Ours is just not a machine business.

"Consequently, we are reverting to our slightly archaic yet highly personalized accounting methods. We think you'll like our new-old billing method better. We know we will. . . ."

President Dave Phelps said this bold step backward was applauded by customers

And Phelps said, there were technical problems.

"One time," he said, "a janitor got a cheque for $5,000 for two weeks' work But . . . once the wires are set up right it works fine.

Counsel Claims Teen-Agers In Clique Against Minister

CHATHAM (CP) — Defence counsel Cyril Perkins Thursday blamed teen - aged 'sneaks' and a police "failure" for the arrest and trial of Rev Russell D. Horsburgh, who has pleaded not guilty to eight charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The teen-agers who testified for the Crown were "unreliable, devious, prevaricating, incorrigible sneaks" who had formed a clique because they were angry at the 45 - year - old United Church clergyman over something that hadn't been disclosed in evidence, Mr. Perkins said.

He said it might have been because a girl who was the leader of their clique was angry at Mr. Horsburgh because she had been followed by the persons whenever she tried to slip away from Friday night dances at Park Street United Church, or because she believed Mr. Horsburgh was trying to break up a relationship between her and a boy.

He added that Chatham police failed to question either Mr. Horsburgh or the chaperons who worked at the dances before they arrested the pastor June 29. This "may have had a great bearing on the degree of anger or what have you that started the matter."

STORY COULD EXPAND

"If these teen-agers made up this story and nothing came up to counteract it, then this story could start to roll and expand."

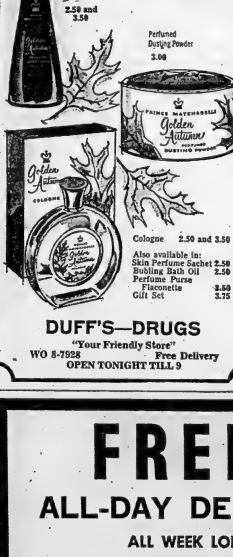
Mr. Perkins, whose sentence summation Thursday lasted four hours, continued:

"The Crown has proven only one thing — that the accused does not have a suspicious, evil, filthy mind, and that he expects young people to be decent. We saw a goodly number of decent ones in this court, and we saw a goodly number of the other kind, too.

Mr. Perkins commented on the evidence of only one of the adult Crown witnesses — a mother who said she had seen teen-agers "looking like little wilted flowers" from drinking at a New Year's Eve church dance. This woman "has a malice toward the accused" and she "exaggerated" what she saw, he said.

He said all other witnesses questioned about the dance told of seeing one boy under the influence of alcohol. He was immediately refused admission.

MOSTLY DECENT



Mr. Perkins told Judge W H. Fox of London, Ont.:

"When the whole picture is laid out and the conduct of most of the young people around the church and in the rooms available to them is known, we have a situation which is consistent only with the attitude of a high minded Christian cleric who has in his mind that the majority of teen-agers of today are decent people. He does not anticipate that a small group will use their devious ways to lead others.

"Yesterday the Crown attorney asked how it could be that they would all come in here and say these things. I think with some understanding of teen-age behavior we might know but I don't think teen-agers are entirely logical, or that many adults can understand this kind of thing."

Students See Operation Of UNIVAC

Senior students from Ontario Business College were taken to Toronto last week to attend the Canadian National Business Machines Show, which was held in the Automotive Building on the CNE grounds. They were accompanied by three members of the staff and spent the entire day, visiting the various booths of office machines on display. The first booth visited, an exciting one, was UNIVAC, where the guest gave a request and information to the operator, the request was on its way to New York World's Fair in 6 seconds and a computer operating from New York, relayed back within 20 seconds an essay prepared from the Encyclopaedia Britannica. This was just the first of many machines which further demonstrated to the students the world of tomorrow which has arrived today in the world of business.

Group Directors Hold Meeting In This City

Directors of the ceramic and stone section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations met at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club in Belleville yesterday, for the first time in the group's history. The 11 directors of the section meet three times a year, yearly in Toronto. About 75 plants are represented in the section, including Canada Cement Company's plant number five, at Point Anne. General manager John Lees and Fred Clarke represented the Point Anne plant, and two other Belleville firms, International Hardware and Stirling-Warner, sent observers to the meeting. Total attendance at the meeting was about 14 people.

Business included discussions and analyses of accidents in any of the section's plants since the last meeting, and suggestions for avoiding each type of accident. Preliminary plans were made for the section's participation in the Association's annual general meeting to be held in Toronto during April of next year.

Attendance Certificates Awarded

Over one hundred and fifty students of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School received awards at Assembly this past week when they were presented with perfect attendance certificates.

These certificates are awarded to students who have been present every school day and every afternoon of school for the entire year and in addition, have never been late. Eighty - five students were presented one - year certificates, thirty - six obtained two - year certificates, and sixteen received three-year certificates. The seven students awarded four - year certificates were Garry Coe, Beverly Davies, Roger Flower, Shirley Hudgins, Edna Keith, Linda Marmer and Larry Scott. Of these seven, three are at school this year and there is a possibility that the highest award of all — the five-year certificates — may be presented to them next year.

Presentation of these awards was made by Principal D. C. Stirling at Mr. W. F. Buckley, head of the English department, read the names of those honored.

District Man Convicted for Impairment

A district man was convicted on impaired driving in magistrate's court today, on the basis of the first urinalysis test taken in Belleville — about three hours after the accident. Alexander Toms was sentenced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to pay a $50 fine and to have his driving licence suspended for three months. The sentence was the minimum prescribed by law for the charge.

Const. Barry Titterson told the court he stopped Toms, about 2.55 p.m. August 23, at the corner of Church Street and Front Street. He said Toms appeared to be under the influence of alcohol, when he was questioned on the street, and later, at the police station. Const. Titterson said Toms agreed to the urinalysis test, in which a urine sample is sent for analysis to the Attorney General's office in Toronto. Toms was found guilty on police testimony and on the basis of the test.

Alternate testing procedures are blood tests, for which a suspect must pay a doctor, and breathalizer tests which can be administered by the Provincial police. Samples for the urine test can be taken in the city police station, and there is no charge for the service.

Will Conduct Crusade in Kingston Centre

The Rev. Leighton Ford commences the Kingston Crusade this Sunday in the Kingston Memorial Community Centre. Mr. Ford is a Canadian born and a brother-in-law of the Rev. Billy Graham. As an associate, Mr. Ford was with the Billy Graham Association he has just completed a series of crusades in the Maritimes where crowds as large as 27,000 gathered.

Services begin each evening at 8 p.m. The Belleville Ministerial Association has set up a committee to arrange a bus service each evening. Tickets are available at the Quinte Book Shop or through the churches.

Christmas Mail Dates Are Given

With the Christmas season rapidly approaching, the Post Office urges the public not to delay in posting parcels to friends and relatives living overseas.

The Post Office states that parcels should be mailed as early as possible, as last minute postings, if widespread, might render it impossible for the department to find sufficient accommodation on the last steamers.

Deadline dates for air mail going to the British Isles, and CAPO'S Overseas will be December 10th for letter and other parcels December 13th and for surface mail (letters) November 25th and (parcels) December 28th.

Deadline dates for letters, and parcels going to Australia and New Zealand will be: air mail to Australia (letters) December 11th and (parcels) December 8th and for surface mail (letters) October 22rd; air mail (parcels) October 22rd; air mail deadlines to New Zealand will be (letters) December 12th and (parcels) December 10th and for surface mail (letters) October 28th and (parcels) October 23rd.

Three Hunters Bag 12 Geese

Three Belleville families will probably be having Canadian Goose Thanksgiving dinner next Monday, after a successful hunting trip north at Shannonville on Wednesday.

The three men had entered a swampy area north of Shannonville. Bruce Bishop says they heard the geese entering the area on Tuesday night and when they moved into the area early Wednesday morning, the geese were still there.

Twelve Canadian Geese were sacked by the hunters, each goose weighing from seven to 10 pounds.

EXPECT BIG MEET

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative Association expects 1,000 delegates at its annual meeting to be held here Nov. 2 and 3.

Funeral on Saturday afternoon from his late residence to Salem United Church, Harold. Arrangements under the direction of the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, Ont.

JOSEPH D. CLAIRMONT

MARMORA — The death occurred of Joseph Dubord Clairmont in St. Mary's-of-the-Lake Hospital, Kingston, on Saturday, October 3rd, 1964, following a lengthy illness.

Born in Jolette, Quebec, in 1886, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clairmont, Jolette, Quebec.

Prior to farming in Marmora township he had lived in Hamilton, Ont., where he ran a grocery store.

He is survived by his wife, the former Clara Belle Doerr, of Marmora; one step-daughter Mrs. Alex (Dolores) Cunningham, Belleville; Mrs. (Helen) Hughes, Scotland; Mrs. Andrew (Mamie) Noble, Sudbury; Mrs. Arthur (Lillian) Lapan, Marmora; two step-sons, Lewis Nahrgang and Jack Nahrgang, Peterborough.

He was a member of Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, and of the Holy Name Society.

Funeral service was held from Cassidy's Funeral Home to Sacred Heart Church on Thursday for Requiem Mass by Fr. W. P. Healey, Interment in Sacred Heart Cemetery.

The bearers were: Messrs. George Brown, Wesley Hagerty, Arthur Carman, Peter Quinn, Joseph Murray and Michael Logan.

MRS. WILSON HENRY LLOYD

The funeral of Mrs. Wilson Henry Lloyd was held on Thursday afternoon from the chapel of the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home, 60 Victoria Avenue at Church Street, conducted by Rev. Harry M. Davis of Bridge Street United Church.

Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

HENRY M. BROWN

The funeral of Henry M. Brown was held on Thursday afternoon from the chapel of the Grant Funeral Home, 68 North Front Street, conducted by Rev. T. F. Townsend.

Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

Bearers were: Harry Rutter, Glenn Meyers, Leonard Reid, Fred Reid, Walter Denyes and Morse Bobb.

FEAR HEAVY TOLL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Highway Safety Council, parraphrasing a prayer, has issued a plea to Canada's motoring and walking public to "give us this—our life." The council, expressing fear that 38 lives will be lost in traffic accidents during the Thanksgiving weekend, said "there is no reason why the families, relatives and friends of 38 persons should be deprived of a reason for giving thanks."

BOYCE — Rev. and Ruth Boyce, R.R. No. 6 Belleville, wish to announce the birth of their son, Paul Timothy, born Thursday, October 1st, 1964. The brother Michael is welcomed by Sister, Doug, David, Lynn, Gael.

IN MEMORIAM

COOKE — In loving memory of a dear father, William Cooke who died August 9, 1960.
Four years have passed since the day
The angel loved and called away.
He took from their watch to guard
His own.
Please God just let him know,
That we dearly here do not forget.
We loved and miss him so.
Daughter Lenny and family.

COOKE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather who passed away October 9, 1960.
Within our store of memories,
We have a place for you,
For no one else can ever be,
More cherished and true.
— Ever remembered by Everett and Greg.

COOKE — In loving memory of our dear husband and father Raymond E. Howe who passed away October 9, 1959.
Looking back with memories,
Upon the path you trod,
We bless the hours we had with you,
And leave the rest with God.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

DOUGLAS — In loving memory of my husband and son Lloyd Clarence Douglas who passed away Oct. 9, 1960.
O for the touch of a vanished hand,
The sound of a voice that is still.
—Remembered by Alestha and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like very much to thank all my relatives, friends and neighbours who visited me and me while a patient in Belleville General Hospital and also thanks to Dr. Potter and Dr. Bruce Crook, nurses and nurses aides in 2nd East.

Mrs. Ellen Garrepy.

Mere words are inadequate to express our gratitude to relatives, friends and neighbours for the beautiful floral tributes, messages of sympathy and kindnesses shown us during the sudden loss of our loving son and brother Lynn. Sincere thanks to Rev. Canon Wintemborne for his comforting words and the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, for their courtesy.

Harold and Agnes Rowe and family.

I would like to thank my friends and neighbors for the floral flowers and cards sent to me while a patient in Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. H. Bateson and Dr. Beatty, also nurses on 1st West.

Myrtle Salisbury.

I wish to sincerely thank all my relatives, friends and neighbors for their flowers and acts of kindness during the bereavement of my sister Goldie Evelyn Orr.

Nina Dova To Open Concert Series

Nina Dova, the international soprano-guitarist who appears here on October 13 at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium under the auspices of the Belleville Community Concert Association, is an artist of unique talent. As a singer of folk songs in six languages, she proves the seriousness of the folk art. As a skilled guitarist she combines her two talents in a diversified one-woman show.

Now a citizen of the United States, Miss Dova was born in London and has lived in Canada, France and South America. After training as a dancer she furthered her artistic development as a singer and guitarist. She has performed in the New York productions of 'Three Penny Opera," and has made many appearances on the stage and television as a solo performer. The combination of beautiful costumes and a rich, colorful voice makes Miss Dova one of the most popular artists on the concert stage today. Her performance next Tuesday evening inaugurates the 1964-65 Community Concert Association series in Belleville.

House Defence Committee Planning Searching Probe Into Production Department

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The 24-member Commons defence committee, which has become about as non-partisan as politicians can get, is planning the most searching investigation ever undertaken into the defence production department.

Committee members said privately Thursday there is something wrong in the department and they intend to find out what it is.

Specifically, they want to find out, for instance, why it took 10 years to produce prototypes of the Bobcat armored troop carrier. The vehicle was finally scrapped because it was far behind similar developments in other NATO countries and twice as expensive.

The committee also intends to investigate all circumstances surrounding the construction of the Provider, the Navy's new supply ship.

SHIP SHOWED DEFECTS

Defence Production Minister Drury informed the Commons July 6 that after the navy accepted the ship from the builder, Davie Shipbuilding Company of Lauzon, Que., "defects appeared in one of the vessel's winch pumps and motors."

Mr. Drury also revealed that the contract price was not agreed upon by the builder until the ship was accepted by the navy. This price was $16,382,904. The initial tender was $11,960,000 but certain extras were permitted.

Committee members said they plan to call as witnesses senior officials of the defence production department to investigate not only the problems of the ship but the contract arrangements of her purchase.

The committee expects to call Defence Minister Hellyer for an up-to-date accounting of moves toward armed forces integration and implementation of the white paper on defence published in March.

Charges Being Laid Against Illegal Hunters

POINT PELEE, Ont. (CP)—National park authorities here said Thursday that charges now are being laid against illegal hunters in the park area.

Park Superintendent Tony Pierce said one hunter was found with three geese, protected in the park, in his possession, and that a number of persons have been hunting in the park's 6,000 acres of marsh land without the required park hunting licence.

Mr. Pierce said the heron, also a protected bird, has been found shot by hunters.

Mr. Pierce said additional warning signs are being placed about the marsh area in the park, about 40 miles southeast of Windsor.

More Laid Off At Oshawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

General Motors of Canada laid off 500 more hour rated workers at its Oshawa plant Thursday, bringing the total number of about 8,500 since the United Auto Workers walked off their jobs in GM plants in the United States two weeks ago.

McKinnon Industries Limited in St. Catharines announced Thursday that 1,450 hourly - rated employees will be laid off there next week because of a production cut - back resulting from the U.S. strike.

This would bring total layoffs at McKinnon's two plants to 1,750. At peak employment 6,100 workers are involved in production of engines and components at McKinnon, most of which go to the Oshawa plant.

Award-Winning Film Will Be Shown Here

While at the AN and AF convention, held in Saskatoon this summer, Dominion president J. C. Lundberg of Belleville was presented with the film "Fields of Sacrifice," by Hon. Roger Teillet, Minister of Veterans Affairs, to be shown in all ANAF halls across Canada.

It shows how the people in Europe care for the graves and cemeteries wherein the Canadians who sacrificed their lives lie buried.

This film won the highest award, the Certificate of Merit, as the best film in the general information class at the Canadian Film Awards in May.

"Fields of Sacrifice," together with the film "Trooping of the Colors," will be shown, free of charge, at the ANAF auditorium on Wednesday, October 14th, with the first showing at 7.30 p.m. and the second at 9.00 p.m. and the public are invited.

Fine Two Men For Entering Cheese Factory

Two men convicted of breaking and entry at the Shamrock Cheese Factory near Tweed last March were sentenced this morning to pay $200 bond each to pay a $100 fine each and to pay nearly $80 each restitution. Carmen White and James Heinstra, both of Tweed, were before Magistrate Harmon yesterday along with Clifford Fitzgibbon, who was sentenced to three months in jail.

Magistrate T.Y. Wills warned all men that their sentence is, in sense, similar to a suspended sentence. They can not, he said, be sent to jail on that charge if they are found guilty of another count of the peace within the specified time, but they would lose their bond money. He said, however, that both men now have recorded convictions of breaking and entry, which would make a jail term almost automatic if they are again convicted. Magistrate Wills suspended the sentence as "not usual, but not so unusual that it is odd".

Police Tested With Imaginary List of Crimes

TORONTO (CP)—Three provincial police commissioners and a municipal employee were questioned in connection with 60 imaginary kidnappings, sheriff inquiries, rapes, hangings and municipal bribes in one week last August.

No charges were laid although 60 constables were involved in the investigations.

S. A. Whitley, administrative aide to OPP Commissioner Eric Silk, said Thursday the exercise was committed only in fancy as part of a new promotion competition in the force.

Candidates for promotion were tested on their powers of observation and ability to apply what they had seen in a criminal investigation contest.

They were also given learning ability tests and examinations on the Criminal Code and other legislation during the eight-hour test conducted simultaneously in Toronto, London, Belleville and Sudbury.

WILL PAY COSTS

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Matthew Dymond of Ontario announced Thursday that the Ontario government will pay drug and treatment costs for needy children suffering from cystic fibrosis.

Hilda Jones, Pet Control Officer for the Town of Trenton, gets an assist from 19-months'-old son Peter in minding the Queen of the Kennels, "Panda," a Pyrenees, a rare European breed. The three are posed around a statue of a dog on the lawn of the Jones' residence.

Mrs. Hilda Jones Operates Home for Stray Animals

TRENTON — Hilda Jones is a woman with a "heart as big as all outdoors," especially when it comes to unfortunate children, older people or animals.

"I wish I had money enough to buy a big farm where I could build cottages for older people, a nursery building for unwanted babies and keep as many animals as I want to," Hilda told a reporter yesterday.

In the meantime, Hilda is spreading kindness around as far as she can to all of her special "cares."

On the Carrying Place Road, she runs a kennel where she is raising Keeshound pups, German Shepherds and other types of pedigreed dogs. Here, too, are take the dogs running at large; injured dogs and cats and any other type of bird or animal in distress brought to her attention. Hilds, Pet Control Officer for the town of Trenton, looks after the strays until their owners call for them, or, if the owner doesn't show, keeps them as long as she can, (often feeding them at her own expense) before putting them to sleep. Hilda makes frantic efforts to give the animals away, rather than destroying them, contacting friends or advertising them on the CJBQ pet clinic.

Queen of the Kennels is "Panda," a Pyrenees, (European breed), and Panda is Hilda's pride and joy, with 21 ribbons to her credit. Eleven of these are firsts, won in Ontario shows over the past two years. One special honor is a Best of Breed ribbon and rosette, won by Panda at the Ontario County Kennel Club show this July. Panda and Hilda's 19-month-old son, Peter, are great friends, and equally proud of the "queen" is Hilda's husband, Clarence, who helps out in the kennel, when he comes home from work.

CHARTER PRESIDENT

Hilda was the instigator and charter president of the Trenton branch of the Ontario Humane Society. She has resigned as president, but means to carry on in any advisory capacity when a new executive is elected.

Meantime, Hilda is heading up Operation Spark Plug, which will concern itself with the welfare of all animals, tame or wild, in this area. Hilda means to hold classes where children will be taught to have regard for the safety and comfort of animals.

Because the Trenton pound is located in Murray township, Hilda has come in for a certain amount of criticism from her township-neighbours, as has town council, and last spring, council decided to build a shelter within the boundaries of the corporation. Land has been secured and the plans for the shelter are on the drawing board.

Hilda often gets discouraged—never with her job—or with the animals brought under her care—but with the human race. In the past, she has received telephone calls from "crahks," decrying her interest in the welfare of animals, and advising her to give her attention to the needs of children.

"I am looking after the needs of children," Hilda says in her own defence, "many of the half-starved animals I pick up from the streets are potential dangers to children. Not because the animal is vicious, but because it is hungry, or hurt."

Another project Hilda plans to carry through is to found an animal cemetery where beloved pets could be buried. She has, on her front lawn, a four foot statue of a German Shepherd, which will serve to mark the grave of a much-loved German Shepherd in her own kennels—13 years old now, and the great-great grandma of the kennel's present run of puppies.

Foxboro Pastor Communications Co-ordinator

Rev. Robert Reid, pastor at Foxboro United Church, has been named communications co-ordinator for the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church.

Mr. Reid's duties as communications co-ordinator will include handling of all radio, TV and press announcements and the distribution of audio-visual literature.

The Bay of Quinte Conference takes in the area ranging from Kingston to Oshawa and from Prince Edward County to north of Peterborough.

Thousand Men In Services Will Retire

OTTAWA (CP) — Associate Defence Minister Cardin said Thursday in the Commons that "perhaps 1,000" military personnel at national defence headquarters will be retired compulsorily.

Defence Minister Hellyer announced earlier this week that up to 122 brigadiers, colonels, lieutenant-colonels and majors or their equivalents in the Navy and RCAF will be retired compulsorily between Nov. 1 and next summer.

Mr. Cardin was replying to Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, who asked whether serving officers in suspense concerning which ones would be retired was a satisfactory method of dealing with the situation.

Injured Man Sits in Car 7 Hours Before Help Called

TRENTON — A Trenton man, Gilles Dubois of the RCAF Station, sat injured in his automobile for seven hours unable to receive assistance after an accident on the Wooler Road around 1.00 a.m. this morning.

Mr. Dubois is believed to have driven a friend home earlier and was returning to his 102 Scott Street residence. He missed a curve on the Wooler Road, strange to him, and went into the ditch.

Mr. Dubois says he attracted the attention of three passing motorists at different intervals and asked them to call a doctor for him.

It appeared that only the third motorist had made the requested telephone call for help as it wasn't until shortly before 8.00 a.m. that a cruiser from the Brighton OPP detachment arrived at the scene.

Mr. Dubois was taken to Trenton Hospital by ambulance but was not seriously injured.

Frankford Girl Shaken up In Accident

FRANKFORD — Gloria Ann Iwanyshyn, 18 of Frankford, was taken to Trenton hospital shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday after the east corner of her car on Francis St. in Trenton and struck a hydro pole. Miss Iwanyshyn was taken to hospital over night for observation. Property damage to the car and the pole was set at $300.

FOR USE OF PUBLIC

A prize won at a Toronto convention has been donated for the disposal of the public by a Trenton businessman. Earlier this week, Jack Goldberg of the Spotless Cleaners, attended the Dry Cleaners' and Launderers' Institute of Ontario convention at the Park Plaza Hotel in Toronto. There was a draw and Mr. Goldberg won, "Focus on Fabrics," by Dorothy S. Lyle, Ph.D., guest speaker at the convention.

The huge volume contains an actual sample of "every known fabric under the sun," to quote Mr. Goldberg, and a run-down of the manufacture and fabric care and suggested cleaning method.

Mr. Goldberg has placed the book on the counter in his store and has invited the general public, and especially anyone who owns a garment made of some unusual or exotic type of fabric, to consult its pages before attempting to have it washed or cleaned.

School Okayed, Start Digging On Same Day

TRENTON — Approval for a $95,400 addition to North Trenton Public School by the Ontario Municipal Board was received by the town clerk yesterday and before the day was out, Mironwiggers' workmen were busy at excavation work.

Frank Miron of the Mironwiggers firm said today the project should be completed by January of next year. Two classrooms and an auditorium will be built onto the school.

Picketing Problem

The Ontario Federation of Labor objects to the manner in which judges grant injunctions against picketing.

The Federation urges that injunctions should be granted only after a trial and processing through the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

That is reasonable enough, or would be if organized labor showed understanding of the true nature of the right to picket, of which it is being deprived by these injunctions.

Cliff Pilkey of Oshawa said that by limiting the number of pickets through the use of injunctions, employers were breaking strikes by bringing "scab labor" through under-manned picket lines.

From this it is evident Mr. Pilkey considers that the right to picket includes the right to prevent physically any person from entering the plant at which a strike is in process.

It does not. Picketing is legal because it is deemed right and proper that strikers should have the opportunity of presenting their case to any person going to work.

When organized labor pickets in the manner which the law intends, there will be no valid reason why injunctions limiting the number of pickets should be issued.

Unfortunately, past history and human nature make it unlikely that this solution of the problem will be possible.

If any solution is found, it will almost certainly have to break new ground, as did the Rand formula for the payment of union dues, effecting a workable compromise which will at one and the same time protect the men in their right to strike and the employer in his right to endeavor to continue to operate his business. It is much easier to advocate the discovery of such a compromise than to suggest the form which it might take.

Strikes and the strife which they breed present a problem which is likely to remain with us. The extreme solutions, outlawing all strikes and permitting the strikers free rein, have both been tried and found intolerable.

Living in Deprivation

It was probably not Voltaire—so many wise sayings have been ascribed to him that some of them must be apocryphal—who said "if you would debate with me, define your terms."

No matter. The saying is a wise one. And one which the Ontario Federation of Labor would do well to bear in mind.

The Federation says that almost 2,000,000 non-farm persons, or 32 per cent of the people of Ontario, are "living in various stages of deprivation, poverty or destitution."

That raised our eyebrows.

Of course, the Federation is right. If this were not so, the Federation would not have said that it was. The question is what the Federation considers "deprivation." No television set? Depending on nature's wind tunnel in the Ontario Hydro to dry the week's wash? It just so happens that we never considered this to constitute a state of deprivation.

It would be interesting, though, to learn how many people are living in circumstances which the majority of us would consider impoverishing deprivation, poverty or destitution. We would need to define our terms, again, to ascertain this. But whatever the terms, we suspect that the number would be larger than most of us imagine. And, of course, we should remember that, while the Federation of Labor was speaking only of non-farm people, some of the worse "slums" are in the rural areas. One only has to travel through the "black country" of our own county to have that confirmed. Many of the houses do not compare with the summer cottages that even blue-collar workers can afford to erect on neighboring lakes.

Betting as Insurance

In Britain, betting is legal.

It can be socially useful.

This fact was brought home by reference in a Canadian Press report to a fall in the stock market prices of steel shares, because Labor is pledged to renationalize the steel industry and there has been an apparent resurgence of Labor strength.

"There is also a swing to Labor in election betting," The Canadian Press reported.

The decline in stock prices and the increased betting on Labor may not be unrelated.

A bet on Labor to win would be an ideal "hedge" for the owners of shares of steel companies, a type of insurance. What one lost on the cocoanut shy, one would win on the soundabout.

Questions Reduction In Welfare Costs

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

I read with some irritation, a short article in Thursday's Intelligencer revealing that city welfare costs had decreased in July '64 by 31.1 percent from July '63 — the greatest percentage decrease for any community in Ontario. Also, the article revealed that welfare costs in Belleville were reduced by over $78,000 in the first 7 months of 1964 compared with the same period of 1953.

Surely, Mr. Editor, this is big news for the taxpayers of Belleville. Why then the short article? Why just the bare figures? Why no explanation, no background information, no statements from the mayor, or the welfare committee or the welfare administrator? As Belleville's sole newspaper and large tax payer itself, surely the Ontario Intelligencer should be doubly motivated to investigate and publish the facts behind this amazing saving of city funds.

If there had been a significant increase in available jobs in Belleville during this past year, one could conclude that with more work available, welfare costs naturally decreased. But as far as I am aware the unemployment situation has not changed for the better in the past year.

In the not too distant past some unprogressive and uncivilized communities have cut their welfare costs by getting tough by putting welfare recipients on hamburger seven days per week and generally making life so miserable for "moochers" that they were forced to go to work or even to leave town. But Belleville did not, as far as I can recall and Mayor which has taken a special and progressive interest in welfare problems, would seem to realize the complexities of the problem, the need for skilled counselling and job finding and have underway a study to determine how the various local agencies can best co-operate their activities to help the less fortunate among us to help themselves.

No, the explanation does not seem to be that Belleville has turned tough as in fact we have here a most amazing phenomenon — a city that cuts its social welfare costs at the same time that it increases its social concern. This, as you know is not supposed to happen. So how do social workers, economists, politicians and others concerned with the future of the welfare state will flock to Belleville to learn our contagious project. — Taxpayer.

EDITOR'S NOTE: We think we detect a note of sarcasm here. Still, "Taxpayer" does not appear certain that Belleville's reduction in welfare costs is reason for congratulations or alarm. If this is his attitude, he is not the same boat with us. We do know there has been an increase in part-time jobs and the number of persons who have come to The Ontario Intelligencer office to complain about their treatment by city welfare officials. In other words, there has been a "toughening" of the officer's attitude towards applicants for relief. But judicious publicity has failed to provide convincing proof that people deserving help have been refused aid. On the other hand, that the people complaining had no valid cause for protest. Perhaps "Taxpayer" letter will provoke public discussion by those best informed and from this citizens group may be able to form an opinion.

Politicians' Finances

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

It is an audited public statement of one's personal finances to become a prerequisite for the seeking of political office?

It will if the United States presidential election sets a precedent. All four of the candidates have disclosed their personal assets.

Most politicians of our acquaintance hereabouts would be embarrassed by a disclosure of their personal finances. Instead of blocks of General Motors stock, such entries as "loan from Uncle Charlie" and "third mortgage with Cutthroat Finance" would be more common.

Replies to Visitor To Local Church

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Evidently our friend who signed himself "One Interested in Real Religion," does not practise what he preaches.

Did he speak to the persons nearest him? They too might have been strangers. With the changing world we have many newcomers and visitors in our churches. It is impossible for our ministers to single out one among many.

Did he come to church to be seen or did he come to worship? Since our friend was warmly welcomed when he entered the church he should have felt that he was indeed welcome. I am sure the minister invited him to be present at the Lord's table.

In my own church we had a beautiful service suitable for our communion service. Since it was World Communion Sunday service most churches did have this. We also had a dedication of a pulpit Bible, in memory of a young doctor, whose life was lost in an aeroplane crash, who was just beginning his life of service. Our friend should have been thinking of what a service like this means instead of "Why don't people see me?"

—United Church Member.

Retained Pumps Already in Use

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

A report in your newspaper concerning the September meeting of the Consolidated Municipal Council stated that used pumps were installed in the new water filtration plant.

To set the record straight I would point out that the original water supply system consisted of a large brick water pumping station containing two high pressure pumps. Whereas the pumps were old, we were faced with providing a water purification plant at the lowest cost consistent with good engineering practice. We decided to leave these pumps in service, and these are the used pumps referred to in your article. Actually a centrifugal water pump has an almost indefinite life and is frequently a solete due to lack of capacity rather than age.

Moira and Coleman Corner Dangerous

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer.

Do we have to wait until someone is killed before the City Council can do something about this bad corner, Coleman and West Moira. A few weeks ago there was a terrible accident, ing three persons to hospital and damage to the hydro pole and since then there have been collisions every few days and another this morning. To say nothing of the near misses.

Please cannot something be done, a policeman on duty at peak hours of traffic.

A taxpayer and resident.

Pupil Found Beer Bitter

Canadian University Press

Old laws make for bitter beer, an Oxford University student found recently.

He discovered an ancient college law saying he was entitled to a free pint of beer before taking an examination. By insisting on this privilege examiners were forced to accompany up the pint of beer. But while he wrote the exam they found another ancient law.

When the student came out the examiner fined him five pounds for failing to wear a sword.

To Your Good Health
Quack Doctors Still Exist In Spite of Our Laws

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

I've just had another one — a letter from a reader who in this case changed "doctors" temporarily.

It's an intelligent letter, except for one thing.

I won't even go into the specific trouble this reader had; it concerns a rash and other skin symptoms. Her doctor prescribed a form of cortisone, and she encountered what — and very well may not — have been a side-effect. It may have had nothing to do with the cortisone at all, I suspect.

To quote a bit from her letter: "I then went to another doctor who told me to go on a diet of steak and potatoes three times a day, and to have injections of an extract called —

"I kept getting such encouraging words from this doctor that I continued through six treatments — he insisted on nine — but I felt him when I became aware that I was being treated by either a genius or a mad man."

She then went back to her original doctor, who made all sorts of laboratory tests and asked if she had taken anything.

She was ashamed and didn't tell him about the injections.

It's obvious, of course, that the lady got into the clutches of a charlatan who claimed to be some sort of doctor but was not an M.D. or D.O. What kind of stuff he injected is hard to guess. She was smart enough to gather that she was being taken in by a faker.

But up to now she hasn't been smart enough to tell her own doctor the truth.

What she did isn't so very unusual. It's a mistake that lots of people make. That's why quacks, in spite of our laws, exist in such numbers, and are able to cheat the public out of some hundred of millions of dollars a year.

But even if you've been taken in by a quack, swallow your pride. Tell your doctor, "I guess I've been foolish, but I had some treatments from so-and-so who calls himself a doctor of such-and-such. And he gave me some injections of what he called Superdooperstuff. Or whatever."

There's no law against doing foolish things. We know that some patients go chasing after will-o-wisps at times, and are sorry afterward. There's nothing to be gained by bawling them out.

But we can do a better job, and usually save some tests and money, if the patients tell us what happened.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend suggested cobra venom for arthritis. Is this treatment recommended? — H. H.

Medicines containing cobra venom were popular years ago and are not commonly used today. Many treatments for arthritis have been in vogue over the years, and this is one of them. With all of them, there have been reports of some degree of relief, but most of them have not stood the test of time, and have not proved to be "cures." One of the difficulties with cobra venom was that allergic reactions quite often occurred.

Whisky Safe From Machine

Winnipeg Tribune

We are assured by the British government chemist that nobody will ever be able to make artificial whisky or brandy. It seems that such liquors contain at least 23 distinct chemicals which interact on each other in ways that are quite unpredictable. So we would say that the same goes for those who imbibe.

As for whisky, no machine has ever been invented that can properly blend this ambrosia, sensibly regarded in the Scottish Highlands as natural food. The stuff takes a minimum of seven years to mature during which time all manner of unpredictable things happen. At the end of this time an educated human nose is needed to get the right blend and no two whiskies are exactly alike.

At least it would seem that in this area at least we're safe from money substitutes and automation. True Scots would say that no government chemist was needed to establish this truth.

Strictly Personal
MP's Speech Treasured by This Columnist

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The election coming up in Britain soon reminded me of a marvelously rare and honest comment made just before another British election about a dozen years ago, which I have long treasured in my files.

It was made by Kenneth Pickthorn, a Conservative member of Parliament, who concluded a political speech with the memorable words: "On this subject, as on so many others, I am amply provided with profound prejudices and superficial information."

Like a dash of sea spray on a muggy summer's day, Pickthorn's refreshing admission made one realise how wonderful the world would be if only for a week all of us could dispense with cant and speak with candor.

The cigarette manufacturer would say to us: "My brand is about the same as all the other brands, with a slightly different flavor, and it won't do a thing for you except reinforce the smoking habit."

The TV commentator would say to us: "I simply don't understand this most recent development in Far Eastern affairs. It's too soon to digest it, and enough facts aren't in yet. Please wait a few weeks until the situation is stabilized and I've had time to study the problem."

The film producer would say to us: "Passionate Haystack is the best picture we've ever made with the material on hand; it has a few exciting moments, a couple of nice scenes, and a bid for the inferior acting and the absurd story."

The general in Viet Nam would say to us: "I suppose I could call this week's maneuvers 'tactical exercises without' of our forces, but the plain fact is that we were outmarched and outfought by superior numbers. I'll try to do better next week."

The merchant would say to us: "The fall season is pretty silly this fall, and some of the goods are not what they were when we could get the finest craftsmanship, but you may find a few things that you like."

The airline would say to us: "There's heavy fog in the west, and the plane may leave in an hour or so, and then again it may not. We have no way of telling, and maybe you ought to call the depot and make a train reservation before it's too late."

The auto manufacturer would say to us: "This year's models are just facelifted a little from last year's. We made a few minor improvements, but so have our competitors, and there's not a great deal to distinguish them except for inessential matters of styling."

The politician would say to us: "I'll give the public as much service as I can, but the organization comes first, debts have to be repaid, and loyalties must be rewarded. All I can promise you is that the opposition won't be any better."

This is too much to expect, of course, but it will give new zest, and new hope, to the world — if only for one Truth Week?

Labor Hard For Church

Goderich Signal Star

If rural church fowl suppers were ever run on the same cold, calculating, economic standards as are the chain store operations today, they would have been abandoned years ago.

Do you know the difference between stuffing turkeys, etc., the day before, then setting up the tables, cooking or washing dishes on the day of the fowl supper, and paying out as much as 20 hours of work?

At one dollar an hour, this would total around $20. Add to this the maximum donation of pies, cakes, etc., and you have another $15. That makes a total of $35 donated indirectly by one woman. But just ask any of those women to make a cash donation of $10 instead of the $35 structure and they would indignantly feel they were being robbed.

Strange, isn't it? Apparently, women just love to do it their own way. Try and get men to do anything like this. As one keen observer said, women are wiser than men because they know less and understand more.

Toronto Stocks

Large fractional gains and a handful of hefty rises combined to bring industrials higher. Great Lakes Paper was ahead 1⅛ to equal its high of 30 while John Labatt and Trans Prairie Pipe Lines each rose ⅛ to 20¼ and 30¼, the latter at a high.

In speculative action, consolidated Morrison rose four cents to $1.30, Western Decalta four cents to $2.39, New Hosco nine cents to $2.95 and Leitch five cents to $5.05. Westburne fell five cents to $1.33 and New Calumet two cents..to $1.11.

Senior base metals trading was extremely active. Noranda attained a high of 50¾, but later declined ⅛ to 50¼. Falconbridge jumped ½ to a high of 78, as did Inco to a top of 83¾.

On index, industrials gained .34 to a high of 167.30 and the TSE index .30 to a high of 136.61. Golds fell .37 to 143.99 and western oils .59 to 96.27 but base metals rose .10 to 71.07. Volume was 677,000 shares compared with 770,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday.

On Thursday the stock market broke through to high ground at the close of only moderately light trading.

Speculative mining shares appeared lackluster, but penny oils came into their own in the last hour of trading. Prices in both categories generally improved, but volumes were small in comparison with some recent sessions.

Volumes in industrial issues were higher than usual. Bell Telephone, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines and Weston A for instance, each traded more than 10,000 shares.

The 30-stock industrial index attained a high of 166.86 with a .37 gain while the 114-stock TSE index rose .30 to 136.71. All other major index categories advanced.

Canada Steamship Lines helped pace industrials with a 1¼ rise to a high of 34¼, while Consolidated Paper gained 1⅛ to 44⅝ and at one-point touched a peak of 45. Power Corp. rose ⅜ to a high of 15, and Trans-Canada Pipe gained ½ to 44¼ after hitting a high of 45.

Brazilian traction was another pace-setter, rising 35 cents to $4.25 after reaching a high of $4.30 on volume of more than 35,000 shares. Bell Telephone, however, after its spectacular rise—four to the blues chips—Wednesday to a record 60, declined ⅛ to 59⅞. Westburne Oil was ahead 18 cents to $1.38 to pace speculatives.

The senior base metals list was exceptionally strong. Noranda paced the group with a 1¼ rise to a high of 50¾.

Gold trading, although dull, produced higher prices. Hollinger rose ½ to 30⅛ and Dickenson 20 cents to $5.20.

On index, golds gained 1.34 to 144.36, base metals .34 to 70.97 and western oils .42 to 96.38. Volume was 3,139,000 shares compared with 2,749,000 shares traded Wednesday

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Trading on a light supply of top quality steers, heifers and fed yearlings was active at strong prices this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Lower grades of slaughter cattle moved slowly at prices about steady with last week. Good cows were steady with lower grades unevenly stronger.

Veal calf prices were stronger on choice grades with lower grades under pressure. Hog prices were lower and lambs lower.

Cattle receipts were estimated at 9,500, about 900 head more than last week and 2,000 head more than the same week in 1963. Western cattle receipts were 431, a decrease under last week of about 300 head. Western stock calf receipts were 1,074, equal to last week's total. Twenty-one cattle were received from Quebec. Cattle shipped off the market to the United States were 241 head.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at $23.50-24.50 with dry-fed steers at 25.25; good 22-23; medium 19.50-21; common 16-19; choice heifers 21-22 with fancy up to 23.50; good 20-21; medium 18-19, common 14-17; choice fed yearlings 22-24; good 20-21.50; good cows 16-17.50 with sales to 18; medium 13-14; canners and cutters 9-13.50; good heavy bologna bulls 18-19 with sales to 19.25; common and medium 15-17.50.

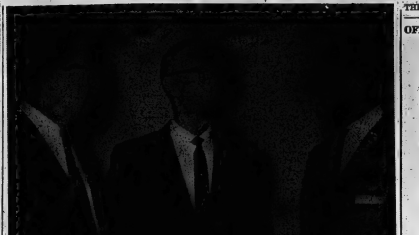
Replacement cattle: Good stockers 21.50 - 23 with good steer stock calves to 25; common and medium stockers 16-21.

Calves: Choice vealers 28-30 with odd singles 31-33; good 26-27; medium 22-24; common 18-21; boners 12-17.

Hogs: Grades A 26.05-27.80; heavy sows 18.05 - 18.15 with light sows gaining a $2 premium.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 17-20 per hundredweight with good lambs closing at 19-19.50; sheep 3-10 according to quality.

Three Charged With Possession Are Acquitted



Charges with possession of stolen goods, laid against three Trenton men, were dismissed in Belleville court this morning. The three men, Austin Sidney Bowness, Earl Archie Holland and Edward James Ellis were found in possession, July third, of 11 gallons of paint alleged to be the property of the RCAF. They were arrested by a Trenton Constable and an Air Force Police Constable.

Charges were dismissed after one of the men explained that they work for the Air Force, and had been painting Air Force property until quitting time on Friday July 3, at a point remote from the paint stores. Rather than lose time by returning the paint to the stores before leaving, they decided to take the paint home with them and return it on Monday morning. Charges were dismissed on the basis of their explanation, and because the Crown failed to produce satisfactory identification of the paint. The paint has been returned to the Air Force.

Cheese Exchange

A total of 28,464 boxes of cheese, including 5,541 specials, 8,247 large registers, and 14,676 square cheese, was offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week.

The average price for white cheese was 36 cents and for colored 36.5 cents per lb.

RETIREMENT PARTY was held last night for Robert Reid (centre) freight sales manager for CN Rideau Area at Belleville. With Mr. Reid are J. C. Gardiner, St. Lawrence Region Freight Sales Manager, and W. D. Newell, Operations Manager for Rideau Area at Belleville.

Bob Reid, Freight Sales Manager With CN, Retires

The occasion was a dinner in honor of freight sales manager Bob Reid, Linton Park Drive, who is retiring from the Canadian National after 44 years in the railway's freight sales division. Mr. Reid worked last on September 20th and is now on retirement leave.

Approximately 50 railway employees attended the dinner in the Pinnacle Room at the Hotel Quinte, including J. C. Gardiner, regional freight sales manager for the entire St. Lawrence Region, and W. D. Newell, operations manager for the Rideau area at Belleville.

Mr. Newell presented the retiring railroader with a handsome set of golf clubs on behalf of his fellow workers.

Mr. Reid came to Belleville as freight sales manager following the reorganization of the CN in March of 1961.

In his long railway career Mr. Reid has served in no less than 15 different centres. He and Mrs. Reid will move to London, Ont., to be near other family members.

Refer Question of Water Levels to a Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States have formally agreed to refer the question of water levels on the Great Lakes to the International Joint Commission, Industry Minister Drury announced Thursday in the Commons.

Mr. Drury, acting external affairs minister, also said the question of pollution of the Great Lakes will be placed before the commission, which deals with matters affecting international boundary waters.

The references to the commission had been expected for some time.

A statement issued later by the external affairs department said the commission was asked to determine whether further measures can be taken to reduce the extreme fluctuations of water levels.

The two governments said any recommendation of measures should indicate the cost, now interests on both sides of the boundaries would benefit or be harmed, and the value to the two countries "jointly and separately" of such measures.

The reference said the commission should study whether action to regulate water levels would benefit water supply and sanitation, navigation, hydro electricity generation, flood control, agriculture, fish and wildlife and recreation.

The reference on pollution said the commission is to report whether waters of lakes Erie and Ontario and the international section of the St. Lawrence River are being polluted "to an extent which is causing or is likely to cause injury to health or property on the other side of the boundary."

Where pollution is found, the commission is to state the localities, causes and extent and recommend remedial measures and their cost.

The statement said both governments want to extend the study to other boundary waters of the Great Lakes basin and the commission was asked to advise an appropriate time.

The commission was told it could use engineers and other experts from both governments for both the water levels and pollution studies.

OMB Approves Installation of Artificial Ice

TWEED — The Tweed Hungerford Community Board met last evening and the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board given by Clarke T. Rollins M.P.P., was received on Wednesday by the Tweed village council to proceed with the artificial ice installation.

The work is to commence immediately and it is hoped to be completed in ten weeks. The cost of ice equipment and pipes will amount to approximately $28,000 with the building for storage and drainage to cost extra with this amount covered from the Federal and Provincial Municipal Assistance Act.

The Creamery Package Company of Toronto will do the installation of the ice with local help assisting. The landscaping which will be done next year, will be carried out with the help of the Canada Cntennial grant.

CONSUMED WITH INTENT

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—A mobile incinerator said to be able to consume within an hour the garbage from 100 homes has been demonstrated here. Fired by propane gas, the incinerator operates at 2,000 degrees and can handle refuse, cans and bottles. Officials of the firm manufacturing the device say it will be produced commercially soon.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"Ear, nose or throat?"

Deficiency Payment Will Be Made

OTTAWA (CP)—A deficiency payment of two cents a dozen will be paid on eggs marketed during the present support year which ended sept. 30, 1964, Agriculture Minister Hays announced Thursday in the Commons.

He said payments to egg producers are expected to amount to $1,500,000.

The Agricultural Stabilization Board had established that the weighted national average price received by producers for Grade A large eggs in the 12-month period was 32 cents a dozen, two cents below the 34-cent support price.

Payments will begin this week to producers on Grade A extra large, Grade A large and Grade A medium sizes to a maximum of 4,000 dozen.

Sunday School Lesson

Hope for a Lost World

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

One of the reasons for the immense popularity of "My Fair Lady," the modern musical version of George Bernard Shaw's play, "Pygmalion," is that so many people wish they, like Eliza Doolittle, could be lifted out of the drab, often sordid, surroundings of everyday life, and be changed into a more wonderful person. Can they be saved from a sinful and sordid world, so many of the tendencies of which they recognize within themselves? Is there a greater than Professor Higgins who will notice them, and who can bring about in them a miracle of transformation?

The New Testament says there is. His name is Jesus. He notices us, sinful though we are, and came to become "new creations" by relating us in a new and life-changing way to the love and power of God.

A SURPRISED APOSTLE

This fact was born in on Paul by his own conversion. Paul could never get over the surprise that God had chosen him, the "foremost of sinners," to be an apostle. Why, of all people had God chosen, him? He had been fanatical in persecuting Christians. He had "blasphemed" and "insulted" the very Christ he now served. Yet, wonder of wonders, God had chosen him to preach the message of the Christ he once hated.

Paul should not have been so surprised. After all, this is what Jesus did throughout His ministry. He chose a hated tax collector to be one of His disciples. He talked about God to a Samaritan woman whose moral life was as offensive as her nationality to the Jewish people of her day. He ate with social outcasts, "sinners" and defended His action by saying He had come as a physician to heal the sick. (Matthew 9:10-12). He said His mission was "to seek and save the lost." (Luke 19:10 RSV)

This was His "magnificent obsession." Instead of avoiding people whose lives were warped by sin, these were the very people He noticed, and made the object of His attention. Wherever there was sickness, He wanted to heal it. Wherever there was sin, He wanted to cleanse it.

This was so well-known by the early church that by the time I Timothy was written, it had become axiomatic. The author could write, "The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." (I Timothy 1:15 RSV).

BASIC CHRISTIAN TRUTH

In another letter, Paul points out that this is the very core of the Christian message. God does not wait till we are worthy of His love before He loves us. On the contrary, He has already shown His love for us "in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." (Romans 5:8 RSV)

A church that found itself in a deteriorating neighborhood started club groups for children from the run-down area. One day, one of the older members was heard to remark, "I wouldn't mind those children coming here if they weren't so destructive." The pastor agreed that church furniture costs money and should be treated with respect. But he went on to point out that if the church had to wait until the children were perfect saints before it welcomed them, they are lost already. Their only hope is for someone to love them as they are for the sake of what they can become with the right kind of love and understanding.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 11: "Salvation for Sinners," I Timothy 1:12 through 2:15.

And the Bible says that is our hope — that God sent Christ among the moral pig-sty of the world to tell men if they will return to God He is watching and waiting, and will run to give them the kiss of pardon.

What Jesus started on earth, the Bible says He continues in Heaven. He acts as the "one mediator between God and man." (I Timothy 2:5) He still pleads through the church for us to be reconciled to God. It was to preach this message Paul felt called to be a preacher. (I Timothy 2:7) God's love still seeks to save men from their sin. It is this message He wants us to declare to a sinful and indifferent world.

Much of the world does not want to hear this message. Men are not willing to admit they have used their freedom of will to become evil. But a sense of sin cannot be laughed out of court. Men are sinful. They do need cleansing. Christianity has always taught, and experience has shown, that the confession of sin, and the acceptance of divine pardon is the way to health of mind and soul.

Stirling

STREETS REPAIRED

STIRLING — The widening of the south side of Mill St. is underway. The removal of the curb, from the Memorial Park east to David Lamba will result in a wider street for traffic and a new sidewalk will be laid. Several streets have been re-surfaced and are now in splendid condition for winter.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

The Stirling volunteer fire department is going all out for inspection in residences and business places. A free check-up will be given to all persons interested in preventing fire and its hazards.

This being a dominion wide prevention week, the Stirling Fire Chief, Graham Mourk and all his helpers urge everyone to give assistance in keeping fire away.

COUNCIL MEETING

With all members of the council present and Reeve Bert Jones as chairman, Chief Police Hicks gave his report which was accepted. The following council authorizations were made: That the Reeve, Clerk and Councillor chamber select the required number of jurors by October the 10th; that dead trees on Victoria Street be cut as soon as possible; that an application for an interim subsidy on roads and streets from January 1st to September 14 in the amount of $14,579.81 be received. Permission was refused to burn an old barn on North Front Street. Street committee Frank Brouklms was present and several matters pertaining to streets were under discussion. Instructions to order 125 foot long 10-inch galvanized culvert for Roscoe St., and to get prices on sand and salt for winter control were given.

The street committee was asked to investigate why the water was lying on the side walk on Mill Street and to make improvements if possible. A by-law was enacted and passed setting the speed limit on the three highways entering the village."

ORE DEPOSITS

The world's richest deposits of lead and zinc are expected to be found in Canada in the Great Slave Lake area when a new railway to the site is completed next year.

Big Bus Line Ordered to Reduce Fares

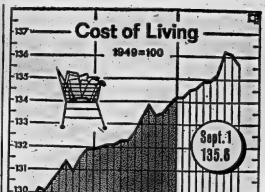
"Many of our passengers are old-age pensioners and young mothers with families," said Mrs. Copley, 62. "We want to charge what they can afford."



Widowed Mrs. Copley, owner of three buses, maintained she could continue to run her buses to Boston and Spalding from Fosdyke village at one penny to two pennies less than her big competitor, the Lincolnshire Road Car Company.

"Fare increases will lead to the point where we won't be able to get the public to travel by bus anymore."

Appearing for the big operator, A. W. Eades argued for a uniform fare. "Different fares by different operators are against the public interest," he said.

Commissioner Charles Hodson agreed—and ordered the Lincolnshire company to lower its fares to conform to Mrs. Copley's.

LIVING COSTS DOWN — Canada's cost-of-living index dropped to 135.6 on Sept. 1, the second decline in two months.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 136.1 a month earlier and 133.4 on Sept. 1 last year. Graph traces movement of the index since 1962.

Picture a TV set that automatically measures the light in your room and continuously adjusts the picture contrast to the correct level for easy-on-the-eyes viewing. Picture a TV set that delivers such a steady picture automatically that it doesn't even have a horizontal or vertical control knob. A TV set that requires no adjustment when you switch channels and automatically keeps every picture detail clear and sharp—even when you're watching old movies! And it's only one of the complete line of amazingly automatic, exceptionally attractive TV models in the Philips Monitron 500 TV Series for 1965. The price range is surprisingly moderate for completely automatic TV.

DIRECT VISION PICTURE TUBE. This remarkable forward development (Philips engineered and now industry-acclaimed) eliminates any second or double area of glass between your eye, and the picture tube itself. No dust can collect. You get a true-to-life picture without reflection or haze. It delivers a picture within seconds. No long warm-up wait.

2 YEAR GUARANTEE

CANADA'S ONLY 2-YEAR PICTURE TUBE GUARANTEE. Philips new Direct Vision Picture tube is guaranteed for two years—twice as long as other manufacturers' The Circuit Stabilizer on every Monitron 500 TV set automatically prevents fluctuating household current from changing the size and strength of the picture you're watching.

TV SOUND THAT SURPASSES MANY SO-CALLED HI-FI SETS.

The full dimensional sound of every Philips Monitron 500 TV set guarantees you a faithful reproduction of every note within the range of human hearing. Compare before you buy. Listen to a Philips Monitron 500. Listen to any other TV set in the store. Your own ear will tell you how clear, crisp and well-modulated the Philips sound is. Philips' sensitive high-fidelity circuitry, functioning tone control and wide-range speakers deliver uncommonly fine hi-fi sound such as you have been accustomed to hearing only on expensive hi-fidelity entertainment systems.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

But to Senator Barry Gold water and his kind of Republicans, ADA is far left—socialistic if not communistic

Americans for Democratic action has been getting lots of free publicity in the Nov. 3 presidential election campaign and says it loves it.

ADA has been after the Republican presidential candidate for a long time. When the Republicans fight back, they not only seek to even things up.

They work on the fact that Senator Hubert Humparey, Democratic party vice - presidential candidate, was a founding member of ADA and is known throughout the American right wing as a liberal if not worse.

There is also the natural Republican desire in attacking ADA, to give it for fat politically. The Democrats of every turn have sought to capitalize on the Republican convention's refusal to come out against the John Birch Society, or the Ku Klux Klan.

DECLINED HELP

Senator Goldwater subsequently said he wanted no help from the Klan but declined to say the same thing about the Birchers although he did say he thought the views of the society's founder, Robert Welch, "intemperate and unwise."

The John Birch Society and the Klan have never revealed their numbers.

ADA numbers fewer than 50,000, although it may be larger now that more Americans have heard of it through Senator Goldwater and his running mate, Congressman William Miller of New York.

The ADA was founded in 1947 as an anti-Communist liberal organization and prime movers over the years have included Senator Humphrey, the late Eleanor Roosevelt, labor leader Walter Reuther Democratic senators including Maurine Neuberger of Oregon, journalist Joseph Alsop and academic Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., a New Frontiersman with the late president Kennedy.

Members point with some pride to a list of points which were on the fringe of respectability when first mentioned and now are widely accepted—the nuclear test ban treaty, the war on poverty, the Peace Corps, civil rights, the Marshall plan in post-war Europe.

ALL FOR JOHNSON

Once ADA was pretty strongly anti-Lyndon B. Johnson but it is all for him today in his campaign against Goldwater.

The Arizona senator in 1962 said of the ADA—

"I am not worried about the extreme right wing in our country. They are not in the government in Washington. I am worried about the extremists to the left who are in the government."

Republican Miller in this campaign said ADA was "unquestionably the most influential organization in our nation's capital attempting to subvert and transform our government into a foreign socialistic totalitarianism."

STRIKES OIL TRICKLE

ENVALDE, Texas. (AP)—Project Mobile engineers, working a dry hole for testing equipment, discovered oil Wednesday. A pocket of oil and gas was struck at a depth of 400 feet. Geologists said it probably could produce no more than ½ barrels of oil daily. Objective of the $20,000,000 Mobole project is to drill through the earth's crust and determine its physical properties.

Second Marriages Result In Numerous Adjustments

DEAR DORIS — We have not yet been married a year. It is the second marriage for both. I'm not a drinking woman and am not used to having beer around my house.

DORIS CLARK

My husband promised me before our marriage that he would do without his beer gradually. He stopped altogether when we were first married—however he mentioned every day how nice it would be if he had some. Now it's in our house and every day he has his beer. Now he even has my daughter volunteering to run and get it for him, knowing it's against my wishes.

The point is that he says he doesn't really need it but will lose his manhood if he lets me tell him he can't have it. I say he gains it. I have given up choir work, bowling, and other organization contacts to please him and feel he should do this one thing to please me. I've even given up my love for green onions because he hates the smell of them. I hate the smell of beer.

This shows lack of respect for me. Am I right or is he? — L.M.

* * *

DEAR L.M. — It's time to bring your marriage up to date with some live-and-let-live amendments. Include tolerance of onions and beer, plus allowance for individual self-expression as choir work and drinking buddies.

Second marriages — of older people — cry out for something special in the way of adjustments. But love is worth it, isn't it?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I have a cousin who will be 14 soon. She is very ugly and this bothers her terribly. She has very small eyes and a bumpy wide nose instead of a long straight nose like yours. And big thick lips which always make her look sad and mad.

She has naturally curly hair but it is unmanageable and thick and always feels like straw. Her nails are terrible. Maybe you could send her books on how to have pretty eyes, nice hair and nails. — HELPING COUSIN.

* * *

DEAR COUSIN — Your Ugly Duckling can make just as big a splash as her namesake. Her features will improve as she grows up.

Has it ever occurred to you that too much beauty has its drawbacks? A good looker without poise can get into heaps of trouble. She comes to expect admiration; and when she comes up against the Personality Patsy who sassifies nothing and puts herself out to please, she loses out, time and again.

But things can be done about hair, nails, eye make-up. And if the nose bump is too pronounced, plastic surgery can change that. Send me a stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents for the helpful leaflets "Make-up Magic" and "Are You Really Growing Up?", along with a reading list.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Our 19-year-old daughter has been working for one year now. We feel it is time she began to pay us board, since she has assumed very little responsibility with home chores, as I had hoped. I am teaching and I could use some help in the evenings.

She has the use of our home if she wishes for entertainment and uses my automatic washer and dryer. Her weekly take-home pay is $48. What would be a fair amount to ask her? — WORKING TOO.

* * *

DEAR WORKING TOO — Now comes the pay-off. Has your girl been taught that families share, not only privileges but responsibilities? If so, the discussion you are about to have with her will be easy.

Naturally she has the use of your home. Isn't it her home?. But also naturally, she is assigned her share of chores. Calculate board to be paid according to her salary, board rates current where you are, and what your costs are.

In one home I know the only daughter made it an occasion for celebration when she brought home her first pay cheque and shared it. At last she could help solve her parents' money worries!

* * *

DEAR DORIS —I married a widower and have raised his kids like my own. Everything was fine for ten years. Then last month we went visiting my old friends, who-met my husband for the first time. They made a great fuss over both of us.

My husband did not care for my friends, especially one man who used to take me out when I wasn't married. Now he tells me he is surprised I went out with such a man, even though I said he was like a brother to me.

Since my trip my husband doesn't do much but nag me. I am not a person to run around but I feel I am going to have to run away from him. He is driving me crazy. — DEPRESTAND MISERABLE.

* * *

DEAR DEPREST — The green-eyed monster has got him and no mistake! Your man's unlikely predated you; secret feelings about his own worthlessness must have plagued him all along. Now he has found someone to take it out on: you.

With enough love and patience, you can rebuild his image of himself. Not by flying to your friends' defence, but through cheery friendship, through seeking his opinions, sharing ideas. Through the assurance of your love.

Do something with him, for the sheer fun of it.

Women Run Great Risk In Smoking

NEW YORK (AP)—Women who smoke cigarettes run twice the risk of having heart attacks as women who don't, a new study suggested Thursday.

Numerous surveys have indicated that male smokers face higher risk of heart trouble than non-smokers.

This was termed the first observation of a similar kind of risk among women smokers.

The survey showed that generally women who smoke are twice as apt to suffer a heart attack as those who do not. However, because a sizable number of women smokers were not sampled, those conducting the study were unable to arrive at a breakdown according to the volume of smoking related to the risk of heart attack.

The study conducted by the health insurance plan of Greater New York was described to the American Public Health Association by Sam Shapiro, the plan's director of research and statistics.

Luscious yellow peaches and ice cream combine for a perfect dessert to please the whole family. Sun-ripened Niagara grown peaches are plentiful now and rich ice cream, one of Ontario's favorite dairy products, is readily available throughout the year. Peel and slice fresh peaches, sprinkle with sugar, and let stand until a syrup forms; suggest home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Then spoon these golden peaches over vanilla or peach ice cream. Delicious!

MARRIAGE NOTICE

Fox — Flunder — On Wednesday, September 30th, 1964, at College Hill United Church by Rev. Roy Vesey, Audrey Gwendolyn Flunder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Corneal to Albert Christie Fox, son of Mrs. Delos Fox, of Cooper and the late Mr. Delos Fox.

* * *

Mrs. Edward J. Irving of St. Petersburg, Florida accompanied by her sisters Mrs. S. Norris of Smiths Falls, Mrs. Albert Randle and Mr. Randle of Belleville left this morning from New York where they will sail for Bermuda and spend a ten-day cruise aboard the Queen of Bermuda.

Dresses Quit Distance Above Knees

NEW YORK (AP) — The current pride of Paris, Andre Courreges, stops just short of diapers in giving age - conscious women the youngest collection of clothes ever cut in adult sizes.

Turning the tables on little girls who like to dress up in their mother's high heels and fashion maker Samuel Roberts is the white leather booties, baby bonnets that tied under the chin and dresses that quit a considerable distance above the knee.

Indeed, the audience at Thursday's opening here of the Courreges collection for leather fashion maker Samuel Roberts saw the cutest, roundest, pinkest, dimpled knees in town. These,rather than faces, were major considerations in choosing models, a Roberts spokesman said.

Yet those knees very often were covered by leather slacks slim as space suits - the kind that made Courreges the most controversial fashion designer since Yves St. Laurent in the middle 1950s.

Since this was an "oh-you-kid" collection, kid, naturally, was a favorite material, supple and sexy as it slithered over the model's bodies, fitting like that proverbial glove.

Dresses were simple little A-line silvers. Jackets and coats were slim, square - shouldered, either double - or single-breasted, and with deep - vented flying tails. Slacks were skinny and curved to the leg with invested V-slashes over the white boots, which were worn with everything.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN ERIC BRUCE

Bruce — Gilroy

White gladioli formed the background in Christ Church, Belleville for the recent marriage of Donna Faye Gilroy to John Eric Bruce.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilroy of Belleville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Eric Bruce of Toronto.

Mr. John Withers, church organist played traditional wedding music accompanied by his choir boys.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of cloud white taffeta with modified bell-shaped skirt, the front panel trimmed with Chantilly-type lace and bows. Her shoulder-length veil was secured with a small pearl crown, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and trailing ivy arranged on a white prayer book.

Miss Barbara Dybie was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Howard and Mrs. Lawrence Rowbotham. They wore floor-length dresses of royal blue brocade and their headdresses were adrill bands of the same material. They carried bouquets of white commercial mums. Flower girl was Miss Michele Sherry and ring-bearer was Lynn Joslin.

Mr. Donald Payne of Toronto was groomsman and the ushers were Wayne Gilroy, brother of the bride and Martin Bruce, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held in the Parish Hall where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a gold brocade sheath, matching shoes, turquoise hat and mink stole. Her corsage of carnations was tilted to match her hat. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing pale blue lace, matching shoes, red feathered hat and corsage of white carnations.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at two miscellaneous showers one at the home of Mrs. William Latchford with co-hostesses Mrs. Donald Sherry and Mrs. Garth Joslin; the other at the home of Mrs. Jack Dybie with co-hostess Miss Barbara Dybie. A cup and saucer shower was held at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Rowbotham. A dinner party and presentation of an electric iron was made by the office girls at IAC-Niagara. A party honoring the bridegroom was given by friends and co-workers at which time he received a gift of money.. A rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents at Hotel Quinte.

For a wedding trip through Lake Placid to St. John, N.B., thence to Quebec City and Montreal, the bride chose a cranberry double knit suit with matching hat and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce are residing at 84 Geddes Street, Belleville.

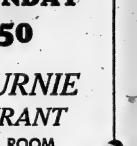
45 FOR 25TH



Dear Susanna: Would you have any leaflets on taste decorations for a silver anniversary? We are having a luncheon for about 40 to 50 ladies and want to stress the 25th anniversary. Any help you can give us will be greatly appreciated. — Mrs. Robert Shroder

You haven't mentioned what type of silver anniversary it is to be, but whether they are celebrating a wedding, lodge membership or commemorating some event, the focal point is often a large white cake with silver decorations and perhaps silver letters spelling out the date or occasion. You might wish to have it sitting on a buffet table, on the main table, or wheeled in on a tea wagon.

I would suggest a predominantly white and silver decor, with your floral arrangements bringing in the rose — either strong shades of red and yellow, or pastel tones of pastely pinks and mauves, depending on the background setting, and of course plenty of silver candlesticks with white candles to carry out the theme.

There are many, many other lovely touches you might like, such as white and silver serviettes and individual silver match boxes with a blue "25th anniversary" written on each — so I will send a letter off to you posthaste with more news and views on the sentimental subject of special occasion parties. It is also available of course in all my other friends who are interested — this means you — and you too! — Susanna

(If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper).

QUESTION:

Would you have a recipe for chocolate jelly roll? I make the white one but haven't a good recipe for a chocolate one . . .
Mrs. R. R.

ANSWER:

I was glad to receive your request for I know our readership well enough to realize this recipe will be welcome to many.

coloured. Add vanilla. Fold in the whites. Sift dry ingredients over and fold in until all are blended. Turn into wax-paper-lined buttered jelly roll pan 9½ x 15½" or 10½ x 15½" (or make a "pan", same size, of doubled heavy-duty foil -your self, butter it, and place on baking sheet). Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 13 minutes. Time is right for both sizes of jelly roll pans.

Turn out at once on clean towel liberally sprinkled with icing sugar. At once cut off crisp long edges and roll up in sugar-sprinkled towel (reclining towel) and cool on rack. (Mine took one hour to cool.) Unroll when cool, and working on towel now, spread evenly, nearly to edges with Special White Icing Filling:

(Double this recipe was given here March 6/64 and was called White Whipped Frosting.)

NOTE:

Make this white cake bakes and cools.

½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, ½ lb soft butter (½ cup), ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Mix together milk and corn starch and cook, stirring, until thick. Cool. Beat sugar, butter and vanilla together in beater for 5 minutes, until very pale and creamy. Add cooled cooked mixture and beat 15 minutes until like whipped cream.

Carefully roll up in same towel and place, open side down, on rack to set.

(MAY BE FROZEN):

Chocolate Roll Batter: 7 tablespoons cake flour, 5 tablespoons cocoa, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, 4 medium-large eggs separated, ¾ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift together the flour, cocoa, salt and baking powder. Beat egg whites until stiff, gradually add sugar, beating until very stiff. Transfer beater, without washing, to yolks and beat until thick and lemon-

Women's Institutes

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE

The regular meeting of the Canniflon-Corbyville Women's Institute was held October 5th in Canniflon Town Hall with a good attendance and two new members added. President Mrs. F. Reid was in the chair and business was attended to with the usual dispatch. Mrs. K. Bowers gave a report on the area convention which gave the members an idea of the size of the Women's Institute work.

Citizenship Convener, Mrs. F. Meale took charge, her topic being "Teenagers Need Models not Critics". While it is not possible to explore a topic of this depth in one evening Mrs. Meale left much to provoke thought in her listeners' minds. She led her subject deftly round to the greater "world citizenship" which faces the young people of today, rounding off her topic with the aspect of a community reflecting the nature of the people dwelling there. Then, for a little closer look at home provided a competition to prove who amongst the members was up to date on information concerning Thurlow township.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. J. Latchford and her assistants.

PLAINFIELD W.I.

The October meeting of Plainfield W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. H. Palmer with 19 members present.

Mrs. Sullivan opened the meeting in the usual manner, Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Emerson gave readings on education.

The motto "When you educate a man, you educate an individual, when you educate a woman, you educate a whole family," was given by Mrs. J. Salmon.

An invitation from Quinte W.I. was extended to Plainfield W.I. to attend a Tweedsmuir tea in their hall on October 24th.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Plans were discussed for a Hallowe'en party for the children to be held in the hall at Plainfield, October 31st. Mrs. Dills gave an interesting consumers' report. Mrs. Kerr gave a short report of the area convention.

It was decided to donate $20 to the scholarship fund at Twonto. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lightfoot on November 9th.

Ann Landers

Living Room Is No Place To Exhibit Gallstones

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother had surgery several weeks ago and enjoys talking about her operation more than she ever enjoyed good health.

Last evening in the presence of guests mother began to recite the details of her recent operation. I was speechless when she reached into her handbag and took out a jar which contained her gallstones. My husband was horrified. The guests were courteous but I could see stricken looks as they handed the bottle of gallstones from one to the other.

After the guests left I suggested to mother that she'd better not pass around the exhibit again because some folks might consider it offensive. Mother said, "You are wrong. It is educational. Most folks live a lifetime and never get to see a gallstone."

Am I wrong? — MARY.

• • •

DEAR MARY — Come to think of it I've never seen a gallstone, and if I never see one it will be just fine.

Few things are in worse taste or more tiresome than the details of someone else's operation. The "exhibit" is O.K. for pre-med students, but if has no place in the living room.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently I received a letter from a relative. The letter was addressed to me and the word Personal was underlined.

I read the letter, put it back in the envelope and laid it on my dressing table. Later that evening I handed the letter to my husband and asked him to read it. He replied, "I've read it already."

I was shocked and asked if he was aware the letter was addressed to me and marked "personal." He said, "So what? I never thought a thing about it."

It seems we are forever arguing. One of our major problems is his failure to acknowledge that I am entitled to privacy. What do you suggest? I'm ready to quit. — TROUBLE IN OMAHA.

• • •

DEAR OMAHA — You don't divorce a man because he read a letter addressed to you.

His lack of respect for your rights is a symptom of deeper problems. You need a third party to listen to both sides and pinpoint the real trouble. Ask your clergyman or the Family Service Association to help you.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Two years ago my husband's brother borrowed $2,000 from us to make a down payment on a home. They were living in a small apartment with two small children — and we felt sorry for them.

Last spring they had another baby so my husband decided not to say anything about the debt. I was furious when they bought a boat for $700 that same summer.

We want to buy a home and the $2,000 would come in mighty handy. My husband doesn't want to ask them for it now because they expect another baby this fall.

We realize four children in seven years is expensive, but I feel they are taking advantage of us. Am I being petty? — S-4.

• • •

DEAR S-4 — Just because the stork is practically a household pet at your brother-in-law's house doesn't excuse him from paying debts. Your husband should quit making alibis and ask his brother what he intends to do about the money he owes. The boat purchase clearly indicates a lack of integrity. If his brother had paid $25 a month, the debt would have been more than half returned by now.

• • •

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

B. G. H. Nurses' Alumnae Elects Officers at Meeting

Belleville General Hospital Nurses Alumnae met in Education Hall for their regular meeting. The newly appointed officers took over and are as follows: president, Mrs. Ruth Bly; 1st vice-president, Miss Sheila Sager; treasurer, Mrs. Doreen Fredericks; secretary, Miss Sheila Sager.

Conveners are: membership, Mrs. Isobel McGee; food, Mrs. Alice Smith; cards, Mrs. Irene Burns; historian, Mrs. Doreen Fredericks; telephone, Mrs. Dorothy Taylor; bulletin, Mrs. Doris Howie; press reporter and advertising, Sheila Sager and Mrs. Ruth Bly; report to Hospital Auxiliary, Mrs. Campbell.

It was decided to have a "Stardust Ball" at Club Commodore at which Miss Star Dust for 1964 will be crowned. The dance which will be open to the public, will be convened by Mrs. Frederick and her committee.

At the next regular meeting of the Alumnae, Miss Donnan, a Belleville General Hospital graduate, will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Doris Howie and Mrs. Alice Smith were hostesses for the evening and served refreshments.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: A close friend of mine is getting married and I've been invited to three showers in her honor. One is being given by her maid of honor, another by a girl she works with and the third by a former classmate. I know each of the hostesses quite well, which is why I've been so roundly invited. I'd like to know, though, if I have to bring a gift to each shower, or is it permissible to bring a substantial gift to the first and skip bringing gifts to the other two? — N. M. L., Columbus, Ohio.

Answer: Shower gifts are supposed to be in the moderate price category, so if you attend all three showers (I think you can beg off from one, at least, if you want to. You certainly have a good enough excuse) you might bring a small gift to each so you won't feel uncomfortable when every one else whips out a gift.

DESERONTO

Council Trying to Acquire Right-of-Way to Property

DESERONTO — Monday's meeting of the town council was relatively short as the members quickly disposed of the regular order of business. Committee chairmen had nothing to report and the new business was confined to minor items.

Under new business Reeve Clayton Brooks moved that the bootcamium be set for the special meeting that was held immediately after the previous regular meeting of the Council.

Speaking to the minutes of the special meeting Mayor Gerald Lott informed council that the meeting had been called because the item considered had been forgotten in the regular order of business.

The special meeting concerned the town's proposal to acquire waterfront property opposite the old Ideal Venders building on the Bayshore Road at the western limits of Deseronto.

In purchasing the property from the Ideal Venders Company of Deseronto the town had overlooked the acquisition of the right-of-way to the waterfront owned by Mr. Fred Carter of Napanee.

Until the property owned by the Napanee resident can be acquired the town has no access to the land they hope to develop into a Centennial Park.

At a special meeting the Council made an offer of $800 to Mr. Carter for the required access.

An interview with Mr. Carter indicated that he was "not interested" in the offer made by the Council.

Under the regular order of business Council decided to accept the offer of Mr. Doug Chapman for the property on Main Street adjoining his restaurant. The property was up for sale for taxes and according to the town clerk no other offer had been made.

Although some members felt that the council should wait for additional offers it was pointed out that the property had been properly advertised as for sale for taxes in the Ontario Gazette.

Council then voted to accept Mr. Chapman's offer for the land.

Two letters from the Ontario Water Resources Commission were read in council. The first contained an offer from the Commission to act as intermediary in making application to the Department of Municipal Affairs for a loan to cover the initial cost of the filtration system for Deseronto.

The second letter contained advice to the council in dealing with the matter of the loan.

The Commission suggested three alternatives to the Council in dealing with the application for money. The Council could apply for the money immediately; apply for the funds as part of a winter works program; or, wait until the proposed new subsidy allocations for winter works were set and then make application.

Council voted to lay over the letter until the November meeting.

A letter from the County Engineer was read reporting on his inspection of the problem of water seepage in the area of the Canada Optical plant.

It stated that no reason for the continued seepage was indicated and suggested that the town provide a drainage ditch to carry the water past the optical plant to the bay.

A note of amusement was struck under new business when Councillor Percy Brooks suggested that the Council follow up their letters to the federal members requesting the removal of the derelict ships in the harbor.

Council pointed out to Mr. Brooks that the ships in question had been removed over a month ago.

Ratepayers Given Report By President

DESERONTO — The first fall meeting of the Ratepayers' Association met in the town hall this week to hear a special report on the town of Deseronto and review the activities of the organization in the past year.

President James McVicker, speaking to the association, outlined the areas of municipal and local activity in which the Deseronto Ratepayers' Association had played an important part.

Dealing with the question of education for the local students of high school age the president made clear that it was only through continual representation by members of the organization that the citizens of Deseronto were made aware of the loss that would have been incurred financially by the town if Deseronto had joined the Napanee area.

He pointed out that $65,000 in grants would have been assigned to the Napanee school area if the local government had won their battle to have Deseronto join that group.

"If this had happened we would have had no relief in taxation next year in the field of educational costs. As it is, the Ratepayers Association has done much to assure a reduction in the mill rate in this area at least."

Mr. McVicker commended the association for their assistance in making this fact known to the public.

NOT PLACED ON STREETS

Speaking to the subject of refuse cans provided for the downtown area by the association the president had this to say.

"Although the refuse cans were prepared and picked up by the local works department they were, for some reason not placed on the streets."

"Only the pointed enquiry of a ratepayer to a member of the council brought about the placing of these cans."

In covering the accomplishments of the local association Mr. McVicker took time to explain the background of interest and investigation that had resulted in the placing of new highway signs designating approaches to Deseronto.

"We cannot say that we were totally responsible for the placing of these signs. I can assure you, however, that the action of an interested ratepayer who made representation to the local member in the Provincial House had much to do with the placing of these important signs."

President McVicker also pointed out that the continued interest of the Ratepayers' Association has done much to keep the building of the bridge to Prince Edward County in the public eye.

The receiving and discussion of Chartered Accountant Ross Neal's report on the local administration completed the business of the organization.

Heavy Damage From Smoke, Water in Fire

DESERONTO — Members of Deseronto's Volunteer Fire Department experienced little difficulty in extinguishing a fire in the home of Mrs. C. W. Duffield on Thomas Street last Sunday afternoon, but not before considerable damage had been done to an upstairs bedroom.

Smoke was first noticed by neighbors shortly after Mrs. Duffield had left her home for the afternoon.

Fire was confined to a bedroom and started in bedclothing. Although about $800 in damages was caused by the concentration of heat and smoke in the immediate area of the fire it is estimated that three times that amount in damages was caused by the water damage.

Former Officer Of SIU Given Year in Jail

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul Ernest Carsh, 37-year-old former official of the Seafarers International Union of Canada (Lind) was sentenced Wednesday to one year in jail for the part he played in the beating of a rival union leader seven years ago.

The sentence was handed down by Judge Emile Trottier before whom Carsh pleaded guilty late last month to a conspiracy charge in connection with the beating of Captain Henry Francis Walsh in Owen Sound in 1957.

Hal C. Banks, deposed SIU president, had earlier been found guilty in connection with the same case and was sentenced to five years in prison. While Banks was out on $25,000 bail awaiting an appeal of this judgment he fled to the United States. The bail was forfeited.

A third man, Eldon (Jack) Richardson, 38, is awaiting trial Nov. 3 on an identical conspiracy charge. His bail was cancelled Tuesday.

Now there are four great BP gasolines... one Regular and three Supers.

Why four? Because it takes exactly four, each with its own scientifically determined octane rating, to satisfy the full range of power requirements of the 148 makes of cars on the road. That's why BP has added two new medium-octane, medium-price Super gasolines between Regular and the top-powered Super.

Perhaps you are one of the 591,000 premium buyers who can make the switch from top-priced fuels to one of BP's new intermediate gasolines. You'll save 2¢, even 4¢ per gallon... save enough to buy up to 900 extra miles of driving in a year.

FOUR GREAT GASOLINES

One Regular and three Supers: SUPER RED is the top-octane fuel. SUPER WHITE costs 2¢ less per gallon. SUPER BLUE costs 4¢ less... and only a penny more than REGULAR.

Mrs. Kavaner, 106 Years Old, Dies in Kingston

The last member of a family of 10 children, Mrs. Kavaner was born on a farm here Nov. 10, 1857, and had lived at the hospital since breaking her hip in a fall in 1950. Her husband Alfred, predeceased her by many years.

Justice

handed down after Mr Justice Landreville's hearing. Magistrate Marck asked: "Where is the influence used by the accused? Where is the criminal act by the accused mayor? On the evidence before me I cannot find any criminal act."

The magistrate said that at a hearing and subsequent trial of Farris, who was sentenced to nine months for perjury but is free on bail pending appeal, Mr. Justice Landreville gave the same explanations for deal ings with the NONG president.

Magistrate Marck quoted the accused as saying: "I became friendly with Ralph Farris and as a result of that friendship was able to purchase some stock which at the time was of a nominal value because North ern Ontario Natural Gas at that time was little more than a paper entity with some fran chises."

The magistrate also quoted evidence which showed that at the time an option for 7,500 NONG shares was granted to Mr. Justice Landreville, it was, to the accused, "absolutely unforeseeable that the price of the stock would advance so rapidly."

Other evidence at the hearing claimed that Mr. Justice Landreville made a profit of $117,000 on the sale of NONG shares a year after he resigned as mayor to become a Supreme Court justice.

After hearing Magistrate Marck's decision, the Supreme Court justice said: "Needless to say, I have greater confidence in law courts than ever before. I can reveal at this time that in June of this year I contacted Justice Minister Favreau and requested an inquiry to vindicate my name."

He said in a statement to the press: "Before the minister made an appointment for an in quiry I was rather displeased that the attorney-general saw fit to lay charges in the middle of August.

"I hope that once and for all this will be a matter of utility and not a cause for scandal.'

Motel Owners Accused of Overcharging

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Some motel operators here have been accused of drastically overcharging guests attending the international plowing match.

James Jones, district representative for the department of tourism and information, said Thursday preliminary investigation shows that a number of motel owners almost doubled their rates.

If further inquiries turn up any positive evidence, he said, charges will be laid immediately. A summary conviction under the Tourist Establishment Act could mean a fine of not more than $50 and not less than $10.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The mail bag has been bulging with letters describing the problems that occur when people yield their property rights, without freeing themselves of their mortgage obligations.

Although the circumstances appear to differ, the following two letters demonstrate the wrong and right way to assume and assign obligations and to protect ones' vital property interests.

• • •

Dear Mr. Keltzer: I wrote you for advice a year ago and then I ignored it.

When I was transferred last year and had to sell my house I, a hurry I could find no buyer. Even though you advised against it, at the suggestion of my real estate agent, I "sold" it for the exact balance of my mortgage, which the buyer took over when I transferred title. I even ignored the rest of your advice and failed to get a collateral bond.

The new owner made a few payments (4) and then stopped. The bank did nothing for three months and then jumped in — on me. The new owner disappeared and I am still responsible for the mortgage.

As a consequence, I have had to make two trips by air (over $200), make up the payments in arrears (over $400) and continue to pay the payments since (another $400 plus). In addition, the house needs more than $600 in repairs. I can afford to pay for them or keep up two mortgage payments. The Bank plans to foreclose.

I hope my sad tale will save other readers from the same mistakes. I have learned my lesson, and if you will please give me advice as to what I can do now I won't ignore it again — believe me! — T. R. McD.

Answer: However many times I have said it, it bears repitition: Never transfer a mortgage to a new buyer without being relieved of the obligations under the mortgage!

If the lending institution will not relieve you of this obligation, it is better to sell at a lower price, if that is necessary, so that the buyer can get his own mortgage.

Since you didn't do this, I can give you very little encouragement at this point. You have trapped yourself. Not only did you give away your title for no money, you can't protect your interest because you have lost all contract of the property. The title is no longer in your name, and since you have no collateral bond or other warranty from the so-called "new buyer" you have no recourse. The bank will proceed with foreclosure. You will be responsible for the difference between the mortgage balance and the price it brings at foreclosure sale. I hope for your sake that it will be a small difference.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When my father was dying I promised him I would look out for my younger brother. I have done my best but he has taken a lot of looking after for a person irresponsible. He is being evicted from his apartment (along with his wife and four delinquent children who call me uncle) and is trying to buy a house. I am giving him the down-payment, but as he has no credit and a poor employment record, no one will give him a mortgage unless I also personally guarantee the mortgage.

As a constant reader of your column, I am aware there are many pitfalls to these arrangements, but I am my brother's keeper and I do want to help him. How best can I do it with th, fewest risks?

Answer: I deeply admire your respect for your family obligations and promises. You are right in assuming there are risks in this venture, but there are some steps you can take to protect yourself against th fate that befell our other correspondent. Mr. T. R. McD.

The first level of protection can be achieved by securing from your brother and his wife a "Collateral Bond and Warranty" wherein they agree to make the mortgage payments, keep the property in repair, etc, and reimburse you for any losses you may incur due to their actions. This is a constraint on your brother — he can't just walk away from all responsibility. In addition, you have a direct vested interest and can initiate action to protect yourself should it be necessary.

An even more direct protection can be achieved by securing from your brother and his wife a deed to the property. Do not record it. Should your brother default on his payments or abuse the property excessively, this deed can be recorded and you will become the owner of record. Then, if you become liable for the mortgage debt — at least you can do so as owner of the property, and be in a better position to protect your interest (including the down payment you provided) and your brother against an additional black mark on his credit.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Having married off my last daughter, I suddenly realize that after raising my wonderful brood the best way I could, at 38 I am nearing retirement with no savings to speak of.

A stock salesman has pointed out to me the advantages of investing in common stocks. I can get a $12,000 mortgage on our house. (It is paid for) and by investing this in stocks, the salesman says, I could have a nice nest egg by the time I retire.

Since you often compare the stock market with real estate investment, I thought I would ask your opinion on this. — A. T.

Answer: Because I often point out the advantages of real estate as an investment my stock broker friends accuse me of bias and prejudice against the stock market. This isn't true; both offer advantages — but advantages and risks should be weighed.

Common stocks can be a wonderful investment, but they are unpredictable. They can fall as well as rise in value. Blue chip stocks are the most predictable, but the average return on this group is only 4 percent.

As you will have to pay at least 5½ percent interest on your mortgage, "profits" would have to depend on how much the stock appreciated if any. Higher yield stocks are less predictable. A cardinal rule in risk investment is to use only money you can afford to lose.

A home, free and clear, is a valuable asset to a contented old age and retirement. I would not advise jeopardizing it for a risk investment.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Ever since we bought our house three-years ago we have been bothered by mildew, and it is getting worse. It has ruined clothes in our closets, gotten on our furniture, and is now starting to appear on the walls. Even our wood work. Everything has a musty smell.

We have tried leaving windows open, and closed, special chemicals — nothing seems to help.

I am at my wit's end. Can you tell us anything that we can do?

Sometimes these conditions are due to such basic causes as faulty construction — walls without moisture barriers, or improper or inadequate ventilation. Structural changes, however, can be prohibitively expensive. A simple and relatively inexpensive solution I have found usually adequate is the use of an electric portable dehumidifying unit.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Quebec City's 600 police, using 50 vehicles, including four new riot trucks, will be on duty during the weekend as well as more than 400 provincial police and hundreds of Mounties.

Routes the Queen will take will be lined with soldiers. Buses are ready to move police about quickly and fire brigades have been placed on standby.

Pierre Bourgault, president of Rassemblement, has denounced the visit as a "new or nerve situation" for separatists to turn out and show their feelings.

Meanwhile, the St. Jean-Baptiste Society has criticized the visit as "political one" and has urged Quebecers to stay home and ignore it.

Some authorities believe that fear of violence, or stories that security will be so tight crowds will hardly get a glimpse of the monarch, will keep many people home.

This attitude was reflected in a letter published by le Soleil in which the writer, a woman, felt she expressed the feelings of many Quebecers who didn't dare speak out for fear of terrorist reprisals.

With the letter was a poem welcoming the Queen and hoping she would understand the necessity for the security measures.

Two Volcanoes of British Election

LONDON (CP) — Two men rise like island volcanoes from the grey sea of candidates fighting the British general election.

The one on the left is George Brown, the bristly deputy Labor leader, on the Conservative right is Quintin Hogg, outspoken science minister. Both parties quiver when either man speaks.

Although contrasting in background, both men share a tendency to anger easily and to speak ahead of their thoughts.

Controversy erupts from them. Critics of each feel the two spend much of their time with a couple of toes—if not the whole foot—in their mouths.

Brown often gets more publicity than he wants, but Hogg feels the only successful way to fight an election is to grasp the spotlight and train it on himself.

So when Brown scuffles with a fellow MP or makes an ill-advised statement that Labor Leader Wilson has to apologize for the next day, Labor critics chalk it up to Brown's innate aggressiveness nurtured in a southeast London tenement.

But when Hogg, wearing high-laced boots and a bowler hat, whirs through London traffic on his bantam bicycle, or when he dons shorts and dashes into icy surf for photographers at a Tory party conference, even his closest friends admit there is a touch of connivance about him.

BOTH LOVED AND HATED

Both men are widely loved and widely hated. It has been said that Mrs. Hogg is the Labor party's secret weapon. Brown has been described as Prime Minister Douglas-Home's ace in the hole.

Brown is a staunch trade unionist and has held the labor stronghold constituency of Belper, in Derbyshire, without difficulty since 1945. He left school at 16 and says he distrusts "intellectuals." He is 50, is married and has two daughters.

Hogg hates unions and socialism and sees himself as a master planner granted the task of convincing Britain never to let the Labor party back into power. He calls himself an

SELF - PROPELLED CAMPAIGNER. — Quintin Hogg, British minister of science and the former Lord Hailsham, conducts a do-it-yourself campaign in London as he visits his constituents by bicycle seeking the parliamentary seat for St. Marylebone as a Conservative. He does a daily bit of canvassing for the October 15 general election.

(AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

"egghead" and whizzed through Oxford University on scholarships. He writes poetry and translates Greek into English for fun. His is 57, married, with four children.

What makes Brown and Hogg similar is their forthrightness and refusal to compromise. Brown, who has a habit of calling people "brother" and doesn't mind if they call him "basher," once said, with perhaps more irony than he realized: "I speak my mind, right or wrong."

Hogg's father told him people pay for opinions and not doubts, and Hogg has usually followed this rule by dispensing his views lavishly and without disinterest.

LAND IN HOT WATER

In the present election campaign it was widely felt both Hogg and Brown would soon be in hot water. Sure enough, Brown mused at a public meeting that the Labor party, if elected, might reduce mortgage interest rates for three per cent. This produced headlines and a fuss that wasn't really eased by Wilson's denial and attack on the press.

Soon afterwards Hogg let hecklers get the better of him. They shouted "Profumo" and Hogg snapped: "If you can tell me there are no adulterers on the front bench of the Labor party, you can talk about Profumo."

The repercussions were tremendous. Tory party chairman Lord Blakenham said Hogg had been spurred into making the impromptu remark by discourteous treatment of his wife.

Things reached a high pitch Thursday night when the science minister's car was mobbed by a jeering crowd in London and police had to clear a way for him to leave a London rally.

Critics remember fondly the time Hogg referred to a colleague at a fellow MP in Parliament, but most admit the minister—when not driving his car—has a charming, courteous man with much of the upper - class bearing that masks his aristocratic ancestors.

He was Lord Hailsham until he surrendered his title so he could sit in the House of Commons.

For all his brashness and pugnacity, Brown, son of a bricklayer, has admirers outside the unions.

Principals at today's public schools teachers' institute convention discuss the day's theme — Mental Health. From the left are L. A. Keils, schools superintendent; Mrs. J. Sule, representing CMHA; Mrs. Nan Swan; Mrs. Grace Anderson; special speaker Dr. Marjorie King; Inspector J. M. Cousins, and Mr. D. Urquhart, Toronto Board of Education language consultant.

Heiress Sheds Ex-Chauffeur Whom She Wed

NEW YORK (AP) — Heiress Gamble Benedict won annulment Thursday of her four-year marriage to ex-chauffeur Andre Porumbeanu. She described him as a lecher, a leech and a drunk.

The 39-year-old Porumbeanu, Romanian - born, was denied visitation rights of any kind with their two children, Ghorghe, 2, and Grigori, 1. He did not contest the annulment action.

Gamble testified that her husband had no regular job and that she spent at least $500,000 to support him during the marriage. She told of drinking bouts in which Porumbeanu started off with beer, interspersed scotch and brandy, then switched to wine and tapered off with beer. She said he was in a "continuous state of alcoholism."

The heiress testified further that a 17 - year - old German nursemaid was aborted earlier this year of Porumbeanu's child, and that when she had girl friends visiting overnight he tried to get into their rooms.

The 23-year-old Gamble, who fell in love with Porumbeanu while he still was married to his first wife, claimed in her suit that his Mexican divorce was illegal, and that he still is married to Mrs. Helma Porumbeau.

Shaaryn Wylie Crowned Queen Of the Furrow

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Shaaryn Wylie, 18, of Victoria Harbor was crowned 1964 Queen of the Furrow Thursday over 13 competitors at the International Plowing Match here.

Shaaryn is the daughter of Byrnell Wylie of Oakwood, who won a combination of height, deportment and ability to handle a tractor and plough.

Janet Henderson of St. George, Ont., and Ferne Bolton of, Peterborough placed second and third. Contestants were chosen by their branches of the sponsoring Ontario plowmen's association.

The event, which drew more spectators than any other this week, started early for the girls and ended late.

Shaaryn who said she was "proud to represent my area," explained later a possible edge —the equipment she used was the same as that used on her father's farm.

Mental Health of School Aged Child Discussed By P.S. Teachers at Meeting

Mental health of the school aged child and how to deal with it at the classroom level was the theme today at the Harry J. Clarke Public School as members of the Belleville Public School Teachers' Institute met for their annual conference.

Close to 170 city public school teachers, listened to prominent speakers, entered in group discussions and heard a panel discussion on community resources.

Guest speakers for this morning's session were Dr. Marjorie King, well known psychologist, and director of educational training for the Canadian Mental Health Association and Mr. D. Urquhart, co - ordination consultant of languages for the Toronto Board of Education.

SCHOOL SECOND TO HOME

Teachers' Institute President Mrs. Grace Anderson presided over the day's session and promised the day's discussions on mental health would be most helpful to the teachers.

The role of the school was second only to that of the home in the development of a child and as such played a very important part in fostering good mental health, she said.

Dr. King told her listeners that external and internal pressures played a big part in the mental ailments of a child.

If the external pressures applied by parents and classroom authority was too great, the child was apt to build up an internal pressure with result that he will resent authority and misbehave.

Ways which parents used to impose control over their children were to threaten to withdraw love and affection, and to withdraw privileges, and to some extent used the same technique to encourage conformity with threats of rejection.

BETTER TO SUGGEST

Parents on one hand continually nag their children to grow up and at the same time refuse to allow them to grow up by treating them as children and denying them independence.

Rather than attempt to impose control by being "bossers," Dr. King said it was better for parents to suggest instead that they would like their children to do things.

"There should be a mutual desire for something to be done," she said.

Authoritative parents denied their children any right to be independent.

Children adopt many different ways of fighting back to show they resent the manner of authority held over them. Some rebellious and others tend to withdraw and refuse to apply themselves in classes.

ILLUSTRATES TALK

What was needed was an affectionate relationship with others and a need for a child to have its own identity.

Dr. King illustrated her talk on mental health with true to life stories, depicting the child's viewpoint on different problems.

One of the stories was about "Johnny," whose doctor had recommended the drinking of milk as a means of building up his health.

The over-anxious mother insisted that her boy drink his milk before meals with result that he lost all appetite and got back at his mother by doing poor work at school.

There was no suggestion, Dr. King said, that all problems in mental health could be solved as simply as with Johnny's milk.

ENJOY LUNCHEON

But often some simple change in the life of a child will serve to correct an important mental attitude.

School teachers and guests enjoyed a box luncheon at noon and then in the afternoon took part in workshop discussions.

The afternoon panel discussion on community resources saw Lawrence A. Keils, superintendent and chief inspector, as moderator with panel members being Dr. Evelyn Williamson, psychiatrist; Miss Janice Kerr, Children's Aid Society; Lloyd Doran, recreational director; Mrs. A. J. Ford, home and School Associations and Miss Kay Abbott, nursing supervisor for the health department.

The day's program and discussions on mental health was arranged by Mrs. J. Sule, representing the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Self-Lighting Cigarette Poses Problem

LONDON (AP)—A British tobacco firm has drawn attention to Mr. Justice Sir Archie Marshall in the high court action involving a cigarette with built-in ignition a match?

The Autolite Cigarette Company Limited and the British customs and excise authorities both want an answer.

Because if a cigarette with built-in ignition is a match, the company has to pay a purchase tax of 25 shillings (3.50) per 10,000 cigarettes, or matches, or cigarettes or whatever they are.

If it isn't a match it doesn't. The tobacco firm said the cigarettes huge a combustible substance on their tips. When rubbed against a spot on the cigarettes have a combustible tible material ignites, the tobacco matches fire and all the smoker has to do is start puffing.

The commissioners or customs and excise argued that something you rub against something else so that it readily lights is, by common definition, a match.

Mr. Justice Marshall having examined a pack of the cigarettes, or cigarette-matches, or matches, took the matter under advisement.

Expect Progress This Weekend In GM Strike

DETROIT (AP)—A U.S.-wide strike against General Motors entered its third week today with an optimistic note being sounded for a speedup in solving local plant problems.

United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther told reporters Thursday he expected "very substantial movement" this weekend in local negotiations.

Despite Reuther's prediction of a thaw in the negotiations freeze, more than 100 local UAW bargaining units have failed to resolve their differences with individual plant management.

Latest reports showed that only 20 of 130 local units had reached agreements.

The giant automaker had turned out about 285,000 Chevrolets, Buicks, Pontiacs Oldsmobiles and Cadillacs when the UAW ordered more than a quarter - million workers to strike Sept. 25.

Ford Motor Company 1965 model production is expected to climb to 342,000 this week The figures do not include early Mustang production, a Ford spokesman said.

Government of Canada 91-day treasury bills sold this week: $150,000,000 at an average price and yield of $99.050 and 3.68 per cent (last week $99.088 and 3.73 per cent). 182-day bills: $30,000,000, average price and yield $98.129 and 3.82 per cent (last week $98.099 and 3.87 per cent).

JULY SALES UP

July sales of wholesalers in Canada were estimated at $680,971,000, up 7.4 per cent from the year-ago figure total of $634,651,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday. Value of January - July sales was $6,589,416,000, or 11.5 per cent more than the $5,911,628,000 in last year's corresponding period.

ACQUIRES INTEREST

Aluminium Limited announced Thursday it has agreed to buy the minority interests in the Alcoil, Inc., aluminium rolling mill in Oswego, N.Y. from the three other participants and to acquire the minimum fabricating facilities of two of the participants. The changeover will be effective Jan. 1, 1965.

DROP PLAN

Canadian Delhi Oil and Standard Oil co., have rescinded their agreement which would have enabled Standard Oil to acquire 51 per cent of the Canadian firm's stock, because of the effect of the U.S. interest equalization tax.

Frank Schultz, Canadian Delhi president, said Thursday both companies have appealed to the U.S. internal revenue service asking that the three per cent tax on stock of foreign companies acquired by U. S. residents not apply in the case of Canadian Delhi. The request was refused.

False Statement Made On Immigration Papers Minister Tells Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — Appeals were made in the Commons Thursday on behalf of a Jamaican girl in danger of being deported over her application to bring two illegitimate children to this country.

New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas suggested to Immigration Minister Tremblay that it smacks of injustice to think of deporting the girl simply because her children were born out of wedlock. He urged the minister to permit her to remain.

Mr. Tremblay said he has investigated the circumstances and found that in applying to enter Canada Miss Daisy Henry made no mention of the two children on her immigration papers.

She was disqualified from remaining in Canada because she made a false statement on her papers. The decision of the immigration officials and the Immigration Appeal Board was in no way discrimination because of her race or color.

He noted that the Toronto Globe and Mail quotes one source as saying the immigration officer uttered discriminatory statements. He planned to find out whether the official had, in fact, done so. If he had, the official would have to suffer the consequences of his action.

WILL MAKE RULING

Mr. Tremblay said the immigration appeal board's decision on the case — Miss Henry appealed a deportation order — now is before him. He has discretionary powers under the immigration act to set aside the board's decision.

He said he will have to determine whether the matter actually involves the technical, of making a false declaration or whether there are other factors such as Miss Henry's apparent intention to marry which would require humanitarian considerations.

Mr. Douglas suggested to Prime Minister Pearson that it is about time to end the situation where the immigration department has a law unto itself and to provide for appeal of departmental decisions to the courts.

Mr. Pearson, stating he doesn't accept Mr. Douglas' words about the department, said some change in immigration laws is desirable. He hoped the time to make them would come when the Commons completed legislative business now listed on the order paper.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) requested, and Mr. Tremblay agreed, that the Commons be given the report of Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick on immigration procedures.

Mr. Tremblay said he expects Mr. Sedgwick's report by the end of November and intends to table it in the Commons.

In Toronto Ronald Blackwood, a Jamaican-born clergyman of the British Episcopal Church said Immigration Inquiry Officer Clifford Desormeau told him Canada has a right to select its citizens and that Jamaicans habitually live together without getting married.

Mr. Blackwood, in an interview, said the officials told him Canada does not want these kind of people and threatened to throw him out of the Toronto immigration centre when he argued Miss Henry's case.

Both Mr. Desormeau and Ian R. Stirling, superintendent of the central region for the department of citizenship and immigration, declined to answer Mr. Blackwood's charges. Mr. Stirling said all statements have to come from Ottawa.

Mr. Blackwood said that after the Aug. 27 decision was handed down, an appeal was launched. But when he was told unofficially the appeal would fail, a public appeal was started, he said.

Basil Lemmon Committed on Murder Charge

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Basil Dee Lemmon, 24, of R.R. 1 Odessa, Ont., Thursday was committed for trial on a charge of capital murder in connection with the shooting of his estranged wife last July 27.

Judith May Lemmon, 20-year-old mother of two, died in Kingston hospital three hours after the shooting at her home, six miles east of here.

Miss Bertha May Harris of Kingston testified that she, Lemmon and Mrs. Lemmon went to the house so that Mrs. Lemmon could collect her belongings. She said she was there when she heard two shots. She saw Lemmon leave the house, climb into a car and drive off.

Lemmon was arrested later the same day at Pembroke, Ont., after he was stopped him for a traffic violation.

Miss Harris said she and Lemmon had been dating about 10 days before Mrs. Lemmon was killed. She and Lemmon planned to be married after he and his wife were divorced.

Mrs. Lemmon agreed, in her presence to divorce her husband, Miss Harris said.

Yoke of Oxen Used to Plow At Matches

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Even the old times wondered just how long ago it was they last saw a yoke of oxen breaking the ground.

To the young, it was like something from the realm of moving pictures or television.

It was merely a demonstration because there wasn't even a clevis for plowing by oxen.

The animals are owned by Kalman Brewda, Peterborough area dairy farmer.

Faveau Says Facts on Banks Are Distorted

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Accusations by Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker of government complicity in the escape of Harold C. Banks from Canada would have constituted a serious libel had they been made outside the House of Commons, Justice Minister Guy Favreau said Thursday night.

Mr. Favreau said in an interview that Mr. Diefenbaker and opposition members, who have "ganged up" on him following the escape of the former boss of the Seafarers International Union of Canada (Incl.) from Canadian justice, have taken undue advantage of the parliamentary immunity.

(Banks' disappearance came to light July 21 when he was to appeal a Ewyear penitentiary term for conspiracy to assault a rival union official. His bail of $25,000 was cancelled when he failed to appear in court in Montreal. He was located in New York last week.)

The Conservative Opposition Wednesday called for Mr. Favreau's resignation in the House as the price for Banks escape.

Mr. Favreau said the opposition was attempting to exploit the Banks' issue for sinister purposes and to distort the facts and create unfavorable biases.

ISSUE IS ABSURD

It is absurd, he said, for anyone to suggest that the Banks to thwart Canadian justice.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

With the baseball world in its annual throes of world series fever and buffs of both the Yankees and Cardinals rooting sometimes fanatically for their favorites, it is recalled that clubs other than the former Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Gashouse Gang were not the only wacky outfits to perform on the diamond.

There were some who said the moon caused it. Be that as it may, sheer lunacy prevailed at Washington in 1931 when the Yankees played the Senators. The contest probably produced the greatest number of daffy plays per square inning ever witnessed in the major leagues.

The game started under anything but the best conditions. It was delayed 15 minutes because of heavy fog and a strong wind. These alone put the players on edge.

First off the bat the Yankees' Lary walked with one out. Cooke fanned. Lou Gehrig poled one into the stands in deep centre and it looked like two runs for the Yanks. Now came the moment of madness. Lary came around from first, tagged third base with his foot and then sauntered into the dugout.

Gehrig came around third, crossed the plate and was ruled out by Umpire McGowan for having technically passed Lary on the base path. Gehrig lost his homer and was credited with a triple. The third out retired the side and the Yankees lost two runs and later the game 9-7.

From then on everything appeared to go "crazy". In the third Joe Cronin dropped a Texas leaguer. Bluege sent a blooper to right field and Dusty Cooke trying for a shoestring catch fell to the ground in a semi-comatose condition. The ball was a yard away and Gehrig came racing for it, but Bluege pounded around the base paths for a legal homer.

Meanwhile the whole Yankee team rushed on the diamond where Cooke lay with a broken collarbone and torn ligaments. Later pitcher Red Ruffing added to the confusion by refusing to hurry his throws because of a sore arm.

Later in the game Cronin was credited with a triple when Sam Byrd fell down as he was about to catch a fly. Manush added to the chaos around third base for the reason he thought there were two out instead of three.

Byrd and Lary crashed into each other adding a fluke double to the flukey homer already credited to Bluege. And Spencer, the Senators' catcher, charged all the way down to first base to succeed in knocking a pop fly out of Judge's hand.

Another time, Fischer, the Washington pitcher, took a grounder, made several motions to throw to several bases and then got the ball over to Judge too late to nip the runner at first.

Fischer's indecisive motions before throwing seemed to confuse the Yankee base runners because after Judge caught the ball too late to put his man out, he happened to glance across the diamond and saw two Yankees perched on third.

Instead of throwing the ball, Judge simply ran across the diamond and tagged one of them out. At this point Umpire Connolly, took down with the fever, called the wrong man out so that he had to summon him back from the Yankee bench and put him on third again.

To add to all this there were more scratch hits than ever again, with balls dropping all around the feet of the fielders. And two Washington pitchers were wild-pitched across the plate.

Umpire McGowan got back into the action by staging a mind-reading act. In the ninth the Yankees' Chapman was batting with two strikes on him. McGowan called the next one a ball. Catcher Spencer of the Senators turned quickly to protest the call. Umpire McGowan promptly ruled Spencer out of the game. When the catcher insisted he hadn't opened his mouth, the umps agreed and told him "I know that—you're out of the game for what you were thinking."

Incidentally Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth finished that season tied for home-run honors, each having hit forty-six. The ball Gehrig hit in that mad contest was as clean a home run as was ever recorded, yet Lary's mistake at third nullified it and it went into the books as a triple. Otherwise Gehrig would have been the home run king of the year.

"Best Wishes To Lewis" Club Started

John Lewis, this city's representative at the Olympic Games which get under way tomorrow, will compete for Canada in the mid-heavy weightlifting competition on or about October 17th.

The Lions Club of the city feel that the best wishes of the city and district sportsmen and others should be sent to the young athlete.

The Lions are sponsoring a cabled wire to John which will bear the signatures of those desirous of sending him "good luck."

The wire cost for two words is 35 cents.

This is not a fund-raising scheme. The thirty-five cents charge covers the cost of the cable and the two-words name of the senders.

The writer knows what a great morale-booster the cables sent to the 1959 world champion Maryland's hockey team proved to be.

Lewis, unlike the Macs, has no personal friends with him, people he has known for years.

The Lions Club cards will be in the places of business tomorrow.

Jack Whiting Commercial League M.V.P.

Individual trophy winners for the 1964 season were named following a meeting of the Belleville Commercial Softball League executive last night.

Whiting becomes the first winner of the new George H. Carver Trophy, donated for annual competition by the sports editor of The Ontario Intelligencer this season.

Tim Cook, of the Barriage Landscapers, regular season pennant winners and playoff runnersup, was named the league's most gentlemanly player.

Whips Cards 8-3 On 7 Hits ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Stottlemyre Gives Yankees Big Edge

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Series was all even at one victory each today but New York Yankees appeared to have a decided edge over St. Louis Cardinals because of a rookie pitcher named Mel Stottlemyre.

The young righthander whipped the Cards 8-3 on seven hits Thursday for the first Yankee triumph after five straight series defeats.

"One of our scouts reported that Stottlemyre might be the best pitcher on their staff," said Redbird manager Johnny Keane, "but I never pictured him that good."

The next three games, following a day of rest today will be played at Yankee Stadium. Stottlemyre is scheduled to pitch again Monday.

Keane is set for Saturday's third game with southpaw Curt Simmons (16-9) opposing righthander Jim Bouton (18-13) of the Yankees. After that Keane will have to come back with lefty Ray Sadecki and Gibson for the fourth and fifth games.

On the other hand, Yankee manager Yogi Berra has Whitey Ford primed for the fourth game with his usual three-day rest, to be followed by Stottlemyre.

Ford has been almost unbeatable in spacious Yankee Stadium.

YANKS FOUND GIBSON

Stottlemyre, the 22 year-old sinker ball specialist, contained the Cards with only two outfield flies aside from their seven safeties. The Yankees pounded Gibson and three relievers for a dozen hits, including four doubles and a home run.

This gave the Yankees 24 hits in two games, three more than they accumulated in the entire series against Los Angeles Dodgers last year. The Cards have 19 hits in the two games.

"They're a good hitting club," conceded Keane. "Our pitchers are good but there's only one Sandy Koufax. I regard Koufax as a super pitcher."

Koufax defeated the Yankees twice in the Dodgers' four-game sweep last October, establishing a record with 15 strikeouts in the opener.

The rhubarb occurred in the sixth inning with the score tied at 1-1. Mickey Mantle opened the Yankees' half of the sixth drawing a walk from Gibson. Elston Howard lined to second baseman Dal Maxvill. The count on Pepitone was two balls and one ball when the first baseman took a ball swing at an inside curve ball.

Plate umpire Bill McKinley ruled the ball nicked Pepitone on the thigh and awarded him first base. Gibson, Keane and the entire Cardinal infield rushed to the plate.

"We all heard the ball hit the bat first," insisted Keane.

"Pepitone didn't make a move toward first until McKinley sent him to first base. I thought McKinley asked first base umpire for help but both claimed he didn't."

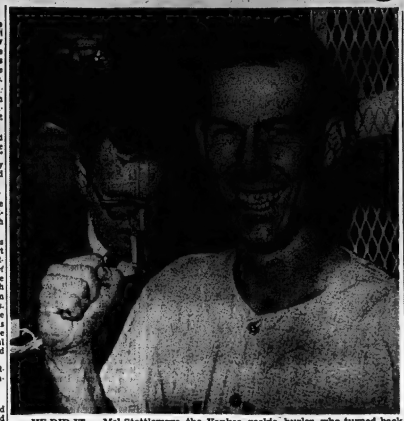
Then he pointed to his left thigh. No one told him that McKinley had pointed to his own right thigh in giving his version.

That disputed play was the turning point. Tommy Tresh followed with a single that scored Mantle with the tie - breaking run.



The Yankees added two more in the seventh, extending their lead to 4-1 on singles by Phil Linz, Bobby Richardson and Roger Maris, with a Gibson wild pitch thrown in.

With Gibson out for a pinch-hitter, the Yankees sailed the game with a four-run barrage in the ninth, triggered by Linz' home run off reliever Barney Schultz.

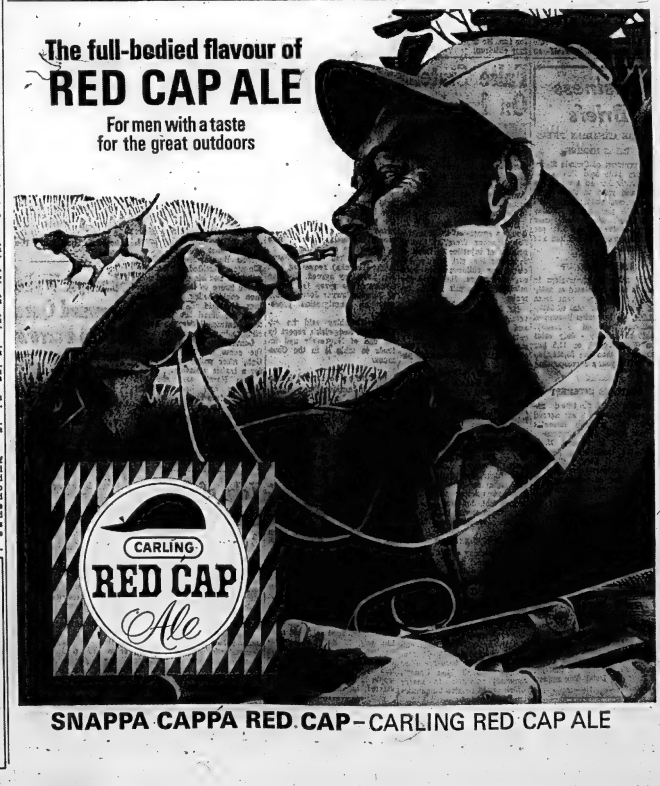
Berra, asked whether he was glad to get out of Busch Stadium, said:

"Twenty - four hits in two games ain't so bad, is it? It's our turn now. It's just as hard for them to play in Yankee Stadium as it is for us to play in their park. We got adjusted pretty good. Now let's see if they get adjusted to our park."



HE DID IT — Mel Stottlemyre, the Yankees rookie hurler who turned back the Cardinals 8-3 in second World Series game, interrupts dressing room interview to pose for picture. Series is now tied up, one game apiece. (AP Wirephoto)

Moore May Play Against Stars

Gets Imlach OK

TORONTO (CP)—Leftwinger Dickie Moore, trying a comeback after a season's layoff and a knee operation, may play for Toronto Maple Leafs against a National Hockey League all-star team in the annual clash here Saturday.

"He's 100 per cent better than when we left" on a 10-game western exhibition tour, Leaf coach Punch Imlach said Thursday. "If he wants to try it, he can play as far as I'm concerned." Imlach would only say if Moore had signed with the Leafs.

Both Imlach and all-star coach Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings are having their troubles shuffling lineups for the Nov. 11 all-star game.

The Stanley Cup champion Leafs meet a team made up of players from the other five NHL teams, but pre-season injuries have taken their toll.

Toronto will miss defenceman Allan Stanley, who has an injured knee, and forward Red Kelly, in Tokyo as Canadian government representative at the Olympic Games.

HILLMAN RECRUITED

Imlach called up defenceman Larry Hillman from Rochester of the American League to replace Stanley.

Bob Baun and Jim Pappin, other Leaf players injured during a 7-game exhibition series, have been given the go ahead for the all-star game.

Abel aid in Detroit Thursday that two and perhaps three of his original lineup are out for Saturday.

However, he expects Camille Henry of New York Rangers, previously considered a doubtful starter, to be on hand.

Centre Henri Richard of Montreal and defenceman Bill Gadsby of Detroit were sidelined with injuries as the Canadiens and Red Wings were winding up their exhibition series.

INJURED GROIN

Abel said he has asked for rightwinger Claude Provost of Montreal to help round out his lineup.

The all-star coach also corrected an earlier NHL announcement that leftwinger Dean Prentice of Boston Bruins will join Saturday's all-star team in addition to forwards Murray Oliver and Johnny Bucyk, the Boston contribution will include Leo Boivin, not Prentice.

In St. Catharines, Tommy Ivan, general manager of Chicago, Thursday announced the signing of Dennis Hull, 18, high-scoring younger brother of NHL star Bobby Hull.

Pearson Cables Best Wishes

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson today cabled best wishes of the government and of all Canadians to Canada's team at the 18th Olympics in Tokyo.

He said: "These great and historic games - where race, color and creed are ignored and the only test is the quality of performance - will be watched through the eyes of Telstar by millions in Canada and throughout the world.

"In these Games, which come so closely before the commencement of the International Cooperation Year, I wish you the best of success in your contests and hope you will find enduring friendships amongst the hundreds from other countries who, like you, have attained the highest prize that sport can offer, that of representing their country in the Olympic Games.

"I am confident that, win or lose, you will acquit yourselves with distinction and exemplify the best in good sportsmanship. Good luck and best wishes."

If, If, If?

The Second-Guessers Say

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP)—How often can you work a 36-year-old relief pitcher in the World Series after he has pitched day in and day out during the heat of the pennant stretch?

That was the question that had the second-guessers buzzing today.

St. Louis Cardinals manager Johnny Keane had called on his veteran knuckleball specialist, Barney Schultz, in the ninth inning of Thursday's 8-3 loss to New York Yankees in the second game of the Series.

Schultz, who had preserved Ray Sadecki's victory in the opener Wednesday, was called in with the Cardinals trailing 4-2.

Phil Linz, the first man up for the Yankees in the ninth, slugged a homer that made it 5-2. One out later, Roger Maris stroked a single and Keane was on his way out to the mound.

LACKED RIGHT PITCHER?

If Keane had come up with a relief pitcher in the ninth who could have checked the Yankees, Yankee pitcher Mel Stottlemyre might have been yanked in the last of the ninth when Dick Groat led off with a triple and Tim McCarver followed with a single.

Under those circumstances the score would have been 4-3 with Mike Shannon, another of the heroes from a day before, the batter due up.

Shannon had hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning of Wednesday's game and Yankee manager Yogi Berra had ranked starter Whitey Ford When Berra went to his bull pen and brought in Al Downing, the Cardinals proceeded to score two more runs and break it open.

Keane had been asked before Thursday's game how often a pitcher as old as Schultz could work without a rest.

"He pitched five straight games for me there in the last week of the season," Keane said. "I don't see why I can't use him right away again if I have to."

WIN TV RIGHTS

MONTREAL (CP) — An advertising agency announced Thursday it has acquired television rights for 1965 and 1966 Western Football Conference games. The deal was announced by the Bouchard, Champagne, Pelletier Limitee, formed about a year ago. The agency is the same one that last summer secured television rights to Eastern Football Conference games for the same two-year period for $1,000,000. Pierre Pelletier, one of the partner, said the price of the contract will be announced at the signing "some time next week"

Olympics Open Saturday

72,000 Will Watch Ceremonies

TOKYO (CP-AP) — The $2,000,000,000 Tokyo Olympic Games open Saturday before a sellout 72,000 in the National Stadium with good tickets going on the black market for as high as $500.

After two days of drizzle, the weather was perfect but the political climate remained overcast. North Korea and Indonesia withdrew from the games, and Ecuador won't compete because of squabbling among members of its own Olympic committee, but the nearly 8,000 athletes and 93 countries remaining made these the biggest games of modern times.

A single sentence by the emperor of Japan proclaiming the games open will launch this vast international sports spectacle. Active competition starts Sunday and ends two weeks later on Saturday, Oct. 24.

No city has ever extended itself for the games as has Tokyo. Every civic improvement of the last few years—superhighways, monorail from the airport to the heart of town, great modern arenas, the 125-mile - an - hour express from Tokyo to Osaka—all have been tagged as Olympic expenditures, accounting for the $2,000,000,000 grand total.

RUSSIA FAVORED

Although the Olympics are supposed to be contested entirely on an individual basis, national rivalry is sure to assert itself by way of scoring system. Russia is expected to win with a total of around 40 gold medals, followed by the United States with about 35.

In the 1960 Rome games, Russia and the U.S. together won 77 gold to 75 for other countries.

Some experts figure the 145-member Canadian team will take a gold medal in the rowing events as well as a silver and a bronze, and possibly will pick up another silver and bronze in other sports to more than make up for the lone silver won in 1960 by the eight oared crew from the University of British Columbia.

Some of the brightest prospects are in track and field, with Toronto's Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers and Vancouver's Harry Jerome leading the men and Diane Gerace of Trail, B.C. and Nancy McCredie of Toronto, Ont. rated high among the women. But the competition is so keen in virtu ally every track and field event for both men and women that finishing among the first six in many cases will be an achievement.

Miss McCredie has been bothered by the bad weather which has put a crimp in her training for the women's shot put and the discus.

The 19-year-old double medalist in the 1963 Pan-American Games had cartilages removed from her left knee in March and the Tokyo dampness has made the knee painful.

CAUSED BY DISPUTE

The withdrawal of the 144-man North Korean team and the 134-man Indonesian team resulted from a complicated dispute. In 1962, Indonesia staged the fourth Asian Games in Jakarta but banned Israel and Nationalist China, both Asian sports federation members.

In the ruckus that followed, the International Olympic Committee expelled Indonesia and the Indonesians retaliated by holding the first Games of the New Emerging Forces last year. The IOC later reinstated Indonesia but the International Swimming and Track Federations banned from the Tokyo Olympics those athletes who had competed in GANEFO.

Although only 30 athletes on both teams were affected, the entire squads were withdrawn.

The fervor of Tokyo for the games is beyond Western comprehension. The opening and closing ceremonies, and the swimming and track events are sellouts, with most other events close to it.

These are the first Olympic Games ever held in Asia. Thanks to the synchron satellite poised over the Pacific, the initial tests on which were excellent, they will be the first games ever televised from one continent to another.

Still Tops Golf Field

SUNSET CITY, Calif. (AP)—Ken Still fired a four-under-par 67 to jump into the early lead Thursday in the $25,000 Sunset Camellia open golf tournament.

Only 10 players were able to better par over the 6,450-yard, par-71 Sunset Oaks Country club course.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver was one of them with a 70. Al Balding of Toronto was among eight tied at 71, with 34-37.

The hilly field will be cut to 60 leading scorers after today's second round.

Playing Rules Changed

More Fan Space Only Problem Of NHL

By JOE DUPUIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"About the only problem we have," says Clarence Campbell, "is how to find space for all the people who want to see the game."

Faced with such a delightful prospect, the National Hockey League embarks on a new season next week confident of breaking more attendance records, if that's possible.

Campbell, NHL president, says weekend and holiday games around the six-city circuit are nearly always automatic sell-outs. "The only margins we have to work with are the weekday games," he says. "These are not always sold out, but nearly always.

RULES CHANGED

"If fans have the feeling this year that the spectacle is a little smoother, with a stepped-up pace, playing rule changes will be the reason," says Campbell.

The time-consuming and tedious practice of players arguing penalty calls with the referee is out. From now on, penalized players must proceed directly to the penalty box—or else.

Other rules protect against offensive interference—such as when a defensive team forms a screen to protect a puck carrier—and restricts the number of ways a goaltender can stop play unnecessarily.

Referees now have the power to crack down hard on those who leave the players' bench to join in an altercation on the ice or for any other improper reason.

Toronto Maple Leafs are favored to win their fourth consecutive Stanley Cup, and to finish first, a feat performed last season by underrated Montreal Canadiens.

Chicago Black Hawks, along with the Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings, are logical contenders for the Leafs' crown. Off season trades appear to have strengthened both the Bruins and Rangers.

CROZIER ON SPOT

Man-on-the-spot this season is Roger Crozier, the 22-year-old rookie goalie on whom coach Sid Abel has invested the fortunes of his Red Wing team. Abel still has Gordie Howe to provide inspiration, but the loss of reliable veteran Terry Sawchuk to Toronto could be a blow.

Crozier played 18 games for Detroit last season, ending up with a not-so-good 3.40 average.

Detroit also has newcomers Murray Hall, Ron Murphy and Autry Erickson, obtained in a trade with Chicago. Murphy will play on the Howe-Alex Delvecchio line.

Leafs acquired Sawchuk after Abel left him unprotected in the draft. Leaf coach Punch Imlach plans to alternate Sawchuk in the nets with Johnny Bower.

Experience is still the trump card in Maple Leaf aspirations. Imlach has veteran Red Kelly back, while waiting in the wings is winger Dickie Moore, all-time Canadiens' scoring ace trying a comeback with the Leafs after a year's layoff.

Don McKenney and Andy Bathgate, longtime New York stalwarts, came to Toronto late last season in time to inspire the Leafs in their Stanley Cup run. Leafs have an excellent new prospect in Ron Ellis, a rookie right winger who turns 20 next Jan. 8 and was a stand out with Toronto Junior Marlboros last year.

REAY MAKES CHANGES

After stretch - drive collapses in the last two seasons, the Black Hawks, under coach Billy Reay, are minus three veterans but will have at least four newcomers to try to fill the gap.

Apart From veteran Doug Mohns, acquired in a summer trade with Boston, the newcomers are all rookies — John Brenneman, 22, Doug Robinson, 24, and Dennis Hull 19-year - old brother of Hawk star Bobby Hull.

Robinson, up from Buffalo of the American League, will likely replace Ab McDonald on the Hawks scooter line of Kenny Wharram and Stan Mikita. McDonald was part of the Chicago trade that also sent Reggie Fleming and Murray Balfour to Boston.

Brenneman scored 38 goals and 47 assists with St. Louis Flyers of the Central Professional League last season.

Two new faces grace the young, spirited Canadiens team —Yvan Cournoyer, and defenceman Ted Harris. Cournoyer is the exciting right wing replacement for Bernie Geoffrion who retired this year to coach Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

Montreal's chief concern is goalie Charlie Hodge, last year's Vezina Trophy winner, who has been playing far below term in exhibition games.

HAVE ACE IN HOLE

But the Canadiens have an ace in the hole in veteran Gump Worsley. Quebec Aces goalie, who has looked much better than Hodge in exhibition play. Winger Henri Richard will miss some early games for the Canadiens because of an injury

New York expects big things from Bob Nevin and Dick Duff, acquired in the Bathgate - McKenney trade with Toronto They also have fresh blood in Rod Seiling, winger Ted Taylor, up from St. Paul of the CPHL, defenceman Arnie Brown, minor star with Baltimore and Rochester of the AHL, and Jim Mikol, drafted from Boston last summer. High scoring winger Camille Henry is ailing with a back injury. Seiling, who will be 20 in November gets his start on defence with the Rangers, although he can also play on the forward line A member of Canada's Olympic team last year, he came to New York in the Toronto trade.

Gilles Villemure, 24, rookie understudy of Ranger goalie Jacques Plante, may play a key role in the team's plans. Rangers, apparently disenchanted with Plante, may start the season with Villemure, scored upon 18 times in the five games he played for New York last season.

Bruins figure they were bolstered by the Chicago trade that brought them Balfour, McDonald and Fleming. Boston has a promising rookie in winger Ron Shock, last year with Niagara Falls Juniors.

Missing from the Boston line up for the first time in nine seasons will be Andy Hebenton hockey's iron man who set a record by playing 630 consecutive games Bruins outlened Hebington to the minors this year, and he now is on the reserve list of Portland in the Western League.

The Tracks

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) George Volo upset six talented sidewheelers in the featured eighth race before 2,425 fans at Mohawk Raceway Thursday night.

Driver John Finley was content to lay far back off the early pace then made a swift move along the backstretch and went on to score a neck decision over the odds - on favorite Karen Sota.

FALL A MYSTERY

Stottlemyre Pitched 'Own Game'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre was graduated from junior college in 1961 and looked for some way to employ his lanky right arm.

To his surprise the most talented, richest and famous club in baseball—New York Yankees —took an interest.

Stottlemyre gave the Yankees their first World Series victory Thursday after five straight defeats, and evened the 1964 classic against St. Louis Cardinals 1-1.

"This was the last thing that could have entered my mind last spring," he said. "I wasn't even on the Yankees' roster when they assigned me to Richmond."

The Yankees brought him up from Richmond Virginians of the International League Aug. 11 and he won nine games in five weeks.

Mixing curves and sliders with his fine sinker, he stymied the Cardinals on seven hits for an 8-3 victory in St. Louis before the teams moved here for the next three games.

"I just pitched my own game," he said. "I surprised myself because I wasn't nervous, at least not after the first pitch. I felt I had good stuff warming up. I thought I'd do all right."

APPS SIDELINED

HAMILTON (CP) — Bob Apps of Kingston, co captain of the injury-riddled McMaster Marauders, was sidelined Thursday with torn knee ligaments suffered in a game last Saturday against Waterloo Lutheran University of the Ontario Intercollegiate Football League. He will be out for the remainder of the season.

Swim Team Should Do Well-Coach

TOKYO (CP) — Swimming coach Howard Firby of Vancouver said Thursday Canada has its strongest swimming team in Olympic history but a half-dozen other countries likely will pick up the gold medals.

Firby rates swimmers from the United States, Russia, Australia, Germany, The Netherlands and Britain as the ones who are likely to stand up and be counted when the gold medals are passed out starting early next week.

"The Americans should take all the relays for men and women," he said in an interview. There are five — the men's 400- and 800-metre freestyle and 400-metre medley and the women's 400-metre freestyle and 400-metre medley.

"In the relays, nobody can touch the Americans," Firby said. "Barring disqualification or some such ridiculous thing like that they should walk away with the gold medals. The other countries are fight for the second-place silver and third-place bronze."

Firby said the Canadians should reach six individual finals in swimming here, something Canadians haven't been able to do in the memory of the present generation.

Casualty List High On Western Front

By The Canadian Press

Across the Western Football Conference, the message from sick bay are grim.

Most comfortable on the scoreboard and training table still at British Columbia Lions, who want to pad a cushion Saturday night.

At Calgary, the Stampeders try to stay in close contention when they meet Montreal Alouettes in a game televised nationally by the CBC at 11 p.m. EDT.

Thanksgiving Day sees Toronto Argonauts visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Montreal Alouettes at Winnipeg. The Argo-Rider game will be seen on the full CTV network at 4.30 p.m. EDT.

CATS MEET RIDERS

In the East, the second-place Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders also meet in a Thanksgiving Day game at Hamilton. The Rough Riders have seven wins and a tie for 15 points while Hamilton has six wins and a tie for 13 points. A win will knot the standings with three games remaining for each club.

Stampeders have lost centre Dale Parsons for their game, and may have to bench guards Bill Crawford and Tony Paschowski with shoulder injuries.

Lions will have linebacker Paul Seale and tackle Bill Frank in street clothes. Seale has a serious groin injury and Frank a nagging ankle sprain.

Home Town Cheers Rookie Win

MABTON, Wash. (AP)—You could have driven a tank down the main street of Mabton Thursday and no one would have noticed.

For everyone in this community of 953 was glued to a television set watching the town's hero subdue St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in the second game of the World Series.

"Real good: Juri wooderful, said Mrs. Vernon Stottlemyre, whose son, Mel, ban just brought New York Yankees their first victory in six series games.

Only one telephone call interrupted the tense game. That came at the end of the first inning when 22-year-old Mel had set the side down in order.

"We're off to a good start, the caller said.

But when the game was over the phones jangled incessantly. And the streets of Mabton suddenly filled with cars bringing people to the Stottlemyre home to join in the congratulations.

Generals Flyers Open Jr. A

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Generals and Niagara Falls Flyers, who meet in the opening game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season at Niagara Falls tonight, are top contenders for this season's championship.

Neither club has been hurt severely by personnel moving out of the junior ranks.

The Flyers lost centre Ron Schock but they still have goaltenders Bernie Parent and Doug Favell, defencemen Gilles Marotte and John Arbour, and seven experienced forwards.

The Generals, who finished sixth last season, also have a group of experienced players in defencemen Bobby Orr, Chris Roberts, Ron Buchanan, Wayne Cashman and Bill Ranneman.

A well-staffed club also exists in Peterborough where Chuck Goddard is returning for his fourth season as goaltender. The Petes only serious losses were Bob Jamieson and Ron Naud, who both are over age this year.

Other top-rated contenders this season are Hamilton Red Wings and Kitchener Rangers, who both missed the playoffs last year.

In The Dressing Rooms

By TOM FENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS (CP)—Yogi Berra heard a "tick." Was it the sound of a ball hitting Joe Pepitone's thigh—or his bat?

And Bob Gibson, who threw the pitch, heard a "noise." Was it a curve ball smacking wood or flesh?

The hotly debated possibilities filled the air in both New York Yankees' and St. Louis Cardinals' dressing rooms following the Yanks' 5-3 victory over the Redbirds Thursday in the second game of the 1964 World Series.

Pepitone was awarded first base because plate umpire Bill McKinley of the American League ruled he was hit on the thigh by a Gibson pitch in the crucial sixth inning. The score was tied 1-1 at the time, with one out and one on, and the Yankees promptly went ahead 2-1 on Tom Tresh's single.

"Pepitone took a sort of half swing at the ball, but he didn't hit it," McKinley said. "He just sort of half-stepped toward it and the curve ball just came in and hit him right there on the thigh."

"That play was the turning point of the ball game," said Cardinal manager Johnny Keane. "The game was tight—1-1. The pitch hit Pepitone's bat. It (the ball) may have hit him, but we heard it hit his bat first.

Yankee manager Berra said he really couldn't see what happened because his back was to the infield at the time.

"But we heard a 'tick,' Berra added, "and when Pepitone came back to the dugout, he said 'it hit me.'"

"Look," countered Cardinal shortstop Dick Groat, "when a guy gets hit by a ball he just doesn't stand there like Pepitone did and wait for the umpire to tell him to go to first. He drops his bat and takes off. I think Pepitone would have done just that if he's been hit."

"What did he want me to do," snapped Pepitone "Roll over in pain?"

"I thought I saw my curve glance off his (Pepitone's) bat," said Gibson. "I know I heard a noise that sounded like a ball hitting a bat."

"The ball sliced off my thigh," said Pepitone, "and I turned around to the umpire and said 'The ball hit me.' He said no swing — take your base. He would have sent me down to first whether I told him or not."

However, there was no argument over the pitching job turned in by Mel Stottlemyre, the youthful Yankee pitcher who went the distance.

"He is an excellent pitcher,"

U.S. Pro Football

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Diego Chargers, defending American Football League champions, will try to solve their problems tonight right where they started — against unbeaten Boston Patriots.

The game is the first of a full schedule of U.S. professional football games that will run through Monday night when St. Louis Cardinals meet Baltimore Colts in a big National League game. Pittsburgh Steelers and Cleveland Browns get the NFL weekend started Saturday night at Cleveland.

The Chargers met the Patriots three weeks ago after each had won its opening game. Boston came out of it with a 33-28 victory, a slightly different result from the 51-10 shellacking it took from the Chargers in the AFL's championship game last season.

Buffalo Bills, who defeated Oakland Raiders last Saturday night, visit Houston Oilers Sunday.

Western Division leading Kansas City Chiefs play winless Denver in the other game Sunday. Oakland, also winless, meets New York Saturday night. Denver will be playing its first game under new coach Mac Speedie.

In NFL action Sunday, Chicago Bears 1-3 play Los Angeles Rams while New York Giants 1-3 visit Dallas Cowboys. In other games, Detroit Lions visit Minnesota Vikings, San Francisco 49ers visit Green Bay Packers and Philadelphia Eagles visit Washington Redskins.

Style? This big, beautiful car almost owns the word. Inside, the lap of luxury was never so great, with deep-pile carpeting, supple vinyl and rich fabric. Meteor looks after little things like a key that works upside down or downside up (doesn't matter). Big things are doing with Meteor's hot new 240 cubic inch Avenger "6". The designers of Meteor's new frame and suspension think they're beautiful. So will you when you feel the difference in ride and handling.

Any place is scenic where there's Meteor (your Mercury dealer's, for instance). And it looks like it costs a lot more than it does. So see a '65 Meteor. Now you've started something wonderful.

Marmora

472-2145

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Trumble of Guelph are spending Thanksgiving week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn.

Mrs. O. J. Benor of Campbellford visited her sister, Mrs. E. Brady recently.

TRAVELS BY SCOOTER

A recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Wells, Marmora was their nephew, Grant Sigsworth, who is a student of the University of Waterloo. Mr. Sigsworth has just completed a tour of the British Isles and the continent where he visited 17 nations which included a visit to Moscow, East Berlin and Czechoslovakia. He travelled by motor scooter.

The boys from the L.B.H. Ranch ranch in Marmora won the Reserve Grand Champion for outstanding performances in horsemanship at the Roseneath Fair.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Of interest to many here is the matriculation from Copper Cliff High School this year with first class honors in all nine subjects of Grade 13. Leo O'Connor has been awarded three cash scholarships. He received a $3,000 scholarship at Assumption University of Windsor and has enrolled in the general arts course. Nickel Chapter I.O.D.E. awarded him $50 and he was obliged to refuse another $2,000 offered by the University of Waterloo as it was tenable for this year only. Leo is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh O'Connor of Copper Cliff. Mr. O'Connor is a native of Marmora and the family spend most of their holidays here. Terry O'Connor, elder brother of Leo is a student at Laurentian University.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn and Miss Linda are spending the Thanksgiving weekend in Ohio.

Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn entertained Mrs. J. A. Stuart, Provincial Secretary I.O.D.E. during her stay in Marmora.

Mrs. Roy Frost was hostess at a luncheon on Tuesday to the Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. in honor of Mrs. J. A. Stuart of Hamilton.

WINS AWARD

Olympics Sidelights

TOKYO (AP) — Ticket scalpers are asking as much as $500 for choice seats near Japan's Emperor Hirohito at the opening Olympic ceremony Saturday.

The asking price for a seat close by Avery Brundage of the United States, president of the International Olympic Committee, is $250.

TOKYO (AP) — For radio and television broadcasters, the 1964 Olympics will be a tongue-twisting nightmare.

Among the 8,000 competitors are athletes named Adelfina Tkacikova, Zofi Szchesniewska, Vasagholis Koulingas, Bohumila Rimnacova, Jaroslava Sedlackova and Odissefs Eshitzoglou.

TODA, Japan (AP) — Russia's sculling champion, Vyacheslav Ivanov, who is favored to win his third Olympic gold medal at the 1964 games, got bad news today.

The new British-built scull Ivanov planned to use in the Olympic regatta next week at the Toda rowing course 10 miles north of Tokyo was damaged in transport.

The scull suffered two big cracks in the hulls while being shipped from London to Yokohama aboard a Russian liner. Ivanov discovered the damage when the scull reached Toda.

Ivanov, a 26-year-old red army officer, started sculling in 1952 and woo gold medals in the 1956 and 1960 Olympic single sculls.

PEARSON MAKES PROMISE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has promised to sound out some of his cabinet ministers on a proposal to rebuild the Alaska Highway, Senator Mike Mansfield of Montana said Wednesday. He made public a letter from the Canadian prime minister promising to go into the matter "fully with my cabinet colleagues who are most concerned directly."

Alberta Hunters Flocking To New Training Program

By ALLEN ZACKMANN

EDMONTON (CP) — On the assumption that a few hours in the classroom can mean better luck in the field, Alberta hunters are flocking to a new training program sponsored by the provincial government.

Alberta long had a hunter safety training program but the response was relatively mild. Now that it has been replaced by a course aimed at producing more effective hunters, however, it has really caught fire.

The course — 22 hours for would - be instructors and 11 hours for ordinary students — provides information on the habits and habitat of birds and big game and how to identify the quarry as well as hunting techniques generally.

To keep hunters on the right side of the law, they are instructed in game management, rules and regulations, hunting courtesy and ethics.

And to help keep them alive, they are taught care of firearms, gun-handling safety, first aid and survival.

The program was drawn up a year ago by the provincial government and the courses were started in February. The program is conducted by Paul Presidente, hunter training officer for the department of lands and forests.

TEACH TEACHERS

The first class of five was made up of hand-picked members of the Edmonton Fish and Game Association, but since then the program has spread across the province.

Presidente himself lectures the men enrolled in the 22-hour instructors' course, and those who qualify then conduct classes of their own.

To qualify as an instructor, a student must attend every class and satisfactorily complete a 132 - question written examination.

Ordinary students write a 50-question exam at the end of the 11-hour course.

Survival lectures provoke the greatest interest in class, says Presidente. And greatest ignorance is displayed during the bird identification course.

Usually lectures run much longer than the time allotted because the students want to ask questions and discuss problems. Some lectures carry on four hours or more.

"The program is starting to snowball," Presidente says. "We've got 153 applications for student and 223 for instructor courses."

Since it began it has turned out 158 instructors and 250 student graduates.

Compare the age, plainly marked on each bottle of Wiser's whisky with any other brands in their price classes. You will find, on the average Wiser's whiskies are older. And "older" to Wiser's means aged in wood . . . and "married" in wood — a process of returning the spirits to wood after final blending for a further period of quiet aging. So for the best whiskies, the best value — drink one that's OLDER and WISER'S.

AT THE BELLE — James Stewart, portraying a mountain man and fur tapper, leaves a friendly Indian tribe to take his beaver pelts to the eastern markets in this scene from the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer screen production, "How The West Was Won", now showing at the Belle Theatre for an extended engagement. Unfolding the dynamic story of America's Western expansion as seen through the eyes of four generations of a courageous pioneer family, the spectacular picture in Big screen Color, has a cast of 24 stars. It was filmed on locations covering 9 states, under the guidance of 3 of Hollywood's most famous directors. Continuous showings on Saturday at 2.00 - 5.00 and 8.00.

Raven-Haired Indian Girl, Buffy Sainte-Maire, Writes And Sings Songs of Tribes

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Buffy Sainte-Marie had just completed her sixth song of the night and was preparing to leave the stage. The responsive audience, clapping and yelling, changed her mind and the 22-year-old raven - haired Indian girl returned to the microphone.

Resting her highly polished guitar against the back of the stage, she picked up a strange feathered instrument resembling a long bow—a traditional Indian musical instrument strung with catgut and fitted with a sound box.

And suddenly the Mariposa Folk Festival became as indigenously North American as it could have wished.

'And I'm goin' up to see her 'bout two times a week . . ."

Buffy sang clearly, tapping her feet in time to the music she produced from the obsolete Indian instrument that sounded like a relative to the Jew's harp.

WRITES OWN SONGS

The song was one of more than 200 the full-blooded Cree Indian girl has written and sung in many parts of the continent. And as always, she charged the air with her highly emotional delivery that sometimes falls just short of a scream.

Buffy (it used to be Beverly) Sainte Marie was born in Craven, Sask., near Regina, and while still a baby was adopted by a part-white, part-Micmac Indian family and raised in Massachusetts.

In college she majored in Oriental philosophy and minored in elementary education. While in one of the four colleges she attended — Smith, Mount Holyoke, University of Massachusetts and Amherst — she began to sing.

She had already started composing songs on every aspect of her experiences for some years. Three years ago she was given a guitar and taught herself to play.

Untrained musically, she says she tunes the instrument, "different from anyone else—about 20 different tunings — which gives the guitar a unique sound."

She began singing in coffee houses near the various colleges she attended and occasionally on television. Then she decided on a life of music and travel instead of the teaching she had been trained for.

SPREADS WORD

Now, four years after that decision, she combines protest songs and singing in her attempts at spreading the word about her people's plight, and fighting for their rights.

"In order to survive in cities, the Indian is faced with giving up what he considers to be important," she said. "The people are poor, poorly educated and not ready for city life. More important, they don't want it. They don't want to annihilate themselves in a melting pot."

She travels throughout North America giving lectures on the subject. She also writes for several Indian newspapers on anything pertaining to her people. To this battle, she says, she is dedicated.

"There are a lot of things I want to do. But I take one step at a time. My main aim is some day to be the world's best Indian girl singer."

In the eyes of many "folk nilks"—folk song devotees—she has already established that point.

A highlight of her life came two years ago when she was adopted by the Plains Cree—a tribe of her own people in the Qu'appelle Valley where "some of the finest Indian singers are produced." The adoption was a rarity among the Indians. It took place at a powwow at Manitoulin Island with 22 Indian tribes from across Canada represented.

"My adoption means everything in the world to me," she said. "I love these people. Although I grew up in a non-Indian community and lived there most of my life, I felt right away that I had always belonged with the Cree."

My father, Emile Piapot, who is the son of Chief Piapot of the Piapot Reserve, is giving me all the songs that are sacred to him, hoping that I'll carry them on."

WILL KEEP ON

In the meantime, she plans to keep on singing and when the opportunity occurs to become a professional actress. She once was offered a movie role—"they wanted me to play the part of a sexy Indian girl, but I turned it down"—but she said she never wanted to exploit her background in that way.

The attractive girl is not just a composer of folk-songs. She writes in various styles—popular, classical, Indian, French and rock 'n' roll. "There are things you can say in just one way," she said.

Buffy has a unique style that sometimes raises the hairs on the nape of the neck, as one devotee said.

"She communicates as no one else. It sends shivers through you. And the subjects she sings about—drug addiction, love, and loneliness, it's too much."

As Buffy herself says, "my songs come from the heart."

MARTIN & LEWIS COMEDIES ON DOUBLE FEATURE BILL

Comedy fans take heed, you will be happy to know that two of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis' funniest movies hit this "The Caddy" and "You're Never Too Young," will appear on a special double feature bill at the Park Theatre today and Saturday.

"The Caddy," which stars Dean and Jerry and costars Donna Reed, Barbara Bates and Joseph Calleia, is a rollicking tale about two fellows who would rather play golf than work. Jerry portrays an excellent golfer who turns instructor because he is afraid of the galleries and Dean plays his student, a man who wants to learn all the tricks of the game.

"You're Never Too Young," which also stars Dean and Jerry and has a top cast including Diana Lynn, Nina Foch and Raymond Burr, is a story about a dimwitted barber's apprentice (Jerry Lewis) who masquerades as an eleven-year-old in order to ride a train for half fare. This bit of trickery leads Jerry on a merry chase which involves him with a murderer, a teacher and 500 luscious co-eds. Continuous show Saturday from 1:00 p.m. Doors open 12:30 p.m.

Political Themes Popping Up in Entertainment Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWREY

NEW YORK (AP)—Politics, as United States election day grows nearer, is upsetting network entertainment programs. Tonight, for instance a paid Republic political program has knocked 60-minute 12 O'clock High out of ABC's lineup. After the half-hour program, ABC will plug the hole with a news special, showing what life is like on the campaign trails.

Other Republican programs will pre-empt CBC's Petticoat Junction on Oct. 20, Bailey's of Baltona on Oct. 29 and NBC's TW3 on Oct. 14.

Meanwhile, political themes are popping into the entertainment shows. E. G. Marshall of The Defenders will turn up Oct. 29 as candidate Lawrence Preston, running for Congress. He's almost certain to be defeated. A victory would change the whole show.

Recommended week - end viewing:

Tonight—Bob Hope Theatre, NBC, 8:30-9:30 EDT, Murder in the First, with Janet Leigh in her TV dramatic debut.

Saturday — Jackie Gleason Show, CBS, 7:30-8:30 p.m.; Hollywood Palace.

Sunday — News special on the British elections, NBC, 5-5:30 p.m.; Olympic Games, NBC, 6:30-7:30.

NETWORK BIGGER

With the addition of Newfoundland's CJON-TV station in October, the Canadian Television Network increased its potential audience by more than 350,000 persons.

Shirley Temple May Enter Another Theatrical Career

By BOB THOMAS

In the 1930s Shirley Temple became the most successful child star in movie history. She made the transition to young-lady roles in films like The Bachelor and the Bobbysoxer and Since You Went Away.

After the failure of her marriage to John Agar, Shirley married businessman Charles Black and retired from the screen. Four years ago she returned to acting with a television show, on which she introduced and occasionally starred in fairy tales.

Now ABC and 20th Century-Fox are trying to induce her to return for a weekly series. She was in Hollywood a month ago for talks at Fox.

Even without the acting, Shirley, who is 35, keeps busy. She has been working in educational television in San Francisco, lately as technical advisor on a film about California history. She serves regularly in a children's day clinic.

HOME BY NOON

"All my activities are in the morning," she said. "I am home by noon when the children start to come home."

The children are Susan, 16; Charles, 12; and Lori, 10. None displays any inclination to follow mother's profession.

Shirley isn't at all disturbed that her old movies continue to be played and replayed on television. "I don't have to watch them."

She is constantly amused at how people react to the old films. For instance, her young friends among patients at the clinic who see the chirping Shirley on TV Fridays and the mature Mrs. Black on Monday. "How did you grow up so fast over the weekend?" they ask.

Santa Parade To Be Held December 12

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford council has designated the date of the Santa Claus Parade as December 12. It has been noted that the parade is considered one of the best.

About ten or 12 years ago the first parade was held, depicting nursery rhymes and children's stories. At that time Mayor Ernie Ayrhart was chief executive and gave wholehearted support to the project.

The parade was designed and initiated by F. M. Rutherford, who was at that time chairman of community activities in the Rotary Club, which service club sponsored the parade.

Floats were designed, costumes were procured from Toronto, bands were invited and the parade was a surprise and success. The same plan has been followed ever since.

Now the surprise element is less but the expectation and pleasure is just as great. Children will be looking forward again to the event of the year.

Town Police Prepare for Hallowe'en

CAMPBELLFORD — With the approach of Hallowe'en town police are making preparations for the night. Chief Baird has asked for extra help and his request has been granted.

Previous years the resident have expressed appreciation to the chief and police constables for the orderly manner in which they have kept the goblins and witches under control.

COULD BE SHELLS

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian centennial theatres and auditoriums will be "empty architectural shells without life flesh and blood to bring them to life" unless Canadians take a keen interest in the arts, Dr. Glen G. Sproods said at the annual meeting of the National Ballet Guild of Canada Thursday. Either that or their stages "will be filled only at the whim of New York impresarios," the elected president of the guild said.

General Tendencies: Cycle continues high for Sagittarius.

Special word to Virgo: Key is to maintain steady pace. And to avoid being unduly discouraged.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 18

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Search through newspaper, library, other reliable sources. You can obtain verification of beliefs. Be sure. Then ( ) up on correspondence wh... ...ails down specific program.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Get finances organized. Family member has productive idea. Keep mind open to suggestions. Find ways to increase profits. Tonight: excitement available . . . don't leave common sense at home!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Keep watchful eye on public relations. Be aware of image you create. One who formerly was an associate . . . may spread rumors. Be forthright. Practice concepts of Golden Rule.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Be "good" to yourself. Avoid extremes. Obtain sufficient rest. Refuse to "go along" with the crowd. Don't be bored by long-winded associates. Try once enjoy your surroundings.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): Fine romantic aspect highlights romance, the excitement of discovery. Obtain hint from today's Cancer message. Be selective, discriminating. You can get the best — if you demand it.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Encourage new projects, persons, attitudes especially to domestic situation. Be creative. Don't feel "bogged down." You have much to offer — others have much to give.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Be forceful, direct. Your creative powers come surging to forefront. Your mind is active . . . intuition serves as wonderful guide. Be productive. Permit sense of justice to work in your behalf.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your natural sense of survival serves as remarkable guide. You do right thing at right time. Key is confidence, serenity. Don't permit associates to limit your horizons.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Concentrate on personal objectives. You can now go "all the way." Key is building solid foundation. Important to get details, files in order. Be prepared. Cycle remains high.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Your sense of timing is demonstrated. You are able to perceive motives, thoughts of others. Capitalize on aura of secrecy, glamor. Don't reveal all you know. Remain a bit skeptical!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Wonderful for exchange of thoughts, ideas. Family members display good will. Return the compliment. Strive for harmony at home. Evening good for movie, dining out.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Show that you can live up to potential. Adhere to highest principles. Be careful to avoid those who advocate "cheap" methods. Tonight . . . you can relax with persons of good will.

If today is your birthday . . . you are a combination of independence and obedience. You are sympathetic, yet forceful.

New Co-op Mill to Open On Tuesday

PICTON (Staff) — Following a fire this spring the new Co-op mill opens. The official opening of the new feed mill section of the Prince Edward Co-Operative is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon at 2.00 p.m. when Mr. Harold Forrester will officially cut the ribbon to mark the event. Mr. Forrester is the president of the United Co-Operatives of Ontario, and lives at Mallorytown, Ontario.

Workmen have been rushing around the past few weeks to have the building and equipment all in readiness for the big event. According to Bill Muinn, manager of the Co-Operative, everything is to be completely finished and in operation by opening day.

A great deal of planning has gone into the construction of this $40,000 plant before the present equipment was decided on. The local board of directors are president — Benton Goodman; 1st. vice-president — Reg. Barber; 2nd vice-president — Ed. Powers; secretary — Cecil G. Thompson; directors — Burton Kotchapaw, Peter Welsh, Jack Carter, Bert Eggleton and Morris Pulver.

The new construction was built by G. Hutchinson's, contractor, with the Milverton Millrighs of Molverton, Ont., responsible for all the bins and chuting. They have also placed all the new and modern equipment.

The local Co-Op staff have been busy painting the premises with the official Co-Op colors. The retail store has again been enlarged to give a little more floor space.

A highlight of the official opening will be the demonstration of the synthetic equipment which has been installed.

On behalf of the entire board of directors, Mr. Goodman has extended a special invitation to everyone in the area to drop in and visit the new Co-Op facilities during Co-Op Week. "We would like everyone in Prince Edward County to see the new services we have added for them," he added.

Four Moose Shot at Hearst By Picton Men

PICTON (Staff) — Four local men returned recently from a hunting trip, which saw them bag four moose in the vicinity of Hearst.

They were Mike Shebe, Douglas Caley, Albert Lowder and Norman Craig.

Two of the animals were bulls, the largest around 900 pounds and the others not much less. Two of the animals had to be quartered in the bush to enable the men to bring them out and each quarter took two men to carry.

The shots were clean and no meat was lost as a result. The quarters were put in cold storage in Picton and will be cut up there. It is expected each of the hunters will have around 500 pounds of meat.

The party drove along the highway, looking for tracks and selected the most likely area and got four animals in two days in a period of 24 hours.

To avoid meat spoilage, the return trip, by car, saw an interchange of drivers who covered the 365 miles with only brief stops for coffee and gasoline. They report no snow in that district though low temperature one night.

It is quite a thrill and hard work, not luck, is the chief factor, Doug Caley remarked.

The Picton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have had no accident reports this month. Town police are continuing their investigation of the theft of $800. worth of valuable articles stolen from the home of John Syrett. Only two minor accidents have been reported by town police for October. There have been no injuries.

QUEEN, PHILIP FACE TEST OF COURAGE

Protest March By Separatists Cut By Police

Rally Called Against Queen's Visit to City

By JOHN TORSTON

QUEBEC (CP) — A silent march by separatists protesting the arrival of Queen Elizabeth in Quebec City was cut short before it had got more than one block down a dark and narrow lowertown street Friday night.

The march started following a rally by le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale against the Queen's visit.

But it had only gone a few paces when Pierre Bourgault, leader of le Rassemblement was hustled down an alley and onto a nearby building by municipal police. He emerged some 10 minutes later, climbed atop a car and asked his followers to disperse "to avoid carnage."

The police, he said, had refused permission for any kind of demonstration. They had called in army and police reinforcements, he said, speaking hatless in a cold, drizzling rain. Police denied reinforcements were coming.

LED AWAY

As the marchers moved away from the parish hall where the rally had been held Mr. Bourgault was escorted into the alley and into a building by police.

Immediately word spread among the 200 marchers that he had been arrested. Police tried to close the big wooden doors to the alley. A woman screamed. Marchers surged towards the doors.

Police, wearing riot helmets and carrying nightsticks, hastily reopened the doors and Mr. Bourgault's lawyer came to the entrance to say he was talking on the telephone with Roger Lemelin, chief of the Quebec City police.

Demonstration leaders wearing red armbands called on participants to be quiet and to sit on the wet pavement. Most did.

Later Mr. Bourgault, a journalist with Montreal La Presse, climbed atop a car and asked the demonstrators to go home "and think about our democratic rights."

It would be useless to run the risk of carnage."

Speaking earlier in the hall, he said the demonstration would have to be peaceful. There could be no violence and anyone who broke the rule would be expelled from the movement.

AGAINST VIOLENCE

Insp. Martin Healey of the Quebec provincial police estimated there were 500 persons in the hall for the rally. Another police source said about 50 plainclothesmen were spotted through the audience.

Mr. Bourgault said the separatist complaint is not with Queen Elizabeth personally. She is coming to Canada to participate in ceremonies marking the 100th anniversary of the Charlottetown and Quebec conferences which led to Confederation.

And the mass of French-Canadians reject Confederation, he said.

Politicians were "dragging the Queen into a political matter for propaganda purposes.

"She had no choice. We all know that."

If she came as merely Queen of England, and not Queen of Canada, "we would welcome her warmly," he said to solid applause.

MONTREAL (CP)—Christian de Last, a 37-year-old Montreal management consultant, Friday was appointed permanent secretary of the Canadian Council of Resources Ministers, a body grouping provincial and federal ministers for planning the renewal of natural resources.

Judgment Reserved Till 28th

CHATHAM (CP) — Juvenile court Judge W H. Fox of London, Ont., said he had "a great deal to think over" as the two week long trial of Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh ended Friday with the summation of Crown Prosecutor Blake Ward.

Judge Fox reserved judgment until Oct. 28 after hearing 60 witnesses and summations from Mr. Ward and defence counsel Cyril E. Perkins in connection with eight charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency against the 45-year-old minister of Park Street United Church here.

Mr. Horsburgh has pleaded not guilty.

In his summation, Mr Ward described the clergyman as a person with a rare quirk which caused him to encourage persons to have sexual relations so he could watch and ask about it afterwards.

DENIES IS EVIL

Mr. Perkins said in his summation Thursday that Mr. Horsburgh does not have "a suspicious, evil, filthy mind."

During three hours of cross examination Thursday, Mr. Horsburgh repeatedly denied he had encouraged or permitted teen-agers to have sexual intercourse in his church.

Earlier in the trial, a 14-year-old girl testified she and her boy friend had had sexual intercourse in an apartment above the pastor's office after Mr. Horsburgh had told them there was nothing wrong with pre-marital sex, provided the participants respect each other.

Mr. Ward said in detail Friday with the evidence of 14 teen-agers who, he said, "got into this whirlpool of evil."

He said that girls, aged 14 and 15, had testified about their indiscretions to their own detriment, because a large crowd waiting daily outside the court was able to identify them although their names were never published.

"And now they (the girls) have to live with it," he said.

SEEKS REPAYMENT

MUNICH (AP) — The West German post office wants a best-selling novelist to repay more than $17,500 that he and others took in a holdup 10 years ago. The writer, Heinz Jaeger, 36, spent eight years in prison for a 1954 raid with a dummy sub-machine gun on a concession office in Frankfurt. While in prison Jaeger wrote a refuger novel Die Festung, which has been published in various foreign countries.

Members Receive Holiday

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — A motion designed to speed the flow of parliamentary business ironically got caught in a whirlpool of controversy Friday. It nearly swamped the commons plan for a holiday Monday, when the Queen is here.

There was a breath - taking finish to the debate. The report on Speaker Alan Macnaughton's parliamentary reforms committee had been under debate for more than three hours, and waiting behind it was another committee recommendation for Parliament's statutory holidays, including Thanksgiving Day.

Three minutes ere left in normal debating time, and the first motion was still before the House. If the second motion did not pass, the Commons would probably be forced to meet Monday.

A Conservative speaker was still on his feet, and members of other parties were nervously tapping their desks and hoisting hurried discussions. It seemed certain that the holiday motion would be hurried by the clock.

COMPLETES SPEECH

Then, with about 2½ minutes to go, William H. A. Thomas (PC — Middlesex West) completed his speech. The Speaker waited a moment for another to rise, but no one did. The motion was carried.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre), who presented the committee report to the Commons on behalf of the Speaker, had about 90 seconds left in which to outline the holidays motion and see a vote taken before the 6 p.m. deadline.

Parliament has never had fixed statutory holidays. The reforms committee recommended nine — New Year's Day, Good Friday, the Queen's official birthday, St. Jean Baptiste Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Remembrance Day and Christmas.

If anyone rose to speak, the Commons could not vote in the allotted time, and the motion could not normally be dealt with again until Monday.

But no one rose, and with a monumental sigh of relief, the decks were cleared for a holiday Monday.

Frank Howard (UNDP — Skeena) rose after the motion had passed to indicate his opposition, but he did not give his reasons.

INDICATED OPPOSITION

Creditiste members earlier had indicated their opposition to a government motion for the House to take a holiday when the Queen is in Ottawa.

Virtually all the controversy over the first motion revolved around one recommendation by the all-party committee limiting debate on the resolution that precedes all money bills.

The debate now is unlimited, and the recommendation as it that it be restricted to one five-hour day, with each speaker held to 20 minutes. Traditionally, the prime minister, the leader of the opposition, the minister of finance and the first opposition member to reply is unlimited.

All Have Right to Speak Freely Says Lesage, Welcoming Queen

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec referred to Canada's constitutional problems as he welcomed Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Quebec City today.

Speaking in the red and gold legislative council chambers—Quebec's upper house—he said a true democracy must assure freedom of speech to everyone, "even the adversaries of freedom of speech."

This broadness of view is essential if a constitution is to last, "even if this constitution must adapt itself to new circumstances because above all it must facilitate the growth, in order and justice, of the people who wrote it or who received it from their predecessors."

He told the royal couple they were visiting a people working for its future by putting to work all its resources and by giving itself "the instruments which it lacks.

'Today, Your Majesty, you see the hope that animates us. Tomorrow you will see the fruitful born of this hope." Mr. Lesage said, speaking mainly in French.

In English, he referred to the Commonwealth, saying it is a truism that the Commonwealth of nations is an example to the world of how nations can live along with one another despite differences in outlook.

"And, Your Majesty, the Commonwealth, in the relations that exist between its various members, affords to Canadians a striking illustration of collaboration based, not upon uniformity, but upon a community of purpose, born of mutual respect and understanding."

Text of the premier's speech was released to the press prior to delivery.

The Queen thanked Premier Jean Lesage warmly for her invitation to this province and said "it is most agreeable for me to think that there exists in our Commonwealth a country where I am able to express myself officially in French—one of the most important languages of our Western civilization."

Speaking to 240 Quebec government members and other officials in the red and gold legislative council chamber — Quebec's upper house—the Queen devoted a large part of her brief address to the problems of Canadian Confederation.

All but one paragraph at the 14 in her address were spoken in French.

She said she was addressing her remarks not only to those present, but "to all those who hold a child in their arms and

Kidnappers Ready To Make Trade

CARACAS (AP)—Anonymous telephone callers have warned that a kidnapped U.S. Air Force officer will die unless the life of a condemned Red terrorist in South Viet Nam is spared.

The threat against Lt.-Col. Michael Smolen, deputy chief of the U.S. mission to Venezuelan forces, was made Friday night in phone calls to The Associated Press and other news media. Identifying themselves as pro-Communist terrorists, they said Smolen would die an hour after the execution of Nguyen Van Troi, a Viet Cong.

A terrorist gang kidnapped Smolen at gunpoint Friday morning in a daring act similar to other abductions carried off by the outlawed pro-Castro Armed Forces of National Liberation. His whereabouts remained unknown today as police stepped up a massive search.

Troi, 4, has been convicted for an unsuccessful attempt to blow up a bridge that was to be used last May by U.S. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara on a visit to South Viet Nam. He was sentenced to die in August.

Land At Quebec Amidst Concern About Reception

Barely Any Outward Show of Welcome

QUEBEC — Queen Elizabeth stepped from her yacht Britannia at 10:06 a.m. today for her third visit to the French-speaking capital of Quebec.

She and Prince Philip faced a test of personal courage and royal aplomb.

Security precautions were kept tight for their 12½-hour program of private and public events in a confused and sombre city.

There was barely any outward show of welcome.

As the Queen arrived at the Legislature, Quebec Provincial Police staged a baton charge against about 100 chanting young people. They arrested about half a dozen.

Earlier Laval University students had laughed uproariously at royal dignity and booed the singing of God Save the Queen but had promised to keep any organized demonstrations confined to their campus today.

Leaden skies were clearing when the Queen walked down the gangplank from her yacht to Quebec soil at Wolfe's Cove.

She was greeted by Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois, Premier Jean Lesage and Mayor Wilfrid Hamel who also welcomed her to the city in 1959.

In parts of the city the Queen will travel during her yacht stay until 6:15 p.m. Sunday, when she is due to leave by air for Ottawa, there was evidence of elaborate security precautions.

BEHIND ON SCHEDULE

The Queen came down the canopy - covered gangplank a few minutes behind schedule.

After shaking hands with the lieutenant - governor, the premier and the mayor she was introduced to Quebec area armed services commanders.

She then walked along the red carpet stretching into Champlain Terminal, a passenger and freight terminal, accompanied by Prince Philip wearing the uniform of colonel-in-chief of the Royal Canadian Regiment.

As the royal couple walked through the terminal for an inspection of a guard of honor formed of the 3rd Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment of which she is colonel-in-chief a 21-gun salute was fired from the heights of Quebec.

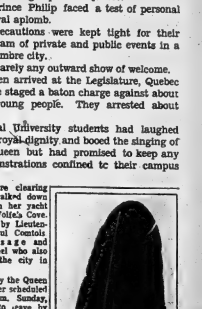
INSPECTS GUARD



On her inspection of the guard the Queen was accompanied by the guard commander, Maj. A. Mackay.

The Queen smiled and chatted with Maj. Fournier during her guard inspection.

She shook hands with Capt. Edwin Belanger, band commander who directed the playing of God Save the Queen as a royal salute. It was the third time Capt. Belanger had led the band in the anthem on the occasion of a royal visit to Quebec.

Premier Lesage set out by car with a ceremonial police escort so that he would be on Forty-two national corporations have made Belleville United Appeal donations so far this year, with nine of them giving more than they did last year. Only one firm this year has given less than it did last year. One local firm, W. T. Hawkins Ltd., has increased its corporate donation by one hundred per cent over last year's sum.

Among in-plant campaigns, the local Ontario Hydro office is well past the $3,000 mark now, and may reach $3,500 by the end of next week. Canadian National Railways employees have given more than $2,500 already and are heading for the $4,000 mark and Mead Johnson employees have given more than $1,385 so far and in-plant campaign officials hope to reach a total of about $1,450.

Opening Olympic Games Parade Seen by 80,000

TOKYO (AP) — The girls from Britain and the girls from Germany wore the same colored dresses to the party. Then they wound up marching alongside each other.

The Canadians and the Americans had the same Western - style hats, although the Canadians might have had a gallon or two on their neighbors. Say about 10 gallons to 8½.

There wasn't a single Castro - style beard in the Cuban crowd.

And the boys from Bermuda, were Bermuda shorts, of course.

They all came marching by today in the opening parade of the biggest and costliest Olympic Games ever held.

In the Japanese tradition, the crowd of some 80,000—a few of whom paid scalpers' price of some $500 a pair for seats—seemed determined to outdo its cheers equally.

But the small delegations from Africa, many in colorful native robes, seemed to draw special cheers.

And there was a lively roar from the group from Mexico, the country that will play host for the 1968 Games. The Japanese, who have seen their major city ripped to shreds for years to prepare for the Games, seemed to be saying good naturedly:

"You'll be sorry."

Avery Brundage, the controversial American who was re - elected president of the International Olympic Committee and has been on the Olympic scene longer than most people can remember, may have been the hit of the show.

He spoke in Japanese and experts said his pronunciation was excellent.

The greeks, who started the whole Olympic business about 3,000 years ago, led the march into the stadium.

The German girls were in pink dresses, exactly the same shade as the ones the British girls wore. The Germans called it "cherry blossom pink." The British called it "English rose."

Then, the luck of the draw put the teams alongside each other on the march.

The Canadians got a chance to show off their Western hats first. They were difficult to tell from the ones the Americans wore, well down the alphabet.

The team from Ghana may have won the sartorial medal. The men wore robes which left one shoulder bare, and the girls had golden print dresses.

Purchase of Faulkner House For Use as Museum Proposed As City Centennial Project

The purchase of the Phillips Burrows-Faulkner house at 257 Bridge Street East, and its development as a museum is being proposed to city council as a centennial project for Belleville.

The proposal is presented by a group of interested citizens headed by Gerald Boyce and reports on the project and its possible development and cost have already been presented to council members.

Mr. Boyce says the Faulkner house proposal is by way of an alternative to the centennial project which might be submitted for Ewick's Island.

Preservation of the Faulkner house would be in keeping with the theme for the Centennial, according to the report submitted to council members. The cost of purchase and development of the property is estimated at under $85,000. Potential Centennial grants would amount to about $36,000.

The house is a local landmark and an excellent example of Victorian, architecture. The interior of the house is expertly designed and has been preserved intact. Only a few minor alterations would be required to restore it to its original condition.

The cost of the project would be in line with potential Centennial grants, while there would be sources of income available to assist in the operation of the museum.

The Faulkner house is claimed to be admirably suited for a variety of museum functions, including attractive display of the Coulderey collection of paintings given to the city and valued in excess of $20,000.

Also, it is pointed out, the lease on the present county museum on Church St., expires early in 1966 and there is a possibility the county may require the museum property for other purposes.

Curtail Mail Service Thanksgiving Day

Robert Simpson Co. Ltd. announced Friday it will build a 33-storey office tower on Queen and Bay streets in the downtown Toronto. Construction will start early next year.

SUSPEND TRADE

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission Friday ordered a suspension of all trading in the common stock and convertible debentures of Fotochrome, Inc., of New York. The SEC said an investigation showed that statements by Fotochrome officials concerning operations of the company were misleading.

LOADINGS INCREASE

Cars of railway revenue freight loaded in Canada in the last nine days ended September 30 creased 16.5 per cent to 115,746 compared with the same period last year, the bureau of statistics said Friday.

PRODUCTION IS UP

Production of leather footwear rose also per cent in July to 2,327,385 pairs from 2,588,444 in the same month last year. This brought the output in the seven months of the year to 17,540,000 pairs, up 2.3 per cent from a year previous, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.

Bad Weather Keeps Market At Minimum

Snow this morning kept vendors and shoppers alike from Belleville market. Only about ten stalls were open by ten o'clock.

Cider was offered at a dollar a gallon, very large sweet Spanish onions were offered at 15c each and Ontario onions were 25c a box or 75c for a six-quart basket. Sweet yellow pickles were 25c a berry box, corn was 50c for a dozen cobs and cabbage was offered at various prices from 10c to 30c a head. Sage and summer savory were offered at 15c bunch, cauliflower at 15c and 20c a head and Brussels sprouts at 25c a quart. Six varieties of potatoes were offered for 65c, beets and onions were 10c a bunch or three bunches for 25c. Ducks were offered at 60c a pound and chickens at 50c a pound, but there were no turkeys on the Thanksgiving weekend market.

Toronto Coin Club Plans Fall Rally

The Toronto Coin Club Fall rally will be held Oct., 17, in the ballroom and two adjoining rooms of the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

This event has been likened to a three ring circus, since collector and spectator alike can wander from room to room and find an intriguing show in progress. Around the ballroom 25 dealers from Canada and the U.S. will set up shop for the day, and in the centre of the room about 100 displays will compete for top honors. Nine category awards, and one "Best of Show" trophy have been handcarved for the occasion.

David Ash, well-known numismatic writer and lecturer has arranged an interesting educational program in Room B, where one can enjoy audio-visual features ranging from coin grading and odd and curious money, through seafaring (the development of the ship), to the stories of the Waltzing Crown, Ye Olde Famous Cartwheel and the Canadian Voyageur Dollar. An illustrated coin quiz had been prepared and will be conducted by Rod Bakefield president of the Ontario Numismatic Association. This can be educational, entertaining, and quite deflating.

The Canadian Society of Medallic Arts will hold its annual meeting at 10 a.m., and the Ontario Numismatic Association will hold its semi-annual meeting at 3.30, both in Room B.

Finally in Room A, Jim Charlton will be conducting one of his famous auctions, split into two sessions, afternoon and evening. This auction has been designed to suit all tastes and pocketbooks, and is expected to bring collectors from near and far.

Few Outside of Officialdom Will Get Close Look at Queen on Ottawa Visit

The only public function the Queen will carry out in the capital will be the placing of a wreath at the National War Memorial Monday morning.

But the public won't get close to the memorial, in Confederation Square in the heart of the city. A solid 800-man line of soldiers will surround the square.

The 2nd Battalion, Canadian Guards, has been specially strengthened for this duty. All traffic through the square will be stopped for more than two hours.

It is reported that every building around the square has been combed by security officers.

The wreath the Queen and Prince Philip will place will be similar to those in appearance to the first one placed there—by the Queen's parents, King George and Queen Mother Elizabeth, at the monument's unveiling ceremony in May, 1939.

MADE BY VETS

The wreath is the handiwork of disabled veterans employed in the Toronto shop operated by the veterans affairs department at Sunnybrook Hospital.

All told, the royal couple are to spend 23 minutes at the memorial. Besides the wreath ceremony, the Queen will be introduced to representatives of veterans organizations, a group of disabled veterans and Silver Cross mothers, and she will inspect a guard of honor from the Canadian Guards commanded by Capt. Gascon L. Simpson of Shawinigan Falls, Que.

The Queen and Philip are scheduled to arrive Sunday after dark—at 7:23 p.m. EDT—by RCAF Yukon transport plane from Quebec City.

At Government House Sunday night, the Queen and Philip will dine privately with the Vaniers.

On Monday, after the war memorial ceremony, Mr. Pearson will hold a reception at the Chateau Laurier at which some 1,200 specially - invited guests will be presented to the Queen.

PHILIP GOES HUNTING

Her Majesty will lunch with the Pearsons. Philip leaves by plane in mid-afternoon for some goose hunting at a small island in the St. Lawrence River before returning to the royal yacht at Quebec for a cruise of the Caribbean.

On Monday night the Queen will give a dinner at Government House for Mr. Pearson and the provincial premiers.

The next morning the Queen leaves Uplands airport for the 6½-hour flight to London.

In the Commons Friday, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker repeated that the CBC has downgraded the royal visit to Ottawa by not planning a live television broadcast of the Queen's arrival Sunday night. The CBC will broadcast live on TV the war memorial ceremony and the Queen's departure.

State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to Parliament on broadcasting matters, said the CBC will have provided live coverage of the Queen's arrivals at Summerside, Charlottetown and Quebec City. The Ottawa arrival would be after dark with a minimum of ceremony.

Coverage of the Ottawa arrival would be provided on CBC television news the same evening.

The arrival will receive live television coverage from the private CTV network.

Donald Dunkeld Preparing to Defend Title

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The international pioneer rink which sprang from obscurity two years ago to win the Canadian championship, will be run off Saturday.

Although he finished second in one of seven events held Friday, Canadian plowing champion Donald Dunkeld, of RR2, Clairemont was planning on a defence of the title he won last year.

His 1963 victory sent him to the Canadian championship at Charlottetown earlier this year where he won the Canadian crown and the right to represent Canada in Norway in the 1965 world plowing championships.

Results of Friday's competitions:

Horses, open, jointer plows (trophy): Gerald Bell, RR3, Woodville; Myrvil Willis, RR1, Oakwood; Lloyd May, RR4, Milton.

Tractors, mounted plows, open (trophy): Ivan DeGeer, RR2, Mount Albert; Keith Leslie, RR4, Georgetown; William Huffman, RR1, Hagersville.

Tractors, mounted plows, two or more furrows, mounted or trailer (trophy): Gordon Walton, RR1, Cayuga; Donald Dunkeld, RR2, Clairemont; Bob Armstrong, RR3, Brampton.

hand at the legislature to greet the Queen there.

There were about 500 people, mostly women and children, lining Lance outside the terminal. There were light cheers and a few persons waved when the Queen and Prince Philip entered their closed car.

The Queen wore a turquoise coat, a turban-like green hat and light cream-colored shoes. She appeared relaxed and smiled as she did the duke who towered over her.

Three auto mobiles with RCMP officers and other security personnel and a squad of RCMP motorcyclists were spread around the car.

The limousine with its escort mounted Elmwood Hill; travelled across the plains, swung to Grande Allee and around in front of the Legislature Buildings where it arrived at 10:32 a.m.

There was a fair-sized crowd in front of the legislature where Quebec fleur-de-lis flags and the Union Jack were flying and cheered as the royal couple went by.

After the royal couple's car swept up to the legislature and the Queen entered the buildings, Quebec Provincial Police made a baton charge on a group of about 100 young people of College age who started to chant in the crowd.

ARREST SIX

The police arrested a half-dozen and drove them away in police wagons.

Crowds along the Plains of Abraham were thin when the Queen drove by but they thickened up and were more demonstrative in the vicinity of the government buildings where there was a good-sized assembly of Quebecers.

It was in this crowd that police moved in to put down the chanting of the group of young people.

IN MEMORIAM

BURR — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Alex Burr, who passed away October 12, 1962.
So many things have happened,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
Had you been left to stay.
Every day is some small way,
Though absent, you are ever near,
Memories of you keep our way,
Still missed, loved always dear.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Margaret and family.

SUMMERS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Charles John, who passed away October 11th, 1960.
He had need a special day, dear,
To bring you to my mind,
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
But since you've gone I miss you,
Never shall your memory fade,
Thoughts are a treasure forever,
In the heart where you are laid.
—Sadly missed by wife Rose and family.

McKAY — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Ida McKay, who passed away Oct. 12, 1945.
Lovingly and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by family and grandchildren.

McKAY — In loving memory of my dear wife Kate who went away October 12, 1962.
Oh what would I give to clasp your hand,
Your fear hand face to see,
Your loving smile, your welcome kind,
That meant so much to me.
Only those who loved can tell,
The heartache and the pain,
A cherished smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest wife in the world could hold.
Happy memories fond and true,
From us who thought she world of you.
—Of course remembered by sister Hazel, brother-in-law Gordon and niece Mrs. Harold (Audrey) Grey of Oshawa.

CROOK — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Ellen Crook, who passed away three years ago, October 10, 1961.
Your mother you are not forgotten.
Though on earth you are no more,
And in memory you are with us still,
As you always were before.
—Lovingly remembered by son-in-law, Kaigy, Robert, Ronald and Raymond.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank all my relatives, friends and neighbours for the prayers flowers, gifts and cards I received while I was a patient in Belleville Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Hall, McDonald, all the nurses and aides on 3rd floor south. God bless you all.
—Cheryl Thornton.

Prescription Pharmacists

Almost daily, new drugs appear which we are urged to offer. To reject the unproved products is just as important to this pharmacy as is the service of being alert to provide the newest and the best.

There are certain helpful guides on which we rely. Reliable pharmaceutical manufacturers, such as Parke, Davis & Company, establish quality and effectiveness with exhaustive clinical tests before a product is announced. Your Doctor is then given facts, and on his judgment we rely in making our decision.

That, if a preparation is in our stock, you are assured of its reliability.

Nicholson Catholic College Holds Graduation Exercises, Prizes, Diplomas Presented

Graduates of Nicholson Catholic College, their parents and their friends assembled in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy last evening for the college's annual graduation exercises.

Welcoming the graduates and guests was James Ross, a student, who acted as master of ceremonies throughout a long and varied program.

Main speaker for the evening was W. Francis Buckley, head of the English department at the Belleville Collegiate and himself a graduate of St. Michael's Academy.

Mr. Buckley challenged the students to live their lives as Christians. "Old age," he said, "is not a product of the mere passing of years, but comes when a person gives up his ideals. All the great expansion in human knowledge, all the scientific discoveries of recent years, can make life more comfortable," he said, but they cannot give meaning to life. Graduates, he said, should measure their success in life by their ability to hold fast to their high ideals, and not by the yardstick of material success.

VALEDICTORY GIVEN

Mr. Buckley was thanked at the conclusion of his address by Brian Tyrrell, one of Nicholson College's two Ontario Scholars last year, the other Ontario scholar, Miss Brigitte Koestler, was the valedictorian for her class.

Miss Koestler expressed the gratitude of herself, and of other students of the graduating classes, for the assistance and guidance received from teachers during their school years. She also stressed the role which loving parents had played in any success any of the students might have achieved during their years at Nicholson College.

The program opened with the processional, the graduates parading to the platform while the school's Glee Club sang. The presentation of prizes was interspersed by musical numbers. Miss Kathleen O'Connor rendering a vocal solo and the Glee Club singing two selections.

Prizes for religious knowledge were presented by Rev. Reginald Sweeney, O.F.M. (Conv.), while diplomas to the graduating classes were distributed by Right Rev. J. P. Sullivan, D.D.P.P.S.

The Economist Says Queen's Visit to Canada Ill-Timed

LONDON (CP)—The weekly The Economist says the Queen's visit to Canada is "ill-timed" in view of the controversy it has caused, but it may yet open people's eyes to the real challenge of a resurgent Quebec, greater than the threats of a few extremists.

The magazine says the royal visit would have been "right" even if the question of the Queen's safety had never arisen. It has distracted attention from the real meaning of the 1964 Confederation talks in which Quebec and Ontario "thrust" the idea on the Maritimes.

"If the royal element, with its controversial undertones, had been kept out of the present celebrations, Canadians would have been better able to concentrate on what really happened 100 years ago and to recall the reasons why they then chose to create a federal dominion—reasons that are directly relevant to their present discontents."

The Economist article, unsigned, says the right response now to the real challenge of Quebec could "lead to 'he building of something better and greater than Canada has ever been." In 1967 Canada could celebrate not only the centenary of Confederation, but "the dawn of a truly new Canadian century."

SEES MISTAKE

After a careful survey of Quebec's own "new dawn," the magazine concludes it would be grave mistake for Canadians to accept any division of Canada such as the twin states envisaged by the St. Jean Baptiste Society of Montreal.

The Economist says it would be extremely difficult, in such a case, to maintain Canada's distinctive identity against United States influence.

"Although there seems little awareness of the fact in, say, Vancouver . . . Canada's separate identity is very largely founded on its French element.

The magazine also rebukes those English - speaking Canadians who want to call Quebec's bluff "and so effect say right, secede and see where it gets you."

"The world needs Canada and a Canada that embraces and draws upon the new thrust and vigor of the Canadiens can offer, the world greter serv ices, and a more heartening ex ample, than ever before."

Woman Drives Car Into Side Of Stopped Train

Mrs. Ruth May Potts, R.R. 2, Stirling, was taken to Belleville General Hospital this morning after her car ran into the side of a stopped freight train on the Old Marmora Road crossing in Stirling.

Mrs. Potts was taken to the doctor's office in Stirling and later was transferred by ambulance to Belleville hospital.

Stirling Police Chief C. E. Hicks said Mrs. Potts was alone in the car and on her way to work in Belleville, when the accident occurred. She apparently failed to see the stopped train in time and was unable to stop due to the slippery condition of the roadway.

Damage to the car amounted to about $600. The accident occurred about 6.30.

Committee Will Visit Marmora, Madoc, Bancroft

The Select Committee of the Ontario Legislature on Mining will visit the Bancroft, Madoc and Marmora areas on October 13th and 14th, it has been announced by Clarke P. Rollins, M.L.A. for Hastings East.

Immediately following a public hearing at Queen's Park on Wednesday, October 14th, the Committee will proceed to Bancroft by bus.

On Thursday morning the fact-finding group of legislators will tour the mining properties in the Bancroft area and at 2.30 p.m. a public meeting will be held in the Canadian Legion hall.

On Friday at 10.00 a.m. a public meeting will be held in Bloe's Hotel in Madoc and at 2.30 p.m. a similar meeting will be held in the Marmora Council chamber.

Invitations to attend this series of meetings have been sent to all mayors and reeves of the county, as well as a number of mining and quarrying companies. Any private individuals desiring to attend or address the group are welcome to do so.

Rene Brunelle, committee chairman, is determined that the members of his committee have every opportunity to see, hear and understand everything of interest in the mining industry in Hastings County.

Mr. Brunelle has arranged for a group of experts from various government departments to accompany the committee to give it consultation in matters such as economics, highways, forestry, as well as mining.

J. C. Lundberg and Wife Invited To Ottawa Reception for Queen

John C. Lundberg, Dominion President, ANAF, and Mrs. Lundberg have been invited by Prime Minister Pearson to be present at a reception at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, on Monday in honor of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Before the reception Mr. Lundberg will be taking part in a wreath-laying ceremony by Queen Elizabeth at the Cenotaph in Ottawa.

On Monday of this week, Mr. Lundberg accompanied by Brigadier James Melville, Honorary Dominion President ANAF and Mr. J. P. Nevins, Secretary of the Association, presented to Hon. Roger Teillette, Minister of Veterans' Affairs, the resolutions passed by the convention at Saskatoon in August. The most important one is a request for a 33⅓ per cent increase in all pensions for veterans.

On the same day Mr. Lundberg met with and entertained at luncheon, Dr. Sims, the Deputy Minister in the Department of Veterans' Affairs and representatives of the various departments relating to veterans affairs in Britain.

Mr. Lundberg says he is quite confident that there will be an increase in pensions.

They Still Support Peron

In Argentina, President Charles de Gaulle of France found himself in the midst of a mob which was using his state visit as an opportunity to demonstrate in favor of the exiled dictator Juan Peron.

The devotion of many Argentines to Peron is so enduring that one is tempted to wonder whether we may not have misjudged him. Can a man who has so many ardent admirers years after he has been forced into exile have been wholly bad?

While he ruled, Peron seemed to be endeavoring to emulate the later Caesars of Rome, who were not satisfied with being emperor but also coveted recognition as a god. This tendency was enhanced by the attitudes of his beautiful, blonde wife, Evita, to whom he seems to have been truly devoted. After her death, there was a change in the political climate. Perhaps, this was no more than Peron's past sins catching up with him, but his conduct was also consistent with the behavior of a man who had lost the source of his inspiration and cared little what fate held in store.

Unlike many South American dictators, Peron did not derive his power from the few wealthy families, but rather catered to the working classes. From this distance, it is extremely difficult to judge whether this represented a sincere interest in their lot, or whether it was prompted solely by selfishness and a desire to use the mob against those who, in South American lands, normally wield power, the industrialists, the big land owners and the armed forces.

In any event, there can be little doubt that Peron went much too far in some of his legislation aimed at pleasing the labor unions, the whose organization he was largely responsible. Privileges were granted which did not make good sense, economically speaking, and it was this, as much as anything, which led to Peron finally being driven from the country.

Some may say it is merely the memory of the "good-old-days" under Peron which leads labor unions to still support him so vigorously, but the passing of the years will have wrought large changes in the membership of these unions. Past links, it would seem, are hardly enough to account for this continued support. There must have been some concrete benefits enjoyed by the poorer classes as a whole during Peron's regime to explain the high favor in which he is still held by many.

In Argentina, at least, the poor have no urge to embrace Castro's creed in their search for a better deal. Peron is still their hero.

Unequal Treatment

Ed Murphy, a radio correspondent who covers the parliamentary press gallery in Ottawa, says he will broadcast a taped interview with Hal Banks on Nov. 20.

He will not air the interview prior to that date because he promised Banks he would keep the interview under wraps until after the election of SIU officers.

We applaud Murphy's determination to keep his promise to Banks. Just because Banks himself is not considered by many to be the most trustworthy person is no valid excuse for breaking a pledge to him.

We wish Murphy had shown an equal concern for ethical considerations in other areas. For instance, we suggest it was hardly cricket of him to let other people know the gist of the taped interview well in advance of the date at which his interpretation of it can be checked against Banks' actual words. Murphy says that Banks, in the taped interview, mentions Liberal election candidates who accepted SIU campaign funds from the SIU and also discusses Banks' association with some Liberal leaders. We have no reason for doubting Murphy's word, but we should have thought more of him if he had made sure that those affected by Banks' charges had the opportunity to reply promptly.

As it is, Murphy is keeping his word to Banks at the expense of people who may be under suspicion of being the men whose names are going to be revealed a month hence.

To my mind, the important division between people is not between the classical and scientific outlook on life, but between those who have been educated to see the world in terms of the rapidly changing environment, which science is creating, with all its potentialities, and those who see it in terms of the static environment, and frozen emotional attitudes of the past.—Lord Brain of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Pearson Ever the Diplomat Disarms and Charms

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

Putting the tips of his fingers together and thoughtfully surveying the ceiling, he picked his words with obvious care, and with studied deliberation said:

"Tell them this, Rene MacColl — tell them that we are not going to lose touch with old friends or forget old loyalties in what a majority of Canadians regard as the mother country.

"Some people are saying that I am forgetting this, forgetting these important things, forgetting old loyalties and associations — but I tell you that I am not and never will."

It was just the right thing — precisely the perfect thing — to say to Rene MacColl, famed Chief Foreign Correspondent of The London Daily Express.

And it was prime minister Pearson, the old diplomatist, the perfectionist in the fine art of compelling people, individually, to warm instantly to him, practising the wiles of personal charm on a hard-boiled, skeptical if not slightly suspicious world traveller and global observer.

DIEPSAID NO

It was just before the prime minister set out to escort the Queen on the current royal tour.

And The Daily Express, like other great London national newspapers, was feeling about Separatism, Terrorism and assorted other extremism in Quebec.

True to the tradition of Lord Beaverbrook in his personal identification with Canada and things Canadian, The Express, although it has a correspondent in Ottawa, flew in two senior staff writers to the Capital to make their own careful on-the-spot assessment of the situation.

Rene MacColl was the second and by far the most senior of these.

Making an advance survey of the ground is not, oddly, to be urgently wanted a personal word with the prime minister.

Two years ago, oddly, General all the pressure The Express correspondent in Ottawa could bring to bear on Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker — and they were, and still are, friends — he refused flatly and finally to see Rene MacColl.

He wouldn't say why — although some of his own Cabinet Ministers, colleagues in the Commons and key members of his staff hopefully interceded — he simply wouldn't.

And there were no explanations.

Even so, The Express and Rene MacColl remained admirers of the Conservative prime minister, and perhaps were just a little suspicious of his successor.

After all, Dief had stood with The Express in the battle to keep Britain out of the Common Market. He was established, pro-British Commonwealth man and he had fought the good fight to keep the Canadian Red Ensign with the Union Jack in the corner.

COMPLETE CONQUEST

And the new prime minister seemed more of an international United Nations man than a Commonwealth man, appeared at times at least forgetful or perhaps unaware that Canada's old British tradition, and clearly was determined to haul down the Red Ensign.

Nonetheless Rene MacColl and The Express wanted to talk to the prime minister and directed their Ottawa correspondent to try arranging an interview.

Perhaps it was strangely, where John Diefenbaker inexplicably had said no and kept on saying it, Mike Pearson said yes, that even though he would terribly busy he would try to see Rene MacColl.

And of course he did.

In west this hard-bitten globally roving world correspondent, slightly on his guard and prepared to try understanding a prime ministerial attitude he was almost certain would be at odds with Express philosophy of a Britain still Great with Britannia ever ruling the waves.

The Express crowd is a proud thing and the great London daily is honored for it across that part of the world that sets loyal store by the Commonwealth and its British tradition.

It took Mike Pearson perhaps five minutes to completely disarm, utterly charm this time-tempered veteran of Fleet Street who has lunched with every world leader since the days of Stanley Baldwin to Christian Smuts, Herbert Hoover and others of the between-the-wars old guard.

It was something to see.

And that quote — "tell them, Rene MacColl, we are not forgetting old loyalties and the mother country" — was exquisitely to the Queen's taste.

What an old smoothie this prime minister is!

"Let's Get In There Pitching!"

To Your Good Health

Treatment for Dandruff Is Constant Shampooing

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about dandruff? Must we resort to remedies in advertisements or can it be treated medically?

Can a person have a scalp condition similar to folliculitis which I happen to have, involving the eyebrows? There is not a dermatologist in my city and I fight an ever-increasing battle to be neat, because of the flaking condition of my scalp and even down on the skin of my forehead and face — Mrs. L. B.

Dandruff, a common and annoying problem, basically is a condition called seborrheic dermatitis. It can occur in the scalp eyelashes or other hairy areas.

Precisely what causes it is open to argument, maybe a low grade infection, perhaps other factors. Anyway, the sebaceous glands are stimulated to greater than normal activity, and they produce more sebum, the skin oil to which they exist. In turn, this causes the outer layer of skin to flake off. That's dandruff.

Worse yet, sometimes the scalp becomes itchy and a person scratches it — consciously, or unconsciously. The skin can thus become raw, opening the way for infections to add to discomfort and aggravate the whole condition.

Like many prevalent complaints, it has brought scores of patent remedies, some useful, some not. The basic treatment, however, is frequent shampooing, which removes dirt and excess oils, or sebum. Tincture of green soap is effective and a good anti-septic. If it dries the scalp too much, one can rub half an ounce of olive oil into the scalp after the shampoo. It is usually advisable to have shampoos every three or four days until the condition eases.

Many people with dandruff are the nervous type with anxieties and tensions, so this problem should be controlled. Mild sedatives or tranquilizers are helpful.

A reduction of fats in the diet may be recommended — desserts of some kinds, creams, spreads, gravies, fried foods, etc.

In a case as severe as Mrs. L. B.'s, there is no dermatologist in her city, it would probably be worth while to consult one elsewhere. (Her physician or the county medical society can refer her to the nearest qualified specialist.)

In a long-lasting case, treatment quite often is needed for secondary infections of the scalp. After they are corrected, the dandruff itself often subsides.

Dandruff can be controlled by proper measures, but analysis of the individual problem sometimes is necessary first.

Folliculitis (infection of hair follicles) is quite commonly associated with seborrhea. It can involve the hair follicles of the eyebrows, and the eyelashes, as well.

Some less common skin conditions can resemble dandruff, but need more specialized treatment.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does chewing of ice interfere with normal teeth? I chew about two trays of it a day. I am 23.—P. B.

Ice is frozen water. I've had quite a few letters from people, usually older than you are, who have acquired this odd habit. I know of no reason to think it is harmful. If you like to chew forten water, it's all right with me. But I've never had anyone tell me why they like it. So I call it a harmless quirk.

Note To "X": No, I don't think depilatory creams are harmful, with one reservation: Occasionally some people find them irritating to the skin.

Instant Test For Diabetes

BBC London Letter

It has been suggested that there may be as many as 800,000 people in Britain suffering from sugar diabetes in a mild form without knowing it, because the symptoms of this debilitating disease are unbearable and easily overlooked. To apply the traditional methods of testing to an entire population would be an impossible task but recently a new "instant" test was announced which could be applied quickly and efficiently on a large scale.

Describing this, technological advance in the BBC program "Science and Industry" Paul Vaughan pointed out that the traditional method of testing the patient's urine for sugar content was not entirely infallible, since there might be other reasons for the presence of sugar, and the current method of testing the blood involved a little time, and the use of expensive machinery in the laboratory. The new instant process was a simple method of testing a blood sample which could be done by the doctor at the patient's bedside in precisely one minute. Obviously it would be specially useful to doctors far from the diagnostic equipment in hospitals.

"The doctor buys 25 little sticks of stiff, absorbent cellulose, each one just over three inches long, in a small bottle. The end of each stick is impregnated with a special chemical reagent which, in combination with glucose and oxygen, turns blue. All the doctor does is take a drop of the patient's blood and spread it over the treated end of the stick. He waits one minute and washes the blood off with cold water. A color chart on the side of the bottle shows him what the intensity of color change on the stick means in terms of blood-sugar levels. Briefly, the darker the blue, the higher the level of sugar in the blood. The clear-cut distinction between a concentration from 40 to 200 milligrammes per 100 c's of blood and one from subnormal to a concentration indicating confirmed diabetes.

"One advantage of this technique is that the reagent strips react specifically to glucose — not to other substances in the blood, as other reagents are known to do."

Once diabetes was recognized Vaughan pointed out, the diabetic could lead an almost normal life, and the new technique would be valuable not only in diagnosis, but in the routine screening of confirmed diabetics whose blood-sugar level had to be periodically checked.

Flag Symbols Commonplace

Montreal Star

Mr. Diefenbaker has now come out against the maple leaf on a new Canadian ensign. Such symbols, he told his television audience ,have no place on flags.

This was an interesting and indeed a novel theory, and perhaps on his next television address Mr. Diefenbaker will explain exactly what the cross of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick are on the Union Jack, the rising sun on the flag of Japan, the hammer and sickle on the flag of the Soviet Union and indeed the stars and stripes of the United States.

It is in fact exactly the opposite. It is almost impossible to find a flag which is not made up of symbols. The one example which comes to mind is the unfortunate new African nation which, when asked why it had chosen the colors and design which it did for its flag answered: "That is all that is left."

Subsidies For Books

Wall Street Journal

If you pick up a copy of The Strategy of Peace: A Study in World-Wide Communist Tactics, edited by Mrs. Jeane Kirkpatrick, you will see only that it is published as well as known American publisher. It isn't evident anywhere that the federal government had anything to do with it. And yet the United States Information Agency invested $14,952 in the book, which was distributed abroad by the agency later published in the U.S. as an ordinary commercial venture.

Curious about the USIA's anonymous book - publishing activity, a House committee at the this year questioned that agency's executive assistant, Reed Irvine, who explained that the USIA program permitted having books written to its own specifications. "We control the thing," he said, "from the very idea down to the final edited manuscript."

That, however, did not quite satisfy California's Rep. Glenard Lipscomb, who asked Comptroller General Joseph Campbell for a ruling on the project's legality. A month later, now finds that since Congress instituted the USIA, in disseminating information, in one private publishing and other facilities "to the maximum extent practicable," there is nothing improper in its use of public funds to finance a book, even when no mention is made of the government's connection with it.

Now legal as this strange passion for anonymity may be, it does raise a question. Surely things can't be so bad that the government has to produce propaganda anonymously for fear that if the invisible author were known, nobody would believe it. For if that's how things are, maybe Rep. Lipscomb ought to take a look at the USIA output's visible side. . . .

"We must prepare this future today. Between compatriots, we must explain and present our points of view, without passion, respecting the opinion of others.

TESTED TO UNITE

"The problems will dissolve into confusion if we do not illuminate them with fraternity and humanity. If the dialogue remains open, it will tend to unite men of good will.

"True patriotism does not exclude the understanding of the patriotism of others.

"The democratic regime rests on the conscious adherence of its citizens. The role of the constitutional monarchy is to personify the democratic state, to sanction legitimate authority, to assure the legality of means, and to guarantee the execution of the popular will.

"My ardent desire is that nobody among my peoples is subject to coercion (contrainte).

"For the inhabitants of a country to be happy, they must live in a climate of confidence and affection. But a dynamic state shouldn't fear to rethink its political philosophy.

"It isn't astonishing that a protocol drawn up 100 years ago doesn't necessarily respond to all the problems of the day.

"I hope that the centenary of our Confederation will be a symbol of hope for the world. To fully succeed, it must produce an effective and freely-consented - to agreement that will be the expression of the maturity of our country."

The Confederation was founded by two races," I would think it appropriate to speak in the languages of both Cartier and Macdonald. This country is the meeting place of two great civilizations, each contributing to its own genius and quality, and these qualities are not contradictory, but complement one another. The full energy and progress of the nation can only be realized by the continued co-operation of all sections of the community."

She then concluded in French:

"We are proud of the irreplaceable role and of the destiny of French Canada. During 400 years it has conserved its vigor and strength, and when you sing O Canada you will remember that you were born of a proud race . . .

Both Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested they should be given a longer period than private members, but Mr. Pearson said he would not hold up the motion; it was something the committee could look into before the changes become permanent.

Both he and Mr. Diefenbaker welcomed the work of the committee, whose recommendations will be tried on a temporary basis through the present session of Parliament.

There also was general praise from all corners of the House for the committee's report, which also recommended:

That no appeals be allowed on rulings by the Speaker on attempts to set aside daily business for special emergency debates;

That Commons committees be set up for the lifetime of Parliament rather than the lifetime of a session;

That a research staff be established for the use of MPs.

That training courses be provided for new MPs to teach them the rules.

Woman Alone Near Retirement Has Growing Sense of Panic

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I am a single woman, and will reach my company's normal retirement age of 60 in January.

"I am beginning to feel a sense of panic. . .

Thus starts the story of one of the tragic figures on the retirement scene — a woman alone who has had few triumphs in her life and who now heads into her later years with loneliness and with nothing to do.

"The last 15 of the 40 years I have worked for my company," she continues, "I have lived alone. This has not bothered me too much, since most of my time is spent on the job. But now I am faced with living alone, and not working.

"This is truly a difficult problem for one who in 40 years has not been away from the office for more than two weeks at a time. I got a taste of what it will be like when I was forced by illness to remain at home for six months last year."

She says she cannot look to a pleasant retirement of taking life easy at last. She sees only loneliness. And it is giving her "a sense of panic."

HAS LITTLE FAMILY

This woman, as with many who reach age 60 without marrying, has little family. A married sister and a married brother are left, but both are far away and not very interested in her. Also, as with most retired single women, she will not have much income. But enough to live decently.

She is thinking of moving into a retirement community "for companionship of people my own age, for the planned activities and protection offered."

Then she explains: "In this apartment building where I live are many other retired women who, like myself, have had family responsibilities which not only prevented their living normal lives but prevented the building-up of retirement savings. . .

The woman says there seems no place in society for the retired single woman. She asks what she can do.

Here is a starter for her and others in her same plight:

1. Change some of your basic attitudes toward life, since the attitudes you have haven't gotten you very far if you hit a dead-end at 60. Consider for a moment that if your aims are no higher than security, companionship, and protection, a Government prison is a fine place to get them.

2. Consider first a change in your attitude toward your appearance. Has it gotten you anywhere as it is? Invest up to $100 if you must in having a beauty shop give you a new look — for the inspiration of those who see you, and for yourself.

MONEY NO' ENOUGH

3. Change your attitude toward money. It simply will not bring a good life after 60, and to learn this for once and for all just wander into the lobby of a luxury retirement hotel and gaze at the old ladies. You need enough money for a decent existence. Beyond that it is not money, but you.

4. Change your attitude toward how and where you must live — because of what your friends might think. Just how much good has it done you up to now to be guided by what they think? Housekeeping rooms or a small apartment on a lower social level, where families instead of ladies live, will save you money and vastly increase your chances for remaining interesting to come into your life. A nice retirement community is fine, if you want to resign from active living. A woman at 60 shouldn't.

5. Change your attitude toward what retirement should be. It is not escape into security, not a group travel tour, not left-handed welfare work. It is a free-flying adventure into something new . . . and good. You need people around you for this, as a rule, and the best place to find people, including a husband if you want one, is a job. As a waitress, anything. It doesn't matter so long as it's not your same old rut. It's a start, and it can lead anywhere. The want ads and the courage to go ask will lead you to a job.

Three Killed Near Renfrew

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Lucien Levesque, 41, of Sudbury and her sons Guy, 13, and Marc, 6, were killed Friday in a Highway 17 accident involving three cars.

Injured were Mr. Levesque and all seven occupants of a second car, Donald Campbell of Renfrew and his wife and five children. The youngest Campbell child, Ross, 4, was in critical condition Friday night.

The accident occurred on wet, slippery pavement at Haley Station, 17 miles west of Renfrew and about 75 miles northwest of Ottawa. Police said they were told the accident happened this way:

Mrs. Levesque, with her two sons in the front seat, was driving east. Mr. Levesque, just recently released from hospital and still in a cast from chest to waist, lay on the back seat. Mrs. Levesque swerved to try to avoid a westbound car approaching on the wrong side of the road, and drove into the path of the Campbell car. The third vehicle did not stop. Police were searching for it Friday night.

Mr. Levesque suffered a broken leg and face lacerations.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and two daughters, Jane 9, and Ann, 8, were in hospital here in fair condition. Their sons, Peter, 12, Boyd, 11, and Ross 4, were taken to an Ottawa hospital. The two oldest boys were reported in fair condition but Ross was suffering from serious head and internal injuries.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"I just discovered something . . . that's an electric fence."

Interview

subject: electric heating

Mr. and Mrs. R. Simpson live in an electrically heated home in Glenburnie, near Kingston. The Simpsons are one of many families recently interviewed throughout Ontario to discover their personal opinions of electric heating. Here are their comments:

ELECTRIC HEATING IS CLEAN

"I've certainly noticed the difference from other types of heating. In our other houses there was always a kind of grimy dust. There's none of that with electric heating."

INDIVIDUAL ROOM THERMOSTATS PROVIDE COMPLETE COMFORT

"I can keep the youngsters' rooms a little warmer than average, and our bedroom on the cool side so everybody's comfortable. When we're going to take a bath we just turn the bathroom thermostat up."

THE AIR IS NEVER TOO DRY WITH ELECTRIC HEATING

"We are very comfortable here. The air is never too dry. In our other house we had to keep a container of water on top of the rad."

ELECTRIC HEATING COSTS NO MORE THAN OTHER SYSTEMS

"It's no more than we would pay with other systems without the comfort of electric heating. From September 1st until March of this year our bill for electric heating was only $146. When you consider that we are heating 1,500 square feet, and a basement, that's really something."

Electrically-heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. Flameless electric heating is clean, safe and offers the convenience of room-by-room temperature control. With all its advantages, is it any wonder so many people throughout Ontario are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME

If you are planning home extensions or if parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

'GENA BRANSCOMBE'

(Last of Three Articles)

"I firmly believe we are born on this earth to maintain a love-filled heart and as a thank-offering make a fragrance of our God-given talents and gifts." — Gena Branscombe

CONCLUSION)

"Every so often," says Gena Branscombe, one of America's foremost women composers conductors and poets, formerly of Picton, now of New York 'someone asks me whether or not being a woman composer gives me a sense of inferiority.'

Her answer? — "Unfailingly, no!"

The one thing, she says, that "gives me a sense of inferiority is when I've been lazy, or when I've let someone talk me into going to some lovely affair when I should have been working — getting on with a large composition that in all probability may never be heard."

All artists, male or female, know themselves to be a race apart. They are, Gena believes, "a race apart — of royal blood, as it were, and they never, even in times of despair, would wish to have been anything other than what they are," and have, unlike other mortals, a kind of built-in radio-set, which at certain time is able "to tune in some non-earthly place where beauty, truth, courage, joy and illumination are a way of life."

As to being a major or minor composer "that is out of our hands — our only responsibility is to do the best we can with it."

As for the great composers, "my feeling is that they heard more clearly and were able to get down on paper much more of what they heard."

The second thing is the versatility of all artists' expression has a place in this world of ours, which is to its glory and honor. Only one condition must be met: each artist must pick the right new length.

"And as for women composers," she declares, "think of the countless geniuses of gifted women, who were barred from any form of musical education so available to their gifted brothers. Even Felix Mendelssohn, personable, delightful and a genius, signed his name to many of his sister Fanny's smaller piano pieces and songs, since he, too, shared the belief of centuries old, that a lady should not allow her name to appear in vulgar print! Even not too long ago, some women used their husband's initials, such as Amy Cheney Beach, a most talented woman, known professionally as Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, to appease the Boston Back Bay Society tradition in which she lived.

"Today women who wish for serious study find the doors open, and can and refine their technical tools with ease and eagerness, Skill and training is a requisite, for to score well with orchestra, requires the same sort of disciplined mind that is required to run a great railway system (with the added basic requirement of a specialized knowledge of the intricacies of each orchestral instrument). So successfully have women written, found publishers and a public for their musical work, that had there been time, space and money, I could have done hundreds of programs devoted entirely to them. And above all, they are a joy to work with.

"So you see, it's a good life, being a woman composer, worth all the hard work that goes into it. . . ."

"Do you compose swiftly or in s'low manner?" she was asked.

She answered: "as a rule, rather slowly." The one exception was her work entitled "Pilgrims of Destiny", which has to do with the pilgrims who sailed the "Mayflower". In order to write the text, she first wrote a whole book on her research about it.

"This took me a year or more to do," she recalls, "and then when I came to write the music for the libretto, I finished it in four weeks. Something I've never done before or since.

"In the room where I was writing, however, was a lovely statue of a lady so placed by a window, that it seemed to inspire me. When I had finished my work, I asked our land-lady if I might be, if, since we were moving away.

" 'It belongs to my sister, who's away, so I couldn't sell it,' I was told.

"Several years passed by before the subject came up again and I went to enquire about it and learned: 'My sister decided she didn't like it. So she gave it away to some antique dealer, I think. . .'

"More years passed by. One day, I happened to drop into an antique store in an unfrequented neighborhood and there, in a corner stood the very same statue — which finally became mine." and confirmed another sincere belief: "That which is really yours will find you."

Because she has served the cause of music so well, we thought you would like to read this impressive list of attainments and honors. Gena Branscombe served as: Vice President and Director of the National Association for Composers and Composers; Chairman of American Music, Member of the National Council of Radio Chairman for the New York State Federation of Music Clubs (she is an honorary Member of the Board); National Chairman of American Music and Folksong for the National Federation of Women's Clubs; Advisory Board for the National Opera Club of New York; and Advisory Board for the National American Women Composers, now disbanded.

She is a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP); an honor member of the Associated Musicians of Greater New York; an honorary member of Delta Omicron, of International Beta Sigma Phi, the Women's Art Association of Canada; an Honorthiatre of Zeta Tau Alpha; and a member of the MacDowell Colonists.

Whitman College awarded her an honorary degree. The Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution inscribed her name on their Honor Roll at Constitution Hall in Washington for her service to patriotic education. The American Mother's Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation gave her an award (as a woman and a mother) for her services in the musical field. Beta Sigma Phi International gave her a citation for her devotion to the interests of women all over the world. And the National League of American Penwomen gave her most distinguished - work - of - the - year-by-a-woman award.

Emil Ludwig once wrote: "Actions belong in the museum of history; characters, the substance of action and intellect, approach the heart and brain of every individual."

This, Gena, would apply to Gena and account for the remarkable interest and appreciation from so many readers, further stirred by her tremendous love of life, her good will to all and the "fragrance" of her musical gifts.

Her story vividly reminds us that nothing of value can be easily won without "heart-grieving sweat" for according to a Greek poet "Before the gates of excellence the high gods have placed sweat. Long is the road thereto and rough and steep" while Plato sums it up with "Hard is the good". How fitting indeed, that "the excellent becomes the permanent."

To know that Gena Branscombe is Canadian-born makes us proud: that she is from our own Quinte district makes the heart rejoice.

Long may her trumpets sound!

MR. AND MRS. DAVID ROSS THOMSON

Thomson-Wallbridge

Mountain View United Church was decorated with bronze and white floral ferns for the marriage of Betty Margaret Wallbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan L. Wallbridge, R. R. 7, Belleville, to David Ross Thomson, 108 Isabella Street, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Thomson, Seaforth, Ontario.

Rev. G. Ambury of Redneresville was the officiating clergyman, and Mrs. Gordon Argaint, Mr. Robert Barber, provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride looked charming in a floor-length gown of white basketweave satin, with rounded neckline, long sleeves, fitted bodice forming a V at the back, and a skirt of unpressed pleats falling into a train. Her four-tiered shoulder-length veil was caught with a coronet of pearls and rhinestones, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white shasta mums, baby's breath and English ivy.

Miss Marilyn Durand of Belleville was maid of honor, dressed in gold peau de soie, floor-length with fitted bodice, rounded neckline with train falling from the neckline to the floor, and bell-shaped skirt. She wore matching shoes and matching wedding band headdress, and carried a large nosegay of bronze mums. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack Kane of Belleville and Miss Lynda Bote of Kingston. They wore gowns similar to that of the maid of honor, and carried nosegays of bronze and white mums, with baby's breath and fern with gold streamers.

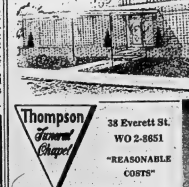
The groomsman was Mr. Murray Shantz of Glenview, Ill., and the ushers were Mr. Peter Campbell of Toronto, and Mr. Bruce Wallbridge, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the Town Motor Hotel where the bride's mother received the guests in a beige dress of embossed brocade, with brown and beige accessories, and a corsage of talisman roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a turquoise linen sheath with matching jacket, brown and turquoise accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The young couple left by car for a trip through the Eastern United States, with the bride travelling in a suit of brown and white tweed, leather trimmed, brown and white accessories and corsage of white roses.

Guests attended the wedding from Seaforth, Woodstock, London, Toronto, Richmond Hill, Willowdale, Oakville, Dundas, Ingersoll, Glenview, Ill., and Belleville.



A linen shower was given for the bride by the maid of honor, Miss Marilyn Durand with Mrs. Jack Kane as co-hostess. A presentation was made by the staff at the clinic where the bride was employed. The bridegroom was honored at a stag party, and a presentation made by the staff of the Capital Construction company where he is employed. A trousseau tea was given by the bride's mother at her home, and a rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents following the wedding rehearsal.

Is There Really a Monster Deep in Loch Ness Waters?

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

LOCH NESS, Scotland — Richard Spence is a soft-spoken bespectacled young man who for the past year has headed bar in the Clansman Hotel on the west shore of the lovely 24-mile-long lake in the heart of the Highlands.

As a bartender, he is even less given to hallucinations than most people. He is particularly sensitive to ribbing about Loch Ness monster stories because he took plenty of it when he worked in the personnel department of a factory in London for several years. As soon as people heard he came from near Loch Ness, . . . well, you know.

Like the majority of people hereabouts, he had never seen Old Nessie, as whatever-it-is is familiarly called by everybody. And for nearly a year he had stood behind the hotel bar overlooking the lake for an eight-hour work day, facing abeautiful over the tranquil scene, pour- ing Scotch, minding his own business, never giving Nessie a second — or even first — thought. He would tell hotel guests to go to the movies instead of hanging around for an evening of futile monster-watching.

"I. BEAUTIFUL SIGHT"

Then one calm and still-sunny evening about 9 o'clock something on the far side of the loch caught his eye. Moving at an unbelievable speed through the water, it was perhaps 45 feet long and had a straight back, protruding from which was a graceful serpent's neck with fins, surmounted by a small head. "It was," muses Spence, "a truly beautiful sight."

Mrs. Catherine-Margaret McKenzie, proprietor of the hotel, recalls that the mild-mannered bartender was uncommonly agitated as he dashed from the bar into the lobby with two guests who had also seen the apparition from the bar. They dashed upstairs to the dining room for a better look, but by then it had disappeared.

Down they ran to the lake-front, where they encountered two waitresses, Margaret Mackay and Nan Campbell, just returning from their evening walk. Then the girls saw it too, though they remember it only as a long black line in the water, trailed by an enormous wake. All told, Nessie had been in view for eight minutes before disappearing again.

For at least 500 years, there have been reports of Something in Loch Ness (and in other Scottish lakes too).

The insular Scots, living in the fastness of the remote and once inaccessible highlands, are inclined to be a superstitious people. Though the idea of an unidentifiable monster appearing in a lake is far-fetched that most outsiders are inclined to discount the reports, Nessie has even been photographed — if not too clearly, at least often, and many times by professional photographers attached to professional expeditions.

Most impressive fact of all is that virtually all the thousands of reports coincide, and they have come from all kinds of people with nothing in common and no reason to fabricate. Even children have drawn unmistakable pictures of what they claim to have seen.

Nessie is almost always seen at dawn or dusk, and invariably described as Spence saw her, with the exception that she sometimes appears to have three or more humps. Cpl. George Malcolm, who operates the Lewiston Arms Hotel here, maintains a scrapbook of newspaper clippings to this effect.

OLD SKETCHES

Though he has lived here all his life, Col. Malcolm has never seen the monster. But he recalls that his grandfather did, and he has even seen sketches known to be more than 300 years old, which are quite like the description of Spence and all the others in his scrapbook.

On one occasion a busload of 40 tourists all reported a sighting. Lt.-Col. Alex M. Campbell of Ft. Augustus, who is the loch bailiff (warden) and had lived in a cottage at the southern tip of the lake all his life, has seen it several times and believes there is more than one.

For the past two summers, royal expeditions headed by David Jeanne have been seeking out Nessie, and though there has been no official report yet, they are known to have accumulated impressive evidence. The BBC has tried underwater soundings and on at least one occasion has come up with something otherwise unidentifiable. Skindiving has been tried too, but the lake is much too deep and dangerous for much of that.

And so Nessie — real or unreal — lives on, the prototype of all sea serpents and the model for cartoon characters and children's rubber toys. But if she is not real, what is the explanation?

Our own first reaction was that Loch Ness is a good lake for seeing things, especially after a few drams of high and dew. Like most large lakes surrounded by hills, it is given to sudden shifts of wind and weather. Movement of the water, combined with sunlight ducking in and out of the clouds, can play queer tricks with the eyes. But photographs do not, and the firmness of statements like Spence's as well as the remarkable coincidence of so many thousands of stories, tend to discount this theory.

Others include otters swimming in a line, a whimsical one at best; some say there are strange subterranean upheavals of water from the enormously deep lake.

ADD QUESTIONED

Questions also arise as to how Nessie can be hundreds of years old, and how she got into the lake. The most common answers are that there have been generations of her, perhaps several even now, and the original entered from the North Sea via Moray Firth and the connecting River Ness.

As for what the average Scotsman says, it is usually:

"Aye, there's something in there all right."

Aye, but what?

For those who can tear themselves away from Loch Ness' major industry of monster watching, there is much else to see in this lovely Nova Scotia - like country in the green Monadhliath Mountains. On the lake is the ruin of the famous church where the Mackintoshes massacred the unsuspecting Mckenzies, and so is Urquhart Castle, one time stronghold of the Clan Grant (from its condition they say Grant didn't Stand fast enough).

On nearby Loch Oich is Clan Macdonald's Glengarry Castle and a grisly monument surmounted by seven stone heads, a memorial to feudal vengeance.

South and east lie lofty Ben Nevis in the Grampian Mountains, stark moors bowling with winds and populated by golden eagles, and villages where people still speak Gaelic. Legends of sea serpents hardly seem out of place in this setting.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Beans with Sausage; Cole Slaw with Pineapple; Raisin Graham Muffins; Cantaloupe Halves filled with Honeyed Sliced Peaches; Tea.

COCOANUT DREAM BARS (courtesy Mrs. Ann C.): (MAY BE FROZEN):

Bottom Layer: ½ cup soft shortening, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 1-3 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Mix above ingredients thoroughly. Press evenly, with floured hands, into well-greased 9¾ x 9¾" pan. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 12 minutes. Spread with strawberry or raspberry, or gooseberry jam to cover sparingly.

Topping: 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla or almond extract, 1½ cups cocoanut (flaked — not shredded), 1 cup coarsely chopped nuts.

Beat together well the eggs, salt, brown sugar and vanilla or almond extract. Stir in chopped nuts. Spread evenly over partially baked bottom layer which has been spread with jam. Sprinkle cocoanut over evenly. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes, or until golden brown and centre is set. Cut into squares, bars or sticks when cool.

ANSWERS:

Thank you, Ann C. We tried these this morning and want to recommend them to cooks who are always on the look-out for such luscious bars and squares, especially to freeze.

QUESTION:

I would like to know if you have a recipe for cottage pudding. This is often on the menu at . . . and it is so good. It seems to be a light brown cake with caramel sauce and yet I don't think it is a regular cake . . . Mrs. Mary D.

ANSWER:

Actually it is a cake batter.

COTTAGE PUDDING:

1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, 1-3 cup butter or shortening (room temperature), 2-3 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup buttermilk.

Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Cream together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg well. Add vanilla. Add flour mixture alternately with buttermilk in 3 lots, stirring just to blend between additions. Turn into buttered 9 x 9 x 2" pan and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown on top. Allow to cool a little, then cut squares from pan and serve with Caramel Sauce: Two cups light brown sugar, 6 tablespoons butter, ¾ cup evaporated milk, ⅝ cup water. Put brown sugar and butter in a saucepan and cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until sugar has melted and let bubble gently several minutes. Meanwhile, heat the evaporated milk with the water. Carefully mix this with sugar and stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Let the mixture boil 3 minutes, stirring often for it will burn easily.

Reverend T. Boyle, who attended a Liturgical Conference in St. Louis in August, addressed the gathering on Church Renewal and the Liturgy.

Mr. G. O'Connor thanked Father Boyle for his interesting talk. The attendance prizes were won by Mr. Gehan's class, Reverend Sister Mary Avita's class and Miss Brennan's class.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clare Shannon, assisted by members of the executive and mothers from Grade X-A.

Successful Living

Friendly Feeling Between Sisters Worth Cultivating

DEAR DORIS — My youngest sister is nine (I am 15) and a bit spoiled because when she was five she was struck down by a car. She is a nice kid, but sometimes she is such a brat! She is very cheeky and acts as if she knows it all.

I have to see that she washes the dishes and does her other chores when it is her turn and often I lose my patience. I don't want to hit her when she's a brat but I can't help it. How can I keep patient with her, and what approach can I use to get her to obey? — SIS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SIS — Does hitting her get you what you want? Probably her first impulse is to hit back! Actual discipline should be the job of her mother and father.

Even a spoiled child needs friendship. Try making her feel you share a game; race to be finished; have a reward ready. There are bound to be ways you could give her older-sister-type help with some activity dear to a nine-year-old's heart.

Remember you'll be sisters all your lives — a precious friendship for you to cultivate.

(For a more objective look at your dilemma, write to Doris. She has counselled thousands of others.)

Ann Landers

Reader Says Money Is King, Friendship for the Birds

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I do believe Ol' Rockin' Chair's got you. In a recent column you told a girl, "The best way to have a friend is to be one. Well, you're out of your fossilized mind.

ANN LANDERS

Being a friend doesn't count half so much as having nice clothes, a car, plenty of spending money, stereo, a dad who can get tickets to the ball games and a few little odds and ends like that.

If you're going to dish out practical advice you'd better get your nose out of Little Red Riding Hood and give it to 'em straight. Money is king.

I laughed out loud when I read your gung-ho, wide-eyed testimony for honesty, integrity, loyalty, faithfulness, dependability — bla bla bla bla. It sounded like the preface of the Girl Scout Manual. Get with it, Granny, or turn in your typewriter. — 20-20 VISION.

* * *

DEAR 20 — I stick with my advice. If you haven't tried it, don't knock it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In 1950 we bought a small home for $8,000. My husband is a carpenter and we made many improvements. We did much of the work with our own hands on weekends and evenings. Ten years later we sold the house for $14,000.

We rented for awhile then bought a lovely home for $22,000. (The mortgage is heavy but we are managing.) We've made many improvements on this home too, and now the house looks as if it stood us at least $35,000.

I work in a savings and loan office. Last Sunday the head of my department was out to our place for a barbecue. The man couldn't stop raving about our "millionaire home." He kept looking at me as if I had embezzled from the business.

If other folks I know had made a smart investment in 1950 and worked as hard as we have maybe they'd have a "millionaire's home," too. How about it? — TAPED.

* * *

DEAR TAPED — You say you work in a savings and loan office. Do you read minds as a sideline? How do you know what the man was thinking if he didn't tell you? And why are you so defensive about your home? Enjoy it and quit making excuses.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I plan to be married in December. Had I known all the trouble I was going to run into with my mother we would have eloped.

To begin with my mother says I must ask my fiance's sister to be a bridesmaid. She is 17 years old and looks like 12. The girl is only 4 feet 11 inches tall.

My mother thinks my brother should be best man. When I told her my fiance wants his brother to be best man she said, "The bride's family pays for the wedding. It's up to them."

Must I have a flower girl? Mother says my 3-year-old niece would be adorable. I don't want a flower girl. My best friend made that mistake last year. Her niece was the flower girl and she talked all through the ceremony and ruined everything.

Help! Help! And please don't tell me to look in an etiquette book. My mother is against etiquette at the moment. — WRESTLING BRIDE.

* * *

DEAR WRESTLING — You win two falls out of three.

Your mother is right about your fiance's sister. Miss 4' 11" will be your sister-in-law for the rest of your life. If you offend her now it could damage the relationship permanently.

The groom has the privilege of selecting his own best man. Traditionally it is his brother, not the bride's brother.

Finally, if you don't want a flower girl, don't have one.

* * *

OBSERVERS NAMED

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will send two observers to the fifth Inter-American Indian Conference in Quito, Ecuador, Oct. 19-25, External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday. T-ey are Robert F. Battle director of Indian affairs in the citizenship department, and Jean H. Lagasse, acting director of citizenship.

REACHES GOAL

OTTAWA (CP) —The Saskatchewan farming community of Eston, with a population of about 3,000, is the first community in Canada to reach and in fact over-subscribe its 1964 United Appeal objective, the Canadian Welfare Council said Friday. Eston raised $11,900 to support 15 health and welfare agencies.

Mother's Helper

THE JOB of diapering a wiggly baby isn't easy under the best of conditions. An added aggravation you don't need is a baby safety pin which just won't go through the fabric. This won't happen if you stick the pins deep into a bar of soft-milled soap, between uses. Keep the soap out of baby's reach, of course.

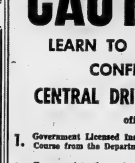
Centre Street U.C. Women Hold Bazaar

Centre Street United Church Women held their annual autumn tea and bazaar in the church hall recently.

The church and tea room were beautifully decorated with a profusion of fall blooms. Conveners for the tea were Mrs. G. Woods and Mrs. L. Longhurst.

The guests were welcomed and invited to the tea room by the president, Mrs. D. Hudgins. The centre table was arranged with a fruit bowl flanked by candles in autumn shades. The tables were tastefully decorated with pretty cloths and bouquets of sweet peas and ferns. Misses L. Hawley, B. Pearson and S. Hudgins assisted in the tea room, serving delicious salad plates, accompanied with fruit bread and cookies.



Mrs. Rylott and Mrs. Ferguson convened the home baking table which was laden with a variety of food and was well patronized.

The sewing table was well arranged with doll clothes, novelties, hand-made quilts, children's clothes, and knitted socks and mittens.

Mrs. L. Collins was in charge of the candy table, where a tempting array of candy was quickly diminished.

A touch-and-take table contained miscellaneous items, including potted plants, and was supervised by Mrs. Reid.

Mrs. Vanderwater was treasurer for the evening.

Spectacular India, Land Of Surpassing Beauty, Pictured at Collegiate

By A. HENDERSON

Those who grasped the opportunity on Thursday, to attend the 12th annual World Travel and Adventure Series, "India, Land of the Spectacular" at the Collegiate Auditorium, were not disappointed, "for India, a land of myriad wonders, unsurpassed in beauty, so beautiful that oft-times it shocks the beholder, is also a land of contrasts."

The narrator and photographer, Mr. Russ Potter, who was introduced by the president of the Kiwanis Club, Mr. Robert Freeman, is a native of Battle Creek, Michigan. Several years ago, Mr. Potter began studying photography, whose composition and clarity of color, is unsurpassed. He is also a master of narration carrying his listeners with ease into a land of "Arabian Nights'" wonders.

LIVED IN INDIA

In order to get the 'feel' of India, he lived for some time with an Indian family, eating with them, conversing with them to learn their way of life; their thoughts, and found them to be hospitable, simple, and earnest people, with an innate sense of beauty.

There are 300 languages, and 1,652 dialects, chief of these being Hindu and English. By air it is 48 hours from the United States to Delhi with its beautiful hotel displaying modern elegance and comfort. In the streets, the sacred cows were contentedly chewing their cuds, quite oblivious of the pedestrian who passed around them. The main type of transportation was the ubiquitous bicycles, which are directed by traffic officers, who hand out traffic violations, as here in Canada, and the U.S.; the rickshaw is also used.

COLORFUL MARKETS

The markets are colorful with various fruits; delicious mangoes, pineapples, long cucumbers—which are sold by weight, melons and oranges. One of the many places of industry visited was that of the ivory market where beautiful carvings were shown in the process of manufacture, all done by hand, men of differing religious working side by side in harmony. The silk bazaars were eye-catching with their lovely, shimmering silks, spangled in silver and golden coloured disc for the sari gowns. A sari for a wedding is worn but once, as is the mirror on the bride's thumb, the day of the wedding, which are gorgeous in their trappings, and lovely to behold.

The silver jewellery so carefully fashioned was lovely in intricate design. In Lucknow hand-painted tile was shown in the making.

FABULOUS TEMPLES

Many were the temples and mosques, fabulous in structure with fine sculptures, all hand done; high towers, made without mortar, one being 380 feet in height. The burial place of Mahatma Gandhi was also visited where daily pilgrimages were made. As a legend, "O God," Ghandi's last words on earth were used. All fashioned in flowers. Near here President Eisenhower had planted a magnolia tree, which was in bloom. Other scenes shown were: the great Ammicas; the Taj Mahal, the sacred Ganges River where those who died in it were especially blessed, as they departed at once to the better land without first passing through various stages of re-incarnation; the sight of 10,000 Islams in prayer, reverentially touching the pavement with their foreheads in humility, made the viewer pause in thought and take a self-inventory.

Other views included the home of Sikhs with their raven locks and whiskers, defenders of their country; the breath-taking temple of gleaming white marble with top of burnished copper and gold, where all who enter must first bathe in the river. At New Delhi the great modern dam for the irrigation of the interior and at Calcutta, the ornated Jain temples; the Holy Ghat bathing place and its lovely parks and gardens, in Kashmir houseboats on the river; and the making of papier mache.

THE DAILY NEWS

One of the most interesting places was the newspaper plant, that of the "Daily News," in which every word is done by pen, since there are no type. Its editor was educated in Ohio, U.S. and it has a circulation of 10,000. Education is not neglected with children at both public and high schools. They also learn English at home.

India's caste system includes the Brahmans, of which Nehru was the highest; the warrior class; followed by the rich men; the servants, and last, the 60,000,000 Untouchables, one of whom wrote, "The New Republic of India."

CLIMATE

India's climate is a mixture of the temperate and the tropical; the average temperature being 100 degrees in the shade, but with little or no humidity. Most of the farming is done in the Punjab where wheat, rye, and barley are grown, the work being carried on in both the old time method of oxen breaking down the stalks of grain, and the winnowing being done by hand; while the more affluent farmers use machinery.

Other places visited included Benares; Madras; the cave temples at Ellora; the Paradise of the Malebar Coast; the interview with the Dalai Lama, of Tibet — a fine appearing young man with a high spiritual outlook as shown by his features; he does not speak English; the meeting with President Nehru—tall, gracious, friendly, aloof, sometimes rather irritable—the head of a country of over 400,000,000, whose slogan is: "Truth Alone Triumphs."

The travelogue long to be remembered, of unsurpassed beauty and intriguing interest.

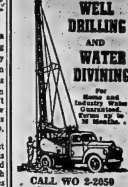
SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: When you receive an invitation to a party and there's no R.S.V.P. on the card, must you reply? A friend sent us an invitation to a "cocktail buffet" but since no acknowledgement was requested, I did not bother to call or write her.

She phoned yesterday to see if we could make it and said she wondered why she had not heard from us. We planned to attend, but I thought since there was no R.S.V.P. that it was necessary to reply only if we could not come. Would you set me straight on this? — Mrs. H. A., Detroit, Mich.



Answer: Technically, you are right. When an invitation does not carry R.S.V.P., the hostess generally assumes those invited will attend and expects a reply only from those who cannot make it. However, it is generally a good practice to phone or send a "yes" or "no" so the hostess has no doubts. Possibly she may have omitted the R.S. V.P. on some invitations in errors. It is usually added when food is to be served as the hostess knows how many to prepare for.

Question: I've been divorced and have resumed use of my maiden name. In signing letters do I now use Miss or Mrs. in front of my name. Friends I've asked are not sure which is correct, so I'd appreciate your advice. — M. J., Perth Amboy, N. J.

Answer: You'd sign your correspondence "Mary Jones," with Mrs. in front of it in parentheses.

A Lift for Living

Man's Failures Used by God To Make Better Life, World

By REV. HAROLD B. KOHN

Man is nature's chief blunderer. He is the creature most heavily endowed with a capacity for mistake-making. Man can fall more easily and in a greater variety of ways than can any other animal that walks the earth. While squirrels have known to misjudge a distance while leaping from tree to tree and have fallen to the ground, while deer have been known to fatally mistake a stock-still hunter for a harmless stump, so too human, wild creature blunders morally, spiritually, maritally, professionally. Man does. This fact represents both man's tragedy and his glory.

We humans can make mistakes in our reactionships that are far-reaching in their consequences beyond anything known in the animal kingdom. When two dogs or cats are mismated, the harm done is relatively limited. But when two people who are wrong for each other marry and have children, a long chain of tragedies may be started, the tensions, pressures, quarrels, and divided loyalties affecting the children, and the children's warped personalities affecting their children in turn, and on and on through untold generations and countless tangled human relationships.

The messy morals of a stage or film idol have disastrous effects upon innumerable teen agers who live far from the idol's home.

Hitler's, Mussolini's and Stalin's moral and political blunders precipitated the agony and death of millions who never saw their faces.

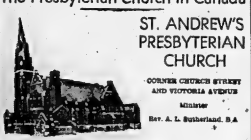
This is man's tragedy that he can slip, flounder and fall so wretchedly and with such farflung consequences.

MAN'S MAGNIFICENCE

But it is man's magnificence as well as his misery that he is the world's misfake maker. His power to make mistakes is indication of his wide range of choices and possibilities. A boy can be manly or beastial. A girl can be ladylike or a brat. But a kitten can be nothing more or less than a cat: its possibilities are strictly limited.

Ministers of religion do not invite creatures other than humans to love God or to follow Christ, because only humans can make such a wondrous choice and only a human can refuse God and deny Christ. This is man's glory, that his Creator has made him a creature of wide possibilities for good or evil. Man's capacity to choose the wrong, to make mistakes, to blunder or fail, is a cadge of his greatness.

Moreover, man's capacity to blunder witnesses to his God-given courage. Guaranteed success demands no courage. Risky undertakings do. A mistake is proof someone has had the daring to attempt to accomplish something. He who makes no mistakes tries nothing difficult and makes no discoveries. Our greatest failure is to do nothing for fear we will fail.



The best exercise for strength-ening courage is that of taking daily risks of making mistakes while attempting to do the will of God through serving the needs of mankind.

Finally, apparent failure does not mean final failure. James Whistler failed at West Point, and, humiliated, left that famous institution. Had he been a success, he might have become a fair army officer. Having failed, he turned to art and became one of the world's most famous painters. His seeming failure did not mean ultimate failure.

Our failures, our defeats and even our unchristlike blunders can be used to make a better life and a better world, when placed in God's capable hands.

OVER THE TOP in their in-plant red feather campaign, Ontario Hydro employees in Belleville have raised more than $3,000. In the picture, Miss Marilyn Reid adds up the totals while Mrs. Barry Arnott corrects the setting on the campaign "thermometer." Both girls are in-plant canvassers.

Pearsons Fly To Quebec City To Meet Queen

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister and Mrs. Pearson are to fly to Quebec at noon today to participate in the Queen's visit to the provincial capital.

Following their arrival at 1 p.m. EDT, they will attend the inauguration of the memorial of the Royal 22nd Regiment, of which the Queen is colonel-in-chief, at the Citadel. The ceremony is scheduled for 3 p.m.

The prime minister and his wife are to attend a 4:30 p.m. reception given by the Queen at Governor - General Vanier Quebec residence.

In the evening they will join the Queen and Prince Philip at the royal yacht Britannia for the drive to the Chateau Frontenac Hotel for a state dinner given by Quebec Premier Lesage and Madame Lesage.

RETURN TO OTTAWA

Following a Sunday luncheon at 12:30 p.m. aboard the yacht, Mr. and Mrs. Pearson are to return to Ottawa at 3:15 p.m.

They are to stay at the Chateau Frontenac overnight Saturday.

Sunday evening, the Pearsons will meet the Queen at Uplands Airport here at 7:25 o'clock. Mr. Pearson will present Mayor Charlotte Whitton, Danish Ambassador John Knox, dean of the diplomatic corps, and the high commissioners of Commonwealth countries.

The Pearsons will escort the royal couple to Government House with the Governor-General and Mme. Vanier.

Monday morning, the Pearsons will accompany the Queen and her husband to the National War Memorial for ceremonies beginning at 11:15.

An hour later the group will go to the Chateau Laurier Hotel, where Mr. Pearson will present a group of civic and political leaders, after which the Pearsons will receive the royal couple for lunch on at the prime minister's residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson will attend a dinner given by the Queen at Government House at 8:15 p.m.

Tuesday at 9:40 a.m., the Pearsons will receive the Queen at Uplands Airport prior to her departure for London at 10 o'clock.

MOIRA LAKE WEIR DAM — Costing approximately $6,000 the new weir dam on the Moira River at Downey's Rapids, is hoped will maintain future summer lake levels at the July 1st level. The dam was constructed by the Moira River Conservation Authority at the request of Huntingdon township to help control lake level during low water periods.

Sensing Election Victory Labor Party Shifts Views

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sensing victory in the air, Britain's Labor party has disclarded old promises of avoiding short-term deflation as one way of grappling with a balance-of-payments crisis. It now appears to be toying with the idea of an increase in Britain's bank rate.

A week ago, Labor Leader Harold Wilson indicated he would, if he becomes prime minister after Thursday's election, avoid short-term deflation, such as increased credit restraints and higher interest rates, to curb Britain's hungry consumer appetite for foreign goods. In fact, he spoke of lowering interest rates to reduce prices for house and other items.

But at a press conference Thursday Wilson indicated that if he, as head of a new government, found it necessary to increase interest rates, he would make sure this did not apply to housing.

SHORT-TERM WEAPON

While he declined to be more specific, James Callaghan, who would be chancellor of the exchequer in a Labor administration, referred to what he described as "the suggestion of a financial crisis." He said he believed it may still be necessary to use interest rates as a short-term weapon.

Britain's central bank rate currently is five per cent. It was pushed to a record seven per cent during the 1961 crisis. Financial authorities explained that the bank rate could be increased for a temporary period, without affecting long - term lending rates such as the current six-per-cent rate on mortgages.

However, if a higher rate continued for any length of time, it would be bound to affect all rates, short-term and long-term, including those on mortgages unless the government provided housing subsidies.

CREDIT AVAILABLE

Britain has been buying a lot more from the world than it has been selling in recent months, with a large part of the trade gap financed by borrowings from other countries. While a large reservoir of international credit, such as that provided Canada during her own crisis in 1962, is available to Britain, the leaders usually demand bell - tightening by the borrower so that it can put its house in order and make repayments on time.

Callaghan said a Labor government would try to rectify the trade gap by accelerating plans for substituting imports by domestic production. But he said he realized he could not expect results overnight and that other temporary measures may be necessary. He declined to say specifically what he had in mind because premature disclosure would allow people to avoid steps that may be taken.

ORDERED DEPORTED

NEW YORK (AP)—A Russian couple, whose trial on espionage charges was expected to put to protect U.S. government secrets, have been ordered deported to Czechoslovakia. The Immigration and naturalization service, which issued the order Friday, said it did not know when the couple, Alexandre Sokolov, 41, and his wife, 36, actually would leave the country.

Students Prove To Be Genial, Peaceful Crowd

QUEBEC (CP) — About 1,000 students of Laval University greeted the weekend visit of the Queen to Quebec City with laughs and songs Friday night but they proved to be a genial and peaceful crowd.

The students were entertained by a number of performers who mocked the details of the Queen's visit including the security arrangements that have been made.

One brigade of skitsters appeared on stage in tin hats and scruffy clothes bearing signs identifying them as "gendarmerie anti-royale" anti-royal mounted police and "terroriste officiel."

They waved toy guns and mock nightsticks in merry takeoff of police forces now geared for the royal visit.

The performance was put on before a good-humored crowd in the smoky basement lounge of the new Laval students' union building, in suburban Ste. Foy.

Among those on hand for the show was Jules Lesage, a son of Premier Lesage. The younger Lesage practises law in Quebec City.

LIBERALS TO MEET

TORONTO (CP) — Andrew Thompson will preside over Sir first caucus meeting as Ontario Liberal leader Tuesday in a session expected to last most of the day. Mr. Thompson, vacationing in England, is expected to arrive home by air Monday night.

Food Poisoning Sends Fourteen To Hospital

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Ten children and four adults were treated at hospital for food poisoning following a Little League baseball banquet at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall here.

Only one—Brian Bowerman, reported in good condition Friday and was expected to be released today.

About 100 persons—including 60 children—attended the banquet Thursday night, which was prepared on the premises and served by the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion.

Samples of chicken patties, potato salad and cole slaw were sent to a laboratory at Kingston for analysis.

Common Says NONG Case Being Studied

TORONTO (CP)—The attorney-general's department will study a magistrate's judgment before deciding whether Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court should be brought before a grand jury, Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common said Friday.

The department now is studying the seven-page judgment of Magistrate A. J. Marck of Hamilton who dismissed Thursday charges of municipal corruption and conspiracy against Mr. Justice Landreville following a preliminary hearing in Sudbury.

Mr. Justice Landreville was charged Aug. 4 with accepting Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company shares as a consideration for getting the company's franchise approved by city council. He was mayor of Sudbury from January, 1955, to September, 1956, when he was appointed to the bench.

He was also charged with agreeing to accept NONG shares for signing the franchise agreement.

Magistrate Marck dismissed the charges.

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, asked the attorney-general's department Friday to "exercise their right of taking the case before a grand jury."

BEST IN RE-ELECTED

OTTAWA (CP)—J. C. (Cal) Best was unanimously re-elected Friday to his fourth two-year term as national president of the 33,000-member Civil Service Association of Canada, a group representing federal government employees across Canada.

Establishment of Unified Code for Regulating Private Pension Plans to Be Made

TORONTO (CP) — Establishment of a uniform code for regulating private pension plans throughout Canada will be the aim of an interprovincial conference here Oct. 16 and 17, Premier Robarts announced Friday.

At least eight provinces will send senior representatives to the conference in an attempt to formulate a set of rules that could be the framework for a Canada - wide federal government-regulated private pension scheme, independent of the proposed Canada Pension Plan, he said.

"Whatever is done about a compulsory national plan, the rights of employees under private pension plans must be protected," Mr. Robarts said.

"I am confident that this conference is a major step toward sound and uniform policies across Canada."

Two Atlantic provinces have not yet said whether they will attend, said Lawrence Coward, chairman of the Ontario Pension Commission. Mr. Coward did not identify the provinces.

NOT CONSIDERED

Mr. Robarts said no consideration is being given to a government - sponsored provincial pension plan.

"There is no conflict whatsoever with the federal proposals for the Canada Pension Plan," he said in a statement.

He said, however, Ontario will be ready to make additional changes in its Portable Pension Act—the first in North America—which comes into effect Jan. 1, 1965.

"Our act is pioneer leristation which we are prepared to change and improve," he said.

"We are not asking other provinces to copy our act blindly, but we offer it as a basis from which, with the co-operation of all, an agreed uniform measure may be developed."

The premier said the conference will concern itself only with regulation of private pension plans in such matters as portability and financial soundness.

IS PROVINCIAL

"Constitutionally this is a purely provincial responsibility," he said. "The savings of employees represented by pension funds have reached such huge proportions that the establishment of basic safeguards is considered essential."

The Ontario act requires that pension plans be funded, that money to meet their obligations be set aside for the purpose. It also requires that employees 45 and older with 10 years' service be allowed to transfer their pensions to their new place of employment without loss of employer contributions.

Manitoba has already brought in a portable pensions bill, but has withdrawn it pending further study.

Quebec has said it intends to introduce pension legislation.

HEADS AIR SERVICES

OTTAWA (CP)—George Scott, 47, of Ottawa was named Friday as the new head of federal air services. The post carries the rank of assistant deputy minister in the transport department.

Protest March Hampered by Pouring Rain

MONTREAL (CP) — Ardor hardly dampened by pouring rain, some 400 members of the University of Montreal section of la Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale staged a protest march in downtown Montreal on Friday against the Queen's visit to Canada.

The demonstration passed without incident.

It ended with a one-minute silence in mock homage to Sir Georges - Etienne Cartier, a lieutenant of Sir John Macdonald in the birth of Confederation.

The marchers started their walk to the Georges - Etienne Cartier monument, located several miles away on Park Ave. at the foot of Mount Royal.

When they arrived at the monument, the marchers placed their placards upon it. The organizers then clambered up on one of the figures at the base of the monument which represents the nine provinces (Newfoundland was not part of Canada when the monument was built) and asked for a minute's silence for Georges Etienne Cartier.

After this ceremony, the sodden demonstrators stood about and shouted "a bas la Confederation" (down with Confederation)

After several minutes of this the marchers began to disperse.

Tokyo Olympics Biggest Of Them All

FACING SUPREME TEST at the Olympics Games in Tokyo next week is John Lewis, this city's national mid-heavy weightlifting champion. The Lions Club of the city is sponsoring a "best-wishes" cable to John. All and everyone can send John their best for a mere 35 cents. Your favorite downtown store will take your request. But "time's awastin," so do it right away. (See sports column.)

TOKYO (CP-AP) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan formally opened the 18th Olympic Games today in a splendid, moving ceremony that mixed tan wonders of the modern age with the ancient pageantry of the Orient.

The 63-year-old emperor stood ramrod-stiff and solemn in the royal box as 7,100 athletes from 94 countries paraded over the circular red brick dirt track of the National Stadium, which will serve as the centre of the biggest Olympics of them all.

Of the 96 countries originally scheduled to participate North Korea and Indonesia withdrew on the eve of the games, and Ecuador and Barbados failed to send teams.

Still with perhaps 400 more athletes to come, the games were the biggest since the Olympics were first revived in Athens in 1896.

And they were the first to be televised from one continent to another, Pictures of the opening ceremonies were relayed to television sets in North America and Europe via the communications relay satellite Syncom III.

TRACK EVENTS TUESDAY

Competition begins Sunday in 11 sports—there are 20 in all—but the blue-ribbon track and field events don't start until Tuesday.

Canada meets Russia in the basketball tournament, and Canadians compete in diving, swimming, rowing, wrestling, fencing and field hockey.

Russia and the United States are expected to win the major share of the medals in their continuing battle for world honors.

Canada generally is expected to do much better than it did in the 1960 Rome Olympics when it won only a silver medal in the eight-oared crew event.

Today, beneath a sky that was blue from horizon to horizon, 80,000 persons jammed the stadium for the ceremony and cheered loudly for the one-man Bolivian team, a single flag bearer, and then rose to applaud the gaily, robe-clad entrants from the developing countries of Africa.

CANADIANS CHEERED

Canada's 149-member team got a big hand as it marched smartly, led by flag bearer Oil Kon, a native of Montreal who lives in St. Catharines. The crowd loved the Canadian dress —white Western-type hats with broad brims, blue coats and grey trousers.

"I welcome the 18th modern Olympiad and hereby declare the Tokyo Olympic Games open," the little, greying Japanese emperor proclaimed over the loud speaker system while the Olympic torch, lit from a flame carried into the stadium by a Japanese student, burned from atop the stands.

The ceremony was carried on with typical Japanese exactitude precision in cool, sunny weather which broke perfectly after days of rain and fog.

WELCOMES ATHLETES

Daigoro Yasukawa, president of the Japanese organizing committee, welcomed the athletes and the crowd and said, "The Olympics are historical and history is the best safeguard of peace."

A hush went through the stadium when Yoshinori Sakai, the 19 - year - old medical student, born near Hiroshima on the day the atomic bomb was dropped Aug. 6, 1945 on the city, dashed through the portals bearing the flame which had been brought by air, land and water from Greece's Mount Olympus, where the games were born.

He raced over the track easily and then trotted up the 167 steps to the huge cauldron which was immediately set afire, to burn unceasingly until the games end Oct. 24.

The standard-bearers of all the nations marched forward and grouped themselves in the semi-circle while Takeshi Ono, a gold medallist in gymnastics from the Rome games, took the Olympic oath of fair play and amateurism on behalf of all the contestants.

Eight thousand doves were released from cages around the track and soared up with a great flapping of wings.

WILL HAVE SHOWDOWN

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Kelso and Gun Bow will have a showdown for Horse of the Year honors in the $150,000 Washington D.C. International at Laurel Race Course Nov. 11. This was assured Friday when their owners accepted invitations for the two top-ranking members of the handicap division in this country. They will not compete against each other until the International.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Lions Club, one of the city's fine service organizations, decided at a meeting the other night to do something to remind the city's Olympics representative, John Lewis, that, at least, some of the folks at home are thinking about him.

It is a far cry for a 21-year-old youth from the championship games of his native country to the perhaps awesome spotlight of the world's greatest athletic show.

Strange sights, strange sounds, strange people, in fact a stranger in a strange land, apart from his Canadian team associates could take some toll, physically and otherwise, from this naturally modest youngster.

Perhaps The Lions Club realized this. In any event they feel that a cablegram from home signed by his friends and other well-wishers would be a big morale-booster to the young athlete. It would show, at least, that he is not entirely forgotten, win, lose or draw.

But, as the man said when his mother-in-law fell over the precipice, something must be done about it and right away.

The actual cost of sending the collective cable to Lewis is an initial $2.63. Additional words cost 16½ cents each. To well-wishers the entire costing of sending a two-word name is 35 cents. The additional two cents will cover the initial cable costs.

There isn't much time left. I understand Lewis will see Olympics action next Friday. The cable must be sent the day previous.

By the time this edition reaches your home the Lions will have special Lewis cards in a number of downtown places of business.

Leave your 35 cents and name at one of these shops—and please do it right away if convenient.

You might be helping give John Lewis that additional mental boost that is so necessary when an athlete is competing in-topflight or any other kind for that matter, competition.

I know from personal experience what the collective wires, in addition to personal cables from home, meant to the Belleville McFarlands, both at Kelowna, when they were competing for the Allan Cup and particularly in Prague where they won the world hockey title.

In the tense atmosphere of the dressing room they received the special cables. When Coach Hildebrand announced the arrival, you could almost feel the relaxation. The cables were eagerly read by the Macs. Their pre-game roar of defiance and encouragement had a ring of victory.

In the official record of the Pan-American Games, held at Sao Paulo, where Lewis placed third in his class and won a bronze medal for Canada, is the statement: "John Lewis of Belleville set a new Canadian record . . . He turned out to be the outstanding lifter on the Canadian team."

Lewis may not come home with a medal but if will-to-win, spirit and desire to give his best mean anything you'll see a point or two for Canada chalked up with the name of the Belleville "lifter."

He meant what he said in the simple statement made at the CNR station here the day he left for Tokyo to Mayor Jack Ellis, this writer and the sparse number of citizens there to see him off, "I'll do my very best."

The Lions Club is to be commended for its fine gesture in sponsoring the movement to bring to the young athlete the best wishes for success from people of his native city.

But to repeat, time is getting short. Monday is Thanksgiving. There is time yet today to get downtown and send your wishes to Tokyo. Actually there will be Tuesday and Wednesday left. The cable must be forwarded on Thursday, at the latest.

The annual OHA referees' clinic is slated for the Napanee Arena, Tuesday, October 20, with referee-in-chief Pat Patterson in charge. Part of the clinic will be held on the ice. All present and potential officials are welcome. As happened last year some of the younger men who show promise will be invited to attend a clinic in Toronto for advanced training.

Brooklin, Bowmanville, Port Hope and Port Perry, with Cobourg leaning their way, favor a homebrew Lakeshore Hockey League of their own, a Trenton story says.

This leaves Picton, Napanee and RCAF Trenton to form a league of their own unless the reported Belleville club makes an appearance at the next loop meeting set for Cobourg, Monday, October 19.

★ ★ ★

Oshawa and Ajax, it appears, are having a tough time to settle who is the Lakeshore Baseball League senior champions. Thus far the series is squared at two wins each with no date set for the fifth and final game. They reduced the championship series from best-of-seven to best-of-five.

Chicago's Brother Act

Dennis Hull Signs With Hawks

Dennis Hull, 19-year-old left winger from Point Anne, has joined brother Bobby to give the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawk's their first brother act since the Bentleys of the 1940's and '50's.

The youngest of the Hull boys, Dennis starred with St. Catharine's Black Hawks of the OHA Junior "A" loop last season. He has another year of junior hockey left but impressed Hawk officials at camp this fall and signed his first professional contract Thursday of this week.

DENNIS HULL

Dennis scored 48 goals for the Junior Hawks and was named to the All-Star squad last season.

A different type player than Bobby, Dennis was called a "sure-fire NHLer" by big league hockey men last year. He was given a good chance of catching the parent club following Chicago's many trades during the off season. Hull was one of the better Hawks on the ice in the early stages of the Chicago camp and in early exhibition games.

Reports were that Dennis tapered off later but still showed enough to earn the contract from the Chicago club. Fred Stanfield also turned pro with the Hawks at the same time. Stanfield, another high scorer for St. Kitts last year, was a linemate of Hull's.

Dennis played minor hockey here in Belleville, as did Bobby, before moving up to Junior "A" with St. Catharines four years ago. A rough and hard-fighting type player, Dennis burst into his own in the scoring department last winner.

Indications are that he will start the season as a regular left winger with the Hawks. He is expected to add both muscle and scoring punch to the Chicago attack.

A Chicago team official was quoted earlier this fall as saying that "the younger Hull is making his own reputation in hockey and not relying on the Hull name. He lacks Bobby's polish now but this will come with experience and there is every chance that he has just as bright a future in the game as his brother".

The Hull family, as well as other Belleville-area fans, will have twin reasons for cheering the Hawks during the 1964-65 NHL season, which opens on Monday.

In Yankees' Home Park

Bouton Faced Simmons In Third Game

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—"Sure, I think being home gives us the edge," said manager Yogi Berra of New York Yankees. "Especially after we split the first two games in their park."

"The size of Yankee Stadium should help us," said manager Johnny Keane of St. Louis Cardinals.

"There's lots of room here and we've got three fine outfielders who can go get the ball. They can all roam and throw. We don't think we have any defensive problems here at all."

"I'd rather pitch at Yankee Stadium than at Busch Stadium," said Curt Simmons. Keane's pitching nominee for today's third game of the World Series. "all pitchers like big parks and I'm no exception. Besides, I've pitched better on the road than at home."

"I pitched one inning in the 1953 All-Star Game," recalled Jim Bouton, Berra's mound choice for the Yankees' home series opener. "The Cardinals had three infielders on the team. I got 'em 1-2-3. But maybe they were setting me up for the series."

These were the pre-game pronouncements for what traditionally has been the pivotal game of a World Series. The team that won the third game in the previous 60 series won the title 38 times.

STADIUM WILL BE FULL

In sharp contrast to the 30,000 seating capacity of Busch Stadium, the Yankee park holds 69,000 and every seat will be occupied for the next three games — today, Sunday and Monday.

The Yankees ruled 5-1 favorites in this best-of-seven series and 8-to-5 to win today behind the right-handed Bouton (18-13) who dropped a 3-1 decision to Los Angeles Dodgers last year in his only previous World Series assignment.

Simmons, 35, is 10 years older than Bouton, and has been pitching in the major leagues since 1948. This will mark his first series assignment. He had an 18-9 record during the season.

The veteran southpaw just missed out with the 1950 Philadelphia Phillies' Whiz Kids. He was called into military service a month before the Phillies faced the Yankees that fall.

Each club engaged in a six hour workout Friday, with a majority of the Cards getting their first look at Yankee Stadium. Only four have ever played there before, Ken Boyer, Dick groat, Bob Skinner and Roger Craig.

"I played here in the 1960 All Star Game," recalled Boyer, "and I batted just one time. I hit a home run into the left field bands. Gary Bell of Cleveland was the pitcher."

HELPED PIRATES WIN

Groat and Skinner were members of Pittsburgh Pirates who beat the Yankees in the 1960 World Series. Craig pitched in several Dodger-Yankee series.

Keane said he would employ the same line-up that was beaten in the second game by young Mel Stottlemyre, with Groat batting third and Bill White fifth. He said Julian Javier was a "very doubtful" starter because of the bruised left hip that kept him out of the starting lineup the first two days.

If Javier cannot play, Dal Maxvill, a fine defensive player with a light bat, will be his replacement at second base.

Berra said no matter what happens today, he plans to come back with Whitey Ford for Sunday's game. Ford, a 10-game World Series winner, was beaten by Ray Sadecki in the opener.

Keane said Sadecki probably would pitch Sunday.

Bears Capture Finals Berth

HAMILTON (CP) — Lakeshore Bears scored a 14-12 victory over Hamilton Hurricanes Friday night and won a berth in the Ontario Junior Football Conference finals.

Bears will meet either Weston Invictus Redmen or Scarboro Rams, who tangle in a sudden-death semi-final contest at Scarboro Sunday.

MELE SIGNS

NEW YORK (AP) — Minnesota Twins signed manager Sam Mele to a new one-year contract Friday night. Mele, long rumored to be on his way out, signed a contract calling for the same salary he received this year, believed to be about $35,000.

He Tried, Tried, Tried And Died

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) Young Duane Rowenhorst collapsed last Tuesday near the end of a four-mile cross-country run.

He got up, ran a short distance and then fell again. He got up a second time, ran a few feet and again collapsed. In a final attempt to cross the finish line, he crawled on his hands and knees.

He never made it.

Rowenhorst, 17, died Friday in hospital in nearby Orange.

An autopsy was scheduled to determine the cause of death.

"I won't know for sure until after today's game," he said. "It looks like we'll go with the same rotation. That would bring Sadecki up next and Bob Gibson after him."

Defeats Brighton

Quinte Gets Third Sweep

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Quinte Secondary Schools senior and junior football squads swept their third straight twin bill of the season by defeating Brighton High School 6-1 and 25-1 respectively yesterday afternoon.

The Quinte seniors' defence was the difference, as they made several brilliant plays and did not give the Brighton offence any breathing room all afternoon.

Quinte scored the only touchdown in the first quarter. Quarterback Rocky Taylor's 34-yard pass play to Tom Locke was the key move of the drive, which ended with Mike Morton ripping through the middle of the Brighton line for paydirt.

In the second quarter, Quinte threatened when Paul Whalen caught a Taylor pass and raced downfield to the Brighton 20-yard line. The play covered 50 yards. Brighton's defence stopped Quinte there.

Brighton's lone point came when McMaster booted a 30-yard single. This was a very important point, for with a touchdown Brighton would win.

The losers looked certain to score in the final quarter, with a first and goal on the visitor's three yard line. On the next play, however, a jarring tackle spilled the ball from the Brighton ball carrier's grasp and Murray Kerr recovered for Quinte.

As soon as Brighton got the ball back, they fumbled again, as this time Paul Lonia of Quinte recovered.

On the next play, Olin Hough intercepted for Brighton on the Quinte 41, but the game ended a few plays later.

The Quinte defence has now allowed eight points in three games.

JUNIOR GAME

Eric Emerson returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for 8 major in the junior contest.

Mike Shoniker scored the first of two TD's when he carried a pass from Dale Duval 50 yards to score. His second came on a 10-yard gallop through the centre of Brighton's line.

Brook Windsor scored the fourth Quinte major when he smashed over from a few yards out.

Garry Burnett intercepted a Brighton pass and returned it 60 yards for a TD.

Foot-It's All Talk'

Charges Kidd 'Burned Out'

By GERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Foot, coach of top Canadian distance runner Bruce Kidd, said Friday he is not bothered by reports from Tokyo quoting Arthur Lydiard of New Zealand, one of the world's best coaches of distance runners, as saying Kidd is "burned out."

"He's entitled to his opinion," said Foot, who leaves here Sunday to join Kidd in Tokyo. "As far as I'm concerned it's all talk. We have it at every Olympics."

Lydiard thinks the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia, may have been a disastrous turning point in the 21-year-old Canadian's career. Kidd—an entry in the 10,000-metres at Tokyo probably also the 5,000—was in three races in Perth. He won the six miles, came third in the three miles and dropped out of the race then after 22 miles.

"I would have entered him in only one race, probably the six miles," Lydiard said in an interview Friday. "I would not have used him in twice, let alone three times, against nature men at that stage of his career."

The 47-year-old New Zealander was critical of Kidd's running in the marathon.

"I don't know of any authoritive background Lydiard has to make such statements," said Foot. "Bruce entered the marathon at Australia with the understanding that he would come out when I told him. But he was not living. He appeared to be developing a stitch, which is common, and I called him out."

Did he think Kidd would be bothered by Lydiard's remarks?

"No," said Foot. "Bruce will just get mad. He'll lick his lips and bear down. But I don't think it will bother him."

Lydiard said Kidd, as a teenager was one of the most promising runners in the entire world had ever seen at six age But he said he doesn't think Kidd "is the man he was two years ago. He's burned out."

"This 'burned out' business is an old-fashioned phobia," said Foot. "They just won't accept the fact that Canada and the U.S. can turn out top distance runners."

Lydiard," said Foot. "like most of the track and field world still believes you have to be old to run. This, I imagine, is backed by the fact that there are more older long-distance runners."

Royals Win Over Checkers

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph Regals of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior League scored five third - period goals Thursday night to defeat N.C. Checkers of the Eastern Hockey League 7 - 5 here Friday night.

Keith Worrall's three goals sparked the Regals' attack. Dave Jarolin, Gerry Lodrick, Dave Chambers and Bob Pole had one each.

Moe Savard notched two for Charlotte and Doug Paul. Larry Evans and Ken Coombs scored one each.

WINS TITLE

ROME (AP) — Fortunato Manca of Italy won the vacant European welterweight championship Friday night when Francois Pavilla of France quit in the sixth round of the scheduled 15 round bout.

Toppazzini Announces Retirement

SUDBURY (CP) — Jerry Toppazzini, 33, a former right winger with Boston Bruins, announced Friday he is retiring after a 12-year career in the National Hockey League.

Toppazzini, who was traded to Chicago Black Hawks last summer by the Bruins, said he was turning down a transfer to the Buffalo Bisons, Chicago's American Hockey League farm club.

A native of nearby Copper Cliff, Ont., Toppazzini broke into the NHL with Boston in the 1952-53 season after playing for Barrie Flyers and Hershey Bears.

He played for Hershey again in 1953-54 and was traded to Chicago in 1954. He was traded to Detroit Red Wings and back to Boston in 1955 and stayed with the Bruins until last summer.

Junior Trojans Win

BCI Seniors Nip Moira

By DAVID TEMPLER

BCI'S and Moira Secondary School split a Bay of Quinte COSSA Junior and Senior "A" double-header under the lights at the Fairgrounds last night.

BCI's senior collegians triumphed over Moira by a tight 2-7 score while Moira's Junior Trojans scored two fourth-quarter majors to grab that game 13-9.

Prior to the game, His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis officially opened the night football season here by kicking off at midfield. School officials, teachers and students, were also present.

In the senior game's first quarter, the ball changed hands several times when the attacking club had chances to score. First BCI, then Moira and finally BCI again, missed good opportunities.

The second quarter was a kicking dual between Terry Wellsley for the Collegians and Bob Bailey of Moira, until a no-yards penalty against BCI gave Moira their chance on the 36-yard line. Lowen passed to Carmen Mulligan for the touchdown. Bob Bailey, doing a kick, passed to White for the point after.

Moira had another chance when Olson intercepted a pass by Bill Hallam on the 25, but the Collegians broke up their attack when Allan Mott intercepted a pass in the last play of the half.

A no-yards penalty gave BCI a first down on the 25 yard line. Bill Hallam passed to Ron Walsh for a touchdown and Doug Purcell kicked the convert, tying the score at 7-7.

A 55-yard placement by Doug Purcell held Moira for the duration of the quarter.

With two minutes remaining in the game, a short, high punt by BCI put the ball on Moira's 20-yard line. A second down kick was fielded by Minion for the Trojans, but Moira road zone where he was stopped by Murray Swan and Mike Redcliffe for the rouge and the winning point.

In the last minute of the game Minion ran 10-yards but the score was called back because of a holding penalty against BCI on an interception by Gerry Lucas ended the Trojan's chances.

JUNIOR GAME

In the junior game Carl Wilson and J. Holgate ran wild in the last quarter to score a TD each. This brought the Trojan squad from behind to a 13-9 victory.

A penalty for grabbing the face mask against BCI gave Holgate the chance to go around the right end for the winning major with less than 2 minutes remaining. Bishop made the point after.

Near the first of the fourth quarter Carl Wilson stole a fumbled punt from BCI on the 15 yard line and romped five strides for the score.

Jim McCreary got BCI's only major in the first quarter around the right end from the 10 yard line. He also converted.

In the third quarter with a second down, 20-yard situation, a quick kick was recovered by the Trojans in their own end zone, conceding the safety.

ROME — A quartet of British golfers, apparently feeling at home in wet and windy conditions on the Olgiata course, built up a possibly unbeatable five-stroke lead Friday in the World Amateur team championship.

The British team, which never has won the biennial competition for the huge Eisenhower Trophy moved ahead with a three-day total of 671. The United States, winner of two of the previous tournaments, slipped into a second-place tie with Canada at 676.

With only one round to go, the British golfers' lead looked almost impossible to overcome although the situation can change quickly in this unusual competition in which only the best three scores of each four-man team count in the daily totals.

The Canadians made the best three-man total Friday—226 on rounds of par 72 by Keith Alexander of Calgary, 76 by Mick Westcott of Burlington, Ont., and 78 by Doug Sherwood of Calgary.

COWN HAS 79

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., had a 79.

The Canadian performance moved the team up from fifth place Thursday.

The United States, only a stroke behind Britain after two rounds, slipped off to 30 as a gusty wind and showers raked the 6,878-yard Olgiata course for the second day. The greens became wet and bunkers were flooded, making recoveries difficult.

Scores of 72 by Alexander and Min-Nem Hsieh of Nationalist China were the day's best and put them up among the individual leaders.

New Zealand slipped back to fourth in the team standing with a 677 total, followed by Nationalist China 679, Italy and Australia 682, Mexico 684, Argentina 685 and France 690.

HITS TWO GOOD ONES

Alexander, 24 - year - old former Canadian Amateur titleholder, played two of the finest shots of his golf career Friday. At the 195-yard second he hit a great three-iron shot into the heart of the gale to four feet from the stick for a birdie 2 and at the 15th he got his birdie 4, thanks to a magnificent third from the rough.

Precision golf for an outward 35 saw Westlock well on the way to a good score but he slipped up at the 10th with a bad drive plagued badly and he failed to find the ball.

Silverberg came in with a 78 spoiled by his running up a six at the short 14th.

"I bunkered my tee shot," said the hunky Silverberg. "I recovered well but the ball ran on and on and dropped into the trap on the other side of the green just six feet behind the hole. I did not get out first time but missed a 10-foot putt."

It was another unhappy day for Cowan, the former World Amateur individual champion.

He was out in 36 and going well until the 13th where he hit his second out of bounds and ran up a 6. Worse was to follow for he took 7 at the 15th where he drove out of bounds and in a weak finish he dropped shot, to par at each of the last three holes for a 78.

"I just played some shots at the close," said a dejected Cowan.

'Ayres' Captures Triple Crown Of Trotting

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Ayres, racing with a bruised ankle, won the Kentucky Futurity straight heats Friday and became the third colt to capture trotting's triple crown.

Owned by Mrs. Charlotte N. Sheppard of Hanover, Pa., he was timed in 1:59 3-5 seconds in the first heat and 1:58 3-5 in the second.

Ayres earlier won the Yonkers Futurity and the Hambletonian, the first two races in the triple crown of trotting.

FOX TO COACH

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Colts announced Friday that they will name veteran infielder Nellie Fox a coach for the 1965 National League baseball season. Fox, who will be 37 in December, played nearly all of his major league career for Chicago White Sox of the American league. The Colts purchased him last winter.

Rob Vaughn Thinks Series Will Make Him Big Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Says Robert Vaughn: "The only advice any producer ever gave me was to be a big star or else get out of the acting business. It wasn't worth it otherwise."

Vaughn just might make it. He's off to a good start as the super-spy-super-lover on NBC's The Man From U.N.C.L.E. This is not Uncle Sam, but a supersecret national agency designed to stamp out nefarious doings by international troublemakers.

Many critics say the series seems bottled in Bond, and there are indeed similarities to the Ian Fleming novels: outrageous plots, susceptible beauties, a super-evil agency named Thrush (James Bond's nemesis is Smersh), But then, Bond borrowed from Sam Spade, and Spade from Sherlock Holmes, and the late Fleming had a hand in shaping the series.

The similarity doesn't bother Vaughn. He regards Napoleon solo of U.N.C.L.E.

"I never read the Fleming novels," he says, "but I did see the two movies (Dr. No. From Russia With Love) and I hope we are compared in them."

HOPES TO BE GREAT

Nor does Vaughn seem disgusted from fulfilling the positive side of his mother's advice. He hopes the series will make me the biggest star in the business."

He started acting when he was 11; both his parents were in the business—"but working actors who had to worry about where the next job was coming from."

That has never been a concern of Vaughn's.

"I got my first contract with Hecht-Lancaster and Columbia two months after I got out of college," he says. "I've been under contract or working ever since. (He's now 31.) The parts have grown better and pay higher. So except for that first two months, I haven't really suffered."

INDIANS NOT FOR SALE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cleveland Indians' president Gabe Paul, making a tour of possible relocation sites for his financially ailing club, reiterated Friday night that it is not for sale. He also disclosed that Sunday he will visit Dallas as the third city on his schedule. He visited Seattle Friday.

J. Plante's Future Undecided

NEW YORK (CP) — Jacques Plante left New York and the National Hockey League Friday —and nobody knows when or even whether he'll be back.

The 35-year-old Plante, an NHL goalie for 11 seasons, 10 of them with Montreal, was farmed out by the Rangers to Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League.

"He'll have a better chance to work out his problems in Baltimore," said general manager Murray (Muzz) Patrick of the Rangers. "We hope he'll be back in the Rangers lineup soon."

Plante said before leaving New York, however, that he is in no shape to play hockey and he did not plan to be in the starting lineup when Baltimore opened its AHL season at home Friday night against Quebec Aces. He wasn't.

The six-time Vezina Trophy winner complained of trouble in his right knee. He said it has been bothering him since late in the summer. He did not know when or how he could work himself into shape again.

A Rangers spokesman said a club physician who examined Plante at their Winnipeg training camp in mid - September found the veteran goalie had a strained ligament in the right knee but concluded no operation was needed.

The spokesman said the Rangers were dissatisfied with Plante's performance in the only full game he played during the club's pre-season exhibition tour. That was a 6-3 loss to Boston Bruins.

Olympics Sidelights

TOKYO (AP) — People are getting posh at the Olympics. British boxer Dick McTaggart, winner of the lightweight title in 1956, once was called a rat-catcher. Now he's listed in the official British team booklet as a rodent exterminator.

TOKYO (AP) — Bolivia has one entry in the Olympic Games, Inchaustegui in the canoeing. It's a difficult assignment for him. He's used to training thousands of feet above sea level. Here in Tokyo he's paddling almost at sea level.

AT THE BELLE — James Stewart as a mountain man in the title role of "Call of the Wild," Jack London story of a pioneering family, runs on the Ohio River in the massive Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Cinemascope production, "How the West Was Won". The Color Adventure, truly one of the great motion pictures of our time, is now playing as second attraction at the Belleville Drive-In and features a spectacular cast of 24 stars.

Leafs Meet All-Stars Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League All-Stars and the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs face off tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens for the annual All-Star game.

The All-Stars, coached by Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings, will be missing three players—right winger Kenny Wharram of Chicago Black Hawks, centre Henri Richard of Montreal Canadiens and defenceman Bill Gadsby of Detroit.

Wharram is recovering from a hairline fracture above the nose which he suffered in the pre-season campaign. Richard is out with a groin injury and Gadsby with a strained back.

Toronto Maple Leafs will be without defenceman Allan Stanley, who has an injured knee, and forward Red Kelly, in Tokyo as Canadian government representative at the Olympic Games.

Left winger Dickie Moore, trying a comeback after a season's layoff and a knee operation, has not indicated definitely whether he will play.

Bob Baun and Jim Pappin, the other Leaf players injured during Leafs' 17-game exhibition series, have been given the go-ahead for the All - Star game.

AT THE PARK — Search for Eternity. Dr. Carmus enters the world's deriest laboratory in Edgar Allan Poe's "Castle of Blood", starring Barbara Steele, opening at the Park Theatre on Monday. On the same program in color, "Hercules In The Haunted World". Both features are first Belleville showings. Special Matinee Monday at 2.00 p.m. Evening complete show at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Whitebrough, a veteran seven year-old campaigner, made believers of 5,044 race fans at Woodbine Friday.

The big bay horse, owned by Charles Sotlley of Toronto, pounded through the stretch to find mort of the punters sitting on their hands. He returned $21.40, $4.70 and $3.40 on defeating Royal Start and Grand Garcon who dead - heated behind him.

In the 1 1-16-mile test Whitebrough looked like the logical choice but the punters were looking the other way when Jockey Dick Armstrong asked him for his best.

Those who bet on Whitebrough were given an added bonus when Grand Garcon and Royal Start shared second. The sixth race was a quinella event and subsequently there were two payoffs.

The quinella of Whitebrough and Royal Start, paid $40.50 and Whitebrough combined with Grand Garcon returned $72.20

The time for the marathon route was 1.46 3-5.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 11

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Evaluate various trends, conditions. Don't commit yourself to definite course of action. Remain alert, open-minded. If you are receptive . . . you can receive the "answer." Be aware.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): You now have much on your side. Those who attempt to undermine you . . . make light of your assets. Have faith in your convictions. Be patient, confident. Attend church of choice.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Be prepared for pressures, questions, doubts. Rely upon past experience. Try to remember similar situation. You can come out on top — if you are perceptive, reflective.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Finish projects. Hold off on new enterprises. Be moderate. Strive to erase antagonisms. Make your meanings clear. Applies especially to dealing with fellow workers.

(NEA Copyright)

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): Be independent in thought, action. State needs, desires, beliefs. Be definite. No day for beating around the bush. You could make valuable discovery. Seek — and you will find!

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22): Be wary, cautious. You can avoid move which would create added costs, delay. Look behind the scenes. Remember key events. Apply past experiences to current questions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Be curious, versatile. Don't settle for only one opinion. Check various sources, but make your own judgment! You could make valuable discovery. Key is persistence.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Be definite where details, money matters are concerned. Necessity to review investments, hopes, plans for future. Your security may be at stake. Key is thoroughness.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Cycle remains high. But you must decide on definite course by action. Make constructive changes. Pay heed to unusual suggestion by member of opposite sex.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Associate presses for decision. Find out "why the rush." Heed inner feelings. Family member has key to dilemma. What you seek is close at hand . . . best to act accordingly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Make new social contacts. Be open to ideas, suggestions. You can apply unique methods to greater advantage. Refuse to follow "the mob." Remember — individuality pays off!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): One in authority due to request your opinion. Maintain dignity. Give thoughtful reply. Cycle has thirty opportunity to succeed. Forget red tape. Perceive overall situation.

If today is your birthday . . . you have keen sense of justice, are intuitive — and you respond extremely well during emergency situations.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Libra: Combine practicality with sense of humor. You can impress higher-ups.

For October 12

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be selective. Include the company you keep, the plans you make. Important people watch with interest. Prove your abilities! Exercise sense of discrimination. Judge carefully.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Be confident where far-reaching plans are concerned. State your needs. Then fulfill desires. Time when you can get what you go after. But be ready to present all the facts.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Key is completion. Finish what you start. Overcome temptation to procrastinate. Now, time truly adds up to money. Be specific. Avoid extravagance. Utilize creative abilities to their fullest.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Absorb knowledge. Be wary regarding associate who urges short-cut methods. Realize thoroughness pays off. One close to you may express concern over finances. Be sympathetic.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): Express beliefs in calm, amiable manner. Careless remarks will create embarrassing situations. Many around you are irritable. Strive for maturity. Be considerate, understanding.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22): Fine for creative pursuits. Stress change, variety. Be open to new ideas. Member of opposite sex due to be impressed, will express admiration. Be gracious. Avoid pompous stance.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Don't become engulfed in maze of details. Concentrate on "end product." Keep mind set on overall extraordinary development.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Key to successful day is mental activity. Express ideas . . . follow through on hunches. Consult newspaper, authorities, library. You are "on the trail" of discovery. Follow through!

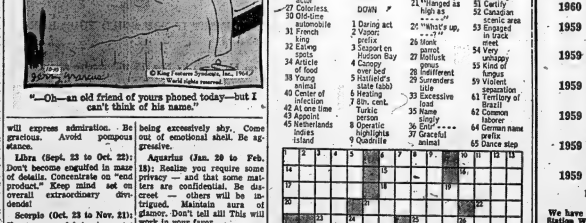
Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Concentrate on financial questions. You are due a chance to enhance income possibilities. Key is obtaining harmony at home. Then you can "go forth" with clear mind — and conscience.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Cycle high. You can now succeed through personal contacts. Express yourself. Dress up and be seen! No time for being excessively shy. Come out of emotional shell. Be aggressive.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Realize you require some privacy — and that some matters are confidential. Be discreet — matters will be intrigued. Maintain aura of glamor. Don't tell all! This will work in your favor.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Maintain sense of balance. Emotional "hijinks" are to be avoided. Don't feel the grass is always greener far away. Appreciate loved ones. Close friend imparts valuable information.

If today is your birthday . . . you are intrigued with humor, ways of pleasing people. Domestic adjustment made this year works to your advantage.



General Tendencies: Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. Special word to Scorpio: Avoid scattering your forces. Concentrate!

REAL LIVE GHOST TOWN — At the beginning of the century, farmers in the Lake St. John area, 180 miles north of Quebec City, built a town and a mill to grind wood chips into pulp for paper. About 29 years later, the town called Val Jalbert died. The last of the families boarded up their homes and left. Almost 35 years have reduced the town to this state of decayed wood, loose shingles and overgrown streets. (CP Photo)

35 Years Has Reduced Val Jalbert to Ghost Town

By JO OUELLET
Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph

QUEBEC (CP)—Ever been to an honest-to-goodness, spooky ghost town right in the middle of nowhere?

Well, take my trembling word for it, there's one in the Lake St. John area, about 180 miles north of Quebec City and thousands of miles from Disneyland.

It's a shock to come upon a town complete with homes and community facilities, not lacking people. How awesome is to find this rigor mortis in our much-ballyhooed northern boom territory.

It seems that back at the beginning of the century, farmers of neighboring regions one day began eyeing the beautiful Ouiatchouan Falls.

They put up their savings to build a mill beside the falls in the hope of prospering through the fashionable produce of the day—wood pulp for the paper industry.

The management built row upon row of the sturdy houses for their workers, a grand hotel for their guests, a town hall, general store and church, a school for their offspring and a cemetery for their dead.

They ran a track from the main railway line to their mill to get produce off to market.

GOOD LIFE

There were several years of working, growing and good living in Val Jalbert, as the town was called, but it wasn't meant to last.

Foreign interests with export contracts in their pocket opened bigger mills in neighboring towns and with greater knowledge and better connections, pushed the hopeful settlers to the edge of bankruptcy.

In 1907, after a few staggering efforts to survive, the town folded. As the turbines gurgled to a halt, families packed and left. But it took two more desperate years before the last home was boarded up and the ghosts moved in.

These were the facts as we learned them after stumbling into this unexpected adventure. With no commercial hoopla tourist guides or billboards, it was a natural come-on for our imagination.

When we arrived, it was dusk and not another living thing was in sight. But the children delightedly roamed the streets as if expecting old Hoss or Paladin to start performing.

I couldn't help but speculate what terrific hideout this would make for outlaws. More than a mile in from the highway, sheltered by towering mountains, a wanted criminal could have his pick of 123 homes and hole up with the worms.

And who was there to reassure me a disciple of Al Capone hadn't thought of it first?

We were later told the cascading falls are 60 feet higher than Niagara. But to me, their roar seemed more of a convenient cover for any shrieks of help.

Every so often, a wave of hot air swept over us, and while it amused the children, it just blew up the size of my goose pimples.

All around us, the trees were tall, gaunt and death like. Some were bushing up between the railway tracks. Discarded pulp grindstones cluttered some back yards. We wondered who had bothered to cart them from the mill?

The Quebec department of tourism has since taken over the old town and intends to open it to tourists but when we were there, a locked gate barred motorists.

We had to find our way back to the barricade through winding, unnamed streets. When we did come upon the car, I was glad to jump in and, ever so unobtrusively, lock the doors!

Driving away, I couldn't shrug off the feeling we had forgotten to thank someone for something. It just didn't seem proper to treat ghosts that way.

QUESTION: We are taking a holiday to Miami Beach, Florida. Could you please give us the mileage, and where can we get adequate maps for our journey? Your co-operation would be appreciated. — T. B., Belleville.

ANSWER: Mileage to Miami Beach, Florida, is approximately 1,865 miles from Belleville via Ivy Lea Bridge. You will need two maps, northeastern and southeastern, which you might acquire from the touring departments of one of the major oil companies.

QUESTION: Kindly detail me the best route to Arizona via Detroit. We will be leaving the end of October. — Mrs. G. A., Belleville.

ANSWER: Try a major oil company for your maps, you will need four northeastern, southeastern, south central and southwestern, for this O M L-recommended route to Phoenix. Entry point Detroit, take 25 and 75 through Toledo, Dayton, Cincinnati to Georgetown (near Lexington) 60 in Louisville, 31W to Bowling Green, 79 to Jackson, 40 to Memphis, its 79 again to Pine Bluff and Texarkana, 67 to Dallas, 80 through Fort Worth, Abiline, Odessa and El Paso to Tucson and 80 to Phoenix.

QUESTION: We are planning our first trip to Florida, and intend to visit President Kennedy's grave on the way down. Could you give us the name of a hotel or motel where we might stay in Miami, one that is not too expensive and where our money is accepted at par. — G. N., Belleville.

ANSWER: There is a reasonably priced hotel in Miami area that takes Canadian money at par. Its the Sarento, next door to the Fountainbleu, Miami Beach. For complete lists write the Chamber of Commerce in Miami and Miami Beach.

QUESTION: My wife and I are spending a few days in the States shopping. How much can we bring back, and how long do we have to stay over there to do this? How many times a year are we allowed to do this? year are we allowed to do this? — ML., Belleville ANSWER: Coming back to Canada a Canadian can bring in $25 worth of goods, provided he has been in the States 48 hours or more. Specific limits include 1 quart of intoxicance, 50 cigars or 200 cigarettes and 1 quart of alcohol.

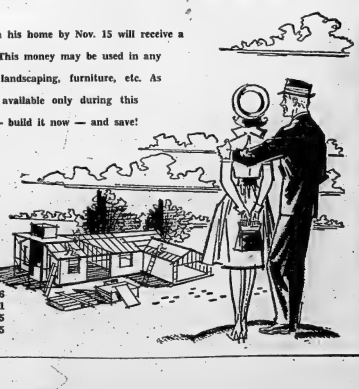
THE BRIDALWOOD

One of the new designs from Rollins Construction, this split-level model has the appearance of a bungalow. Available in a variety of elevation, this home through the use of the carport, affords complete shelter from car to front entrance. It is designed with a minimum width to permit construction on a smaller lot — this brings the cost of land down and allows the maximum house at a minimum cost.

The large kitchen has more than ample cupboard space and a good dining area. It is accessible directly ahead from the front entrance. A turn in either direction from the front door takes you to the living - dining area or up four steps to 3 bedrooms and tiled bath with vanity. Two of these models are now under construction in Stanley Park and King George Square.



THE HUNTINGWOOD

The ideal home for the family that wants a big kitchen with no formal dining room. A centre hall plan leading directly to bedroom area with kitchen and living room on either side of hall. The living room is spacious indeed, and provides more than usual wall space for furniture placement. The kitchen is of Hollywood or California design providing an over-abundance of cupboard space. The full basement is accessible from the kitchen as is the outside service entrance. The basement also provides adequate future rec-room space. Already proving to be a most popular model, there are several now under construction in various areas in the city.

REMEMBER—
YOU RECEIVE $500. FROM THE GOVERNMENT IF YOU BUILD YOUR HOME THIS WINTER!

That's right . . . anyone who starts construction on his home by Nov. 15 will receive a cheque for $500. from the Canadian Government. This money may be used in any way that you wish — towards the down payment, landscaping, furniture, etc. As part of the Winter Works Program, this offer is available only during this period. Don't wait any longer for that new home — build it now — and save!

QUEEN ENDS EIGHT-DAY ROYAL VISIT

3-Man Space Ship Returns To Earth

Voskhod Sunrise Crew All Well, 16 Orbits Made

Cosmonauts Had a Little Trouble With Radios

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's three-man spaceship returned to earth today a little more than 24 hours after it blasted off on a pioneering flight that kept the Russians well ahead in the space race.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Voskhod Sunrise landed safely at its "pre-assigned spot" in the Soviet Union at 10:47 a.m., 3:47 a.m. EDT — 24 hours and 17 minutes after it had been blasted into orbit.

"All three members of the Voskhod crew are feeling well," Tass reported.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev, in a radio conversation with the three cosmonauts Monday, promised them the boisterous Moscow reception the Soviet capital traditionally gives to space travellers.

"Be ready for the overhead ling which we'll arrange for you after you come back to earth," the premier said.

The three members of Voskhod's crew—Col. Vladimir Komarov, the pilot; scientist Konstantin Feoktistov and Dr. Boris Yegorov — were met at the landing spot by "sports commissioners, correspondents and friends," Tass said.

MADE 16 ORBITS

The spaceship landed after 16 orbits. It was the first flight in space by a spaceship containing more than one man.

"The program of scientific research, designed for 24 hours of flight, was accomplished in full," Tass said.

"Valuable information was obtained about the flight of a group of cosmonauts consisting of specialists in different fields. For the first time, scientists were able to conduct observations directly in outer space.

"The information obtained as a result of the flight is being tabulated and processed."

Although this announcement said in effect that only a 24-hour flight had been planned, an announcement Monday said that the flight was to test the structure and strains on man during a long flight.

The announcement of the launching said Voskhod had been "put into orbit close to the prescribed one." The orbit was highly elliptical, with a maximum height of 253 miles and a minimum of 110 miles. There was speculation in Moscow that it was far enough off the prescribed orbit to require an earlier landing than originally planned.

However, a spokesman at the city observatory in Bochum,

To Dissect Finances At Parley

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The whole body of government finance in Canada will be dissected in the months ahead, the work will start this week at the federal-provincial conference.

The object is a new deal for 1967, when the present tax-sharing arrangements expire. The study will involve spending priorities and the division of taxing powers at all levels of government, including municipal.

Terms of reference for the study will be debated today at a meeting of finance ministers of the 11 senior governments. They will report Wednesday to the heads of government.

Some statistics likely will be produced behind the closed doors of the conference. They will show trends like this:

Despite only recent concern about the weakening of Ottawa's fiscal power, actually by 1961 federal spending as a proportion of all government ex-

Queen Presides Over State Banquet For Canada's Ten Provincial Premiers

Reception Grim As Overcast

QUEBEC (CP) — The normally cordial, easy atmosphere of this city returned Sunday as fair-sized crowds turned out to cheer Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip on their departure by air for Ottawa.

Saturday's reception was as grim as the overcast, threatening weather. Thin crowds were almost lost in an army of police and servicemen as the Royal Couple carried out a round of ceremonials, receptions and dinners.

Riot police in white helmets and orange capes raced into the crowds several times, swinging batons or billies, to arrest 32 youthful demonstrators. Two more were arrested Sunday at Laval University while the Royal Couple travelled to suburban Ancienne - Lorette airport.

Quebec Solicitor - General Claude Wagner ordered a full investigation of a number of complaints that police used excessive force in carrying out their security duties.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen climaxed her Royal Tour Monday night with a sumptuous banquet for Canada's 10 provincial premiers in the state ballroom of her Ottawa residence, Rideau Hall.

With the finest of crystal, china, silver and wines that the vice-regal home of Canada's Governors-General can provide, the Queen and Prince Philip and her 73 guests, sat down to a meal of consomme, arctic char done in a wine sauce, breast of pheasant and wild rice, hearts of artichokes and asparagus, and a rich fruit dessert.

The Queen presided over the horseshoe dinner table in a ball gown more magnificent than anything worn previously on this tour, either at Charlottetown or at Quebec.

It was a dress of white satin with a fitted bodice embroidered in old pearls and diamonds. The embroidery cascaded down the back into a short train, and the front of the skirt was draped up to reveal an underskirt richly embroidered in pearls, diamonds, and tiny tassels of gold and crystal fringe.

She wore the same Russian fringe diamond tiara which drew gasps of admiration from the crowd attending a provincial banquet in Charlottetown last week. She also wore the broad blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter, emeralds and diamond necklace, earrings and bracelet, and her pink and white family orders.

Prince Philip, as did all the men attending the dinner, wore full evening dress.

During dinner, the string orchestra of the band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, from Kingston, played light music under the direction of Lieut. Keith Swanwick, who came to Canada seven years ago from Manchester, England.

Most of 34 Held Released After Queen Leaves Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Assistant Chief Alme Guillemette of the Quebec municipal police said Monday most of the 34 persons arrested during the royal visit to Quebec city were released on bail soon after the Queen and Prince Philip departed for Ottawa.

He said seven or eight other persons were detained then released after questioning.

Reggie Chartrand of Montreal, a former boxer, was released on $50 bail. Five rest were freed on $25 bail. All were to appear in court today on charges Mr. Guillemette described as being minor Earlier, he said the charges would be public disorder and vagrancy.

Mr. Guillemette said the explanations of a motorist found near the Chateau Frontenac with a hunting rifle loaded with eight bullets were satisfactory but that he nevertheless spent Saturday and Sunday in jail. So did another person found carrying a dagger.

Mr. Guillemette declined to identify the persons charged until they appeared in court.

Two of the arrests were made Sunday and involved Laval University students demonstrating at the university's campus 20 miles from Quebec along the Queen's departure

Tories Fighting To Last

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Only two days to go in the British general election and while the Labor chiefs seem to be required a calm born of confidence the Conservatives are making good their pledge in "fight like fury" right down in the wire.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and almost his entire cabinet are making three main points as they hit the campaign trail up and down the country: Peace, prosperity and the "wasted" Liberal vote.

Sir Alec made no bones about his determination to sway Liberals. "Don't support the Liberals," he told an audience in Essex. "There are only two alternatives—a Conservative or a socialist government."

And Duncan Sandys, Commonwealth relations secretary said it appears that "Liberal electors may well be in a position, if they so choose, to tip the balance one way or the other."

WILSON'S VISION

Meanwhile, Labor Leader Harold Wilson, making his final television appeal, set his statistics and sarcasm aside Monday and quietly talked of his vision of a new Britain.

The voters would decide Thursday, he said, whether Britain was to go on trailing behind other countries, or whether, as Labor believes, Britain could recapture the lead she once held.

Fine Welcome Extended Royal Couple In Ottawa

Program in Capital Goes Off Without Hitch

OTTAWA (CP) — An Air Canada DC-9 jet carrying the Queen back to London took off from Uplands Airport here at 10:18 a.m. EDT today. Estimated flying time to London was five hours and 49 minutes.

The DC-9 was to fly at more than 35,000 feet.

Authorities said no weather problems were expected on the transatlantic flight.

The weather at London tonight was forecast as clear and cool with a temperature of 48 degrees.

A Canadian Press reporter asked Prime Minister Pearson for a comment on the Queen's visit.

"She behaved magnificently," the prime minister said. "She's a great Queen."

GREATLY ENJOYED

The reporter asked what the Queen had said. Mr. Pearson replied: "She thanked us for inviting her and said she greatly enjoyed the trip."

Mr. Pearson indicated he may make a full statement on the royal visit when the Commons sits at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Thousands of Ottawans turned out in the rain and damp to bid the Queen farewell.

The royal car slowed so that she could acknowledge the cheers and waves and her departure was therefore delayed by 18 minutes.

The Air Canada plane was the first to carry the new maple leaf insignia of the publicly-owned line.

GUARDSMEN FAINT

The Queen, after inspecting an RCAF guard of honor—three guardsmen fainted before her arrival at the airport — was escorted to the ramp of the plane by Governor-General and Mme. Vanier and Mr. and Mrs. Pearson.

Gen. Vanier gallantly kissed the Queen's hand before she entered the plane. The Queen turned at the door of the plane and waved before stepping inside. Her Royal Standard was raised on the front of the plane.

The Queen waved from the second window from the front as the big jet taxied toward the runway.

Crowds lined her route from Government House to the airport.

There was clapping and cheering from the crowd many of them teen-agers, as the royal car passed through Confederation Square.

The route was lined by sailors and airmen and there were a good many police in evidence. On the ground and on rooftops

CHILDREN CHEER

At Pretoria Bridge over the Rideau Canal were about 2,000 persons, mostly school children, cheered lustily and the Queen waved.

The windows of her car were up. The weather was chilly and it was spitting rain.

One of the members of the guard of honor who fainted fell on his head and left a blood stain on the newly-painted floor of the hangar at the airport.

Two of the guards had to be

With $13,756 turned in to the United Appeal office and nearly $11,000 at in-plant campaign headquarters, Belleville United Appeal is about half-way to this morning. At th. same stage in last year's campaign, only $11,500 had been turned in to the Appeal office.

Canadian National Railways employees have given about $4,500 so far to their in-plant campaign, keeping it the largest in the city Two more campaigns, at Canada Cement and at Deloro Stellite start this week.

Returns from one group of 21 small Belleville businesses show a total of $1,000 collected from the group, about 30 percent more than the $769 donated by the same group last year.

French-Canadians Too Frightened To Cheer Queen?

Special by Richard Jackson

QUEBEC CITY — How strong is segregation? How powerful the terrorism at its outer fringes? can it exert such a fear as to bully, even blackmail a city of a quarter of a million people?

That it does exactly that, is the explanation offered . . . by visiting federal spokesmen from Ottawa alike — of the glum, even glacial reception given the Queen.

The good and kindly people of this historic city, so the story goes, simply were too frightened to bid the Queen welcome. And this capital of French Canada, famed the world over for the warmth and verve of its gay hospitality, for Her Majesty the frigid cold shoulder.

She was aware of it — and she simply could have avoided. Noticing those flagless street, bare and empty except for the police and troops she gave no faintest sign of it. There were times, amid the noise and confusion, the smiling and the shouting of insults along the unruly streets, that she might almost have felt like a heavily guarded prisoner being smuggled from place to place in protected danger. So it was pursers irony that her gracious references — all in French — to the warmth of Quebec's hospitality, must have fallen on the surprised ears of those who had seen, heard and knew what was happening.

With fortitude and gallantry, she stood up there in the Quebec legislative building — after surely having heard at least some of the booing outside — and, making it sound for all the world like she meant it, said: "It is a great pleasure for us to return to Quebec, where on two previous occasions we have received such a warm welcome — you have thus continued your tradition of cordial hospitality."

The people of this lovely old city are embarrassed. They have no shame, but they do have a sense of decency. The Conservatives are making good their pledge in "fight like fury" right down in the wire.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and almost his entire cabinet are making three main points as they hit the campaign trail up and down the country: Peace, prosperity and the "wasted" Liberal vote.

Sir Alec made no bones about his determination to sway Liberals. "Don't support the Liberals," he told an audience in Essex. "There are only two alternatives—a Conservative or a socialist government."

Tweed Man Fatally Injured In Mishap at Intersection

Four people were injured, one fatally, in a two-car accident in Tweed Sunday morning. All four were in the same car.

Dorian Bosley of Tweed, driver of the car, died in Belleville General Hospital about an hour after the accident. Injured were his wife, Amelia, Mrs. Ken Lovelock of Tweed and Mrs. Joe Levack, of Trenton. Mrs. Joe Leveck is reported in critical condition.

The accident occurred about 9 a.m. Sunday when John Sterwin Armstrong, 16, of Sulphide, went through a stop sign on Colborne St. at Jamieson. Armstrong later told police he was unable to stop. The small Bosley car, eastbound through the intersection, was struck broadside and spun about 56 feet to the lawn of a house. Witnesses said several of the passengers fell out of the car as it came to rest. Armstrong later told Tweed police chief J. J. Paquette he had no insurance.

Mayor Ellis Was Second In Plowing

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Charles Bonney, of RR 1, Princeton, former provincial and Canadian plowing champion, won the Ontario plowing championship for the second time at the international plowing match Saturday.

In a special mayor's event, Acting Mayor W. Gordon Postall of Peterborough was first, Mayor J. R. Ellis of Belleville was second and Mayor Angus Campbell of Pembroke third.

$450 Damage In Collision

Damage totalled about $450 in a Dundas St. W. accident Saturday evening.

A car driven by William Thomas Morrison, 25, of Belleville, struck from behind a car owned by Cecelia Crandell of Trenton and driven by her son William Edward Crandell, 20 years old, of the R.C.A.F station at Winnipeg. Damage to the Morrison car has been estimated at $250, and to the Crandell car at $300. Miss Linda Scott, 19, of Trenton, a passenger in the Crandell car, suffered possible neck injuries.

The accident happened about 5:15 p.m., on Dundas Street W. near Holden St.

Two Cars Damaged

Damage totalled about $450 Sunday noon in an accident at Coleman and Catherine Streets.

Police say cars driven by Wilson Hagerman of Belleville and Belleville was making a right turn from Catherine to Coleman when another car was collided with a car driven by John Gordon Matheson of North Bay, northbound on Coleman Street. There were no injuries.

Damage to the front of the Wilson car was estimated at $50, to the side of the Matheson car about $400.

IN MEMORIAM

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away October 13, 1963.
We've missed the sound of your footsteps
And your voice since you have gone,
And though no longer we see you,
In our minds you still live on.
—Always remembered by Carman, Olive, Clare, Rose, Harry and Marion.

ADAMS — In loving memory of our dear son Jack Adams who was killed October 13, 1962.
He bade no one his last farewell,
He said goodbye in heaven.
The heavenly gates were opened,
A loving voice said "Come"
I often sit and think of you,
The things you used to say,
I wonder why you had to die,
When you were so young and gay.
Though our hearts are full of sorrow,
Still missed, you'll ever be,
You left with me in memory,
Until the end of time.
—Lovingly remembered by Mom and Dad and brothers and sister.

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Edward, who passed away October 13th, 1962.
Beautiful memories are treasured ever.
Of happy days when we were together.
—Ever remembered by daughter Alice, son-in-law Charles and family.

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of my dear husband Ed, who passed away Oct. 13, 1962.
You were a loving husband,
A pal so good and true,
A better husband never lived,
Your equal was but few.
—From his loving wife Ruth.

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of our father and grandfather who passed away October 13th, 1962.
You're not forgotten father dear,
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory last,
We shall remember thee.
—In loving memory, Angus, Lorraine, Dorothy, Penny and Priscilla.

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Edward Davidson who passed away October 13th, 1962.
We think of you with love sincere,
Sadly missed and dearly remembered by daughter Fern, Murray and family.

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of a dear father, Clarence Edward, who passed away October 13, 1961.
One year has passed, dear father,
Since you were called away,
How well do we remember,
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day,
We cried and prayed but your dear life,
Would not be taken away.
Lovingly remembered by Mary, Allen and Ronald, and staff of Belleville General Hospital.
—(Mrs. E.) Frances Young.

There were no flags. No cheers. Nothing, except a cold stare and icy silence.

It must have been a chilling sight for the Queen to ride up the terraced road to the lofty Plains of Abraham, and see, not just the troops standing lonely guard every 20 feet with no crowd to hold back—but in the woods, picked marksmen of the armed forces and the RCMP prowling with their telescopic-lensed rifles. On the heights above the royal anchorage, where the beautiful blue and white Britannia was berthed, the riflemen, with the winding roadway below and the dockside in their sights, were deployed as thickly almost as the very trees. Thirty minutes after landing, the Queen was greeted by the first scattered, but loud and determined, of boos. They would come again, and again, and again. Four times that day—perhaps even more, in other unattended, places. This rude, crude sound of hostility jarred the ears of people whose creed has always been courtesy and hospitality. Why has it happened this way? Why has this old city with its tradition of friendship, been embarrassed? Why the rest of the country very badly disturbed?

For two hours in mid-afternoon Saturday this correspondent toured both the upper and lower town, to discover why not only were no flags, bunting or the customary "Welcome to our city" photo of the Queen on display—but why, in those stores that traditionally had made the Union Jack and the Red Ensign part of the very decor, the windows had been stripped bare of any hint of the royal visit. The answer was the same street to street and door to door.

"We just don't want a brick through our window."

"But who would do such a thing?"

The answer is "they"—they on the terror.

But why no crowds, not even children, to stand and wave and even cheer?

"We want to keep out of any unpleasantness," explained the English-speaking woman shopper, who confessed that "had I dared, I would have liked to have been up there this morning on the height with our Union Jack."

But why invite trouble? It isn't just the "crazy mixed-up kids," as some describe them, that appear to have so intimidated this city, for they are only kids; their late teens, a few in their early twenties, and anyway they're tough, swiftly efficient orange-stickered riot police, tramped down hard on them, in almost every move they made. Hard-bitten men these, fast of foot and of night-stick, who took the realistic attitude that if the odd non-demonstrator got whacked that was only the hazard of being part of the unruly scene.

The scene Saturday night at the gracious old Chateau Frontenac was purest fantasy. Inside, the Queen, dining on duck with the Quebec establishment.

Inside, too, dozen of enormous Quebec and RCMP police, herding back the onlookers including a number of middle-aged American tourists, clearly astounded by the extraordinary goings-on outside, a scene from an armed camp. From a huge truck belonging to the "Protection Civile," glaring searchlights probed every inch of the square. Airmen stood shoulder to shoulder, facing outward. Riot police in their fluorescent coats, charged this way and that, in waves. It might have been a scene out of some old crime movie—or an nightmare. In cold fact, it was incredible. "That this big and sophisticated old-worldish city should find itself playing this astounding drama, all but defies understanding. Was it possible that it could be so intimidated, even terrorized by a tiny band of perhaps not more than 500 "crazy kids" and imported louts? It scarcely seems so.

Thus the conclusion—the acceptance of the explanation being offered, in all seriousness here by those who profess to speak on and for Quebec—that the terrorists are immeasurably deeper-seated than has hitherto been thought possible.

They seem to form a terrible frightening element, much more dangerous and sinister—an underground of blackmail by terror—than anybody dreamed, or cared to say, before. For the hard fact is that they held a city of a quarter of a million, hostage for 33 uncertain hours. The reason paid was this freeze—so utterly unchar-

28 Canada Geese Shot In Quinte Area Saturday

Saturday was a good goose hunting day in the Belleville area.

At least three gangs of hunters, two from Belleville and the other from the Shannonville area, had good luck in the marshes, bringing down a total of 28 Canada geese, plus a couple of ducks.

The lucky Belleville hunters were Fred and Gilbert Waite, North Front Street, part of a gang including several other hunters who shot 11 geese in the Latta area.

The other Belleville hunters to get their geese were Elmer Adams, Lingham Street and Jim Sopha, South Pinnacle Street, who brought home five geese and two ducks from the Gilmour area.

The Belleville hunters say that the geese have been flying south now for over a week with numbers of flocks passing over the Bay of Quinte area on Saturday.

The flock which stopped for a rest at Latta, numbered at least 100 geese, it was reported.

acteristic of Quebec City—this frigid cold shoulder for the Queen.

The travelling foreign correspondents of the London dailies who have closely watched the Queen on other and happier royal tours, say that she felt the chill in Quebec and showed the strain.

This may be so, but it wasn't markedly visible at the pleasantly relaxed Sunday afternoon reception she gave for the press aboard the Britannia, when she spoke of how good it was to be back in Canada among old friends. But there was this: when she left on Ottawa's Uplands, you sort of suspected that this was a Queen who came in from the cold.

To her, Ottawa must have felt like sudden spring after a hard winter.

Fall Convocation at Albert College Brings Many Graduates on Visit

Many of the alumni of Albert College attended the special ceremonies over the weekend, when fall convocation, banquets, tea, dance and sports festivations were held.

Principal and Headmaster R. B. Simpson presided at the convocation ceremonies on Monday afternoon and extended a sincere welcome to those who had attended the homecoming, mentioning the groups and some individuals who were present. Mr. Simpson expressed appreciation for the teaching staff who had responded loyally to the new regime. The pattern of the week had been quickly established in the first few days, and the waiting list of male students showed that there were still parents who were interested in a school which in addition to scholastic standards was engaged in Christian endeavor where every day began in the chapel. Major renovations had been carried out during the vacation, including a new fire system and electrical wiring.

Mr. Alan Macleod, college organist, played the music for the academic procession and accompanied the choir in two fine choral selections.

Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane, chairman of Belleville Presbytery, pronounced the invocation.

The unveiling and dedication of a stained glass window in honor of Miss Jessie Tuite, appears in another column.

GUEST SPEAKER

Rev. Lloyd Thorton, B.A. B.D., S.T.M., minister of Southminster United Church in Ottawa, was the guest speaker, and as a former student at Albert he reminisced about people and conditions when he was there some years ago. "The chapel was used only for special occasions, and many of these was the Christmas party prepared by Miss Tuite. Albert College has meant a great deal to all of us, and we feel a part of its tradition.

"There are three kinds of people in the world," said the speaker "those who make things happen; those who allow things to happen; and those who have no idea what is happening; and it is possible to be promoted from the large third group to the first small group.

THREE BONES

"To do this we need a wishbone, a funny bone and a backbone. We need to create an image in our minds and strive to have a goal. Every action must begin as an image in our minds. We must ask ourselves, why are we living? what is the purpose of our life?

"We need a funny bone because we have to be ready to laugh at ourselves in spite of our mistakes, our disappointments and our failures.

"We need backbone because the world is no place for any person who has not the courage like a piece of boiled spaghetti. There is too much at stake. Never have people been under greater pressure than they are today to conform. Don't let the world push you into its mould.

GUIDE LINES

"Prayer and worship are lifelines that lead to God. There is joy, power and beauty about the person who has these guide lines to God. The decision is between life and death for us. It is by our own determination to be on our own, with the power of God that we can live creatively and consistently."

Mrs. Graham, Dean of Women thanked the speaker for his inspiring address.

A tea was given at the Principal's residence to honor Miss Tuite with members of the Women's Guild as hostesses. The Women's Guild also prepared and served at a tea in Ackerman Hall on Sunday afternoon.

Crowe Lake Yields Fine Muskie Haul

Belleville fishermen are finding Crowe Lake much to their liking these fall days.

At least four fine fish have been landed there during the past week.

George Caverly pulled in the latest, and biggest, of three muskies Sunday.

Caverly, aided by Bob Watson and Merve Thompson, caught a 28½ pound beauty.

Also on Sunday, Joseph Soule, St. Paul Street, booked and landed a handsome 21-pound muskie.

Earlier last week Fred Soule, also of the city, hit paydirt on two separate occasions.

He brought home an 8½-pound pickerel on Monday, October 5, and followed up with a 22-pound muskie on Thursday of last week.

Jailed Second Time for Same Offence

A 41-year-old Shannonville man today was sentenced to three months for driving under suspension — the second such charge against him in almost as many weeks.

Gordon Elmer Spencer sent to jail for 14 days on September 29 was charged for repeating the offence October 10, when police stopped him on East Dundas street.

"He was just released from custody and he goes and does it again," said Crown Attorney John Pringle. "I'm asking for a very substantial penalty."

Magistrate T. Y. Wills concurred and also fined the accused $15 and costs for operating an unsafe automobile.

A Tangled Web

We do not make it a general practice to endeavor to refute in our editorials the arguments which our advertisers present in their advertisements.

However, the Ontario Government Trade Crusade leaves us little option. In a large advertisement in Thursday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer it presented such a strange mixture of wisdom and distortion concerning international trade that we cannot refrain from endeavoring to untangle these statements, in order that they may be presented in their proper light.

"... balanced trade means security, employment, a future to be happy about," declared the advertisement. "Balanced trade results from the realization that it is as vital to sell as many goods and services to the world as we buy from the world."

This is an admirable statement of the ideal. It clearly sets forth that trade is a two-way street, that healthy trade involves the exchange of goods between nations. It is in sharp and happy contrast to the efforts of many countries to sell goods abroad, while refusing to permit the purchasers to enjoy the similar privilege of selling to us.

"It (balanced trade) comes from businessmen working to open up and broaden overseas markets," the advertisement continued. "It comes from Canadian manufacturers and workers taking deep pride in the quality and workmanship of their products, so that people abroad will look for things Canadian."

The ideal having been clearly stated, we are here wisely instructed as to the best method of attaining it. Once again, an admirable statement.

"Balanced trade also comes from you, the Canadian consumer, making a point to look for products 'Made in Canada', says the advertisement.

Here is a sharp change in the tone of the advertisement and an equally great change in the reliability of the statement. Buying Canadian-made goods could help to promote balanced trade, if we are buying more than we are selling abroad, but it could also deprive a foreign customer of the opportunity to acquire funds with which to buy Canadian-made goods. The Canadian consumer might get less value for his money than if he bought imported goods, while forcing the foreign consumer to depend on home-made goods which were not the equal of Canada's products in that field.

"When you buy goods manufactured at home, you help our industry grow," says the advertisement. This is true, of the industry producing the goods bought at home, but if this preference for Canadian-made goods promotes an imbalance in trade, you may also be preventing a Canadian exporting industry from growing.

By buying Canadian, we are told, "you help create new jobs for people you care about." You may also deprive people you care about of jobs they already have. "You help keep our living standards high." You may also help to lower them. "You help keep Canada the province of opportunity." Yes, for firms catering to the home market, perhaps not for firms catering to the foreign market.

A foolish preference for things imported is to be deplored. Where quality and price are competitive, a preference for Canadian-made goods would but reflect a proper pride in our homeland. But even here we must not lose sight of the wise statement made earlier, that "it is as vital to sell as many goods and services to the world as we buy from the world," with its obvious corollary that it is as vital for the world to sell as many goods to us as it buys from us.

What is needed is not some sweeping generalization to "buy Canadian," but a list based on careful analysis of the facts, showing us just what imports will give the consumer the greatest value for his dollar and the purchase of which will do most to enhance our opportunities for selling Canadian-made products abroad. There could also be another list showing imports the purchase of which will, at the best, bring us little benefits and a preference for which, at the worst, could starve some essential Canadian industry.

Ottawa Is in a Cold Fury At Need to Protect Queen

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — All those fantastically elaborate security precautions that lunatic terrorism made so urgently necessary for the Queen may have been so much Separatist fun and games for the hook element in Quebec — but it has left the National Capital and probably the rest of the country in a cold fury.

Actually, the feeling has been a strangely uncomfortable mixture of glacial anger and a kind of crawly embarrassment.

That the Queen — or for that matter, any distinguished or royal visitor — should, for safety's sake, have been subjected to those idiot-inspired inconveniences and even, perhaps, indignities, was completely foreign to this country.

Especially has it been regarded in this Capital as an outrage. For here, things, as long as anybody can remember them, have been on the slow and easy, even casual, but always decently and warmly friendly side.

Nobody was ever real given deadly serious body-guard.

Not even the three American Presidents — Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy—who came to call.

They brought their own security forces, and all the RCMP did was to provide a little ceremonial color.

NEW AND SINISTER

No real trigger-ready security ever before was provided — not even for the Queen — since, until now it never occurred to anybody, in either public or private life, that injury or death might strike down our visiting VIP's.

That the new and sinister element of extremism has intruded so barbarously has shocked this previously pleasingly placid Capital like a jolt of electricity.

The city remembered how, nearly 30 years ago, Elizabeth's parents, the King and Queen, and the Queen Mother, felt so comfortably at home in Canadian Capital that they could go for an afternoon stroll, all unescorted, in the nearby Gatineau Hills.

Nobody, for a fleeting moment, worried that any harm could come to Elizabeth II.

But things have changed. And so drastically that the Queen, now, in the Capital must pull down guarded streets in a bullet-proof car.

This changes has seemed to have come almost overnight.

It was only a few years ago that the Queen was here in Ottawa. And then, in 1959, there to tell the authorities, as they had been two years previously in '57, were a bit concerned about the crowds and the question of their safety.

But it was a happy concern. The only worry then was whether or not there would be enough deaf-mutes, the deaf by the thousands, of people who wished her only well, as either the King or Queen of the Commonwealth and Britain, or as simply a lovely and gracious woman.

NOW THE TERROR

She met just about everybody. Both times. For just the high and the mighty.

But the Grass as well as the Brass.

She even had a party for the Press at old Rideau Hall. And it was that, a party, really, and not a formal reception.

But since then the Terror has come to Quebec — and Quebec is just across the Ottawa River. So things have changed here in Ottawa, the little off-the-beaten-track world capital that so seldom, before, was afraid of much.

This was a city where every body — presidents, prime ministers and princes and kings were so off-hand about each other as to seem to be almost next-door neighbors.

If there was a complaint over the Capital's conduct on state occasions, it was that it only just couldn't seem to be bothered.

Except in cheer the Queen, Ottawa seldom seemed able to muster the effort required to welcome VIPs.

The worry always has been not that they could be hurt or insulted, but that they would be ignored.

Harry Truman felt at home enough to plop down under the shade of a white birch and sip a sociable glass or two of bourbon and branch water with reporters on the lawns of a Country club.

General Eisenhower was relaxed enough in this relaxed Capital to shoot golf of a sunny afternoon with half the city in his gallery.

Looking back on it, the only VIP who ever suffered injury in this kindly Capital was President Kennedy who hurt his back planting a ceremonial maple tree out at Rideau Hall.

But now they have been guarding the Queen as if this were a city of assassins, in a nation of nuts.

Denies Canada Is Too Clean

Hamilton Spectator

It's startling to learn that Canadians will probably never be banned in Boston. We're too clean, that's why. According to a British MP, Charles Longbottom, hygiene in this country is "carried out to an unnecessarily strict degree."

There's a man down there, Longbotty thinks he's right about our cleanliness. Everything from the loaf of bread to the cob of corn is wrapped. Most of us have more than one bath night a week. We have at least 30 varieties of soap from which to choose a cake for our daily ablutions. We have wall-to-wall carpeting and shower curtains if after a shower we don't treat our shining bodies to one of a host of assortments of deodorants.

In addition, Canada has no Henry Millers or Tarry Southerns to shudder over. All Canadian writers—with the exception of one poet—are famous for their ultra clean, ultra smooth slick sophistication. There isn't a controversial or dirty one in the lot. Except for that one poet, of course.

What an image we have! Clean, clean as the Arctic snows. Cleaner, of course, than sun-and-cream complexions, food all wrapped and germ-free, and shelves filled with deodorants. It's enough to make a European wince.

It's enough to make a Canadian wince, too. Because it's not true. All Mr. Doughty need do is walk down Bloor-Yonge's Bay Street on any old night, or spend some time in alleys and on sidewalks not too far from our glimmering, clean city hall.

Or, Mr. Doughty could wander into some stores and find paperback books that even a Mafia matriarch would hide from children. The covers on some of them could melt igloos.

Yes, Mr. Doughty, we may look clean and we're not bad, but you should see some of our back yards. Clean? Certainly. Just like a pack of rats in a bout with Hurricane Cleo.

No thanks. Canada is just as dirty as England, or France, or the United States (a country Mr. Doughty also accuses of being too tragic for comfort.) We're not terribly proud of it, either, and one day we may even seriously consider doing something about it.

Strictly Personal

TVs Influence On Children Is Neutral

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It's been many, many years since I've commented on television, mainly because I rarely bother to look at it when I am home. But on vacation this summer, during a cool and chilly August, we watched TV several nights a week, while the children stayed up later than they do during the school year.

What most impressed me about the programs between 7:30 and 10 p.m. is their almost without exception, they seem designed for the children, who loved them, yet, presumably, this is adult fare, since they advertise products of no interest or use to children.

I get awfully tired of apologists for TV who point out that "there are some good things" on television if you view selectively. Of course — and there are probably a few good restaurants in South Dakota if you care to drive all over the state looking for them.

The dismal fact remains that, night after night, for about three hours of prime time, we saw practically nothing that would tax the intellectual resources of a 9-year-old. And I am not applying any high and severe critical standards — a reader of mystery stories, a worker of crossword puzzles, and a lover of low jokes, I should gladly have settled for anything of modestly adult pretensions.

After a couple of weeks of sitting with the children and looking at such items as "McHale's Navy" and "Hazel," a reader of mystery stories, a worker of crossword puzzles, and a lover of low jokes, I should gladly have settled for anything of modestly adult pretensions.

After a couple of weeks of sitting with the children and looking at such items as "McHale's Navy" and "Hazel," a reader of mystery stories, a worker of crossword puzzles, and a lover of low jokes, I should gladly have settled for anything of modestly adult pretensions.

And there is a distinct and ominous relationship between the two. If the American public can swallow the crap dished up night, if its most infantile tendencies are cultivated, how can the monthly diet from the Department and the maturity to cope with the crucial issues raised by the world be debated) in the political arena?

This is not to say that commercial television should, or must, become "public-spirited," whatever that means; or even that entertainment should be subordinated to "education" of a civic sort. But it is to suggest that the present TV fare is leading develops mental and moral flabbiness, and tends to stupefy us at the expense of our future.

We have never believed that television is "bad for children." Its influence, at the most, is neutralized by its badness. Indeed this summer we're amusing and stimulating for the youngsters — it was the grownups who were debased by these offerings. The fact that they enjoy them is merely depressing evidence of their voluntary abandonment of the freedom to think, to grow, to master the child within them.

Courts Too Leisurely

Brantford Expositor

How many more cases of long-delayed trials for murder will have to have before steps are taken to end the scandal? There have been two instances this month in Toronto of men being cleared of serious charges after having been held in custody, one for nearly six months, and the other for 11 weeks, because they could not afford bail. More than one accused persons in similar circumstances have been held in Brantford from March to September.

The root trouble is less the size of the bill than the system of calling juries and holding trials only twice a year. This interval between assizes is far too long, at the best that could be managed in the days when transportation was slow and it took lodges last longer than now to get from place to place on their circuits. Also a factor is the traditional two-month summer vacation of the Canadian Bar Association.

There is little excuse these days for this slow-motion justice. It is not unusual after the current assize grand jury has been disbanded, there should be means to dispose of his case without a delay of up to six months while he languishes in jail. Vacation courts in a few larger centres manned by judges on a rota basis would help to meet the situation without undue interference with the judicial routine of the courts.

Official adoption by the city of its trim new warship prototype the corvette 'H.M.C.S. Belleville' will take place at the Canada Steamship Lines dock at Kingston on Sunday, October 22nd, Corvette Committee officials announced today.

Despite repeated efforts on the part of the committee to have the corvette brought here for public inspection, naval authorities at Ottawa deemed it impossible due to navigation difficulties likely to be encountered along waterways between this city and Kingston.

Officers and ratings of the ship will hold "open house" on Sunday starting at ten o'clock in the morning and lasting through till three o'clock in the afternoon.

Colorful ceremonies have been arranged for the official adoption. At three p.m., when all visitors must leave the craft, Remembrance Day wreaths of CKWS will carry the ceremonies over the air.

Mouth, Nose and Throat Cause of Bad Breath

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Here is a sensitive subject, bad breath, but no one talks about it, and its causes and what can be done about it. Can you suggest something? My teeth are excellent. I have tried mouth washes, lemon juice in the morning and a special tooth pastes. — L. M.

Mouth washes and tooth pastes aren't, for the most part, of more than thrilling use. They are good enough, that is, if breath odor is only mildly and temporarily less than ideal.

Here are points on how to get rid of bad breath:

1 Is the breath really bad, or are you oversensitive about it?

2 Do you customarily eat foods that leave odors? If you are an onion and garlic lover, don't expect to have a breath like a baby's.

3 Dibs for smoking.

4 Or drinking. Even casual drinkers sometimes acquire quite an odor.

5 Teeth. Yes, a toothbrush helps. And regular dental care to prevent or correct cavities or (a frequent cause) disease of the gums, is imperative. But food particles can be trapped in between perfectly sound teeth and decay there, and resist the most assiduous brushing. This is one of the very common causes of bad breath, and the unfastened thumb Brock was killed in the action that saw more than 300 Americans killed or wounded and almost 1,000 taken prisoner. Total British casualties were 180 men.

Oct. 13, 1964 . . .

The Battle of Queenston Heights, an important engagement on the Niagara Frontier during the War of 1812, took place 152 years ago today—in 1812. General Sir Isaac Brock, leading a British force from Fort George, met an American force of more than 5000 men from Lewiston, N.Y., and defeated them. Brock was killed in the action that saw more than 300 Americans killed or wounded and almost 1,000 taken prisoner. Total British casualties were 180 men.

you had your doctor look at them?

8 A "sour" odor can be a clue if digestive disorders are involved. This is not a frequent cause but it can occur.

9 Long and throat diseases can cause fetid odor, but the other causes are far more frequent. Bronchiectasis is one possibility.

In short, remember the mouth, nose and throat are the commonest sources — not just the mouth, but all three.

Trapped food particles are invisible (hidden between the teeth) and this is a frequently overlooked factor. Have your teeth cleaned periodically.

Dear Dr. Molner: While highjumping, my daughter injured the cartilage in her knee. The doctor advises the removal of the injured part. He said there was a chance it might get better by just resting. Is that true? Is surgery should be performed within a year. I would like your opinion. — Mrs. M. V.

Such surgery is done frequently for cartilage injuries, and a functional joint — one which works, that is — results. Many professional athletes, for example, have this sort of operation, and return to active competition.

Note to Mrs. R. W.: Since most commercial passenger jets have pressurized cabins, you are not likely to have trouble with your ears. True, some changes in pressure can take place. For one thing, the altitude of the city where you land may be quite different from that of the place you left, and hence a difference in air pressure. You might wish to consult your own ear specialist. He may see fit to give you medication which tends to shrink the tissues in the Eustachian tubes before you start a flight. Some of the medications used for nasal sickness also might be of benefit.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market was mixed in the morning part of the session today as industrials drifted lower while base metals moved to a new index high. Trading was on the light side.

In the main list, Trans Prairie Pipe line fell ⅛ to 9¼ while recently - strong Trans-Canada Pipe Lines eased ⅜ to 44¼. Aluminium was off ⅜ to 33¼.

Steleo climbed ¼ to a 1964 high of 27¼ and Bell Telephone tacked on ¼ to 59¼.

Hudson Bay led base metals higher climbing two points to a 1964 top of 73⅛ before easing to 73 with a gain of 1½.

Among the mainly quiet speculative group, Raglan added nine cents to $1.30.

Dome backed off ¼ to 33¼ and Hollinger ¼ to 36⅛ in the easier golds group.

On index, industrials were down .31 to 166.99, golds .08 to 141.51 and the Exchange index .22 to 155.91. Base metals were up .52 to 71.86 and western oils .36 to 96.80. Volume at 11 a.m. was 791,000 shares compared with 677,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

Three Are Hurt As Cars Collide

Three people were treated at Belleville General Hospital Saturday after an accident in front of Club Cedars. Police say Clifford Francis Allore of Stoco was the driver of a car that pulled out from the club about 11 p.m. and was struck from behind by a car driven by Robert Walker McPherson, of Carrollton. McPherson cut his arm and his head in the accident. John and Carl Osborne, both of Bannockburn, passengers in the Allore car were cut about the face and head. La Salle Ambulance of Belleville took the injured to hospital. Damage to the McPherson car was estimated about $800.

Voskhod

West Germany, said it was believed there that the cosmonauts had trouble with their transmitter sending signals back to earth. The spokesman said a comparison between Voshod's signals and those from previous Soviet spaceships showed Voskhod's transmitter was not functioning correctly.

In its duration the flight fell far short of the previous record of 81 orbits by Soviet Lt.-Col Valery F. Bykovsky in June 1963. His flight lasted 119 hours and six minutes, just under five days.

U.S. COMMENT

In Washington, James Webb, administrator of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the Soviet feat was "a clear indication that the Russians are continuing a large space program for the achievement of national power and prestige."

U.S. officials noted that the American space program does not call for a flight until 1966. Two-man Gemini spaceships are scheduled to go into orbit early next year, however.

As their flight neared its end, the three new space travellers had reported "everything fine."

Conditions aboard the ship were reported as comfortable as on earth. The cosmonauts were light woollen clothing rather than the heavy space suits worn on previous flights.

The Russians said they had not put aboard any equipment to overcome ill effects of weightlessness. They said the pilot reported the travellers were too busy to notice any such effects.

After a seven-hour break during the night, television and radio receivers were tuned in at the control centre as the ship passed over Soviet soil and a picture of the cosmonauts appeared on the TV screen.

SEE ON TV

"The transmission began unexpectedly for them, and we saw the men engaged in their work," said Tass. "Vladimir (the pilot) was turning the pages of the flight log. Konstantin's (the scientist's) face was obscured by his hand in the foreground. The doctor (Yegorov) was writing something, apparently jotting down the results of medical observations. When they heard by radio that the earth was calling them, they all smiled at once."

The three cosmonauts radioed that they slept in shifts and woke with hearty appetites.

During the night, Tass said, Feoktistov followed a crowded work schedule, making visual observations of the stars, checking the instruments aboard the ship and controlling the equipment.

At the 14th orbit the trio radioed: "Breakfasted with good appetite and pleasure. Feeling fine. Everything fine on board."

Komarov and Feoktistov ate breakfast and resumed work, Tass said. Yegorov ate and went to sleep.

At the 15th loop, Feoktistov took pictures of the horizon as they entered the 16th orbit. Komarov and Feoktistov had lunch while Yegorov continued sleeping.

The size of the cabin was not given, but TV views indicated the three occupants might be cramped.

ESTIMATE WEIGHT

Japanese scientists in Tokyo estimated that the ship weighed 15 tons. The heaviest previous space craft whose weight has been disclosed by the Russians is five tons.

The Japanese expressed belief the booster rocket that put Voskhod into orbit was more powerful than the U.S. Saturn I, with 1,500,000 pounds of thrust, but had less thrust than Saturn V, still being developed. The Saturn V would have 7,500,000 pounds of thrust.

Voskhod was launched by "a new powerful rocket" from a "cosmodrome" at Baikonur 1,250 miles southeast of Moscow.

On a pass over the United States, the cosmonauts radioed greetings to the American people, Tass said.

Over Japan, the jubilant crew promised to send the Soviet Olympic crew an Olympic pennant carried aboard the space ship.

At Colorado Springs, Colo., a spokesman for the North American Air Defence Command said: "We can confirm the landing. We were tracking it throughout its flight." The ship crossed North America five times—on orbits seven to 11—he said.

Four Are Hurt In Accident At Millbridge

Four people were injured, one of them a small child, in an accident involving a car and a truck on the Hastings Road, on Sunday, about noon. Three other small children were unhurt.

Donald Devoy of R.R. 3, Belleville, driving alone in a light truck, cut his lip on the steering wheel in the accident.

Herbert Henshall of Scarborough bruised his forehead. Mrs. Henshall, a passenger in the car, was badly cut on the forehead and scalp. She was admitted to Belleville General Hospital. Robert Henshall, seven years old, was cut about the forehead and behind his right ear. Three other children in the Henshall car were unhurt.

The two vehicles, both moving slowly, met on the crest of a hill about two miles north of Millbridge. Damage to the truck was estimated about $600, to the car about $700.

horse sense

More than 591,000 Canadian automobile owners pay too much for gasoline.

They're people with cars designed for medium-octane gasolines. Up to now they have been buying the available top-rated premiums and, since their cars can't use all of that power, they've been wasting octane and money.

Now, BP makes better sense with horsepower by adding two new Super gasolines in the medium-octane, medium-price range. Perhaps one of them is just right for your car.

Check the recommendations at a BP station, then make the switch from top-priced gasolines and save 2¢, even 4¢ per gallon . . . enough to buy up to 900 extra miles of driving in a year.

Venezuelan Communist Terrorists Release U. S. Colonel Unharmed

CARACAS (AP) — Venezuelan Communist terrorists released U.S. Air Force Lt.-Col. Michael Smolen unharmed Monday night after two of the five-man gang who abducted him last Friday were arrested.

Smolen was put out of a car blindfolded about 11 p.m. on a street corner in eastern Caracas.

He said today he felt fine and reported he had been treated well.

Interior Minister Gonzalo Barrios said the two terrorists seized in a downtown Caracas apartment early Monday were Spanish-born members of the Communist underground called the Armed Forces of National Liberation (AFNL). Reliable sources said nine other suspected terrorists were picked up later.

Smolen told reporters his abductors said they kidnapped him to make propaganda for their underground war against Venezuela's democratic government.

The 45-year-old officer from Chandler, Ariz., said his abductors never mentioned any plan to trade him for political prisoners in Venezuela or for a condemned Communist Viet Cong terrorist in South Viet Nam. Various anonymous telephone callers had said this was planned by the AFNL.

route to the city's airport.

The same separatists many of them from Montreal, turned up again and again at parade points Saturday and were confronted just as consistently by droves of orange-caped, truncheon-bearing police who looked grim and sometimes showed their determination by charging relentlessly into any groups they considered to be getting out of hand.

No arrests were made Friday night despite meetings of the separatist displays outside the Quebec legislature, where several arrests were made among a shouting, flag-waving group.

This set the tone for the tension - charged day as many of the demonstrators trooped the half-mile from the legislature to the city hall seeking the release of Chartrand.

CIRCLE BUILDINGS

The separatists — some of them in their early teens—circled the big grey buildings, which houses the central police station.

They chanted softly and no trouble occurred until they were told to disperse by some of the muscular police who had gathered behind the building at an emergency - service assembly point.

Then the batons began to swing, the separatists fled in a variety of directions and several persons, including two newspaper men, emerged bearing the marks of the long riot sticks.

As the smiling but slightly nervous queen drove from point to point of her tour, the separatists chanted, turned their backs and waved their fleur-de-lis flags. At one point, Prince Philip was seen leaning across the Queen to get a better look at the goings-on.

Then came another crisis as the monarch officiated at ceremonies inside the sprawling fortress known as the Citadel.

While formalities proceeded within, about 70 youthful separatists sat on a nearby hill chanting but otherwise behaving peacefully.

POLICE ARRIVE

Suddenly from the bottom of a long slope appeared splotches of orange that denoted the approach of the helmeted municipal lawmen.

The demonstrators chanted some more, then headed off toward the city, prodded from behind.

All disappeared into the central city but Mark Schleffer, a gaunt - looking bearded New Yorker, was struck by four baton - bearing police and placed roughly under arrest.

Reporters who saw the incident protested to the police.

The separatists, meantime, were circulating through the city, awaiting another chance to vent their grievances within view of the Queen.

A big opportunity came as she and Prince Philip, riding in a closed, bullet - proof car, were taken under heavy guard to the Chateau Frontenac Hotel for a Saturday night state dinner.

GET ROYAL WAVE

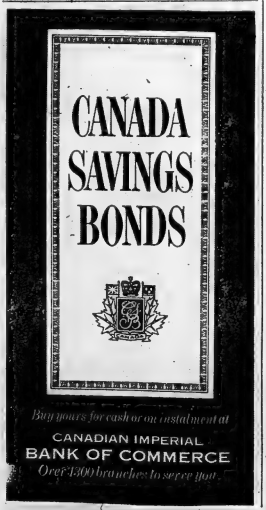
The Queen and prince waved a smiling response to the shouts, and the separatists, surrounded by dozens of camera men, headed down narrow, troop - lined St. Louis Street in the wake of the royal passage toward the Chateau.

Near the massive, turreted hotel, city police and several RCMP officers charged into the column of demonstrators, putting their leaders to flight and leaving the column a headless mass.

Arrests were made and noisy chaos prevailed in the area under the glare of police spotlights but another half-hour saw order re - established outside the site of the gala state dinner.

More chanting greeted the Queen after she emerged from the dinner, and fourteen indents occurred along downtown St. Jean Street as some of the youths paraded in roundabout fashion to the city hall.

There they were put to flight and demonstrations fizzled out under a heavy cloak of police vigilance.



Despite the arrests and the constant threat of massive police action, the young demonstrators acted with smiling, slightly - mischievous persistence throughout the day, apparently convinced they had scored a publicity victory over the lumbering security forces.

"Wanna trade?"

Frogs, comic books, butterflies, bottle tops... you name it, children will try to trade it. No one has to tell them. They know instinctively that trade is important. Only later do they find out how important. It's the difference between being rich and poor... weak or strong... employed or unemployed. Trade is at the hub of everything we enjoy. Trade is one of the reasons Ontario is called the Province of Opportunity.

Trade is the key to future opportunity, too—trade beyond our national borders. Now, more than ever, Ontario must sell to the world.

All of us have a job to do. We must see that our consumer products continue to meet or exceed the highest standards of foreign buyers. We must encourage Ontario industry to manufacture for export. And we must lend our full support to the individuals and organizations who work to broaden our overseas markets.

The climate is right for trade expansion. Individual enterprise and initiative can reap a rich harvest. And every dollar we earn through exports is a dollar invested in a confident future for our children.

"Wanna trade?" You bet ~~we want to trade~~!

Reception

cases just cheered the Sovereign past found themselves running for safety in these melees. The separatists themselves never did anything more violent than wave fleur-de-lis flags or chant slogans like "Quebec aus Quebecois." (Quebec for Quebecers).

POLICE ARE EVERYWHERE

Quebecers who did turn out Saturday hardly got a glimpse of the Royal Couple in their enclosed, bullet-proof limousine, but they saw police everywhere.

The Queen herself appeared calm, though at times tired, through the weekend and she made an address to the legislature that was a serious appeal for understanding between Canada's major French and English ethnic groups.

She dedicated a memorial to the war dead of the famed Royal 22nd Regiment, the French - language fighting unit of which she is colonel-in-chief.

In the evening, the Queen chatted at length with Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec at a seven - course gourmet state dinner in the Chateau Frontenac.

Most of those arrested were from Montreal, but the police seemed at times to be charging indiscriminately. Three reporters suffered minor injuries when struck by night sticks. Some separatists were struck and hurt.

DIDN'T SEE VIOLENCE

The Royal Couple never was aware of these violent incidents. But at one point Saturday, Prince Philip appeared to be about to get out of the car to talk to a cluster of 30 youths near the legislature.

Probably fewer than 10,000 of the 200,000 people in the district turned out Saturday. Many Quebec families evidently were fearful of bringing children into the downtown area as a result of the speculation on terrorism and the show of security might.

Possibly some followed the urging of various groups to stay home and ignore the royal tour.

This visit was in sharp contrast to those made by Elizabeth in 1951, when she was a princess, and 1959, when Queen. Warm and cheering crowds turned out then.

Sunday was clear and crisp and the 10-mile route to the airport was lined with more than 50,000 persons, cheering and waving flags.

TURN BACKS

Quebec City police action was provoked by the behavior of separatists who ceremoniously turned their back as she passed, chanted as she left the legislature, staged a mock coronation of "Baliise" an obsolete French Canadian symbol, and shouted "Long live the carnival queen"—a reference to the choice of a Quebec girl for the annual winter festival.

Police apparently were jumpy after long hours of double duty, security checks and preparations and they also were constantly subject to the effects of the buildup of threatening reports of possible terrorist activity.

Some veteran reporters admired the dispatch with which they rounded up the first bag of booing reparatists but in later melees they, seemed to lost their cool efficiency and charged indiscriminately into the mixture of orderly spectators and demonstrators. In every case newspaper men followed to get accurate reports. In handing early Saturday crowds they used their truncheons as prods to sweep a path as they took disturbances in charge but later they raised the sticks and brought them down with seemingly unnecessary roughness.

This was especially noticeable when they were dealing with exuberant college students who started their little protest marches with apparent good humor and seemed to have no intention of harming the Queen's person.

It was recalled that before the visit police warned that public disorder would not be tolerated and strong measures would be taken against demonstrations.

Except for speeches on moderation and understanding by the Queen and Premier Lesage, the Confederation centennial purpose of the visit—emphasized so strongly in Charlottetown—was lost sight of in the rough-and-tumble of the demonstrations.

The precautions virtually made this usually friendly and hospitable old city an armed camp. Canada has never seen such a bristling and massive array of security measures. It was a good guess that security forces outnumbered spectators three to one at most vantage points along the royal route.

The Queen's message at the legislature, in her only formal address, recognized the problems of confederation must be reconsidered and urged continuation of the French - English dialogue among men of good will. "True patriotism," she said, "does not exclude the understanding of the patriotism of others." She said her desire was that nobody among her people be subject to coercion. To be happy, Canadians must live in a climate of confidence and affection.

"Between compatriots, we must explain and present our points of view without passion, respecting the opinion of others."

Premier Jean Lesage assured the Queen of his respect for the Commonwealth because of its community of purpose born of mutual respect and understanding.

penditures already had fallen to around 57 per cent from 75 per cent in 1946.

SHARE RISES

In the same period the province's share of ever-all spending has risen to about 25 per cent from 11, and the municipal share to about 18 per cent from 11. The percentages are approximately the same on the revenue side.

Another set of figures likely will show this pattern:

Ottawa raises about 45 per cent of its tax revenues in Ontario but makes only about 30 per cent of its expenditures there. Quebec provides about 25 per cent of federal revenues but gets roughly 27 per cent of Ottawa's total spending.

This is what happened over the 15-year period starting in 1946:

For every $1 spent on education in 1946, there were $8.90 spent in 1961. The 1961 volume of education expenditures at $1,820,000,000 represented 15.5 per cent of all government spending as against 6.7 per cent 15 years earlier.

But the greatest rise was in health services. Outlays rose 1,450 per cent in 15 years to a 1961 level of $1,023,000,000 when they accounted for 8.8 per cent of all government expenditures compared with 2 .5 per cent in 1946.

COST QUADRUPLE

Welfare costs quadrupled over the 15 years to $1,741,000,000 in 1961 when they represented 14.8 per cent of all spending as against 12.4 per cent in 1946.

Defence spending more than tripled to $1,640,000,000 by 1961 but its share of the total, around 14 per cent, was relatively unchanged.

Debt charges for all levels of government rose from $512,000,000 to $880,000,000 but their burden on total spending slipped to 7.5 per cent from 15.2.

The taxation picture in brief:

Income taxes made up about 27 per cent of all tax and non-tax revenues for all governments in 1961, about the same as in 1946.

But the percentage contributed by general sales taxes rose to 16.5 per cent from about nine per cent. Real and personal property taxes provided about 14 per cent of all government revenues in 1961 compared with about 8½ per cent in 1946.

Canada to Build Powerful Optical Telescope in B. C.

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will build one of the world's most powerful optical telescopes on a mountaintop in southern British Columbia or northern Alberta to commemorate the Queen's 1964 visit to this country.

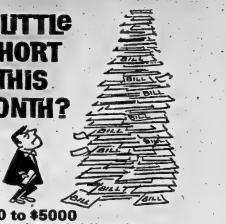
Prime Minister Pearson announced Monday that the $9,671,000 telescope, which will have a 150-inch reflecting mirror, will be the main gift of the people of Canada to the Queen.

The huge instrument will be located at an altitude of some 7,000 feet. The scientific research complex will be known as the Queen Elizabeth II Observatory.

The government of Canada also presented personal gifts to the Queen and Prince Philip following a luncheon at the prime minister's residence.

An ivory chess set made by a Canadian Eskimo and his wife was presented to the Queen, who is a chess player. Prince Philip received a versatile amphibious four-wheel vehicle known as a Penguin.

WILL TAKE YEARS



Construction of the new telescope—a six or seven year job—will restore Canada to its former position of eminence in the field of astronomy. Canada in 1918 possessed the world's largest telescope — a 71-inch instrument at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Victoria—but now occupies 11th place among countries with powerful telescopes.

The 150-inch telescope will be one of a number of new instruments to be located at the Queen Elizabeth II observatory during the coming decade.

The telescope's 150-inch mirror will compare with telescopes of 200, 120 and 100 inches in the United States and 102 inches in Russia. The U.S. is planning two 150-inch telescopes, Russia is considering a 235-inch instruments and Britain is building a 97-inch telescope.

Mr. Pearson said "it is confidently expected that completion of the Queen Elizabeth II Observatory will mark the opening of a new era of achievement for Canadian astronomers and will ensure Canada place in the van of nations during the period of great advance in the physical sciences."

Why does a Volkswagen last such a long time?

Well, for one thing it's a simple car.

There are fewer things to put together. So there are fewer things to fall apart.

A Volkswagen doesn't have a driveshaft.

And it doesn't have a radiator. Or a water pump. Or a water hose.

So right there you've got four things that will never wear out.

And we try to make the Volkswagen body last as long as the Volkswagen radiator.

We give it every possible protection against rust and corrosion. How?

We paint it.
And paint it.
And paint it.
And paint it.

Four times. Everywhere. Inside and out. That's why old Volkswagens aren't peppered with salt holes.

But what really keeps an old Volkswagen going?

A Volkswagen engine.

It's a simple, easy-going engine. It doesn't work as hard as other engines. Our crankshaft turns less. Our pistons move less. So our engine wears less.

Now you know some of the things that make our car last so long.

And now you know why there are more than 270,000 Volkswagens in Canada today.

So, get one yourself. And start collecting license plates.

The first set comes with the car.

Club Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The recent meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Stewart Lough with 20 members and two visitors present.

Shirley Griffith and Marion Angus were in charge of the devotional period which was based on the Thanksgiving theme. Margaret Twiddy reported for the visiting committee stating that gifts had been given to two neighborhood children. She also noted that one of the members Florence Boulton was recuperating from a fractured leg.

Everyone was reminded of the County Home bazaar to be held soon and the need for donations to the home cooking table was stressed. A donation was given to the United Appeal. The same officers were voted in for another year.

Shirley Griffith appeared in "Fashions of 1964" and described her wardrobe and in turn a contest was conducted to name every item visible. Erma Reid was the winner.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Edna Denyes in November at which time everyone is asked to bring a donation for the white elephant sale.

Refreshments were served by Bessie Bunk, Wyn Reed and the hostess.

GIRL'S EXPENSIVE

YORK, England (CP)—Mario Martin, 23, had so much to tell his girl friend in the U.S. when he rang her up from a friend's house here. He talked for 45 minutes and now he has a £33.15s. Bill to pay.

'Lights Out' At the Country Club

For an hour or so it looked like the "Dance of the Fire flies" at the Bay of Quinte Country Club Saturday night.

Some eighty couples were in attendance on the occasion of the Thanksgiving dinner-dance, the club's closing function of the season.

Conversation hummed. Games and tournaments of the season were replayed.

In the kitchen a delectable turkey dinner was being prepared.

Then it happened.

The lights went out as though someone had pulled a main switch. The club was in total darkness.

Later it was discovered that a transformer had burned out.

Club officials hurried to remedy the situation. In the meanwhile members and guests resumed a conversational normalcy while cigarette lighters and matches pin-pricked the gloom with tiny sprays of light.

An hour later the lights flashed on, but a further slight delay occurred in preparing the dinner.

The stewards did an excellent job in bringing back the Thanksgiving repast to heated normalcy.

Dancing rounded out the highly enjoyable function.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN DENNIS LLOYD

Lloyd – Follwell

St. Mary's Anglican Church, Hamilton, Ontario, was decorated with white gladioli for the recent wedding of Elizabeth June Follwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Charles Follwell, Hamilton, Ontario, and Brian Dennis Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd, Hannon, Ontario. The Rev. E. N. Clark of Hamilton, officiated at the ceremony and Mrs. Elsie Stringer contributed vocal selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length bridal gown of peau de soie highlighted with a sweeping chapel train. Her bouffant nylon tulle veil flowed from a matching rose headdress. She carried a white Bible crested with a white orchid mingled with stephanotis.

The matron of honour, Mrs. Harry Follwell of Hamilton and the bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Clark, Hamilton; Miss Ann Anderson, Burlington; Miss Amy Follwell, and Miss Janet Follwell, also of Hamilton, were gowned alike in dresses of gold colored peau de soie. Each carried a bouquet of orange-tinted carnations.

Mr. Harry Follwell of Hamilton attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Kenneth Lloyd and Mr. Terry Lloyd of Hannon were the ushers.

The reception was held at Stoney Inn Restaurant, Stoney Creek, Ontario, where the bride's table was most attractive, decorated with bouquets of orange and white carnations. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue brocade dress with a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a gold and navy dress with jacket and a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Mt. Airy Lodge in Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania, U.S.A., the bride chose a strawberry colored suit with black accessories.

Guests were present from Detroit, Windsor, St. Catharines, Toronto and Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd will reside at 815 Concession Street, Hamilton.

SHOOTS INTRUDER

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—When Mrs. Pierre Aubin telephoned her son Roger at 7:15 a.m. from her home across the street, it was to tell him she could see a bear trying to climb in the bedroom window. Roger's wife had just wakened him to tell him the same thing—she could see the animal's head and paws coming in the window. Roger hung up, then picked up his rifle standing in the bedroom and shot the bear.

Albert College Guild Hears Discourse on Silk Screening

For their October meeting, Albert College Guild gathered in the recreation room of the new Manor. President Mrs. Frank Davidson welcomed the members. A potluck luncheon provided a sociable opening for the fall season.

Mrs. C. Howie, who arranged the program chose "Harvest" as the theme for the worship service. The group joined heartily in singing a familiar gospel song. Mrs. Howie dwelt on the good harvest the "keeper of the storehouse" looks for. One of the sheaves should be "an armful of gratitude."

In a pleasant interlude of music Mrs. D. Joss and Mrs. D. Vanderwater performed a delightful piano duet. In thanking them Mrs. Howie mentioned their success at the recent Stirling Music Festival.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker was Mr. Nicholas Mika. After his arrival in Canada he spent 16 years with the Bakelite Company. In his native Ukraine he had learned the printing business in his father's plant.

With this experience, he decided to open silk screening industrial printing. It was most interesting to learn something of this process, more expensive than ordinary printing, a universal printing that can be used on any material, or any shape.

EXPANDING BUSINESS

Mr. Mika's story, told with touches of humor, is a success story of a business that began in a Belleville basement and has steadily expanded. The firm exports to England, United States and some European countries. One of the samples of their product that Mr. Mika displayed was the Albert College Crest on a ceramic tile.

President Mrs. Frank Davidson expressed the thanks of the Guild to Mr. Mika.

Britain's Women Voters In Past Elections Tended To Favor Conservatives

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—In a tight, neck - and - neck election fight where every vote may count, the Labor party finds it has a built-in problem with Britain's women voters. In the past, they tended to favor the Conservatives.

And recent opinion polls seem to suggest that trend may be continuing. One poll showed Labor with an 18-per-cent lead over Conservatives among men while the Tories had a nine-per-cent lead among women. The estimated 18,600,000 women voters now outnumber their male counterparts by some 1,250,000.

Labor strategists tend to dismiss the idea that women may be against their party. They argue that women naturally lean to the right because they are less politically-minded than men. And women are known to be rather cautious about risking a change when times are prosperous.

Beneath this trend, there is another streak of anti Labor bias, especially among many middle - aged women voters. They recall with some bitterness memories of the post-war austerity that accompanied Labor's last spell in office.

TOYED LABOR

The only time in recent history that women broke their pro-Conservative voting pattern was in 1945. Labor won a landslide victory, largely on a platform aimed at demobilized war veterans and their families. Six years later the women's vote tended to swing the other way. Labor officials conceded this may have been partly due to the hardship of post-war reconstruction.

The austerity spectre can still raise shivers in some sections of the electorate. It has little effect on the nearly 4,000,000 young people who will vote for the first time in this election and whose political allegiances —yet to be disclosed in action— could swing the result. The 21 year-olds of 1964 were eight-year-olds when Labor was last in power, and if they recall rationing, power cuts and food queues it is only dimly.

But their parents remember —Particularly their mothers. A Labor party spokesman told a reporter there was still a "lingering bias" among middle-aged housewives but he felt it was "decreasing all the time."

Post - war restrictions, it is felt in all fairness, would have afflicted whichever party was in power. But it was the housewife who experienced them most keenly. Six years after the war ended she still went marketing armed with ration books —buff-colored for adults, green for children. At one time bread-rationing cards were also issued. Rationing did not end until July, 1954.

MEALS WERE LIGHT

The housewife in post - war Britain had to conjure tasty, filling meals out of weekly rations for each member of the family that would have made a Canadian blanch: 1s 5d (20 cents) worth of meat—in July, 1951, it was only 10d (12 cents) worth — three ounces of butter; two ounces of tea, 10 ounces of sugar.

The Labor food ministers experimented with substitute foods. There was soybean flour, snoek—a canned salmon-type South African fish—and whale meat steak, a pungent-tasting substitute for beefsteak which needed careful cooking to reduce its oily texture.

Edith Summerskill, now a life peeress, roused some derision when housewives whom she vowed she could taste no difference between margarine and butter.

The Labor government was plagued by chronic fuel shortages. The worst happened to coincide with the cruel winter of 1946-47. A book of essays called The Age of Austerity, published last year, suggested it was this period that depressed the Attlee administration beyond recovery.

Welfare Court Has Woman Judge for Life

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvette Dussault - Mailloux is growing accustomed to her new title—"Madame le juge."

The brown - eyed lawyer is Quebec's first woman judge to have jurisdiction throughout the province.

She was appointed for life to the Quebec social welfare court in Montreal, one of 4, such judges in the province.

"I used to read detective stories in my spare time," Mrs. Mailloux says. "Now my reading is confined mostly to works about juvenile delinquency."

Mrs. Mailloux was secretary to the Quebec commission of civil code revision, set up by Premier Jean Lesage to recommend changes in the province's civil code.

The commission, headed by Montreal lawyer Andre Nadeau wrote a report which led to changes in the code in respect to the rights of married women.

Mrs. Mailloux learned of her appointment as judge April 22 and was sworn in May 1. She had been aware that thought was being given to appointing a woman judge to the post but "I certainly never dreamed it would be me."

WORK WITH CHILDREN

Social welfare courts involve work with children and adolescents.

"They're mainly to prevent children from becoming criminals—and there's a much we can do in this field.

"Even if parents don't have actual legal trouble with their children, they can ask for our help."

Judge Mailloux says women are especially suited to this type of work. But she adds that the fact a woman was chosen in this case is largely due to the leadership of Claire Kirkland - Casgrain, Quebec's first woman cabinet minister and a pioneer in the field of women's rights in the province.

Born in St Cesaire, Que., the French - speaking judge graduated in law from the University of Montreal. Twelve years ago she set up practice and carried on after marrying an insurance broker three years later.

She has been active in women's law organizations, and in her spare times does volunteer work with mental patients. At the last meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation's eastern region she was elected a vice-president for the third consecutive time.

Quebec's only other woman judge was Therese Lemay-Lavoie who served as municipal judge in St. Georges de Beauce.

INHERITS MAGIC

CASTLETOWN, Isle of Man (CP) — A museum of magic, founded here on the island between England and Ireland by the late Dr. Gerald Gardener, leader of Britain's witchcraft cult who died here last February, has been inherited by Mrs. Monique Wilson. Mrs. Wilson now claims she is Queen of the Witches.

Pear Pie Worth a Try

by Mary Moore

Last week I gave here a recipe for Noodle Casserole from Mrs. R. G. It was fine. This girl is a good cook, so when she sent a recommended recipe for French Pear Pie I was interested and made it. Characteristically I experimented a little, using diced nectarines in one-half of the pie instead of pears. Just as I thought, Mrs. R. G. was correct—the pears worked fine on the nectarines and would be good too with peaches or plums.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Turkey Hash or Turkey a la King (from holdover Thanksgiving turkey); Julienne Green Beans and Carrots; Cole Slaw; Apple Betty with Lemon Nutmeg Sauce; Tea.

FRENCH PEAR PIE (courtesy Mrs. R.G.):

NOTE:

You may substitute peaches, plums or nectarines instead of the pears.

Topping: ("streusel" or material to be "streused" over top). 2-3 cup all-purpose flour, 1-3 cup moist brown sugar, 1-3 cup hard butter.

Pastry: 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup shortening, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons cold water.

Filling: 1 tablespoon fine dry breadcrumbs, ¼ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons flour, ¼ teaspoon powdered ginger, 6 pared, cored, sliced medium-large pears (or 6 washed, unpared, sliced, large nectarines), 4 teaspoons lemon juice (when pears are used), ½ cup Golden syrup (B.C. Golden Syrup is available in Eastern Canada now).

Make Topping first: Mix the 2-3 cup flour and 1-3 cup brown sugar, cut in the 1-3 cup butter until size of peas and chill.

Make Pastry by mixing the 1 cup unsifted flour and salt, then cutting in shortening and the 2 tablespoons butter with pastry blender until size of small peas. Drizzle in the 2 tablespoons cold water, tossing with fork, until flour is damp and all can be pressed into ball. Roll out to fit deep 9" pie plate. Make high fluted edge.

Sprinkle crust evenly with the 1 tablespoon dry breadcrumbs. Mix together the ¼ cup sugar, 4 teaspoons flour, ginger and sprinkle 1-3 of this over crumbs in pastry-lined pie plate. Arrange the sliced pears over uniformly. Drizzle over evenly the lemon juice and syrup. (Omit lemon juice if pears not used.) Sprinkle with the remaining 2-3 of the flour mixture. Now sprinkle over and pat on the chilled Streusel Topping.

Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake 30 to 35 minutes longer.

NOTE:

To protect rim of pie crust from browning too much I wrapped a narrow fold of foil around edge during last 35 minutes.

U.C.W. Meetings

CENTRE STREET UNIT 2

Unit Two of Centre Street United Church Women held their October meeting in the church last Thursday evening. The devotional was conducted by the president, Mrs. D. Hudgins, and Mrs. M. McMechan.

Speaking on the theme of Thanksgiving, Mrs. Hudgins said, "We can be thankful that we live in a rich and prosperous country. There are many people who do not know the luxury of warm homes and a bountiful table."

A good report was given from the president of the autumn tea and bazaar held recently, a coffee party is planned in October.

Selections from the Scriptures had been studied before the meeting. These were discussed and quotations from the book, The Word and The Way, Jesus, and from those twelve disciples had grown the many which followed it was shown thousands of Christians today that God had revealed Himself in many ways culminating in the birth, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. The disciples felt all that they might accompany Jesus, and from those twelve disciples had grown the many thousands of Christians today.

Odds Heavily Loaded Against Women Running In the British Election

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The battle of sexes in Britain's general election Oct. 15 shows the odds heavily loaded against Women. Although more will run for Parliament than ever before—90 candidates compared with 76 in 1959—political experts predict fewer than a third will reach Westminster.

Whichever party wins it is thought unlikely that either will increase its female representation on the back benches. The library in the old parliament was 23 woman MPs in a 630-seat House, divided almost equally between the two major parties—13 Conservative members, 12 from the Labor party.

In the election campaign the Tories and Liberals are each fielding 24 candidates, Labor 34 and the Communists four. One woman runs as an independent. The extra candidates this year, being mainly from the minority parties, are not expected to influence the result.

Nearly two generations after Nancy Lady Astor stalked defiantly into the all-male House of Commons of 1919 to take her seat as Britain's first woman MP, women still play a minor if sometimes colorful, role in British political life.

The male - female ratio of slightly more than 25 to 1 at Westminster compares favorably with Canada, where men outnumber women in the House of Commons by a whopping 45 to 1. Even in the United States popularly supposed to be a matriarchy at heart, there are only 11 women representatives in the 435-seat house and only two women senators out of 100.

It is low, however, compared with Sweden, India, The Netherlands and West Germany where women occupy a sizable proportion of lower-house seats. Ghana and Israel, which have only one legislative house apiece, are the most progressive countries in this respect. Women members form 10 per cent of each Parliament. Israel's foreign secretary is a woman, the distinguished Gold Meir.

Britain's comparatively small number of women politicians is surprising in view of its long tradition of politically minded women, dating to Emily Pankhurst's ferocious suffragette. Only 76 women have followed American-born Lady Astor into the House of Commons, and only four have become ministers-three under Labor governments.

The reason seems partly lingering male prejudice partly the difficulty for a woman of running both a successful parliamentary career and a satisfying domestic life. Of the present 23 MPs, nine have never married and five are widows. Only four of the 11 married MPs have children of school age.

As for the built - in bias against women at Westminster, it is much less than in the days when Winston Churchill told Nancy Astor that seeing a woman enter the Commons was as embarrassing as seeing one enter his bathroom—to which she retorted that he wasn't handsome enough to have worries of that kind.

DERIDED BY MEN

When women finally got equal franchise with men at 21, the male establishment in press and Parliament derided the "flappers' vote" and predicted dire results at the polls from girls who displayed "their knees but not their minds."

The Commons is still predominantly a man's club, with the same breed, tobacco and leather atmosphere and the same rather indulgent attitude towards women.

As one British newspaper man expressed it: "In the politics of sex, all men are Tories."

Nevertheless, few of the woman MPs defending their seats Oct. 15 can be dismissed as lightweights, even by political opponents. Dame Irene Ward, a formidable, tweedy Tory backbencher, has piloted a record four private member's bills on to the statute books and is reputed to know more about coal mining than any other woman in the country.

Labor's Barbara Castle, member for Blackburn in Lancashire, is an expert on colonial affairs, eyed with apprehension by the government benches when she rises to unleash her merciless tongue against Tory handling of a crisis in Cyprus or Southern Rhodesia.

Lady Tweedsmuir, who is married to the son of Canada's former governor - general, is joint parliamentary undersecretary of state for Scotland and an authority on problems of juvenile delinquency. She is Tory MP for South Aberdeen.

Battling Bessie Braddock, a stout, 65 - year - old Labor reformer from Liverpool, is a colorful character with a command of salty language whose solid expertise in housing and health matters has achieved much in slum areas of her division of the Beatles' home city.

STAR CAMPAIGNER

One of Labor's star campaigners, Mrs. Eirene White, 55, faces the toughest task of any woman MP this election—defending her 75-vote majority in the steel-making district of East Flint amid the raging controversy over steel nationalization, a key election issue. Labor is committed to renationalizing the industry; the Tories and most steel companies are actively plugging private ownership.

Woman MPs are older on average than their male counterparts, reflecting the extra problem involved in getting accepted by all - male selection committees, let alone getting elected, and the fact that most women in their 20s and early 30s—the time male politicians get under way—are busy having babies.

Youngest woman member is Tories' Margaret Thatcher, 38, a chic, attractive mother of four who took her finals as a barrister three months after giving birth to twins. But Mrs. Thatcher, member for Finchley in London, is 10 years older than the youngest male MP.

Among the hopefuls who will be trying for a seat of power Oct. 15 are several with Canadian connections. Vancouver-born Joan Lestor, 33, contesting West Lewisham for the Labor party, is a former nursery school teacher specially interested in problems of racial integration—a thorny, if hidden issue that may loom large in the polling booths of London suburbs.

Mrs Verdun Perl, 45, born in Natal, B.C., runs a second time on the Liberal ticket in the Berkshire constituency of Abingdon. Formerly a professional musician, she increased the liberal vote at Abingdon by 37 per cent in the 1959 election.

Another Liberal, Leeds born Agnes Scott, contesting Reigate in Surrey, was raised in Canada and became prominent in the advertising profession in Toronto and Hamilton. She once represented Canadian advertising women at a world conference in Glasgow, where she met her husband.

Stained Glass Window Honors Former Dean of Women At Albert College Chapel

At Albert College Memorial chapel on Monday afternoon a service of unveiling and dedication of a stained glass window took place as part of the fall convocation exercises. The window was dedicated with appreciation and gratitude to honor Miss Jessie B. Tuite as a gift from former students and friends. Three years ago the Alumni Association initiated the Jessie B. Tuite fund. The fund grew to the point where it was possible to present the window to the school. An appropriate plaque will be installed when it is completed.

TRIBUTE PAID

The following statement was read by Miss Nancy Edwards:

Miss Tuite, who is a graduate of Albert College, served her Alma Mater in a very particular way, first as teacher of Elocution and Speech Arts in the old and new Colleges from 1914, then in the new College as Dean of Women from 1927 to the year of her retirement in 1952.

All of her students, both boys and girls, remember Miss Tuite with the greatest affection. To know her is an experience not to be forgotten; to be taught by her is a privilege not to be missed.

Miss Tuite was particularly interested in the Dramatic Arts and for many years directed faculty and student productions here at the College.

Her students today are scattered far and wide. Boys, who early in life (or sometimes later in life) were called to the ministry found encouragement and sympathy under the direction of Miss Tuite.

Miss Tuite loves to travel. Her knowledge of Europe was gained over many years during which she visited many of the different countries. Her urge to travel has enriched her interest in people has not diminished. She has the marvellous capacity to tell with humor and zest, the incidents both happy and sad, which make such travel a rewarding experience.

dents and many others), who

Her friends, (former) are here today, are here to do honor to one who has made a lasting contribution to the life of the School, one who has influenced for good more lives than she is even remotely aware of by her teaching, her example and her zest for life.

As most are aware, she is living in Belleville. She still has a chez to look after, she travels, still occupies her cottage at Oak Lake; "still young at heart. She is interested in all that goes on around her.

We extend to her our gratitude and with her many years of happiness and health.

The unveiling was performed by Mrs. C. B. Irwin, and the dedication was made by Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, past Principal of Albert College. Mr. Lorne Dougall, chairman of the Board of Governors at Albert College, accepted the window on behalf of the Board.

Mr. Angus Macdonald explained the symbolism of the window which is exquisitely beautiful in rich primary colors of red, blue and yellow enhancing the light and giving color to the chapel. In the centre panel is a lamp, symbolic of learning and the word of God, making the main flow of flame. On one side is a Christmas rose, and on the other a pomegranate which is an important and vital fruit in Asiatic countries. One can drink the juice to quench thirst and it has medicinal powers against malaria and other diseases.

Dean J. S. MacKay conducted the ceremony, and Miss Nancy McDougall read a letter from Rev. Bert Howard who was principal of the school for 16 years in which he paid a fine tribute to Miss Tuite.

Whisky-Tester Unique Job For Woman

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Doris Turnbull is an organoleptician, and not many Canadian women can make that claim.

Mrs. Turnbull is a whisky tester.

She began as a secretary in the blending division of a distillery. About 10 years ago her boss asked her to sniff whisky samples. She did well and now it's part of her job.

Tests are run two or three times a week, and take about 20 minutes each Mrs. Turnbull says. Four ounces of liquor from each vat-load are tested to ensure the 9,000 to 10,000 gallons of whisky in the vat meet company standards.

The crucial test, she says, comes after the whisky is made but before it is put in the charred white oak casks to mature. If the whisky, which at this stage is clear and strong-smelling, fails to meet tests it is sent back to be distilled again.

Mrs. Turnbull and 11 fellow organoleptic board members examine the whisky for taste, smell, color and cloudiness.

Color comes into the picture after the whisky has begun to mature for it takes on most of its characteristic color from the barrels it's stored in. It is tested several times during the four to 10 years it matures in its 40-to-60-gallon barrels.

Mrs. Turnbull says smell is the key test as far as she is concerned. She can't really describe the smell except to say it is "clean."

Whisky is tested in a one-ounce quantity with an ounce of distilled water added to bring it close to the mixed drink the consumer will finally taste. She tests before lunch usually, when her taste buds haven't been dulled by eating. And she doesn't smoke. Nor does she drink much socially.

QUESTION: I almost choked on a small piece of bone at a dinner party recently. When I started to gag, I left the table immediately and went into the next room where I was able to cough up the bone and remove it. The hostess came running after me and was full of apologies.

If you'll pardon the pun, I feel I had made a "boner" by upsetting the entire table, but there didn't seem to be anything to do except leave the table and get rid of the bone. What should one do when this happens? — Mrs. M. B., Bridgeport, Conn.

ANSWER: A piece of bone or a pit ordinarily may be removed from the mouth with the fingers behind one's napkin But if a person starts to choke, the only thing to do is leave the table and remove the cause.

QUESTION: I usually have a quick bite at a lunch counter in the neighborhood where I work. It's invariably crowded and the waitress is busy taking care of a number of orders. Often, I'll want the salt or the ketchup, I have to wait until she gets back to her station to ask for it. Sometimes, the ketchup, for instance, is right alongside the person sitting next to me. I don't like to annoy or inconvenience another diner, but is it permissible to ask the person to pass what is needed? Sometimes I have to wait so long to catch waitress that my food gets cold. — R. F., Brooklyn, N. Y.

ANSWER: It's permissible to ask the next person to pass something as long as it's near enough that he doesn't have to reach past someone else to get it. If the salt, mustard or what have you is far down the line then the waitress should be asked to get it.

QUESTION: I'm sending a gift to the baby of a friend's girl and I'd like to address it to her. Do I just send it to "Mary Jones, Baby Jones" correctly used for such a young child. — Mrs. S. P., Pittsburgh, Pa.

ANSWER: "Baby" is correctly used for a baby girl.

QUESTION: My husband and I spent several days during our vacation with some old friends at their home in the country. During our stay, our host took my husband fishing and lent him some gear since my husband didn't bring his with him.

I'm sending our hostess a tray as a token of appreciation for their hospitality. My husband thinks he should send our host something in addition. I'm afraid this might look like a bit much, and I wonder if two separate gifts would be appropriate. — Mrs. C. D. W., Wilmington, Del.

ANSWER: One gift with a note to the hostess actually covers the social obligation of both your husband and yourself.

However, since the host was very accommodating about the fishing gear, you could include in the package a small token for the host — possibly something to do with angling — without fear of being overwhelming or too profuse in your thanks.

Question: My husband and I will be invited to a black-tie dinner being given for the president of his firm, who is retiring. The invitation specified black tie in the corner, but my husband says he simply doesn't wear a tux and, what's more, he doesn't think everyone will. I think it would be impolite and ill-mannered to show up in street dress and that we'd feel conspicuous as well. What do you think? — Mrs. C. F., Detroit, Mich.

Answer: When an invitation says black tie, it means that everyone is expected to dress accordingly and your husband will be completely out of place — and you'd feel the same way.

Consult Doctor Concerning Rehabilitation Program

DEAR DORIS — Could you please tell me how long it is after a small goitre operation before one can work, perhaps light work?

I would also like to know what one can do while resting: read, walk, sew, visit? Would vaseline hurt my throat? Some places I could visit would be a long way off. — L.C.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR L.C. — The rehabilitation experts, be they nurses, therapists, doctors, social workers, say you start the getting-better processes the minute you get sick. What's ever parts can function are kept moving. A leg casualty is helped to keep arms, hands, mind, active; a mother is helped out of bed a day or so after her baby is delivered.

All things are done in moderation. For some, reading would be hard work; for others, writing. Sociability, as in visiting, might relax one and tire another. Individual questions, about your particular rehabilitation program, must be asked of your doctor.

DEAR DORIS — Isn't a landlord expected to keep a rented house in repair, in Canada? — TENANT.

DEAR TENANT — Not unless this was agreed upon at the time of renting. If a prospective tenant sees something not to his liking when he looks the place over, he says so. Then the landlord may or may not undertake to put it to rights.

The tenant signs the lease knowing that he has accepted things as they are, or knowing the repairs discussed will be made. From then on the person who pays the rent makes good on any damages he causes, failing any contract to the contrary.

No Corruption For Children In Theatre

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the Victorian attitude of some mothers, theatre does not corrupt children, says Margot Gold actress and drama teacher.

Mrs. Gold who teaches at the Montreal Children's Theatre and is drama specialist for the Protestant school board, says that in 11 years of tutoring kids and teen-agers she has yet to see the theatre corrupt one of them.

"Mothers still think there's something unsavory about working in the theatre. They ask me to improve their daughter's speech and ask me apologetically not to bother with the stage bit."

Mrs. Gold regards this as short-sighted. She says theatre develops a child's poise and imagination and exposes him to some of the best literature of our language.

"The plays of Shakespeare were meant to be acted on stage, not read in a schoolroom."

An English literature graduate of Sir George Williams University, Mrs. Gold practices what she preaches. Her eight-year-old daughter Erica was enrolled for drama lessons at the children's theatre two years ago and her son Glenn, 6, will follow in another year.

WHEW!

Dear Susanna: Our hairy dog came inside encased in a large smear it was unanswerable but terrible. The tomato juice supply was low (all dog owners who have had this experience know that sometimes a tomato juice bath is the only answer) so we thought of good old soda. We washed him down with a strong solution of soda and water, and lo! he was fresh and good as new. — Horrified Helen

Do you remember Rh-dat She was the girl who would never travel without a small package of soda in her purse for such emergencies as insect bites or rash, as a gargle for a sore throat, to brush her teeth, or in case she felt a cold coming on . . . or for rinsing out her lingerie at night. No wonder her motto was: "Quick Sounds, the soda!" — SUSANNA

P.S. — Your favorite cook suggests a pinch of soda in the pot of turnips to speed up the cooking time. — S.

YULE LOGS

Dear Susanna: Would you have a recipe for making yule logs? The formula you sent me for pressed colored flannen in the fireplace was excellent and we used it all summer at the cottage — but I would like a branch out (no pun intended, really). — Mary Bell

We'll forgive you this time, Mary. For anyone fortunate enough to have a fireplace, the added delight of the many colored fires produced by adding these paper yule logs is a must — so I will certainly send you the formula at once — SUSANNA

HOT SOUP CONTAINERS

Dear Susanna: Occasionally I find it necessary for our children to remain at school for their lunch hour. With the cold weather setting in I like to send along a little hot soup but my worry is I have enough thermos bottles to go around. An excellent substitute is a screw top jar covered with several thicknesses of aluminum foil — of course I ask them to unwind the foil carefully so that it can be re-used. — Alice Edwards

After you have thoroughly dried the empty thermos you do have, try adding a couple of pieces of lump sugar and see if it doesn't help to prevent that funny, musty odor from settling in. — SUSANNA

Power Politics Is Way Of Life in Bolivia, Govt. Thrown Out by Rebels

Power politics is a way of life in Bolivia, the South American tin-mining country, where rigged elections and attacks by political police are not uncommon. In this story, Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press, tells about this year's presidential election.

By PAUL KIDD

LA PAZ (CP)—In the bizarre world of Bolivian politics, it is not surprising that a lamp post is a shrine.

Daubed in silver paint, it stands in front of the National Palace overlooking La Paz's main square.

Every ambassador, on presenting his credentials, is expected to doff his hat to the Parish shrine.

The boss of Bolivia is President Victor Paz Estenssoro who, in 1946, was minister of finance in the government of President Gualberto Villarroel.

When the people of La Paz got tired of the Villaroel regime's police brutalities, they launched an unarmed uprising which overthrew the dictatorship.

After breaking into the palace, rebels hurled Villaroel over a balcony to the mob which promptly strung him from the lamp post.

Paz, who escaped to Argentina, returned in 1952 to lead Bolivia's far-reaching socialist revolution which brought the National Revolutionary Movement government to power.

BECAME MARTYR

Remembering his old friend, Villaroel, the new chief of state decreed that the slain president was a hero, rather than a villain, and that the hanging was unjust.

Villaroel became a political martyr, the lamp post a national shrine.

For Bolivia, the whole happening was perfectly normal.

Paz, for instance, was forbidden by the constitution from serving a second consecutive term as president. He overcame that little obstacle by simply getting an obedient Congress to rewrite part of the constitution.

When election day came this year, Paz was opposed by only one minority party candidate.

In the polling booths, voters supposedly chose one of two distinctively marked ballots for the candidate they wanted and dropped the paper in a box.

But in certain towns something went wrong with the electoral system. Neutral observers entered several polling booths and found only one pile of ballots—those of Paz.

The official explanation: It was time for the Indians.

ATTACKED BY POLICE

Finally, came inauguration day. La Paz, at 12,000 feet the highest large city in the world, was bathed in sunshine. The air was thin and crisp.

Dignitaries wore stiff white shirts and feathered hats. Goose - stepping bands strutted around the main square thronged with Indians.

Then, as outgoing vice-president Juan Lechin left his home, the police moved in and beat the statesman with pistols.

Left in a pool of blood with concussions to his head and internal damage to his kidneys, Lechin was rescued by a friend. The vice-president was taken to hospital, but only after stopping at La Paz's biggest newspaper, El Diario, to relate his story.

At first, the government claimed the attack was the work of the rightist Falange Party.

Then, confronted with contradictory evidence from nearly 30 bystanders, the government changed its story.

KEPT FROM INAUGURAL

Lechin, it explained in a sec official statement, had pulled a gun on the 20 political police officers. But this, too, was disputed by witnesses.

The real reason: It was the government's way of preventing Lechin from going to the inauguration where he had planned to denounce the "fraudulent election" that elected Paz.

Known as "control politico," the politico-police system was started in 1952 to deal with subversion.

Under it, former members of the oligarchy were put in concentration camps. And while few political prisoners were killed, it is well known that Communists were tortured.

Today, although there are no concentration camps, there are still some political prisoners in Bolivian jails.

Numbering between 400 and 500 plainclothesmen, the secret police agents operate in dark blue and grey jeeps or on foot.

BALLOTS BURNED

Chiefly, the political police agents operate against the former oligarchy, the Falange Party, Communists and any opposition candidates.

In 1960, Paz's former friend and foreign minister, Walter Guevara Arze, ran for president against the National Revolutionary Movement boss.

He was followed day and night by the political police. In the end, he painted on his car the words "Control Politico" with an arrow pointing to the car behind.

Guevara's ballots were publicly burned by the political police and more than a dozen of his followers killed.

The telephone lines and mail of suspect persons get careful attention from the police.

No one can travel across Bolivia without stopping at road blocks where "transit authorities" record who is passing and why.

On one 50-mile journey between La Paz and Lake Titicaca, I had to stop at two checkpoints.

PRESS IS CAREFUL

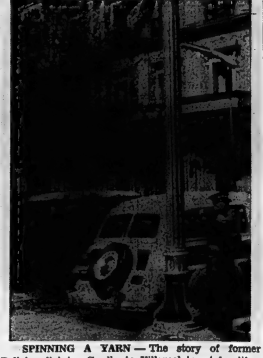
The government prides itself on having freedom of the press. But the press, in selection of news content and political criticism, knows its limits in safeguarding that freedom.

Sometimes, when a newspaper exceeds those limits accidents happen.

On one occasion, the machinery of the Cochobamba newspaper, La Patria, was broken.

El Diario, as it went to press with news of the Lechin attack, locked all its doors.

Two days before this year's presidential election, linotype machines at the Paz paper, Presencia, mysteriously broke down, and two disappeared.



The young editor, Alberto Bailey, found the two missing machines in the garage of Jacobo Lieberman, the government's director of information.

But the editor was not really surprised. For, politically, such is the way of life in Bolivia.

Tomorrow: President breaks with former pals.

NAMED AFTER LIBERATOR — The South American tin-mining country of Bolivia, fifth largest on the continent with 424,140 square miles, gets its name from Simon Bolivar, the soldier and statesman who liberated it and five other nations from the Spaniards in the 19th century. Seat of government is La Paz, 11,800 feet up in the Andes. Seventy per cent of its population works in agriculture although tin is its major export commodity. (CP Newsmap)

SPINNING A YARN — The story of former Bolivian dictator Gualberto Villarroel is a tale with a twist. In 1946 mobs, tired of the violence of his regime, hurled him from the palace balcony in La Paz and hanged him from this lamp post. Six years later Victor Paz Estenssoro became president of the South American republic and in memory of Villarroel, under whom he served as finance minister, declared him a national hero. The lamp post now is a national shrine.

Soviet Union Demonstrates Leadership in Mysterious Field of Space Research

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In successfully sending into orbit a three-man space ship, when the United States is still struggling to perfect a two-man craft, the Soviet Union once again demonstrates its leadership in the vital and mysterious field of space research.

But this latest launch, performed as usual without advance announcement, does more than provide the Russians with the psychological triumph of an unmatched scientific experiment. It moves man another step towards the stars, with the increased prospect it will be a Russian and not an American who likely will be the first to reach the moon.

During the course of the Soviet Union's vast achievements in space operations, there has been speculation that the Russians were not really interested in reaching the moon; that in fact the strains space travel imposes on human organ would make such flights difficult and perhaps impossible.

RUSSIAN ANSWER

The latest orbit is therefore "the complete answer to those who have been saying the Russians have lost interest in sending men to the moon," says Kenneth Gatland, vice - president of the British Interplanetary Society.

"This flight indicates that they will be able to make a trip around the moon within the next three years even if they don't actually land," he adds.

This prospect compares with that the U.S. is getting a man on the moon by 1970. There is no question in the minds of many scientists that the U.S. is still far behind the Soviet Union in orbiting progress, though there has been a major American move to close the gap.

In practical terms, the question remains of how many years of work are represented in the present sag—two, three or five.

TEMPORARY EFFECTS

A month ago two Soviet medical experts reported at the World Astronautical Congress that Valeryn Bykovsky, who remained aloft for five days last year, suffered temporary effects of low blood pressure, fatigue, changes in body chemistry and emotional instability.

Undoubtedly, the inclination this time of a doctor and a scientist for prolonged flight indicates the Russians want more detailed information on the human impact of long distance space travel.

There also has been scientific speculation, discounted in Moscow, that the location of three men for the first time would allow the Russians to achieve a new specialization—to allow one or two men to venture outside the craft. This would be another essential step if man is to reach the moon.

WOMAN SLAIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mary Pinchot Meyer, a descendant of former governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, was shot and killed Monday by an attacker whose apparent motive was robbery. The slaying occurred while Mrs. Meyer, about 55, a sister-in-law of Benjamin Bradlee, Washington bureau chief for Newsweek Magazine, was taking a stroll along the towpath of the old Chesapeake and Ohio canal in the city's Georgetown section. A 25-year-old laborer was charged with homicide.

Eddie Cantor, Banjo-Eyed Comic, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eddie Cantor, the banjo-eyed comic who rose from New York's East Side to become one of the giants of show business, is dead at 72.

He was buried in a private ceremony Monday.

The famed entertainer—also a song and dance man—died of a heart attack Saturday night in his Beverly Hills home.

His wife, Ida, died in 1962.

Cantor, who spent a lifetime on stage joking about Ida and his five daughters, was too ill to attend her funeral.

Hea rttrouble had virtually retired Cantor from show business for many years.

It was Florenz Ziegfeld who made a star out of Cantor—a threat to the Shuberts' Al Jolson.

WAS TOP STAR

With W. C. Fields and Will Rogers, he was one of the all-time top stars of the Ziegfeld Follies.

He introduced scores of songs but his best known were If You knew Susie, Making Whoopee and the potato-horn Potatoes are Cheaper, Now's the Time to fall in Love.

He didn't introduce Ida but he often sang it to his one and only wife.

He had made his first million by the age of 25 and lost it all in the stock market crash. He wrote a hilarious book about his losses and got enough back to get a good start on becoming a millionaire again.

The 1930s were Cantor's golden years. He made successful movies of his Broadway hits and was one of radio's top stars.

Born in New York City Jan. 31, 1892, as Izzy Iskowitch, he was proud of his humble beginnings.

Exhibitions And Fairs to Get Loans

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is planning legislation to provide up to $5 million government-guaranteed bank loans for agriculture fairs and exhibitions, it was announced Saturday.

Agriculture Minister Hays is said to be working on legislation, which is not likely to be before Parliament until the next session, that would replace the former system of federal capital grants to agricultural fairs. The program of grants, which usually applied to buildings, has not been used since the 1962 austerity program.

Under the plan, up to $100,000 could be granted toward capital construction.

Details of the proposed lending program are still to be worked out.

IT'S 19 PLUS 2

LEWES, Del. (AP) — A 36-year-old wife of an unemployed fish plant worker, who previously had given birth to 19 children including two sets of twins, has given birth to triplets. The mother, Mrs. Emily Wood, and the triplets, born Saturday, were reported "doing fine." Seventeen of Mrs. Sneed's 22 children are living.

Lord Thomson Raises Bid for Outram Group

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson has again raised his bid for the George Outra n group of Scottish newspapers and magazines.

The new offer Monday by the Canadian-born publisher is a complex one with an estimated market value of nearly 27 shillings a share.

"We'll give Outram shareholders five shares in the Thomson Scottish organization for every four Outram shares," Thomson told The Canadian Press in an interview

"Then, with an option-to-purchase clause and other considerations, it means we are bidding nearly 32 shillings per share."

Thomson's first offer last August was 20 shilling a share. Last Wednesday he offered the equivalent of 25s 6d and commented: "Anybody who beats that is paying too much for the business."

The Outram group consists of the Glasgow Herald and Glasgow Evening News along with other smaller publications. Thomson owns the only other prestige Scottish daily newspaper—the Edinburgh Scotsman—and controls Scottish television

Sir Hugh Fraser, former chairman of Outrams, has resigned and is bidding against Thomson for Outrams. Fraser's last offer was 2 8 shillings a share.

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Pickersgill announced Monday that a public inquiry into last November's crash of a Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-8 at Ste. Therese, .

Hasty Pees Veterans Hold 25th Reunion in the City

Although the weather did not look too promising, there was a fairly large registration of the Hasty Pee veterans on Saturday for their 25th Reunion and after a lot of reminiscing and private reunions, the evening ended with a very enjoyable and successful dance.

Sunday dawned with, although the air was nippy, a beautiful day of sunshine.

The Red Ensign, presented by Unit 201, ANAFVC, to replace their previously donated flag which disappeared, was raised soon after noon. At ten o'clock the annual meeting took place with Picton being the host town for the 1965 Reunion.

The parade formed up. The colours were marched on and with parade marshal Art Hobbs in charge, moved off shortly after noon, arriving at the Cenotaph at precisely 12:30. Major A. S. McConnell gave a very inspiring address while the Salvation Army Band under Bandmaster Jack Green played the HYMNS AND The Queen and also played the Association off from the Cenotaph. "Last Post" and "Reveille" was played by Cpl. Glen Crawford, while the Lament was played by Pipe-Major Ken McIlveen.

The parade, lead by the colorful ANAFVC Unit 201 Pipe Band and the Colours flying bravely in the breeze began the march back to the Armouries.

HOLD MARCH PAST

Brigadier Lyle Carr, of Port Hope, took the salute with Lt. Col. K. Willcocks and RSM H. Kokesh representing the present regiment and President H. Dracup the Veterans, were on the reviewing stand with him and flanked by the Hasty Pees famous Indian on one side and the Battle Flag on the other. The majority of the veterans had made the march in Picton to march for overseas twenty-five years ago and time has taken nothing from their smartness as they proudly passed the reviewing stand in perfect alignment.

The President gave a short speech in the Armouries just before dismissal, thanking them for their real smart turnout. He said he was not ashamed to say that a tear came in his eye as the old boys marched past and he felt extremely proud, that he belonged to such a fine organization. After dismissal, the boys moved to the ANAF Auditorium where the Ladies Auxiliary had a bounteous repast waiting. The wives were also served a delectable lunch in the HI-ER sergeants Mess. After a few more visits amongst one another, the members started to leave for their homes with one and all vowing it was one of the best and most enjoyable reunions held so far.

During registration, Bill Morris wondered if anyone knew if Ken Sine was still around and the President's daughter-in-law said that he was her uncle and he was doing fine. His address is N. Park St., Brantford, and he would be glad to hear from any of his old comrades.

64 Fatalities Across Canada Over Holiday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 64 persons died accidentally in Canada while millions enjoyed the Thanksgiving weekend — the last three-day holiday weekend until Christmas.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday local times showed that 40 persons died on highways, eight were drowned, four died in fires, three in hunting accidents and nine in miscellaneous mishaps.

The 40 highway deaths were below a Canadian traffic safety council prediction that 58 persons would die on the roads.

A record 100 persons died in accidents last year during the three-day weekend, 62 of them on the highways. The record for Thanksgiving holiday traffic deaths was set in 1962 when 63 persons were killed.

Ontario reported 17 accidental deaths, including eight traffic, three drownings, two hunting, and a fire death. An elderly woman died after falling down a stairway, a youth accidentally shot his younger brother, and a man shot himself while cleaning a pistol.

STABBED AS 100 WATCH

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 persons watched Sunday as a man was stabbed in the stomach outside an east-end restaurant and then ignored his pleas for help as he crawled to the street. Ronald Watt, 36, of Toronto finally flagged passing taxi and the driver radioed for an ambulance. He underwent surgery at a hospital and was reported in good condition Monday night.

Federal and Provincial Ministers Start Task of Revising the Constitution

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Within minutes of the Queen's departure today, her federal and provincial ministers will begin historic steps toward revision of the Canadian constitution and tax structure.

Both subjects are politically explosive. Leaders' statements have been extremely guarded lately, perhaps in fear of any uttering that could further excite radical sentiments during the Queen's visit.

Effective silence reigned over the constitutional meetings of the attorneys-general here last week while the Queen was in Prince Edward Island. Delegates reported "progress." But they refused to define issues publicly, let alone discuss them.

They resume their meeting today, about the same time the Queen's plane will lift off Canadian soil.

An hour later, Finance Minister Gordon will open a separate meeting with his provincial counterparts to set the terms of reference for a major, wide-ranging study of the way the governments divide their taxing powers and spending responsibilities.

Both these groups have one day to complete reports for the heads of government, who on Wednesday and Thursday are scheduled to deal with both subjects. Their meeting may extend into Friday.

Though the agenda makes no mention of it, the controversial subject of provincial "contracting out" from jointly-financed health and welfare programs is likely to arise. There has been no plenary conference on this issue since the federal proposals were detailed by Prime Minister Pearson last Sept. 10

Even the federal pensions plan could be revived by the premiers. The delegates to the conference include Ontario's three seniors officials in the field of pensions administration. An actuary is included in the Quebec delegation.

Heading the agenda here is the constitutional question, the formula for making amendments in Canada instead of beseeching Westminster to make them, as has been necessary since 1867. A formula was accepted in principle at the Charlottetown conference last month. Details were left to the attorneys-general.

Royal Visit May Be Last For Long Time

By JAMES NELSON

QUEBEC (CP) — It will probably be years before the Queen's visit to this usually hospitable city is forgotten, especially among politicians.

Foreign reporters covering the royal tour are writing that Canada has been shamed in the eyes of the world. British reporters say it was a triumph for the Queen. U.S. reporters are laughing at Quebec's separatist movement.

The intended purpose of the royal visit was virtually ignored. It was to mark the 100th anniversary Saturday of agreement by the fathers of Confederation on a resolution favoring a federal union of the Maritime provinces, Quebec and Ontario.

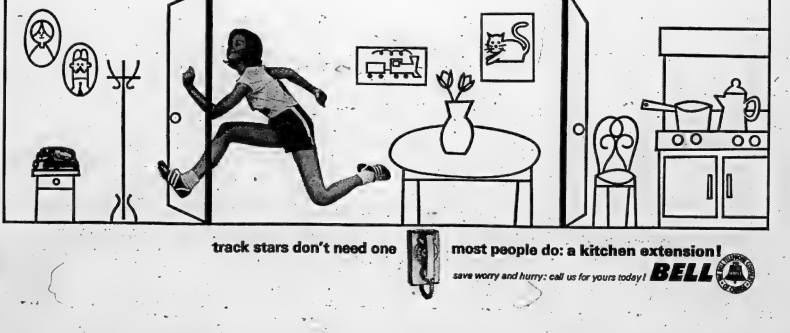
Political reporters expect bitter reaction in the House of Commons at Ottawa and among Quebec political leaders. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had asked whether the federal government would call off the visit to Quebec because of threats to the Queen.

This royal visit to Quebec at least, may be the last, at least for a long time to come, after Royal Family consultations with the city and province during from pre-Victorian days.

In the city's heart only one major building apart from the legislature—Price House, headquarters of a paper-making firm —was decorated with flags.

But if the Queen's visit could not be counted a resounding success beyond the fact she completed it safely, the anti-royalist demonstrations could not be counted as a great victory for the separatists, either.

The demonstrations were led by a hardy band of youths who tried to whip up the small crowds into enthusiasm for their cause. The crowds for the most part stood silently by.



Lesage's Son Well Guarded After Threats

QUEBEC (CP) — The youngest son of Premier Jean Lesage, eight-year-old Raymond, has been under constant police surveillance since terrorist threats were made to kidnap him, a usually well-informed source said Monday night.

The source said the threats were made constantly in the last three months in the form of letters and anonymous telephone calls to the premier's home and office in the legislature.

The anonymous communications threatened to kidnap the premier's son if the Queen visited Quebec City. The Queen and Prince Philip visited Quebec City Saturday and Sunday.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Brilliant plays and players are looked-for highlights in any world series, but the lethal fence-busting home run has proven the biggest factor in the colorful curtain-down classic.

Mighty blasts jetted from the bludgeons of the stars have transformed some addicts into screaming fanatics and others into limp shapes of humanity.

Towering sky-reaching clouts have, in not a few instances proved the difference between a victory and defeat, and in others the ownership of the world series' glory and gold.

Prior to this series the American League had collected 228 homers to the National League's 141. This is reflected in the 37-23 lead the junior circuit enjoys in the October blue ribbon event.

In the current series circuit clouts have accounted for victories for both the Yankees and the Cardinals. All were epics coming dramatically at tense moments.

Mickey Mantle's masterful blow on Saturday that won the game for the Yankees was not only the second game in history that the last hitter exploded the game-winning round-tripper but it also took another gem from the Ruthian crown of records. It topped the Babe's home-run-best mark of 15.

Colorful as was the Mick's feat, it was shaded for sheer drama and excitement by Ken Boyer's game-winning grand-slam belt on Sunday.

Yesterday Tom Tresh and Tim McCarver took the leading roles in a twin-bill socks-clearing act. Tresh rocked the stadium and the Bronx with his two-run smash to even the score in the bottom of the ninth.

But the thunder was shortlived. The Cardinals' catcher with two mates aboard rocketed a blast into the bleachers that wrote another chapter in this homer-wacky series.

Ken Boyer, one of Alba, Missouri's favorite sons was the ninth man, six of them Yankees, in series history, to clean all the sacks with a hickory detergent.

In 1921 Cleveland's Elmer Smith rapped Brooklyn's Burleigh Grimes for the four-ply shot. Tony Lazzeri was the first Yankee to hit one in an 18-4 massacre of the 1923 Giants. The next came off the bat of rookie Gil McDougald in 1951 when the Yankees clobbered the Giants 13-1.

Mickey Mantle hit his famous grand-slam off Dodger Russ Meyer in 1953 and three years late Ole Yogi poked a Don Newcombe pitch for four, but the Yankees lost 13-8. Bill Skowron's blast off Roger Craig in the same series took the fight out of the Dodgers.

Bobby Richardson with only one homer in 150 American League games blasted a four-run surprise against the Pirates in 1960.

In 1962 Chuck Hiller, San Francisco second baseman, who had hit two homers all season, became the first National Leaguer to join the charmed circle. He did it off Chuck Marshall at Yankee Stadium and it meant a fourth-game victory for the Giants.

But homers of lesser value have gold-threaded the colorful pattern of series duels. One came in the 1909 clash between the Pirates and the Yankees when Bill Maserouki became the first "Switch-hitter" to win a series with his four-ply blast. It came in the ninth inning of the seventh game.

The game was wacky with homers. Rocky Nelson's blast gave the Bucs a 4-0 lead. Shawrou hit one followed by Yogi's three-run clout put New York ahead 5-4. The Yankees scored twice to grab a 7-4 lead.

The Pirates' Hal Smith topped a five-run rally with his blast to give them a 9-7 league but the Bombers came back to tie it in the top of the ninth.

Maserski, first Pirate up in the lower half of the inning, looked at the first pitch by Ralph Terry. He swung at the second and from the crack of the bat everyone realized the ball was headed for the terrain over the left field barrier. It was the Bucs' first world series in 35 years.

And what oldtimer will ever forget Babe Ruth's called shot in Wrigley Field, Chicago, in the 1932 Yankees-Cubs series. It was the Babe's fifteenth and last in his world series collection and definitely the most dramatic.

Opinions differ on the dramatics of the blow, Ruth, subjected to boos and catcalls from fans and the Cub bench pointed twice with his finger to the centre field bleachers. Then he blasted the third pitch exactly to where he had pointed.

Whip Yankees 5-2; Lead Series 3-2 ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

High-flying Cards Now 2-1 Choice

By JOE REICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For the first time since the start of hostilities, St. Louis Cardinals found themselves World Series favorites over New York Yankees today.

Odds-makers make the high-flying Redbirds a strong 2-to-1 choice following their 5-2 triumph Monday that gave them a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series.

Everything appears to be stacked in favor of the Cards. First, they will be home for the sixth game Wednesday after taking two out of three in New York.

Second, their pitching is in top shape with veteran Curt Simmons primed for his return engagement with young Jim Bouton of the Yankees.

Third, Cardinal manager Johnny Keane thinks there is a strong possibility that Julian Javier, the convalescing second baseman, will be ready to make his first start.

Should the Cardinals nose the sixth game, they will still have the home edge in the finale with ace Bob Gibson a strong possibility to make his third start in the series. Whitey Ford, currently nursing a tender right heel, would be Gibson's probable opponent.

The Yankees hold a slight edge in overall hitting in the series, but the Cards lead in everything else. They have out-run, outfielded, outpitched and out manoeuvred the Y-kees.

CARDS ALMOST FLAWLESS

Monday's game was a typical example. The Cardinals, except for shortstop Dick Groat's error in the sixth inning, paved the way for Tommy Tresh's game-tying homer, sparkled in the field.

In contrast, New York was guilty of its sixth and seventh errors of the series. An error by catcher Elston Howard on an interference play helped the Cards fill the bases in the first inning, but young Mel Stottlemyre managed to get out of the jam without any damage.

Stottlemyre was betrayed again in the fifth when pitcher Bob Gibson singled with one out. Curt Flood hit a double play ball directly at Richardson but the usually dependable second baseman bobbled the ball and his hands were safe. A single by Lou Brock and a force play, that would have been a double play were it not for shortstop Phil Linz' poor relay, resulted in a 2-0 Cardinal lead.

Gibson, beaten in the second game, had a short-out going in the ninth. But Groat bobbled Mickey Mantle's grounder and, after two out, Tresh connected his dramatic game-tying homer that sent the crowd of 65,633 into a frenzy.

FAILED TO FIELD BUNT

Then came the stormy 10th in which the Yankees looked their worst. Pete Mikkelsen, third Yankee pitcher, walked Bill White to open the inning. Ken Boyer, ordered to sacrifice bunted to the right of the mound. Mikkelsen neglected to field the ball and it went for a single.

The sacrifice play was still on with Groat at bat, but he missed the bunt attempt and White was forced off second. Howard fired to the bag but White turned and dashed to third, still safe. Then, with pinch-hitter Pedro Gonzales failed to hang on to Phil Linz' low throw. Groat failed to bring White home.

CARDS' PITCHING - HITTING STARS — It was the pitching of Bob Gibson and the hitting of Tim McCarver that got the Cardinals off to their 5-2 victory over the Yankees in the 10 inning fifth world series game. And here are the stars in dressing room after the victory. That's Gibson (AP Wirephoto) congratulating McCarver.

Big Factor So Far

Home Runs Could Decide Series Winner

NEW YORK (CP)—It key performances to date are any indication, a home run might very well decide whether St. Louis wraps up the World Series in the sixth game Wednesday.

In Saturday's game, Mantle wiped out Babe Ruth's series home run record by smashing the ball off the towering third-deck facade at Yankee Stadium for his 16th series homer Ruth had 15 back in the golden era of sports.

"Just think," said dejected reliever Barney Schultz, "you throw one ball and it's all over."

"I had to hit that," said Mantle. "I had horns."

He was referring to his error that led to the only Cardinal run in the fifth inning and made him a potential goat.

A happy Jim Bouton, winner of his first series game after a tremendous duel with Curt Simmons, beamed:

"That guy has got to be the greatest ball player that ever lived."

Bouton left nine Cards stranded while pitching a six hitter until Mantle lowered the boom on Schultz, the bullpen hero of the Cards' late pennant drive.

HOWARD STARTED RALLY

New York started the scoring in the second inning when Elston Howard singled, Joe Pepitone walked and Clete Boyer doubled to left field.

St. Louis tied it when McCarver went to second as Mantle let the ball get through him. He took third on Dal Maxvill's infield out and went home on a base hit by Simmons.

An error loaded the bases in the sixth with one away. Dick Groat hit the ball to Bobby Richardson, but it apparently struck in his glove and he couldn't get it to Phil Linz in time for a double play.

Boyer, who had chalked up only one hit for the Cards in 12 previous appearances, took a ball, then slammed into the lower left-field stands to sweep the bases.

Boyer, like Mantle, had made a damaging error in the Yankees' three-run first inning. The face-saving homer came off starter Al Downing.

New York launched its attack in the first on Linz double to right. He made third when Boyer threw wild. Richardson doubled in the first run and a single by Roger Maris put two men on first and third. Mantle's single drove Richardson home, ousting Ray Sadecki in favor of Roger Craig.

Right-hander Craig, credited with the win, allowed only two hits and struck out eight in his brilliant stint.

Ron Taylor, a native of the Toronto suburb of Leaside, took over from Craig and denied the Yankees a hit in the last four innings. Only Mantle, walking with two out in the eighth, reached base during Taylor's stint.

Al Downing was saddled with the loss.

MADE CO-FAVORITES

LONDON (AP) — Feather Bed, Final Move and Mary Cloud were all made 11-1 co-favorites at Monday night's callover by the Victoria Club headquarters of Britain's organized bookmakers, on Saturday's Irish Sweepstakes Cambridgeshire horse race.

Defeats Blind River

Bloomfield Wins Ont. Title

Bloomfield dropped the opening game of their OASA Intermediate "B" tiutlar series in Blind River on Saturday but roared back with twin victories on Sunday to capture the Ontario championship.

Blind River won Saturday's opener 2-1 in ten innings.

Bloomfield cut loose with power to spare in Sunday's double header, tying the series with an 11-3 triumph and capping the crown with a 7-2 victory.

Carl Stacey looked after most of the winners' pitching, hurling all of the first game, five innings of the second and all of the third. Ken DeMille gave him a rest by pitching the final frames of Sunday's first game.

In the championship tilt Bloomfield jumped into a 4-0 first inning lead on two-run homers by Carl Stacey and Ron Weese. Kenny DeMille later added another two-run homer as the country boys pounded the ball freely.

It was the same story in the first Bloomfield win. Stacey, Weese and Warren Ostrander all smashed home runs. Keith MacDonald led the clouters in this tilt with a five-for-four day at the plate.

In Saturday's game, Bloomfield carried a 1-0 lead from the third. Ken DeMille gave first until a Blind River player homered to tie it in the seventh. Blind River won it by shoving home a run in the bottom of the tenth inning.

Small crowds attended the games, including nine Bloomfield fans who made the 400-mile trip with the team.

The series was the third in a row in which Bloomfield has lost the opening game and ripped back to win the next two.

Boxers Lose At Tokyo

TOKYO (CP) — Two Canadian boxers lost by first-round technical knockouts Monday in Olympic boxing competition.

Fastest fall was Walter Henry, Hong Kong - born flyweight now in an ironmaking worker in Orillia. His bout with Constantin Ciuca of Romania was stopped after one minute, and 56 seconds. For welterweight Frederick Desrosiers of Esquimalt, B.C. she and came 13 seconds from the end of the round.

Henry, a 24-year-old bachelor, was decked for the count of eight and was still dazed when he got to his feet. Referee S. Kobiyashi of Japan stopped the bout at 1:56.

"Why did they stop it?" asked Henry. "I feel okay."

US, Russia Duel In Tokyo

Japan Strong

TOKYO (CP)—A tough challenge to the leadership achieved by Russia in 1956 and 1960 took shape in the first two days of the 1964 Olympic Games.

Russia got two gold medals in the first five events decided, to one for the United States, but the U.S. appeared headed for a major triumph in swimming and was showing unexpected strength in rowing.

Beyond that loomed trouble for the Russians in track and field, especially if the U.S. team is as good as it is cracked up to be, and in gymnastics, where the superb Japanese team is ready for an all-out effort before the home fans.

Track and field events begin Wednesday, gymnastics next Sunday.

Highlights of the first two days of competition that began Sunday were Russia's first gold medal ever in Olympic swimming and a successful defence by Germany's Ingrid Kramer-Engel of her gold medal in springboard diving, an event in which she ended 40 years of U.S. supremacy in 1960.

The successful Russian swimmer was an 18-year-old girl, Galina Prozumenschikova, who won the 200-metre breaststroke Monday in the record time of 2:46.4. Claudia Kolb of the U.S. was second, Svetlana Babanina of Russia third.

The previous record was 2:48.3, set by Miss Babanin the day before in leading all qualifiers in the heats.

AMERICANS SECOND, THIRD

Behind Mrs. Kramer-Engel in the springboard diving by two Americans, Jeanne Collier and Patsy Willard, won the silver and bronze medals, respectively.

Swimmer Don Schollander captured the first U.S. gold medal Monday, winning the 100-metre freestyle in 53.4 seconds, to trim half a second off the mark set the previous day by compatriot Gary Ilman in a heat. Britain's Bobby McGregor was a close second to Schollander. Hans-Joachim Klein of Germany came third.

U.S. swimmers led qualifiers for the finals in the 200-metre backstroke and 400-metre individual medley.

Russia and Japan split the first two gold medals in weightlifting. Alexey Vakhonin of Russia took the featherweight crown, with Imre Foldi of Hungary second and Shiro Ichinoseki of Japan third. Yoshinobu Miyake of Japan was the featherweight winner, followed by Isaac Berger of the U.S.'in second place and Mieczyslaw Nowak of Poland in third.

Germany scored heat triumphs in five rowing events, as expected, but its famous Kiel-Balzsburg eight won only after beating off a strong finishing spurt by the U.S. crew.

SOVIET SCULLER UPSET

Russian sculler Vyacheslav Ivanov, champion in the last two Olympics, was upset by Don Spero of the U.S. in a heat and had to win a repechage to qualify for the finals.

The best Canadian performances in early of the early competitions came in the coxless pairs rowing event, when a pair of big men, George Hungerford of Vancouver and Roger Jackson of Toronto, stroked their way to victory in Sunday's opening heat and advanced directly into Thursday's final.

Canada's eight-oared rowing crew, from the University of British Columbia and the Vancouver Rowing Club, and the fours without cox, from the St. Catharines, Ont., rowing club, lost their heats and had to take part in the repechage.

As the freestyle wrestling moved through the elimination rounds, Turkey, the U.S., Japan and Russia all appeared to have strong representation. Canada's Phil Oberlander was one of only two wrestlers in the welterweight division to survive the first two days without a penalty point.

Canada's basketball and field hockey teams both lost their first two games.

Canadian yachtsmen showed up well in Monday's opening races, coming fourth in the star and dragon classes and fifth in the flying dutchman class.

INDIANS TO DECIDE?

ARLINGTON Tex. (AP) — Gabe Paul, general manager of Cleveland Indians of the American League, indicated Monday that a decision on moving the Cleveland franchise will be made Friday and that the choice will be among Seattle, Oakland and Dallas-Fort Worth. Paul, here to inspect the territory through instructions from the Cleveland board of directors, told a press conference his recommendations will be made to the board when it meets Friday.

the BEST SNOW TIRE MADE..... for ALMOST 1/2 the PRICE you'd expect to pay !!

MAKES FUN OF WINTER DRIVING

THIS REVOLUTIONARY NEW TIRE WAS INTRODUCED LAST YEAR. Early sales were fantastic! But the bad weather gave us too soon (for US) and large numbers were unsold. Now we need warehouse space for big, new season's shipments — and present stocks (produced last January and February) must go! These tires are BRAND NEW . . . exactly the same as those now being produced . . . but rather than mix them with new shipments we are selling them at almost HALF THE PRICE YOU'D EXPECT TO PAY. You've got to be "quick as a bunny" to cook in on this big saving . . . it's a "limited-time offer" only!

Show Scoring Punch

Blues Beat Bruins In Opener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If New York Rangers traded away their scoring punch to Toronto last season, it didn't show as they defeated Boston Bruins 6-2 Monday night in the National Hockey League's opening game of 1964-65.

Hotshots Andy Bathgate and Don McKenney went to Toronto Maple Leafs in exchange for Dick Duff, Bob Nevin and two other players.

Both Duff and Nevin scored on the Bruins in the opener in Boston.

Veterans Camille Henry and Vic Hadfield scored once each. Donny Marshall, obtained a year ago from Montreal in the Plante trade, also scored, as did rookie Louis Angotti.

Marcel Pailie, brought up by New York from Vancouver last Wednesday to replace Jacques Plante — whose knee injury landed him in the minors—provided the backing needed by New York. Pailie kicked out 27 shots, including Johnny Bucyk's breakaway blast and a glove stop on Murray Oliver's drive while the portly goalie was lying flat on the ice.

Boston's goals were scored by Ted Green and rookie Ron Shock.

Rangers open their home season tonight, playing host to Montreal. Chicago plays host to Boston Wednesday and Detroit's first home game is against Toronto Thursday. Canadiens and the Maple Leafs open their home season Saturday Montreal taking on Rangers and Toronto Boston.

Ellis Jrs. Honored At Party

Ellis Juniors, who collected most of the "trophy loot" available in the Belleville and District Softball League this season, were further honored at a buffet lunch Sunday night.

Sponsor Richard Ellis was host to the team and a number of special guests at the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room and later at his home.

Two of the guests, Paul Russell and Harold Reid were introduced to the team as "your newly-appointed manager and coach for the 1965 season". Reid will handle the coaching reins and Russell will manage the club.

Russ Soule, who served in the dual role this season, was master of ceremonies. It was announced that Soule and R. Ellis would "still be around to help out but these two gentlemen will be in charge".

Sponsor Ellis surprised the team again by presenting each player and the coach with a beautiful wrist watch. Press representative G. Alexander made the presentation on behalf of Ellis. The sponsor had given all his players team jackets earlier in the season.

Among the guests was member of parliament Robert Temple, who spoke briefly to the club and presented the players with playoff championship crests.

Temple was presented with the original Dow Trophy, which was replaced with a new one by company representative Armand Duffy. Temple's team, the Bobcats, now defunct, was the first to win the Dow Trophy as league pennant winners four years ago.

Belleville Minor Sports Association president Tom Neill presented the team with runner - season championship crests.

Player-coach Stu Muirhead presented the team's gift to Richard Ellis who was called "the finest sponsor possible, in all different sports, year in and year out," by coach R. Soule.

Tributes were paid to all concerned with the club during the evening with the emphasis on bigger and better seasons in the future.

Leonard Second At Sunset

SUNSET CITY, Calif. (AP) Bob McCallister won $3,300 first-place money Sunday in a battle down to the wire in the $35,000 Sunset - Camellia Open golf tournament with a three-under-par 281 total.

Stan Leonard, the tour veteran from Vancouver whose last victory was the 1962 Western Open, and Pete Brown, husky Los Angeles Negro who has the distinction of being the only member of his race ever to win an official PGA tournament, ended up in a second-place tie.

Leonard, one of the oldest pros on the tour at 49, shot a fine three-under-par 68 to add to his 70-72-72 for a total of 282 and Brown carded 69 for the same count.

McCallister won $1,000. Toronto's Al Balding finished out of the money with a 292 on Sunday's final 77.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., bit 289 with a 70.

Aces Win 3 in Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver goalkeeper Norm Wilkinson has recently had himself out to prove he's the number one netminder in the Western Hockey League squad with his third straight shutout Sunday.

Worsley, who has had all his more in the Seattle Totems opener there Friday which Quebec won 6-4, was powerless unconscious during a third-period goal-mouth scramble in Sunday's 3-2 romp over Prince Albert.

Worsley stopped 33 shots as Quebec whipped Hershey Bears, 3-1, Saturday night in Hershey.

Cleveland defeated Springfield 4-2 and Buffalo edged Rochester 3-2 in other Sunday games.

Cards Fans Hailed McCarver

NEW YORK (CP) — The slugger gets the end every time. Which is another way of saying that catcher Tim McCarver, who walloped a game-saving three-run homer in the 10th inning for St. Louis Cardinals, was the hero of Monday's 4-3 National League game instead of pitcher Bob Gibson.

Forgotten was the fact that Gibson struck out New York Yankees for eight innings, struck out 13, scored the first Cardinal run and made a great fielding play in the ninth after McCarver had tied the game with a home run for the 5-2 victory and a 3-2 lead in the series.

"We want McCarver, we want McCarver," chanted the crowd at the airport that welcomed the Cardinals back to St. Louis Monday night.

There was no mention of Gibson, the fire - balling right-hander, who should have had a 2-0 shutout except that Dick Groat's error in the ninth inning, grounder leading off the Yankee ninth opened the gates to two unearned runs and a tie score.

Tom Tresh came up after two were out and whacked Gibson's first pitch into the centre field bleachers at the 425-foot mark for a homer that tied the score

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the inflamed, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was often attained in case of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed—or your money refunded.

Palmer Wins In England

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Arnold Palmer, overcame an attack of putting jitters and shot an eight-under-par round Sunday to win the Piccadilly world match play golf championship from England's Neil Coles.

Two down after Sunday's first 18 holes, the Latrobe, Pa., stroke maestro astonished a gallery of 5,000 on Wentworth's Burma Road course with a complete reversal of form that brought him a 2 and 1 victory in the 36-hole final match.

Palmer, professional golf's leading money winner, picked up $14,000, in prize money and brought his total of the year to over $121,000.

Jack Nicklaus, his closest pursuer in the money race, was knocked out in the first round by his unusual match play pro tournament.

Coles, British 30-year-old rising star, collected $8,400 for his losing effort and set a British record by sending his earnings to $21,000 for the year.

The inaugural world match play tournament was limited to eight top pros. Three Americans, Nicklaus, Tony Lema and Ken Venturi, were beaten in the first round.

Palmer disposed of England's Peter Butler, then thrashed Gary Player of South Africa to reach the final. Peter Thomson of Australia's Bruce Devlin.

OPTION BERENSON

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Monday night that left winger Gordon (Red) Berenson has been optioned to Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League. Berenson, 24, played with the National Hockey League Canadiens for the 1961-62 season and half the 1962-63 season.

Canada's Hoopsters Beaten

TOKYO (CP) — Canada's Olympic basketball team went down to its second straight defeat Monday, 70-59 loser to Hungary.

The Canadians kept the game close, tying the score eight times in the first half and coming back from a 30-24 half-time deficit to tie it again in the second half, three times they knotted the score. Stulac, a six-foot veteran guard on fouls and fouled in the last minutes. Stulac, 31-year-old Toronto school teacher, was one of the Canadian sparkplugs in this contest.

Just as he did in Canada's 87-52 loss to Russia Sunday, John McKibbon, six-foot-seven native of Sudbury, now living in Montreal, topped the Canadian point-getters with 16, only two of the points coming on foul shots.

Only one Hungarian surpassed him in points — Janos Barz with 17.

Russia defeated Mexico 87-76, to top group A with two wins and no losses. It was Mexico's second defeat.

Shaking first - half lethargy, U.S. came on strong in the second half to beat Italy, 77-51.

The victory gives the U.S. a record of 40-0 since Olympic basketball was introduced in the Olympics in 1936 at Berlin

Olympics Wrestling

TOKYO (CP — Phil Oberlander of Montreal pinned a Philippines opponent for his second straight victory in Olympic welterweight freestyle wrestling Monday and kept his record free of penalty points.

Oberlander, 25, defeated Jose Bagtas in a fall in four minutes, 25 seconds. Sunday he had pinned Harald Barlie of Norway in the fast time of 1.46 in his first-round match.

Only Oberlander and Guiliano Sgarzaite of Russia are free of penalty points in the 73-kilogram (171-pound) class.

Six penalty points bring elimination, and among those sent to the sidelines Monday was Roger Doner, a Toronto school teacher making his first appearance in international competition. Doner, 26, lost on points to Carlos Alberto Vario of Argentina in a second-round lightweight match. Added to a Sunday loss on points to Klaus Rost of Germany, this means elimination for Doner. a 160-pounder who was born in Stayner, Ont.

Matti Jutila, featherweight wrestler from Sudbury, was also eliminated Monday when he lost by decision in a third-round bout against Jutila. Jutila, 32, a Finnish-born carpenter, will compete later in Greco-Roman wrestling. He is Canadian Greco-Roman feather-weight champion.

Oberlander, English born and a salesman, won a silver medal for Canada in the 1958 British Empire Games.

WIN RALLY

GANANOQUE (CP) — Driver Blair Bunch and navigator Robin Edwards of Montreal won the two-day Thousand Islands car rally in a Skoda Octavia Monday, losing only 15 points over a 700-mile course. Sponsored by the St. Lawrence Auto Club of Kingston, the annual rally attracted 27 teams of which 14 finished.

Als Edge Bombers

Cats Crush Ottawa; Argos Beaten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Montreal Alouettes combined to place Toronto Argonauts on the brink of Eastern Football Conference elimination Monday.

Roughriders rapped Argos 31-14 before 16,048 at Regina Monday afternoon to prevent Toronto from pulling into a temporary tie with Montreal for third place and the last EFC playoff spot.

Als used the opening to boost their margin to four points when they edged Winnipeg Blue Bombers 21-20 in another Canadian Football League interlocking game Monday night. Als won by the margin of a missed convert before, 11,221 at Winnipeg.

All four eastern clubs have three games remaining

Montreal bowed 22-7 to Calgary Stampeders at Calgary and British Columbia Lions tripped Edmonton Eskimos 26-6 at Vancouver Saturday night.

The result left Calgary one point behind B.C. in the Western Conference with Saskatchewan two points behind Calgary

By IAN MacLAINE

HAMILTON (CP) — The aroused Hamilton Tiger Cats their sights set on another Eastern Football Conference title, battered Ottawa Rough Riders 23-1 Monday to move into a tie for first with the Riders and set the stage for their meeting in Ottawa Saturday.

The defending Grey Cup champions exploded for 20 points in the second half of play before 27,151 fans.

While the Riders were able to hold their own in the first 30 minutes of the game, limiting the Ticats to a field goal by Don Sutherin, they were no match for a ferocious, frenzied defensive club that held the Rider running attack to scant yardage.

After Hamilton quarterback Bernie Faloney was shaken up alternate quarterback Frank Cosentino stepped into the breach early in the third quarter and tossed a perfect strike to flanker Tommy Grant who had breezed by Ottawa safety Pat Ulmer and was deep in the Rider end zone. Sutherin converted to give Hamilton a 10-0 lead.

CATCH PASSES

Hal Patterson and Willie Bethea also caught touchdown passes. Patterson's was a 31-yard floater from Faloney that he took at the Ottawa goal line Bethea came up Faloney rolled to his right on a play from the Ottawa three-yard line, drew in the Rider defence then threw a bullet strike to Bethea who was all alone.

Sutherin converted wo Hi first-quarter field goal was his 12th of the season, tying him with the single-season conference record for field goals with Ottawa's place-kicking special ist Moe Racine.

Ottawa's lone point midway through the third quarter came on Racine's attempted 33-yard field goal that went wide of the posts. Henley conceded the Rid ers the point.

Fullback Art Baker ran through the middle of the usually air-tight Ottawa defensive line for 102 yards of the 227 yards Ticats totalled along the ground.

CHARLTON DROPPED

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Charlton, hero of 55 soccer in ternational games, was dropped Monday from the England team to play Belgium this month. Alf Ramsey, manager of the England team, picked a new left wing—Terry Venenables of Chelsea at inside-left and Alan Hinton of Nottingham Forest as the winger.

HEADS GROUP

TIMMINS (CP)—Jack Doig of Toronto was elected president of the All-Ontario Moose Association at an association convention here. He succeeds Primo Sabio of Fort Arthur Fort William.

Marlboros Grab Early Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros, last year's Memorial Cup winners, hold an early lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series this year as the result of two hard-earned victories.

The Marlboros scored a come-from-behind 7-4 victory over St. Catharines Black Hawks in their opening game Sunday and defeated Peterborough Petes 3-2 in a hard-fought game Monday.

The two wins give the Marlboros four points, one more than Niagara Falls Flyers who defeated Kitchener Rangers 2-1 Sunday. The Flyers also have a 3-3 tie with Oshawa Generals to their credit.

The Generals, who tied Montreal Junior Canadiens 3-3 Sunday, are in third place with two points from their two deadlocks.

The Petes, Hamilton Red Wings and the Canadiens are tied for fourth with one point each while the Rangers and the Black Hawks have no points.

The Red Wings tied 4-4 with the Petes Sunday.

Britons Win Title

Canada Second In World Golf

From AP-Reuters

ROME (CP) — A quartet of British amateur golfers who wouldn't let themselves be disturbed by a third straight day of gusty winds outclassed playoffs from 22 other nations Saturday and won the fourth world amateur golf team championship.

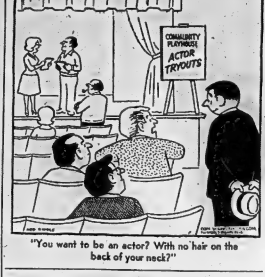
The Canadian team finished second, two strokes behind the champions. Canada also finished second in 1962.

The Britons thoroughly outclassed the defending United States team, which wound up in fourth place, 13 strokes behind the winner, after once having been only one stroke behind Britain.

The victory gave Britain the huge Eisenhower Trophy which the United States had taken twice and Australia once in three previous world team competitions.

The Canadian team posted Saturday's best scores after starting the final round five strokes behind Britain and tied for second with the United States.

HAS 895



Britain scored a grand total of 895 for the 72 holes over the 6,879-yard par 72 Olginta Golf Course. Canada finished with 897, Italy second, took third with 900 and the United States fourth with 908.

Scores are counted for the three best from each team each day. The team's highest score is discarded.

The three best Canadian scores were a 73 by Doug Silverberg of Calgary and 74s by Keith Alexander of Calgary and Gary Cowan of Kitchener.

The fourth member of the Canadian team, Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., finished the final 18 holes with a 77.

Wednesday's first round was played in good weather but high winds and showers marred the next two days and Saturday a pouring rain left greens soggy and bunkers flooded.

Leafs Bow To All-Stars

TORONTO (CP) — Sid Abel had two wishes come true Saturday night. He coached a team with a dream line and defeated the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The dream line of Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby Hull, Montreal Canadiens' Jean Beliveau and Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe took a while to get acquainted but they did combine for one goal.

The goal came off the stick of Beliveau, assisted by Howe and Hull and gave the National Hockey League All-Stars a 2-1 second period lead in the annual All-Star classic.

The win also left Abel, regular coach of the Red Wings, unbeaten in three tries as an All-Star coach. Ih All-Stars defected Chicago in 1961 and tied the Maple Leafs last season.

Boston Bruin defenceman Leo Boivin and team - mate Murray Oliver were the other All-Star marksmen. Kent Douglas and Jim Pappin counted for the Leafs.

It was the first defeat for the Maple Leafs in three straight seasons as Stanley Cup champions. They won 3-1 in 1962 and tied 3-3 last fall.

Rowing Eights, Fours Out

Rowing Hopes On Pair

By JACK SULLIVAN

Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Canada's eight-oared crew and the fours without cox bowed out of the Olympic Games today, leaving Canadian chances for a rowing medal pinned squarely on the broad shoulders of a makeshift pair of oarsmen from Vancouver and Toronto.

The eights, selected from the Vancouver Rowing Club and the University of British Columbia, could not make it in the repechage heats, and for the first time in three Olympics there won't be a B.C. eight in the Olympic final.

The surprising crew from Yugoslavia, barely beaten in the opening heats Monday, bounced back and beat the Canadians in the repechage with the fastest time of the day. Coming on top of a loss to Czechoslovakia Monday, the double defeat meant elimination for the Canadians.

The B.C. eight finished second to Yugoslavia, and were beaten by 1½ lengths, Italy and the United States were their repechage heats to join Yugoslavia and the three earlier heat winners, defending champion Germany, Russia and Czechoslovakia, in the final.

PLACES THIRD

The Canadian fours without cox, from the St. Catharines Rowing Club, were thrawn against Russia, Italy and Argentina in the repechage and finished third behind Italy and Russia.

That left just a single Canadian entry in the finals while Germany had six, Russia and the United States five each and Italy three.

George Hungerford of Vancouver and Roger Jackson of Toronto, who had been rowing together for only about two weeks, surprised just about everybody when they won the coxless pairs heat Sunday, beating a highly-rated Danish pair.

The win put the Canadians in the finals, where they will have to beat three entries to win at least a third place bronze medal.

Both men have the size and strength to do it, and they showed it in beating tough opposition in their heat. Jackson is a six - foot five - inch 185 pounder and Hungerford is an inch shorter and slightly heavier.

Colts Crush Cardinals, Grab Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Colts crushed St. Louis Cardinals 47-27 in the National Football League Monday night to move into a four-way tie for the lead with Cleveland Browns in the East.

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, Green Bay Packers topped San Francisco 49ers. Chicago Bears whacked Los Angeles Rams 38-17, Detroit Lions outlasted Minnesota Vikings 24-20 and New York Giants struggled to a 13-12 tie against Dallas Cowboys. In a Sunday night game Pittsburgh Steelers upset Cleveland Browns 23-7.

In the American League Sunday, Denver Broncos stopped Kansas City Chiefs 32-27 and Buffalo Bills battered Houston Oilers 49-17. Saturday night, it was New York Jets over Oakland Raiders 35-13.

King of the Hill

A new season for the King of the Hill contest got underway at the Bowl-O-Drome on Friday night.

Roy Saylor, who held the title from last spring, was challenged by Jack Canning, who is currently averaging in the 270's in the major league this season.

Canning had 1324 in the qualifying round, one pin ahead of leading Saylor by 66 pins after two games in the challenge match. "King" Saylor proved too much for Canning in the final game coming up with a 301 to Canning's 180, winning the 725 to 682.

Bud Pelican was second high with a 3-game total of 1214.

The pot of gold for eight consecutive strikes now stands at $20.00. Neil Tessier had six followed by a head pin.

Raymond Burr Confirms Reports Series Will Close

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Raymond Burr, the television barrister who in seven years has never lost a case, was in town the other day and confirmed reports that he believes he is playing his last season as Perry Mason.

"Yes," Burr said, without regret, "I think this year will wind it up . . . As you know, there are a number of other projects I've been interested in for some time."

There are Burr's flourishing art galleries and his interest in legal aid organizations, stimulated by his long-running TV part.

"And I've been talking with Don Fedderson (a TV producer) about a new series," Burr said. "It's working title is The Power, and I'll play the governor of a state."

In addition to numerous Perry Mason fans a lot of veteran actors and actresses will miss the CBS show.

Gail Patrick Jackson, executive producer of the series, is a former motion picture actress who has great loyalty to old friends and colleagues. She always has made a special point of hiring persons she calls "old timers—people who were acting in the 30's."

Such similar motion picture faces as Conrad Nagel Neil Hamilton, Arlene Judge, Stuart Erwin and Mae Clarke (the girl who received the famous grapefruit in the face from Jimmy Cagney) pop up in character parts.

AT THE PARK — There is always time for love, even amid the dangers of the Arctic, as Richard Basehart and Harry Guardino discover in this scene from "Voyage To The Bottom Of The Sea," starting Thursday at the Park Theatre. The movie, which was filmed in color, packed wild life drama, filmed in color entirely on location in England, South Africa, Robert Culp co-stars as an American scientist dedicated to saving the vanishing white rhino from extinction through the use of tranquilizer bullets. On the same program is "The Golden Arrow", in color, starring Tab Hunter and Rossana Podesta. Both features are first showings.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Eagle Armbro, Canada's 1963 two - year - old pacer of the year, won the $4,100 Niagara Stakes before 3,448 fans at Mohawk Raceway Saturday, closing night at the wooded Campbellville track.

The bay son of Tar Heel, with regular pilot Harold McKinley aboard, took the lead at the start and drew away in the stretch for a half-length victory over Highland Girl, driven by owner Hugh McLean of Port Elgin.

It was the fifth win of the year for Eagle Armbro, who increased his season's earnings to $14,263 for the Eagle Stable of Kitchener.

Time for the one and five-eighteenths miles pace was 2:55. Eagle Armbro returned $3.90, $2.20, and $2.30.

The trotters now move to Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines.

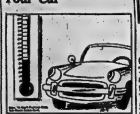
Stirling

ARTIFICIAL ICE TO BE INSTALLED

STIRLING — At a meeting last evening in the council chambers, the committees were told the returns of the questionnaire sent out last week. Now a canvas will begin for funds to assist in this venture, as 75 per cent were in favor of renovating the present arena on Henry Street. The work will begin immediately to have the arena changes made before cold weather sets in. When the canvas gets underway and the financial support is known, extra help will be engaged, excavation for cement work will be the first requirements. Another meeting will be held October 14th in the council chambers.



STIRLING FIRE DEPARTMENT AS HOST

Mr. Arthur Duncan of Batawa was guest speaker at the meeting in Stirling Community Hall last night for the Mutual Aid Association of Hastings and Prince Edward departments. Mr. Mervin Dafoe from Frankford was chairman. A question period proved most interesting conducted by Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville. On display were several pieces of fire fighting equipment, with explanations given. As public relations officer Arthur Duncan stressed the need for a well equipped fire department and experienced men to handle it, yet those who stand by know very little of the preparation required and the tedious hours spent controlling a fire. Chief Graham Mouck and his boys served a lunch at the close of this social and educational meeting.

ORANGE LODGE OFFICE GIVEN

Past Grand Master of the Loyal Orange Lodge of Ontario East, Fred Bateman of Stirling was appointed Grand Treasurer, owing to the vacancy created by the death of E. W. McFall of Ottawa, Mr. Bateman was named to complete the remainder of the year.

Your Car

Don't Wait For Cold To Winterize

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

Preparing your car before cold weather approaches has more than one advantage. First of course, you're ready for any sudden wave of freezing weather that might come along. Second, you give your service station a better chance to do a thorough job, which it can't do when everyone is pushing for last-minute service. Third, you don't put yourself in a position where you are willing to settle for the best oil and cooling system protection, and skip all other needs. For safe, trouble - free winter operation, there's much more to be done.

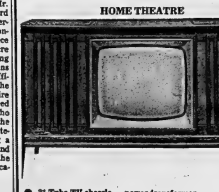
Battery, connections and cables should be checked — oil, gas and air filters should be cleaned—transmission, axle and chassis lubricant should be changed — brakes, tires, windshield wipers must be checked — thermostat, heater and defroster operation should be tested — muffler(s) and tailpipe(s) must be inspected for leaks or looseness.

N. T. writes: "My car is a '62 and it's finished in an original paint job. Can I get a touch-up coating to match it?"

You can get one to match any finish — at most auto supply stores and many service stations.

From O.T.: "New plugs, new points, carburetor and choke adjustments, a fuel pump test, dry gas in the tank and fuel line cleaning have failed to improve our hard starting, rough idling, sluggish engine. What do we do now?"

Ask your mechanic to check for a faulty manifold connection or gasket which could permit air leakage to upset carburetion.



P. W. asks: "How low should weather temperature go before the thermostat is needed?"

The thermostat is often removed during summer although it shouldn't be. Without the thermostat engine warm-up takes longer, thus extra wear and gas consumption results.

J. S. writes: "After reading your remarks about the advantages of a clean engine, I used a water hose on my '60 V-8, but can't budge half of the heavy grease and muck all over it."

Your service station can steam-clean it without trouble — or you can buy a can of degreasing spray and do the job yourself.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

— FISH HATERS —

As everybody knows, birds that eat fish are not palatable. Therefore there is no good reason for shooting any one of the three species of mergansers. Yet, this is done, and by so doing the hunter actually is depriving the fisherman of his game. How does this curious state of affairs come about?

It has been positively proved by the American Fishery research that when predators use a certain lake for their fishing grounds there are more legalsized fish left in the lake for fishermen. None of our fish-eating birds is able to manage anything very large, and the theory is that a certain amount of fishing out gives more space and food for the other fish to grow. This theory can easily be tested. In lakes where fish-eating birds have been eliminated by motor boats, fishing is notably poor; wilderness lakes vitalized annually by flocks of migrating mergansers are truly the best for fishing.

Mergansers are very fine-looking members of the duck family, worthy of protection. Although the hooded is but 17½ inches long and the American or common merganser 26 inches, the three females resemble each other, with their thin, red-dish bills, light throats, red-brown crested heads, and grey bodies with white wing patches. The males differ more. The American merganser's head, though shining green like Mr. Red-breasted's, has no crest. The male hooded has a remarkable looking head with a big, white crest bordered in black.

Common is a good name for the American merganser because it really is quite often seen in summer on our many Canadian lakes. Not that there are many lakes on one small body of water for these birds are not fond of company. They may nest in a variety of places — a cavity in a tree trunk, a discarded hawk nest in a tree, among rocks, a hole in a bank, or, so it has been reported, even in an old building. A clutch of 12 or 14 eggs is not unusual.

The father never waits around to see his children. It is the mother who gives them fishing lessons, showing them that the best way is to swim with head under water up to the eyes, and when a fish is spotted, dive for it.

Until they are able to run on the water and fly up, it is difficult for the young to elude danger. They follow their mother on the lake well into September. Motor boats make their lives very difficult.

American mergansers are able to stay here until late November by going in streams too rapid to freeze over.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Don't risk offending with "denture breath". Get FASTEETH at any drug counters everywhere.

Northport

Gaels Nip Redmen As Blues Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The winners came from behind in two weekend games in the Senior Intercollegiate Football League.

In Toronto Saturday, the University of Toronto Blues upset the oddsmakers by exploding for a 31-7 victory over University of Western Ontario Mustangs in one game.

And at Kingston, the defending champion Queen's University Golden Gaels had to catch up to edge McGill University Redmen of Montreal 13-12.

After picking off a fumble on the Toronto 23 in the opening minutes, Western Fullback Gary Cranmer crashed over on the third Mustang play of the game. Art Grosse converted. But that was it.

The Toronto defence took over, intercepting four passes and pouncing on four fumbles as Varsity racked up its highest one-game scoring output in five years. The Mustang offence was held to only 152 yards.

RAN UP THREE TOUCHDOWNS

The Varsity crew, which totalled 21 first downs to Western's nine, put touchdowns from Mike Eben, John Heuther, Bryce Taylor and Vic Wozniak. Taylor converted all four and added a 15-yard field goal. Jim McMahon led Blues' defence stone-ing Weston spent the weekend in St. Ola.

Mrs. C. E. Eggleton of Stirling visited Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thompson over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thompson were in Belleville on Monday where Mr. Thompson attended a meeting of the Department of Public Welfare and Mrs. Thompson visited her daughter, Mrs. Ted Sprackett and family.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Miss Fern Painsteer of the staff of the Hastings County Home, in Belleville, visited at her home here recently. She was accompanied by Miss Joanne Shepherd who is moving to Los Angeles, U.S.A., on October 18 where she has accepted a secretarial position in the "Herald of Hope Mission," operated by the assemblies of God, the American counterpart of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada.

Mrs. Gordon King returned home from the cottage on Saturday.

Mrs. Wilfred Weller returned to her home in Rochester, New York, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nicholson and Miss Janet Henderson of the Ridge visited Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Phillips and Mrs. Gordon King on Sunday.

Miss Brenda Ham of Oshawa spent the weekend at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gorrard and Miss Edith Phillips of Trenton, also Mr. and Mrs. R. Watson of Havelock visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips on Sunday. Mrs. Phillips accompanied her daughter Verna and her husband on their return to Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Huddlestone of Weston spent the weekend in St. Ola.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Good Old Mort, owned by Ed Seedhouse of Toronto and trained by Jerry Meyer, became the all - time money - winning Canadian bred two-year-old when he won the $41,250 Cup and Saucer Stakes at Woodbine Racetrack Monday.

The chestnut colt, purchased as a yearling for $4,500, earned $33,760 for his dramatic win by a short over Greek Sea. The colt boosted his earnings to a record $98,955. Lucky Marine was third.

Good Old Mort still has several races left on Canadian soil this fall, including the $10,000 added Grey Stakes here Oct. 24, and could possibly surpass Canebora's record as of three-year-old in 1963 of winning more than $100,000 while racing exclusively on Canadian tracks.

Meyer said the race was Good Old Mort's first over the turf course but he handled it like a veteran grass-runner.

if you are responsible for an automobile accident after your insurance policy has lapsed?

You do! When you allow your insurance policy to lapse you immediately become an uninsured motor vehicle owner. You must either pay the $20 fee to the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund at your licence issuing office or renew your insurance before you drive. Otherwise you will be liable to a fine of up to $500.

The $20 fee gives you no protection whatever. If there is a claim against you as an uninsured motor vehicle owner for which you are liable, it will be paid by the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. However, you must repay the fund and you will not be allowed to own or drive a motor vehicle until you make arrangements to do so.

Judgments of $10,000 and $15,000 are not uncommon. A debt of this size can seriously hamper your family's future. Protect your future. The wisest course is to buy automobile liability insurance and keep it in force.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 14

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Fulfillment received due to proof received of friendship. Day is meaningful. You can gain insight, reason, purpose. Specifically, complete projects. Leave no loose ends!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Nothing midway occurs. All the way — or nothing. Interpretation is of utmost importance. Be calm, sensible. Realize your choice must be based upon experience.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Give of yourself — express feelings. Obtain what the Taurus message. Your intuitive intellect provides valid answers. Key is being quiet within. Don't "chase" the truth!

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Be aware of needs which affect security. Look beyond immediate indications. Consider various possibilities. One close to you makes known his views. Combine sympathy with practicality.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Trying to escape obligations only creates complications. Know this and react accordingly. Your sense of fair play provides valid answer. Be perceptive. Adhere to golden rule.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Persons loyal to you require encouragement. Appreciate surroundings, persons close to you. Change your attitude. Be aware! Take time to think and to react. Stress introspection.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Your creative forces require constructive outlet. If you really desire happiness . . . make this a day when you perceive. Don't be careless with your feelings, or feeling of others!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Situation exists in home which requires definite attention. Keep promises to loved ones — and to yourself. No time for delay. Outline specific plan . . . then follow through!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Ideas can be transformed into actualities. You can profit from hobbies, theories, experiments. Key is to exhibit pioneering tendencies! Be original, independent . . . and enthusiastic.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): If you are perceptive . . . you gain valuable advantage. Be alert. Do more listening than talking. "Bargain" available. You can find out where and when . . . but first you must untangle red tape.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Cycle moves so that you can gain favorable attention from higher-ups. Delve deep into your own motives. Find out where you want to go — and why. Key is achievement. Stress long-range planning.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Your intuition now serves as remarkable guide. You are able to sense importance of persons, events. Heed inner voice. Realize one close to you is trying to say something of importance.

If today is your birthday . . . you are intellectually alert, possess great curiosity — would excel as writer, attorney, private investigator, General Tendencies: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Special word to Capricorn: Purchase item which will help make life more pleasant.

Ticklish Central African Problems Face the Winner

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two embarrassing problems face the British government after the Oct. 15 election, both of them in the same turbulent corner of the Commonwealth—Central Africa.

The ballots will hardly have been counted before the issue boils up over whether copper-rich Northern Rhodesia—which becomes independent as Zambia Oct. 24—is to gain control of its vast mineral resources, vital for its economic health.

At present the rights to all mineral deposits, yielding royalties of around $7,000,000 a year, are held by the British South Africa Company, which before 1924 largely administered the country.

The company claims rights over much of the actual soil of Northern Rhodesia, a huge scrubland plateau half the size of Quebec province.

No newly - independent government could calmly accept such a situation. Zambia's Prime Minister Kenneth Kaunda has been using Britain, as the protecting power until Oct. 24, to make the BSA company yield its monopoly.

BRITAIN RELUCTANT

Aside from the dispute over compensation—Britain is reluctant to bridge the gap between the BSA figure and the token payment offered by Zambiath. wrangle chiefly involves a clause in the order-in-council which the Queen must sign to grant independence. The clause binds Zambia to accept the responsibilities of the previous governing power — in Zambian eyes entrenching BSA company rights.

British Prime Minister Douglas-Home is reported to have shelved the order-in-council until Oct. 17, two days after the British election and a week before Zambia's Independence.

If Samhia expropriated BSA company assets after Oct. 24, as she has threatened to do if deprived of control, the new British government might face a massive compensation claim from BSA — some observers speculate up to £150,000,000 representing royalties to 1968, when the rights were originally due to expire.

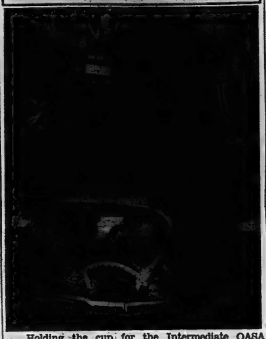
The other hot potato for the incoming cabinet will be Southern Rhodesia. Zambia's neighbor south of the Zambezi River, Sir Roy Welensky's crushing by-election defeat by Deputy Prime Minister Clifford Dupont, more openly segregationist than Premier Ian Smith, brutally spells out the prevailing mood of white-ruled Southern Rhodesia.

WELENSKY INSULTED

Sir Roy's defeat was half-expected by informed commentators in Britain—he had his initial platform knocked from under him by Smith's decision to negotiate independence, not declare it unilaterally as he once threatened. But there were disturbing aspects of the byelection—not least the ugly behavior of some Smith supporters who hurled anti-semitic insults during speeches by Welensky, who is part Jewish.

There now is a lull in Southern Rhodesian affairs as a confident Smith prepares to prove the rural black Africans support independence under a white-minority government.

No British government, however, is likely to accept "constitutions" handled solely by white district officers and the African chiefs—who are paid civil servants in Southern Rhodesia. Now that Smith has a mandate from the whites in the shape of the Welensky byelection, he may well revert to the idea of unilateral independence as a last resort.



He has said he hopes to have the issue settled by Christmas.

RECEIVES TRANSPLANT

DENVER (AP) — Mrs. Gerald D. Mansfield, 36, of Tucson, Ariz., received a kidney Monday in a transplant from her sister, Mrs. Martha Bestman, 41, of Grand Rapids, Mich. The operation performed in Colorado Hospital brought to 76 the number of such transplants. Of the recipients, 38 are living. Mrs. Mansfield and Mrs. Bestman were reported in satisfactory condition.

County Welcomes Home Winning Softball Club

PICTON (Staff) — Bloomfield romped back home on Monday with the cup for the Intermediate "B" OASA All-Ontario softball championship. They played Blind River team the best out of three games. One was played on Saturday and the other two on Sunday at Blind River. They were met by a crowd of ardent followers and supporters in Bloomfield where a cavalcade was formed to take the players through the villages and into Picton. They arrived in Picton with much noise making and hornblowing. In the cavalcade two local drummers rode a firetruck to add to the celebrations. They toured the town of Picton and returned to Bloomfield where they were given a citizens' reception. Reeve Art Moore of Bloomfield and his council were in attendance for the banquet that included the players wives and ardent supporters form the area. The reception was held at the home of Henry Leavens, Bloomfield. Sports conscious citizens from all over the county are enthusiastic in their praise of the team's victory this week-end.

Eyes Injured When Gas Gun Explodes

PICTON (Staff) — A former Belleville man, who still works in the city was injured near his home in Rose Hall Monday, when a gas gun blew up in his face. Now in Belleville General Hospital with both eyes injured and some facial bones broken is William Frederick Blake, 36 years old. A gas gun uses high-pressure carbon dioxide to shoot a small pellet, usually .177 or .22 calibre.

Mr. Blake was admitted to Prince Edward County Hospital and then transferred to Belleville.

CANADIAN ELECTED

ROME (AP) — The general chapter of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart Saturday elected Canadian - born Brother Jules from the Sacred Heart Institution at Pascoag, R.I., as the new general superior of the Roman Catholic order. It is a teaching order of lay brothers, founded in France in the 19th century. It has a membership of 3,000, mainly in Canada with some representation in the United States.

Family Uses Honey Pails In Rock Pile

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. George Pasquet kept their money in two honey pails hidden in a rock pile on their 1,920-acre ranch near Climax, Sask.

One honey pail was for stocks and bonds. The other was for cash and uncashed cheques. The rock pile was visited only at night.

But the Pasquets didn't file any income tax returns and the revenue department began investigating.

The revenue department figured that the assets of the Pasquets, including cash, bonds, stocks, land, buildings and machinery increased to $63,288 in 1959 from $30,079 in 1958 and taxed them accordingly.

In a judgment made public today, board member J. O. Weldon rejected the appeal except for allowing a reduction in living costs to $500 from $800 in 1956 for the Pasquets and their daughter. "Incredible as that may sound."

Mr. Weldon said that at the time of their appeal, May 23 this year, the Pasquets were still using the honey pails.

He said Mrs. Pasquet testified that in 1942 her bank had paid a $6 cheque which she could not remember issuing.

Mr. Weldon added: "On his part, Mr. Pasquet said he liked the honey pails because they were so convenient, and nobody will dispute that."

Police Unearth Reported Plot To Kill Johnson

Two Arrested, Quantity Of Ammunition Seized

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) Police today questioned an ex-convict - plumber, at whose home they seized guns and Nazi flags, about a reported plot to kill President Johnson here Sunday.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Julius Schmidt, 29, Tuesday night and took Jerry Bird, 27, of Callalen, Tex., into custody several hours later.

They said both men would be charged with violating the National Firearms Act. Officers declined to give any details about why Bird was held.

Word from unnamed informers about guns being collected in this city prompted simultaneous raids on the home of Schmidt and that of his mother, Princess Grassy Sheriff Johnnie Mitchell said.

Informers reported there was a lot of loose talk about assassinating the president" and quoted unnamed individuals as saying they would try to obtain guns from Schmidt, Mitchell said.

After questioning Schmidt for more than three hours, the sheriff said he at first doubted there was a plot on the life of Johnson.

"Now that we have looked into it there might be something to it," Mitchell said. "However, a plot has not yet been uncovered."

The sheriff said Schmidt admitted buying machine - guns and automatic weapons illegally but denied any knowledge of an assassination plot.

GATHER UP WEAPONS

Mitchell said 25 deputies gathered up the machine-gun, automatic pistols, high - powered rifles, a mortar, a rocket launcher, live hand grenades, about 20,000 rounds of commercial and home-made ammunition, swords, several Nazi flags, First and Second World War German helmets, a German medal and many uniforms, photographs of Second World War Nazi leaders and books by Adolf Hitler.

Part of the guns were at the home of Schmidt's mother because he lived there with his wife and small son until last August, the sheriff said.

He described one rifle with telescopic sight as "capable of firing a nail 1,000 yards." Officers examined the weapons for fingerprints.

Mitchell said he would charge Schmidt with violating the national firearms act.

Mrs. L. B. Schmidt, mother of the man in custody told a reporter she knew nothing about any plot and said of her son:

"He wouldn't do that. He didn't have any intention of doing that."

MORE PRIESTS ILL

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An American bishop told the Vatican ecumenical Tuesday that there has been an increasing number of mentally ill priests since the Second World War. He said many should be helped, not punished. Auxiliary Bishop John Donovan of Detroit spoke as the fourth-wide assembly of Roman Catholic prelates completed debate on a schema on the laity and began discussion on the priesthood.

Atlantic Provinces May Unite

OTTAWA (CP) — There were some signs today that while complete union of the Atlantic provinces is some distance in the future, a possibility exists for the four provinces to become two.

Strangely enough the potential partners are of mixed politics. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are going to seek legislative approval for a joint committee to study the project While Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland think it's all a good idea and suggest there are economic reasons why the two islands might some day get together.

Conservative Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Liberal Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick are planning to set up the joint commission. Conservative Premier Walter Shaw of Prince Edward Island and Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland have nodded approval of the idea generally but agree the four can't reduce to less than two in the foreseeable future.

The idea isn't new. It was first suggested in colonial days 156 years ago. It was repeated at the early talks in Charlottetown 100 years ago but was lost when Confederation itself was suggested by the Central Canada delegates.

A few weeks ago Premier Robichaud brought up the question at a conference of premiers in Charlottetown and at that time it was not taken seriously.

But apparently Premier Stanfield had second thoughts and he has written a letter to Premier Robichaud, copy to the other Atlantic premiers. Announcement of the letter and the immediate favorable reaction was a surprise at the opening of federal - provincial fiscal and constitutional talks.

Opposes Delay In UN Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is opposed to any postponement of the United Nations General Assembly scheduled to open Nov. 10, External Affairs Minister Martin said Tuesday.

He said in a Commons reply to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that there are pressing matters which make it desirable that the assembly meet at the set time.

It is understood that one of these pressing matters is Cyprus.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mainly sunny skies are expected over most of Ontario today and temperatures should rise rapidly to their warmest since the early part of October. Afternoon temperatures should reach the mid 60s as far north in the province as Kapuskasing. Only the extreme northern portions of Ontario near Hudson Bay will miss out on the warm weather.

Agree On Labor Code

By RONALD LESEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Rare unanimity and despatch reigned in the Commons Tuesday as MPs dealt with three pieces of labor legislation and changes in the federal - provincial crop insurance program.

Spokesmen for all four opposition parties praised the labor code providing for a $1.25 minimum hourly wage, two weeks paid vacation after one year and other minimum standards for 360,000 employees under federal jurisdiction.

Today, debate continues on second reading — approval in principle—of the labor code, which was introduced Oct. 1.

The Commons passed a resolution endorsing the 1958 international convention condemning race bias and other forms of discrimination in employment.

A federal labor bill discussed Tuesday would increase compensation payments to injured merchant seamen and to widows and dependents of deceased seamen.

GOING TO SENATE

Earlier, the crop insurance amendments whistled through second reading, committee and third reading stages in 90 minutes. The bill now goes to the Senate, which reconvened Tuesday night after a month-long recess.

The changes in the five-year-old crop "insurance scheme would allow the federal government to insure provincial plans against heavy losses in poor crop years.

Agriculture Minister Hays expressed the hope that all 10 provinces will go into the crop insurance field in a big way now that their risks are being reduced. At present, only 5,500 farmers are covered in three provinces—Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the crop insurance scheme is discriminatory since it benefits large single-crop farms only. Mixed farms in Eastern Canada would not be helped in any way since insurance premiums were too high, the program was a failure.

Labor Minister MacEachen said the Labor Code breaks new ground in federal legislation and goes beyond liberal election promises.

Opposition spokesman called for even higher minimum standards in the main. They agreed that nine paid holidays should be provided instead of seven annually. They argued that civil servants, the MPs themselves and most white collar workers now get nine holidays.

REFER TO CLC

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) and Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) both pointed out that the Canadian Labor Congress is asking a $1.50 minimum hourly wage.

Mr. Knowles said three weeks vacation after three years of employment should be required instead of two weeks at all times.

He also asked for a "section requiring employers to maintain the take-home pay of their employees while cutting the work week to 40 hours. Requiring time and a half pay for overtime was not enough.

Mr. Starr said the minimum wage and other standards should apply to 16-year-olds, instead of 17-year-olds as in the bill. The former Conservative labor minister also suggested that a 35-hour week be specified for certain industries to compensate more for the effect the impact of automation.

Whigs May Hold Key To British Election

LONDON (CP)—Only today is a Labor win by 56 seats. remains for campaigners in Britain's general election to indulge in a last-minute effort to give the Conservatives a fourth term in office or elect a Labor government for the first time in 13 years.

And as the battle in this apparently close struggle draws to a close Britons look in vain for some indication of a clear-cut lead by either major party.

But the opinion polls are not much help, since their various predictions range from a Conservative majority of up to 90 seats in the 630-seat House of Commons to a Labor win by 56 seats.

The key appears to lie with the backers of the smaller Liberal party and uncommitted voters who have become the main target of last-minute campaign efforts.

In the last Parliament the Conservatives and allies had 353 seats at dissolution, Labor 260, Liberal seven, others two. Eight seats were vacant.

In recent days Conservative hopes seemed to lag while Labor confidence soared. But an upward trend on the London Stock Exchange and the continuing annoyance of the London subway strike gave them a slight boost on the final day before the voting.

Que. Demonstrators Fined As Police Conduct Probed

QUEBEC (CP)—Two demonstrators against Queen Elizabeth's weekend visit to this provincial capital were fined $10 Tuesday, while 25 other persons faced charges including inciting and interfering with policemen.

Meanwhile Quebec City Police Chief Roger Lemire confirmed with the province's deputy attorney - general and emerged with "no comment" when asked if he was satisfied with his force's conduct during the visit.

"I will reply later" said Chief Lemire. He said he was investigating his own force's conduct and Deputy Attorney General Charles-Edouard Cantin had ordered an inquiry into the federal, provincial and municipal police action.

Reporters who had been struck by police clubs during the action were among the questioners, and one of the 27 before the courts was a New York reporter.

Marc Schleiffer pleaded not guilty to disturbing the peace and causing a crowd to gather. He asked that his case be dealt with within two weeks so that he could return to New York. Hearing was set for Oct. 21.

Chief Lemire did tell the press that 360 of his 400 constables were on duty during the weekend. He said some — he didn't say how many—of the arrests were made by the RCMP and provincial police rather than his own force.

Prince Philip Has Big Day Hunting Geese Near Quebec City

QUEBEC (CP) — Prince Philip left Quebec City late Tuesday on board the royal yacht Britannia, apparently pleased with his day of duck and geese hunting at nearby Ile-aux-Ruaux in which he may have broken Quebec hunting laws.

The prince is headed for a cruise in the Caribbean. The Queen returned to Britain from Ottawa Tuesday to end the eight-day royal visit.

The prince arrived at the hunting spot at dawn Tuesday by helicopter after flying by jet to Quebec City from Ottawa. Before the morning was out, he shot 10 snow geese and 13 black ducks.

Legal daily limit in Quebec is five snow geese and six ducks and possession of 30 snow geese and 12 ducks. A Quebec City wildlife source said it was likely that others in the hunting party had turned over the limit to the prince as a "gesture," a "normal" way to get around the possession limit.

Prince Philip was guest of Montreal stockbroker William O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien said that Prince Philip seemed pleased with the hunting excursion and his 23 birds.

Welcome Queen Home

LONDON (CP) — The Queen flew home to a "jolly good fellow" welcome Tuesday night as hundreds of Britons turned out to pay noisy tribute to her courage and serenity during some of the difficult times in her Canadian tour.

Usually Londoners tend to be pretty blase about the comings and goings of royalty. But all that was put aside Tuesday night as an estimated 1,000 people defied the chilly night air to travel to London airport, 15 miles out of town, to cheer and wave as she emerged from her Air Canada jet after the flight from Ottawa.

Another 1,000 or more turned up outside Buckingham Palace and yelled and sang until the Queen finally appeared on the balcony to acknowledge the unusual tribute. Between the airport and the palace, other hundreds waited to shout "welcome home" as her car swept past.

The palace crowd almost with the car to a stop as they pressed forward to get better view while the vehicle edged through the gates. Then the self-appointed welcoming committee started singing "for she's a jolly good fellow" until the Queen and Prince Philip, about 45 minutes later. She was alone on the balcony for about five minutes, waving her hands in greeting and occasionally bowing.

Prince Philip stayed in Canada for a day's shooting before leaving aboard the royal yacht Britannia for a Caribbean trip.

Premiers' Meet May Also Okay Formula On BNA

No Draft Is Ready Yet On Constitution Change

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The stage was set today for an intensive 18-month study of how Canadians are taxed of about $10,000,000,000 a year and the way federal, provincial and municipal governments allocate the fields in which they spend the money.

Constitutional amendments could follow.

Terms of reference for this major undertaking were settled unanimously Tuesday in a four-hour meeting between Finance Minister Walter Gordon and his provincial counterparts. Details were not revealed.

These terms are to be submitted in draft form today to the plenary conference of Prime Minister Pearson and the provincial premiers. After their acceptance, which seemed likely, the terms probably will be made public.

The review in depth of the Canadian tax structure was decided upon last spring at the Quebec City plenary conference. It envisaged an interim report by the end of this year, with a "definitive" version by a fairly early date next year.

CAN'T BE KEPT

But this schedule now cannot be kept, Mr. Gordon said the report will be delayed until early 1966 because the study will go much deeper than the one contemplated in Quebec City.

Premier Lesage, also Quebec's finance minister, described the intended review as "vast and deep." He said he was not disappointed over the apparent delay in a report; "we have to be realistic."

Both Mr. Gordon and Mr. Lesage as well as Premier Roberts of Ontario said that while work could start right away, some parts of the study would have to await reports due next year from federal, Ontario and Quebec royal commissions on taxation.

The tax structure committee will begin its work at a meeting, probably in Ottawa, in late November or early December. Mr. Gordon said that at the same time, he and the provincial finance ministers or treasurers will have a separate, general discussion on "economic trends and forecasts" and the kind of overall policies that are called for in the light of these trends and forecasts."

He had one such discussion with the provincial men in November, 1963, and said he hopes it will become an annual autumn event. The two meetings could influence taxing and spending policies of the 11 governments as they are reviewed in the spring budget speeches.

The tax structure committee will comprise senior federal representatives and one each, plus their aides, from the provinces. Much of the work will be done by government officials. But some research may also be assigned to outside organizations.

Object of the study is to lay a foundation for future revision of the current taxation agreements, which expire March 31, 1967.

Belleville Girl Sees 'Real Trouble' For Students Still in Mississippi

By STUART MacLOD

OTTAWA (CP) — In a race to the wire, Justice Minister Favreau and the 10 provincial attorneys-general were to meet today in an effort to establish a formula for repatriating the Canadian constitution before a dominion - provincial conference of premiers opens later in the day.

A six-hour meeting of the attorneys-general Tuesday failed to produce a final draft formula, and a sub - committee worked into the night trying to steer itself through the tricky terminology.

Prime Minister Pearson and the 10 premiers agreed in principle on the formula when they met in Charlottetown Sept. 1, but it was left to the attorneys-general to tackle the intricate details. Two meetings last week failed to establish a final formula, and Tuesday seven attorneys-general returned with new proposals.

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto student who spent the summer in Mississippi as a civil rights worker says some 200 students who have stayed there "are in for real trouble."

Diane Burrows, 22, of Belleville said in an interview Tuesday that now most FBI agents, justice department officials and reporters have left the state, the students workers who remain already are experiencing increased violence and terrorism.

Conditions are as bad now as in the spring when three United States civil rights workers were murdered in Philadelphia, Miss., she said. Letters from friends indicate more killings and beatings.

"It scares you when you know three people have just been murdered for the same thing you're doing," she said.

Miss Burrows, who spent a year teaching as a Canadian university service overseas volunteer in Jamaica, went to Biloxi, Miss., with a group which aimed to convince white southern moderates that they must speak out against segregation.

"We converted one segregationist," she said. She was a tugboat captain who then lost two jobs, was shot at and told by the Biloxi mayor that he would be in trouble when the interest of the country was no longer focused on the area.

Miss Burrows and Robert Cannon, another University of Toronto student, now are recruiting volunteers for next summer's civil rights drive.

Nobel Peace Prize Given To Dr. M. Luther King

OSLO (Reuters)—The Nobel Peace Prize for 1964 has been awarded to American Negro integrationist leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, it was officially announced here today.

The prize which will be handed over Dec. 10 during a ceremony in Oslo University, amounts to 273,000 Swedish crowns ($54,000).

Dec. 10 is the birthday of Alfred Nobel, the 19th century Swedish munitions maker and inventor of dynamite who left up the fund for the prize.

Further Development Of Zwick's Island Will Be Centennial Project of City

Further development of Zwick's Island will be Belleville's Centennial project, it has been decided by council.

Yesterday city council approved the report of a special committee named two weeks ago to come up with a centennial project for Zwick's Island and the same committee was re-named to bring in specific plans and estimated costs of the island development.

Two weeks ago council turned down a proposal from the Parks Board for construction of a recreational building on the fair grounds as a centennial project.

Yesterday council accepted the Zwick's Island proposal after a motion from Alderman Don Joss to table the matter for two weeks was defeated.

COMMITTEE UNANIMOUS

The special committee, consisting of Mrs. Jane Forrester, Gerald Wishart, Robert Phillips, Alderman Ben Corke, Don Williams and Joseph Raycroft, with Mayor Jack Ellis reported it was their firm and unanimous decision that the improvement of Zwick's Island as decided by city council in 1963 and 1964, should be proceeded with as the city's centennial project.

In the opinion of the committee, the Zwick's Island project presents the most acceptable answer to the largest cross section of the city's population. It fills one of the city's greatest needs and could be financed within the limits of centennial grants.

The committee reported it had considered each of the proposals made to the Parks Board, along with others which had since been prepared, but it was felt the Zwick's Island project compiled more fully with the objectives of the centennial commission.

Proponents of other proposals were commended for their suggestions and were encouraged to continue their efforts where possible as service clubs or private ventures.

Centennial projects need not all be city financed, it was pointed out.

Alderman Ben Corke said centennial funds available would not entirely complete the proposed island development, but would go a long way toward this end.

He denied there had been any thought of the city's previous costs in the development of the city's share of the centennial project. That the city was considering offs was suggested by Ald. Don Joss.

MAY ASK EXTENSION

Both Mayor J. Ellis and Ald. Corke said they had no idea about such a thought might have originated. It was certainly not the thought of the special committee.

Applications for approval of municipal centennial projects must be in by November 30 but Mayor Ellis said he would make a request for an extension of time in the case of Belleville.

Y's Activities

WEST HILL GYM PROGRAM

Today the YMCA commences its extension program on the west hill again. The program that was offered last spring at a reduced rate will again be held at Prince Charles School. Last spring the activities were well received and this fall the "Y" expects even a greater turnout. The youngsters will be paying only 75 percent of the regular fee and less in some cases, yet they will be receiving almost the same program.

The days and times are as follows:

Gym Classes

Boys — Tuesdays — 4.15 to 5.00 for 8 to 10 year olds. 5.00 to 5.45 for 11 to 14 year olds.

Girls—Saturdays — 9 a.m. 4 times as above.

Swim Classes

Boys—Saturdays—1.15 to 1.45 for 8 to 14 year olds.

Girls—Saturday—1.45 to 2.15 for 8 to 14 year olds.

The gym classes will be held at the Prince Charles School playroom and playground and the swim classes will be conducted at the new YMCA pool.

Declare Winners In United Appeal Coloring Contest

Judges for the primary grades coloring contest sponsored by the Belleville United Appeal were announced on Tuesday. A prize-winner was chosen from each of the grades from one to four, and each will receive a gift for winning their first place in their category.

The winners are: Cheryl Morrison, 114 Foster Avenue, a grade one student at Queen Elizabeth School; Garry Barton, 75 Robins Crescent, from grade two at Harry J. Clarke School; the winner in the grade three entries was Harry Burley, 18 Bleecker Street, from Prince Charles School, and Yvonne Zoochkan, 26 Auburn Street, a grade four student at Parkdale School. Prizes have been presented to the United Appeal for the winners by Al Richwagon, manager of Ritenay Department Store.

Hundreds of entries were received at United Appeal headquarters and judges faced a difficult task of declaring winners. Because so many of the entries were so well done, the judges decided to award an honorable mention to the following students: Andrew Denyes, 238 Victoria Avenue, a grade one student at Sir Winston Churchill; Andy Groves, 14 Ridley Street, grade two pupil at King George School; Karen Prouix, 14 Alfred Drive, from grade three at St. Joseph's School and Carol Rushlow, 18 St. Paul Street, a grade four pupil at Queen Elizabeth School. Each later four will receive gifts from Shopette at the Belleville Plaza.

SUN VALLEY ORGANIST APPEARING NIGHTLY

Something new in entertainment for patrons of the Sun Valley Motor Inn the modern is Jerry Mann who will be playing nightly for you.

A musician who has incorporated a real touch of humor into his act, Jerry is well known in the west, especially the Winnipeg. Jerry Mann used to be a floral designer back in his native Estavan, Sask., where his father has a thriving nursery. Nowadays the type of designing this young man likes best to do with his gifted fingers is putting together organ melodies. This kind of work he prefers and which he does with outstanding success. Make a point of hearing this young man and you'll be glad you did . . . he is terrific.

Evangelists Hold Meetings For Children

A week of children's meetings has been planned for this community, with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Portway of Toronto, Canada, as the children's evangelists. Known to the children as "Aunt Pat" and "Uncle Bob", they have travelled across Canada as far as the United States with their car and trailer for years.

The meetings are being held at the Alliance Church, corner of Moira and Coleman Streets.

There is never a dull moment in these meetings with the children. They are action meetings, with much participation by the children themselves. For instance, there is a real 18 piece slide trombone band (toy trombones) with the children being taught to play and on the closing night, when the parents and friends are especially invited to attend, the children will render a special number. The Portways mainly employ the use of colored 35 mm slides. Pictures of every description to portray Bible truths in a manner that will appeal to the eye are produced. They also use puppets and Scene-O-felt pictures as well as other visual aids designed to bring to keep the interest of boys and girls. The children learn many choruses from the large book which is well illustrated with pictures. Bible verses are also illustrated and taught.

Children of the various faiths are found in these rallies. Those who maintain a certain attendance are given a suitable souvenir at the end of the week. The children are not kept too long, as the programs are held only for approximately one hour and fifteen minutes. The meetings are being held for six days only, from Oct. 13 to 18.

Mr. Portway is a graduate of the Prairie Bible Institute, Three Hills, Alta. He has taken further studies at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, Calif. Both he and his wife are graduates of the International Child Evangelism Institute. They have been engaged exclusively in presenting Bible truths in a manner that appeals to boys and girls.

Last evening saw an excellent attendance and much enthusiasm for the beginning of these meetings, Rev. Sackville Palmer, pastor of the Church, is expecting great blessings from the hand of the Lord upon these special services.

30 Building Permits Issued Total $390,775

Thirty building permits for a construction value of $390,775 were issued in Belleville during the month of September, according to the building inspector Grant Sickle.

Eight of the permits were for new dwellings with a value of $102,500, there were three permits for industrial structures costing $20,000, and one was for commercial permit for $146,000.

Heading the commercial structure list was the new Amidon grocery market on North Front Street; the structure to house a grocery store, bank branch, and one or two other stores.

Industrial permits were to Union Carbide Canada Limited, Northern Electric for structure on Adam Street, and to Wilson of Concrete for a warehouse costing $20,000.

TUNNEL LEADS TO BANK

OSHAWA (CP) — An 80-foot tunnel, from the basement of an unoccupied house to a nearby branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, was reported to police here Tuesday. The tunnel is in an east-end residential section of the city and passes behind another house and an underground factory to reach the bank.

Obituaries

KENNETH ROBERT PENNY

Napanee - Belleville

Kenneth Robert Penny died suddenly at his home, 88 Napier Street, Napanee, late Saturday afternoon, October 3. He and Mrs. Penny were about to start for Kingston to see their son-in-law, Melvin, who had been involved in a minor traffic accident two hours earlier and was in the Hotel Dieu Hospital when Mr. Penny succumbed to a heart attack. He had had a heart condition for several years. His son was released from hospital the following morning.

He was the son of Andrew Penny and his wife, the former Mary Alice Winter, both of the Empey Hill district. He lived for some time in Belleville, but had been a resident of Napanee for the past 26 years. He was a travelling salesman for 30 years, travelling for McCormick's Foods of Ottawa for the past 15 years. He was in his 55th year.

Mrs. Penny was formerly Kathleen Constance (Connie) Tilbrook of Belleville. She has one son, Allan Earl, a student of Toronto, and an only brother, Earl, of Centre Street, are survivors.

He was a member of Trinity United Church, and of Tuscan Lodge, A.F. & A.M. Masonic order. A Masonic funeral service was held at the Tierney Funeral Home, Sunday evening.

A quiet man, Mr. Penny was well known in this area. He was fond of the out-of-doors, especially of boating and fishing, and spent most happy hours at Beaver Lake with his family. He was a thoughtful neighbor.

The Rev. E. Irvine Johnston conducted the funeral service in Trinity United Church Monday at two o'clock. Mrs. Hugh Ramsay sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bearers were: Kelly Birch, Gordon Hall, Gordon Fresque, Earl Kimmett, Hugh Ramsay and Gordon Stephens.

The flower bearers were: Tom Breaugh, Fred Huffman, Claude Knight, Don Miller, Ben Forth, Harvey Lapum and Ken Tustin of Napanee, Reg Stalker and Carl Winter of Belleville.

Interment was in Riverview cemetery, Napanee.

Interment was in Eggleton cemetery.

Work on Street Will Not Be Done This Fall

City council yesterday gave first and second reading to a by-law authorizing resurfacing of North Front Street, but there is doubtful if the work will get underway this fall.

The reconstruction planned is the first phase of the over-all project, which would widen the street widened from the overhead railway bridge to 401 Highway.

First section to be dealt with between Evans Street and Craig Street.

The city's share of the cost has been estimated at approximately $48,584, the balance of the expected over-all cost of around $130,000 to be borne by the Highways Department, and various local utilities and service organizations.

Building Officials Will Be Welcomed to City by Mayor

Members of the Ontario Building Officials Association are holding their ninth annual conference in the city tomorrow and Friday with registration commencing this evening at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel on North Front Street.

The Association is made up mostly by members of municipal building inspectors with Don Bruce of Kingston as this year's president. Belleville building inspector Grant Sickle is a director and will act as chairman for the conference sessions.

The building officials will be welcomed to the city Thursday morning by Mayor Jack Ellis with city engineer Wilbur Purcell, municipal realtor president Gerald Joyce and Don Keller of the Quinte Home Builders also to assist in the welcoming ceremonies.

Addresses by top men in the building and related fields are scheduled, while delegates will also enjoy a tour of the Wilson Concrete Company plant.

New officers will be elected, while on the president's dinner Thursday evening the speaker will be Arthur Duncan, public relations director of the Sate Shoe Company.

LARGE APPETITES

The boa constrictor snake, sometimes as long as 14 feet, has been known to eat four lambs and digest the meal within 24 hours—borns and all.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSEBACK — In loving memory of our dear brother, Raymond Roseback, who passed away October 14, 1963.

Broken is the family circle,
Our dear one is passed away;
Passed from earth and earthly darkness,
Into bright and perfect day.
But we all must cease to languish,
Over the grave of him we love,
Sure we'll meet with joy in Jesus,
In the bright world above.
—Sadly remembered by brother Bill and Elizabeth Roseback.

BOYCE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harry Knowlton Boyce, who passed away October 14th, 1962.

The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved,
Be forgotten, dear Dad.
—Remembered by his wife and family.

SEMARK — In loving memory of my dear mother Annie Semark who passed away October 14th, 1946, also my dear Dad, Charles Semark, died 23rd, 1947.

October comes with deep regret,
That day the best I shall never forget.
Although I smile and seem carefree,
No one misses you more than me.
—So sadly missed but will always be remembered by daughter Rose, son-in-law Jack and grand children.

CARDS OF THANKS

A special thanks to Rev. J. J. O'Neil, Father McAvoy, Dr. McVicar, Mrs. Leo Mahoney and White and Morris Funeral Home. For the many beautiful floral wreaths and sympathy cards received.

We would like to thank relatives, neighbors and friends for their beautiful floral tributes and cards of sympathy at the loss of our dear husband, father and grandfather Clip Archibald. Belleville General Hospital, Dunn's Funeral Home and Rev. Mr. Kitchen.

Mrs. Kathleen Bovay and family.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to Marsh Hill community, friends and relatives for the many personal calls, gifts and cards on our recent bereavement.

Ben and Laura Bleecker.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Woodley and family sincerely thank neighbors and friends for floral tributes, expressions of sympathy and assistance shown during the loss of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. George T. Woodley.

Charges CMHC Experimenting in Home Standards

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is experimenting in home construction standards and doing it with 'build-ers' and home buyers' money, local home builders charged.

Lambert charged last night. Challenging Jack Raine of Kingston, a C.M.H.C. official in town as Quinte Home Builders' Association guest speaker last night, Mr. Lambert protested what he described as experimental changes in home building regulations.

He cited a specific case of an out-of-date regulation, the requirement for a door between the basement and the first floor of a house. The door, he said was a fire control carryover from the days when Canadian houses had heavy coal furnaces in the basement. He said that such a door in a modern home where a finished basement and electric heat is an extra cost to the builder and a nuisance to the buyer. Mr. Raine defended C.M.H.C. saying that the Corporation enforces standards but does not set them. He said the builders themselves help set the standards, through the National Home Builders' Association.

In a short speech before the question period, Mr. Lambert told the meeting that no excavation inspection will be carried out under the National Building Code regulations, and that it would be confined with only three inspections under the regulations. The inspections under the new regulations, he warned, will allow less leeway for local building practice and will place more stress on the National Building Code. He said the new regulations would mean little change to local builders, most of whom build to standards higher than those demanded by the code.

New Tenders to Be Called For Public Works Building

With tender prices running considerably over the estimated cost of the project, new tenders will be called for the construction of the proposed city public works building on Colem an Flats.

The estimated cost of the structure had been set at $185,000 but when tenders were received the lowest bid was $263,067 — or approximately $80,000 higher than expected.

Council yesterday voted to call new tenders for the structure, encompassing certain deletions as outlined by City Engineer Wilbur Purcell.

But the decision is call new tenders was not made without opposition.

Alderman Jarvah said new tenders were not justified, pointing out that contractors had bid in accordance with specifications. He noted that the consulting engineer had told them it would be legal for the city to negotiate with the contractor to get a lower cost building.

CHANGE OF SITE

Alderman Ben Corke agreed that it was ethical to negotiate with the contractor, but said he was still concerned that the estimated $185,000 cost no longer applied.

He said they were now being asked to take a second look at building at a greater cost than was expected. "We still have the taxpayers to consider," he said.

Alderman Jack Allin said he would not like the public to feel that the higher than expected tender costs were the result of the decision to change the location of the city barn from Foster Ward to Coleman Flats.

He said the cost would have been more than anticipated, even if construction had been done on the same location as the interior Mission in 1915 for service in the Sudan, but for health reasons she was forced down. In 1928 she assumed the editorship of The Circle of Young Canada, a page expressly for youth, printed in the Globe. One year later Miss Scott became religious editor of the Globe — a post she held until 1955. Her articles in the Globe were always signed "Cheerful Jane". Presently Miss Scott is a columnist for The Telegram. She also contributes to the Windsor Star. Apart from her reportorial work Miss Scott raised her two nephews.

Jane Scott Will Address Gideon Women

Belleville is to be the scene of a general meeting on October 16, 17 and 18 of Gideons from Eastern Ontario and Quebec. An important part of the proceedings is the part played by Ladies' Auxiliary, whose sessions will run somewhat in parallel with those of the men.

A feature of the Auxiliary meetings is the luncheon on Saturday noon to be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the guest speaker being Jane Scott.

Jane Scott was born and educated in Ontario's capital city, Toronto. After graduating from the Toronto Bible College she went to the Sudan in the interior Mission in 1915 for service in the Sudan, but for health reasons she was forced down. In 1928 she assumed the editorship of The Circle of Young Canada, a page expressly for youth, printed in the Globe. One year later Miss Scott became religious editor of the Globe — a post she held until 1955. Her articles in the Globe were always signed "Cheerful Jane". Presently Miss Scott is a columnist for The Telegram. She also contributes to the Windsor Star. Apart from her reportorial work Miss Scott raised her two nephews.

Referendum on Reduction Of City Council May Be Held

City residents may have the opportunity this fall to say whether or not they feel city council has too many members.

In a referendum scheduled for the civic elections, they will be asked whether or not they feel council should be reduced to 10 aldermen and a mayor, from the present 14 aldermen.

The matter was first brought up two weeks ago by Mayor Jack Ellis who said he would bring it in later for discussion.

Yesterday he asked whether council felt the matter should be handled by way of private bill or by a vote of the people.

Consensus of council was that the question should be decided by a vote of the people. It will be up to the first time that city residents have voted on the question.

Alderman Ross David said that back in 1955 the same question was asked and voters by a substantial majority favored the council reduction.

He said that with a city manager form of municipal government the trend was toward smaller councils.

"We have too many members and there is too much talking," said Alderman Jarvah.

"Are you speaking for yourself" queried another member.

But the wish of the voters back in 1955 was never carried out.

The following year certain council members opposed the move, and a by-law to effect the decision to continue the 14-man council.

But before the question can be placed before the electors again this year, a covering by-law will have to be passed by council at its next meeting.

ELECTED LAST NIGHT as president and first and second vice presidents of the Quinte Home Builders' Association were Charles Lambert, (top right), Maurice Rollins, (left), and Stan Klemencic. The three, with other officers of the Association, will be installed next month.

Builders Elect Charles Lambert As President

Quinte Home Builders' Association elected a new executive last night, for the coming season. The new officers will be installed at the next monthly meeting, probably by a National Home Builders' Association official.

President for the coming year is Charles Lambert, first vice president is Maurice Rollins and second vice president is Stan Klemencic, of Trenton. Joe Cox is secretary, Roy Solmes is treasurer and new directors are Al Horlock, Earl DeMille, Garn Peacock, Doug Bone and Randy Loewen. Don Keller, as president of the Association for the past year, is the sixth director this year.

Red Feather Report

Now in the second last day of the official campaign, Belleville United Appeal is building up steam. Campaign officials now believe the campaign will stretch out to about four weeks — the same length of time as last year's campaign, and the length of most United Appeal campaigns throughout the country. Part of the slow start was because of organization problems. Some local firms did not receive their pledge cards until the end of the first week of the official campaign, and the Jaycee-sponsored United Appeal feather on Bridge Street was not completed until yesterday.

Official receipts at the United Appeal office in the Eldwanis Centre now total about $15,300 with over $11,000 more collected but not yet turned in. Campaign officials believe the total receipts so far are closer to $30,000. In-plant campaign reports have been received from seven of the 14 largest employee groups in the city and five of the 12 largest private firms have so far given corporate gifts.

People are giving more at this time in the campaign, too. An unconfirmed report from R.C.I. and V.S. says that the 50 or 60 teachers there have given $1,000 so far, and that the campaign continues. Higher average donations reported so far are in the concrete block division of Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., where 28 of 29 employees gave donations and where the average donation was about $16 per employee. Reports from other departments at Wilson's are yet to come.

Pickets Kill Two Birds With One Stone

There's nothing like killing two birds with one stone.

At least that apparently is the thought of strike picketers at the new liquor store building on Station Street.

The two on duty picketers were seen patrolling in front of the strike slowed project carrying their placards, but they were getting in a bit of recreation along with their strike duty.

The picketers had set up two iron pegs at the limits of their patrol and in conjunction with their strike duty were enjoying a game of horseshoes.

Percentage of Residents On Relief Still Among Highest in the Province

Although welfare costs in Belleville have been reduced by slightly over 50 per cent in the past year, the percentage of city residents on relief is still among the highest in the province.

This was stated in council last night by Mayor Jack Ellis in reply to a query as to whether telephone calls to him regarding welfare payments had been increased.

The mayor said that the 2.8 per cent of the city population on welfare was double the percentage in Brantford, which had been declared a distressed area.

Only four places in the province had a higher population percentage on relief than Belleville, he said.

The mayor said that welfare reductions in the city had been largely due to "honest" reductions gained mainly through direct employment and retraining, along with proper counselling on the part of welfare department in getting relief recipients back on the right track.

Alderman Ben Corke said that complaints of hardship in many instances had been proven by investigation to be groundless.

He complimented the welfare administrator on his complete awareness of relief recipients needs and said he treated people as individuals and not as mere numbers on his relief roles.

Refer Letter From Resident To Manager

A letter from Stanley G. Bennett, 11 Elgin Street, referring to the proposed closing of the south end of Elgin Street and complaining of "deplorable" conditions said existing along the street, has been referred to council by the city manager.

The letter stated that proposals for the construction of a cut de sac with a ten-foot sidewalk had not been constructed, while Wilson Concrete trucks were still using the street.

Mr. Brown asked that some thing be done to clean up this situation.

The letter was referred by council without comment to the city manager.

Sub-Division Control Given For Three Areas

Sub - division control for three largely undeveloped areas in the city has been designated by city council on recommendation of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

The areas recommended for sub-division control are 1: the northeast section of the city bounded by the river on the west, the city limits on the east and between 401 on the north and the CN railway on the south; 2: the undeveloped area between North Front Street and the river and between 401 highway and Orchard Drive, and 3: the industrial area east of Stanley Street and between the railway track and the Pine Street area.

The cost of introducing subdivision control in the three areas is estimated at approximately $970.

Mayor Ellis said sub-division control in the above three areas would assure orderly industrial development.

Alderman Wants Action on Traffic Lights

Still another request for traffic lights at the corner of Coleman and Moira streets, was made to city council yesterday.

Alderman Jack Deacon told council that no intersection in the city was in greater need of action than was the above corner and yet all requests for traffic lights had met with the reply of "no money."

At the same time however, Ald. Deacon said he had found $500 to spend in an airport access road outside the city limits. He said he was glad for sub-divisional control and another $400 to repoint mortar on the city hall basement — all expenditures not provided for in the budget.

"I hope we can soon get some action at Coleman and Moira streets," he said.

TO DOUBLE FLEET

TOKYO (Reuters) — A plan for construction of between 7,200,000 and 7,400,000 gross tons of new shipping for the Japanese merchant fleet over the next four years was announced by the transport ministry Wednesday. This will almost double the Japanese merchant fleet, which was estimated at the end of the 1963 financial year at about 8,000,000 gross tons.

Hope to Raise $2,000 in VON Canvass

TRENTON — George Greer, this year's president of the Trenton Victorian Order of Nurses' branch, said yesterday the branch hopes to realize upwards of $2,000 in the door-to-door canvass of the town, Bayside and Frankford, when starts on Oct. 19. The campaign will continue until the end of the month.

Mr. Greer said that office rent this year would come to $600, as compared with the $60 the branch paid each year for the nurses' office in the old CNE station. Council has upped its 1963 grant of $3,200 to $3,500, to assist with the larger rental rate. But the VON suffered a deficit of around $1,100 on operations last year. The branch took in $8,700 and expenditures came to $9,800 . . . $7,200 of this going for nurses' salaries.

Captains for the campaign have been named. Mrs. Jack Couture, and Mrs. Michael David will head up the east Trenton canvass and cover Bayside. FK-Lt. James Giles has taken on the Middleton Park area. Mrs. Dorothy Dobbin and a former VON nurse Mrs. Turtle, will handle the west Trenton campaign. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wickson will conduct the canvass in Frankford. Mrs. Nell Ramsay will cover the trailer parks east of the town.

Constable Is Selected

TRENTON — The Trenton Police Commission has hired 21-year-old William Mallory as constable for the Trenton force. Mr. Mallory, who is married with one child, lives in Wooler. He attended East Northumberland Secondary School and saw brief service with the RCAF. His father, William Mallory works at the Canada Cementing Company in Trenton. Mr. Mallory's duties will commence Oct. 19.

Trenton Airman Receives Award

Corporal J. A. Laliberte, CD, formerly of Quebec City, and presently residing at 154 Dundas Street East, Belleville, Ontario, receives a cheque and certificate sticker from Group Captain E. M. Butcher, CD, Commanding Officer, RCAF Station Trenton, Ontario. This sticker represents the second suggestion submitted by Corporal Laliberte which has been adopted by the Department of National Defence.

Stolen Car Soon Recovered

TRENTON—At 3:00 p.m. yesterday afternoon, Robert James Ward of Cobourg, reported his car stolen from in front of Brown's Handy Stand on Byron Street, to Trenton police.

The automobile had been left parked with the keys in the ignition switch.

Trenton police recovered the car at 9:00 p.m. last night near the filtration plant located in east Trenton. Constable Sidney Vickers of the Trenton Police Department is investigating.

REPTILE FOUND

Parts of the jawbone and teeth of a 200,000,000-year-old sea reptile have been found in the southern-most tip of New Zealand.

He Should Resign

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville has had charges of municipal corruption and conspiracy against him dismissed at a preliminary hearing.

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of Sudbury when that city granted a franchise for the distribution of natural gas to Northern Ontario Natural Gas Ltd.

He was later granted an option for 10,000 shares of the company at a price which enabled him to make a profit of $117,000 one year after he resigned as mayor. In actual fact he never paid any money for the shares, some of them being sold at a price which covered the full cost of all of them and this being done before the shares which he eventually sold for $117,000 were delivered to him.

A court has decided that this transaction did not involve corruption. This decision was reached by a competent magistrate after careful consideration of extensive evidence.

We think he should be exonerated.

But we also think that Mr. Justice Landreville should resign from the Ontario Supreme Court. He has not been corrupt. But, on the face of it, he has used poor judgment. Sound judgment is a prerequisite of a qualified jurist. Moreover, there is no evidence that Mr. Justice Landreville has yet acquitted good judgment. After the preliminary hearing, he shook hands with the magistrate who dismissed the charges against him. Then he objected to a photographer taking a picture of this handclasp, because, according to The Toronto Star, he was fearful it might give "the wrong impression." In effect, Mr. Justice Landreville is himself contending the handclasp was unwise. He is also reported by The Star to have said, "There'll be hell to pay" if the picture was used, which does not seem to us an evidence of good judgment.

This is not the sort of thing which builds confidence in our courts.

Who Said So?

Being by nature cantankerous, nothing delights us more than to prowl amongst a goodly collection of assorted conclusions, in the hope of discovering some unaccompanied by an adult warrant.

The sort of unwarranted conclusion which pleases us best turned up in Scott's Scrap Book on this page the other day.

"Owls," we were told, "are night birds because their chief food is mice, which are nocturnal in their habits."

Who said so? Maybe the owls like the night anyway. Maybe they just eat mice because there is nothing better roaming around after dark.

At the very least, this is a "which came first, the chicken or the egg" problem. We do not see how, without learning to owl, scientist could discover whether owls are night birds because they eat mice, or whether they eat mice because they are night birds. Some evidence could be presented for the latter conclusion —owls have a hard time seeing in the daytime, but that may be no more than a coincidence. For all know a diet of mouse meat may be as bad for the eyesight as carrots are good. The reader is asked to note that this was not a positive statement. We do not like leaving unwarranted conclusions lying around loose for others to harvest.

Forged for Another Purpose

Although we are not opposed to the death sentence, we do believe its use should be strictly limited and that capital punishment should be inflicted only when the offender has himself taken a life.

The penalty is too severe even for such terroristic tactics as bombings, if these explosions do not result in death.

We would not, therefore, support the state law in Mississippi, which provides the death penalty for bombings.

We admit, however, to a certain grim satisfaction in the fact that this law, passed fifteen years ago in an effort to stop violence in a bus strike, should now be invoked against those who are bombing the homes of Negroes.

The men who now face the possibility of the death penalty are not, we suspect, precisely the sort of people whom the Mississippi legislators expected to catch in the death penalty net.

This is a highly satisfactory situation.

Liberty, morality, and the human dignity of man consist precisely in this, that he does good, not because it is commanded, but because he conceives it, wills it and loves it.—Bakunin.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 14th, 1944

A used paper shortage of many thousands of tons is threatened in Canada and the United States for the last months of this year. If it developed such a shortage would lead to privations and adversely affect the war effort, for waste paper is our No. 1 war material shortage.

Stowed away in cellars, attics, garages and other places of storage is a vast quantity of periodicals and other paper products. Within easy reach there is the paper needed to offset to a great extent the threatened shortage.

On the transports that carry the war supplies to the battle front you will find Private Paper doing his duty day and night. In containers he carries the vital blood plasma for the wounded; he folds himself about medical supplies, repair parts, and he flutters to earth in paper parachutes that carry supplies to the fighting forces.

30 YEARS AGO

After a lapse of two years, talking pictures are again being made at the Ontario Motion Picture Studio at Trenton.

Mr. T. Ed. Ketcheson, city assessor and tax collector, has just completed his assessment work and says that he did not find half as many vacant houses as was the case last year. There is considerable building of new homes throughout the city, also a healthy increase in population.

Local commercial fishermen state that pickerel are a drug on the market at present owing to the large cills in the United States being unsupplied with importations from the west. In Belleville instead of receiving the customary nine and 12 cents per pound, the price offered fishermen is six cents per pound wholesale.

Grading of the new athletic and agricultural park and the construction of a half mile track will be done by the Patterson Construction Co. of this city at the cost of $7,295. John Donovan's tender was $7,472, and the bid of T. Manley and Sons was $9,576.

Strictly Personal
Fun Thinking Of a Name For Boat

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Much against my better judgment, and despite my quivering fear of the water (I get slightly hysterical under the shower), we bought a little powerboat late this summer, and have had a lot of fun thinking of a name for it.

One of the nicest touches of God's diffidence in the Bible is allowing Adam to name all the animals in Eden. Men love to name things, as a way of humanizing them; and even a boat becomes more of a personality when it has a name rather than merely a registration number.

Looking at the names of boats in the harbor this summer, one was struck by the lack of imagination in most of them. A few were apt and witty; most were nautical cliches or, at the other extreme, too coy for words. The art of naming is not a talent that is widely spread around.

I remember hearing years ago of a plumbing contractor who got rich during the war and bought an enormous yacht from some impoverished ducal family in Europe. With a fine flair for self-laughter, he named his ship "Royal Flush."

And a noted bridge champion bought a boat that turned out to be fast and hard-pounding; after the first turbulent trip, he peevishly christened it "Cross Ruff," which gave all bridge players a chuckle.

Occupational puns have provided some amusing names. There is a physician who named his craft, "Off Call"; an infantry officer named his "At Ease"; and an orchestra leader dubbed his boat "Impromptu."

Equally deft is the name a college algebra teacher gave to his sloop: "Aftermath." And I once heard about a man named John somebody-or-other who spent so much time working on the used yawl he had just bought that he regretted not having named it all it "John's Other Wife."

"In" jokes are funny, of course, only to a limited audience. I was told of a Jewish man on Long Island Sound who named his cruiser, "S.S. Mein Kinned." Also with an ethnic flavor is the name given to a cutter owned by a tailor at a manufacturer — "Sam," because so many cutters in the garment industry are named Sam.

A symphony conductor named his racing schooner "Allegro." When it limped in last in three races, he rechristened it "Andante." And a fallacious name can be parlayed on a big ship with a dinghy: the sloop "Wing" has a dinghy named "Whisper," while the roguish owner of the cruiser "Mistress" calls its dinghy "Love Child."

Any suggestions for mine?

To Your Good Health
Gynecomastia Condition Will Gradually Disappear

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Within the last few months my 13-year-old son has developed a lump or swelling in both breasts about the size of a walnut. He says there is no soreness.

Since he is a very thin boy, it is even more obvious and embarrassing when he goes swimming or is wearing knit shirts that cling.

Should he be examined, or is this just one of the changes he is undergoing at his age? — Mrs. F. R. B.

Since it is on both sides, it sounds very much like a condition called gynecomastia, or enlarged breast tissue in a male.

A recent study of more than 2,000 teenage boys revealed this to be present to some degree in a little more than one-third. These boys were in that same approximate age bracket.

The condition is thought to be related to the hormone imbalance which can take place at puberty.

You may want to call it to your doctor's attention, but for your peace of mind, it disappears in one or two years as the boy matures and hits his stride physiologically speaking, as a male.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your leaflet on "Vitamins, the Alphabet of Health." I enclose 10 cents in coin and, long, unstamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Which vitamins are most beneficial for chronic bronchitis and chronic paranasal sinusitis? Which one, according to doctors, is caused from allergies. — Mrs. J. P.

The leaflet is on its way, but there are no special vitamins that affect these ills. Yes, for that matter, there are relatively few ailments which will be helped by specific vitamins.

Vitamins are necessary for general good health. They are necessary for vigorous health. But they are not a medicine.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please help. My six-year-old boy has been destructive and sometimes cruel ever since he was little. He still destroys all his toys, tricycle, everything. He has destroyed a doorframe, trees, and put water in a car and it had to be worked on. He tears up the neighbor's mail, puts our dog in the washer or dryer and even in the garbage can. It's always something every day. I am at my wits' end. Should I be concerned or is he "just a boy"? — Mrs. C. J.

You decidedly must be concerned. This is not normal "boy" behavior. I have seen youngsters like this who ended up behind bars because their actions were dismissed as "boys will be boys."

This boy is rebelling against something, but it doubtless will take expert study to find out just what. You need child guidance counselor, or should have the boy examined by a child psychiatrist. There may be some situation within the family, and you are too close to it to be able to see it clearly. By all means get professional help while there remains time to do something about this situation.

Note to "Confidential": Your troubles are far in excess of the annoying but natural problems of menopause. The extreme crying spells and thoughts of self-destruction don't fit with that. But they do sound like a psychological depression, which can't be solved by mere sedatives or tranquillizers. Go to a psychiatrist, because this sort of problem, frightening and dangerous, can be solved by some of the newer drugs, and guidance and advice.

A Pity

What a pity then that for its first all-out effort in major film production (The Luck of Ginger Coffey) the Canadian industry should choose a play written by an Irishman, have it produced by an American, directed by another American and use for its leading stars British actor Robert Shaw and British actress Mary Ure.

Banks Should Vary Hours

Toronto Star

One minute after three o'clock in the afternoon you might as well forget that you have money in the bank.

The doors of some 5,500 bank offices across the country are closed and if you need money in a hurry only friends or friendly stores will cash your cheque.

The public has grown accustomed to the uniform banking hours of 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with some additional late-afternoon time on Fridays. There is, however, no reason why Canadian banks, guardians of some $16 billion in deposits, could not provide better service to their customers.

It is surprising, indeed the Royal Commission on Banking and Finance, that banks do not compete with each other or with other institutions by fitting their office hours to varying local conditions.

The banks must surely recognize that the requirements of a suburban housewife differ from those of an office worker or businessman downtown. Yet the standardized business hours make no allowance for different banking habits.

This is not so in the United States where individual banks are engaged in keen competition. In New York City, for example, certain bank branches open 8:30 in the morning while others close late in the evening. The variety of banking hours enables the public to open accounts at those branches which provide the most convenient services.

From time to time, Canadian banks announce that they are conducting experiments to find out whether longer banking hours would result in a fall about increased salaries and administrative problems which would result from the change.

The experiments so far have hardly been impressive. They consist of keeping two branch offices, both in the Toronto area, open until 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday and during Saturday morning.

There was a day when chartered banks alone were virtually the whole financial system of Canada. This is no longer the case. Trust companies and other savings institutions have emerged as vigorous competitors, flexible enough to satisfy their customers.

Instead of complaining publicly about legislative restrictions the banks — which are still the financial giants of Canada — should put into action their much-advertised concern about serving the general public.

Swedes Reject 'Streaming'

Stratford Beacon-Herald

"Streaming" is one of the jargon words now much in use in connection with education in Ontario. It is used to convey the idea of separating pupils in their progress through the school system, into "streams" which are intended to flow at different rates, or toward different educational deltas.

This streaming principle is most obviously to be seen at work in the new system of secondary education in Ontario. The doctrine now calls for three main streams, one carrying pupils toward university entrance, another carrying them toward a diploma certifying to a general education ending at Grade 12, and a third carrying them toward graduation from a technical or vocational course.

* * *

In Sweden, the streaming idea was introduced into the school system about 30 years ago. Ten years ago the Swedes scrapped the idea, and went back to the old-fashioned plan of having a mixture of pupils of various abilities, and various kinds of ability, all in one stream. The Swedish example may not be applicable to Ontario conditions, but it provides an interesting comparison. A number of articles on current educational methods in Sweden have been written by John D. Wilson of London, who recently spent a year doing graduate study in Sweden.

The authorities in Sweden abolished the streaming principle in their school system, Mr. Wilson reports, because they decided after a trial of about a decade that it tended to produce an "elite" group, Swedish educational dogma lays stress on the function of the school as a preparation for the practice of democracy; Swedish educators play down the teaching of facts, and play up group projects, and the teaching of oral self-expression.

After a few years of experimenting with streaming, the Swedes abolished it, because they considered it more important to encourage the principle of equality. They are back to the idea of letting everyone go along together at the same average speed, whether they are slow learners or rapid learners whether they are of average intelligence or students at a practical inclination.

There is still controversy in Sweden on the question of whether or not to abolish streaming. The motive for abolition appears to have been at least partly political, rather than purely educational. The government at the time of writing was stopped was of the Social Democratic Party, with a socialist viewpoint which preferred equality, to the extent of preserving an equal schooling for all.

The Ontario solution is not likely to be the same as the Swedish solution, but the same problem exists to be faced. Can we get the advantages of streaming, and of suiting the education to the individual, and at the same time avoid the danger of allotting status according to stream?

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Prices for choice dry-fed slaughter cattle were steady on a moderate demand at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Lower grades of slaughter cattle, particularly heifers were under pressure and difficult to sell.

Veal calf prices were steady. Hog prices were higher and sheep and lamb prices were higher.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices moved lower in moderate trading on the stock market today.

Industrials were hit by profit taking but losses were restricted to fractions. Chemcell dipped ¾ to 16¾ while Bank of Montreal fell ⅞ to 68¾.

In the easier base metals list, Inco fell ⅛ to 80⅛. Hudson Bay countered the trend with a gain of ⅜ to 73¼.

Speculative activity was concentrated in a handful of issues. Texmonth was ahead four to 40 cents.

On index, industrials were down .43 to 166.82, golds .25 to 144.79, base metals .23 to 71.59 and the Exchange index .45 to 155.75. Western oils gained .05 to 97.85. Volume at 11 a.m. was 944,000 shares compared with 781,000 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

On Tuesday, the market rallied at the close to score an industrial index high and fractional gains on all fronts.

The 80-stock industrial index hit 167.31 with a .01 rise on the strength of gains to most issues. A few key index stocks had healthy advances.

Imperial Oil was favored with a 1⅛ rise to 54⅝ and at one point touched a high of 54¾. Trading was heavy. British Columbia tele phone, MacMillan Bloedel and Bank of Montreal each gained ½ to 63½, 36¼ and 68 respectively, while Bank of Nova Scotia and Dominion Electrohome each gained ¼ to 77¼ and 15, the latter at its high.

Steloo was ahead ⅛ to 27¼ after touching a high of 27¼, while Abitibi and Algoma Steel each racked up 18 to 15¾ and 74. Texaco and Aluminum each advanced ⅜ to 63 and 25¾.

Base metals added 6¼ cents to 19 cents and traded 336,300 shares. Other speculative volumes were low.

Senior base metals were strong throughout the session and hit an index high at 1 p.m. of 71.17. They backed away from the peak at the close, however. Hudson Bay was ahead ⅛ to 73¼ while Cassiar and Noranda gained ¼ each to 49¾ and 12. Craigmont advanced ⅜ to 17 but Inco fell ⅛ to 84.

On index, industrials rose .01 to 167.31, golds .43 to 145.04, base metals .37 to 71.81, western oils .26 to 96.80 and the TSE index .07 to 136.20. Volume was 3,936,000 shares compared with 2,964,000 shares traded Friday.

WESTERN TIRE STORES will open this new outlet, shown above, in the Belleville Shopping Plaza on Thursday. The store is located in the northeast corner of the plaza and will be operated by manager Ray Walker formerly of Canadian Tire Corporation.

Conservatives Asked to Share In Foundation

Every Progressive Conservative in Canada is being invited to share in the foundation of the Macdonald-Cartier Memorial Library. It will be located at the new National Headquarters of the party in Ottawa.

This Centennial project is the Memorial Process that the Women's Progressive Conservative Association of Canada is providing, in memory of two great Fathers of Confederation; Sir John A. Macdonald who was the first Prime Minister of Canada, and George E. Cartier, who carried his home province of Quebec into the Federation, and became Minister of Militia and Defence in the first Dominion Cabinet.

Records of speeches, posters, biographies and diaries of historical value are already on hand, and will be made available for public use. The library will provide valuable reference material for students, historians and authors.

This program has been launched from National Headquarters of the Progressive Conservative Party. Committee members will operate from the smallest rural hamlet to the largest municipality.

A Memorial Record Book will be prepared with the names of all donors and placed in the library for display.

New Western Tire Store Opens at Plaza Thursday

Thursday is "W.T.O." Day in Belleville — Western Tire Opening.

That's right. The new Western Tire store located in the north-east corner of the Belleville Shopping Plaza will be officially opened to the shopping public on Thursday morning.

Still under construction by Hugh Murray Limited, general contractor, it is expected the new structure will be completed by Thursday and ready for inspection by the public.

Offering the most modern tire and auto accessories, the new store will be operated by manager Ray Walker, formerly of the Canadian Tire Corporation Mr. Walker has been employed by CTC for the past 17 years at their Coleman Street store.

The new building measuring 70 feet by 70 feet will serve three main purposes — the main store — service department and gasoline and oil facilities, accessible from the Bridge Street entrances.

Eight persons will be employed at the store with four manning the service department and four in the stores division.

COMPLETE LINES CARRIED

Here the motorist will find everything he will need to repair his automobile and if he likes, he can have it serviced in the service department located on the northend of the new structure.

A complete line of top quality tires is available at Western Tire along with a wide selection of various auto accessories such as radios, batteries and wheel discs etc.

In addition to automobile parts and accessories, the hunter and the fisherman will also be able to find what they are looking for in the spacious sports department. Here too, there is a wide assortment of sporting goods such as hockey and baseball equipment.

Most of the sporting goods will carry the autograph of Chicago Black Hawks' left-winger Bobby Hull.

Cyclists will also be accommodated with a complete line of bicycles and accessories. There is also a department for the mechanic and the carpenter with the latest assortment of brand name equipment.

Western Tire will be open Monday through Saturday at 8.00 a.m. until 6.00 p.m. in the evening, remaining open for the late shopper on Friday nights.

In view of Thursday's opening, the new store will be open Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

Question Laid Over by Council For Two Weeks

The finance and executive committee of city council feels that the control and operation of city parks should be the responsibility of council rather than by the parks board as presently constituted.

Accordingly, it is recommending that the city electorate be asked whether it favors repealing the by-law under which the local parks board management was set up, so that the control, management and operation of parks will be re-vested with council.

Yesterday council on a close vote decided to lay the matter over for two weeks, but not before city parks board chairman Ald. Don Jose enlarged the finance and executive committee with being "all-powerful" and wanting to abolish the parks board.

committee would bring in such

"I am surprised that the a recommendation," he said.

CHAIRMAN BREAKS TIE

The advisement accompanying the committee recommendation said the committee had come to the conclusion that it would be in the best interests of the city, particularly for administration, that the Parks Board, Recreation and Arena Committee be amalgamated and placed under control of council.

Alderman Joss moved for the committee recommendation to be tabled for two weeks, but a tie vote resulted.

Alderman John Deacon as chairman of the committee of the whole cast his vote in favor of tabling and the matter will be before council again at its next meeting.

But time is growing short to get the question before the electors this year, and even if council favors the referendum, the covering by-law would have to be passed in two weeks' time.

eral L. R. Curtis said no major problems remained, and he was sure agreement could be reached. Quebec Attorney-General Paul Gerin-Lajoie, when asked if progress had been made Tuesday, said, "Yes indeed."

They were working on a formula under which the Canadian Parliament could amend the constitution without getting final approval from the British Parliament. The formula is intended to insure that the rights of both the federal and provincial governments are safeguarded before full control of the constitution comes into the hands of Parliament.

The formula which the premiers approved in principle last month was drawn up by former Conservative Justice minister E. Davie Fulton in 1961, but was objected to by the then CCF government of Saskatchewan.

These are some of the main provisions of the formula:

1. All provinces must give their approval before the federal government amends any section of the constitution dealing with such provincial jurisdictions as education, language and property and civil rights.

2. Sections involving only some provinces could be amended with the consent of the provinces concerned.

3. Amendments not affecting basic provincial rights could be made with the approval of two-thirds of the provinces—seven—providing those provinces represented at least half the Canadian population.

4. Providing there was agreement by both levels of government, Parliament could enact laws in the jurisdiction of the provinces and vice-versa.

had suggested a good turnout to show gratitude for what The Daily Express termed "true courage in going to Canada at this difficult time."

First to greet the Queen was Lionel Chevrier, Canadian high commissioner in London, who with other airport and Air Canada officials was stationed at the foot of the plane's steps to welcome her home.

Later Chevrier said, "she has done a great job for Canada."

The Queen, wearing a mustard yellow costume, smiled happily in response to the welcome but some observers remarked that she looked a bit tired.

Most of the early editions of today's papers carried pictures of the Queen waving goodbye at Ottawa and gave wide play to the warm sendoff she got in contrast with her chilly reception in Quebec.

And The Financial Times says the visit was "a political gamble" by Prime Minister Pearson "which does not appear to have come off."

"He evidently thought his federal government's new approach to Quebec might gain in authority and popularity if it was put across by the Queen in person in her speech," the newspaper says.

"The extremist separatists in Quebec were expected to cause trouble. What was more disappointing was the apparent indifference of the more level-headed majority of the Quebec population to the Queen and

The Experts Say

Successful Party Recipe: Mix the Guests Carefully

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—If you want your guests to be comfortable at a party, you should allow about five square feet of space for each of them.

Draw up a guest list with an eye to mixing and matching people carefully to make certain they will have something to say to one another.

The type of party you give will depend on the type of guests you are asking, and that will determine the costs.

Claire Dreier, specialist in wedding planning, says there are books on entertaining that can help you plan and predict costs if you are preparing everything yourself.

For instance, she says, a good reference will tell you that two slices of bread make four party sandwiches, and that people eat about 3½ sandwiches each.

BE AT YOUR PARTY

Even if you must make a check list, Miss Dreier says, "get organized so that you have absolutely everything done — sandwiches made, ash trays and coasters around. The successful hostess is not one who has to keep running to the kitchen."

Partly to keep people moving around, not standing still in their five-foot space, put the bar, if there is one, in the farthest spot from the door. Do not put all of your food on one table. Scatter plates of it around the room.

"If you are serving a buffet dinner, arrange your furniture around the room so people can sit in groups.

"Serve both tea and coffee and if you are saving space, you can serve it from the kitchen. Bring it in on small trays, and have someone help you by serving the cream and sugar. Use lump sugar at a party.

"Serve hot things hot and cold things cold and have plenty of ice for beverages. And make sure you have enough—do not run out of supplies.

"If you have a specialty in food, always serve it. If you are trying something new, try it on yourself the first time, never on guests. Do not apologize for what you serve. After all, you chose it."

HELP WALLFLOWER

If you see someone sitting alone, you can help him and help your party by putting him to work. Ask him to pass sandwiches, empty ash trays serve coffee.

As hostess, you should find time to spend a relaxed few minutes with every one of your guests.

If you are giving a big party, introduce the first few arriving to one another, and after that introduce newcomers only to the few nearest people. Big party or small, you must be available to greet all of your guests.

Miss Dreier suggested that because of the current elegance in fashions and of hostess styles, a glamorous party might be fun. Your women guests would enjoy having an excuse to wear their latest.

MR. AND MRS. LESLIE CLIFFORD CASSELMAN

Casselman – Roth

White gladioli and blue tinted mums decorated the Church of St. Michael the Archangel when Msgr. J. P. Sullivan united in marriage Barbara Ann Roth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Roth, 21 Albion Street and Leslie Clifford Casselman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Castelman, R.R. 4, Belleville. Organ music was provided by Miss Dorothy Grant.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length gown of white nylon organza over taffeta, designed in princess line, with appliqued roses on the front. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place with roses and tear drop pearls, and she carried a bouquet of pink baby roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Suzanne Adams of Scarborough and the bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Roth, sister of the bride and Miss Sharon Genereaux of Belleville. They were all attired in sky blue brocade street-length dresses. Their headpieces were sky blue satin rosettes with tulle veils and each carried a bouquet of white and blue tinted mums.

Mr. Vincent Gohden of Oshawa was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Robert Casselman and Mr. Richard Casselman, brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Elk's Lodge on Front Street where Mrs. McKenna served. A three-tier wedding cake was topped with swans and a bride and bridegroom arrangement. White candles and the bouquets of the wedding party added to the setting.

The bride's mother wore a two-piece tomato-red wool dress with black accessories and a corsage of white feather carnations, as she received the guests.

The bridegroom's mother assisted at the reception wearing a two-piece beige suit with autumn green accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

The young couple left on a trip to Northern Ontario, with the bride dressed in a beige two-piced suit of alpine with brown accessories and corsage of feathered yellow carnations.

Out of town guests attended the wedding from Toronto, Kingston, Bancroft, Stretford, Stevensville, Napanee, Clarkson and Scarboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Casselman will take up residence at 295 James Street, Oshawa.

Dope-Addicted 'Friends' Not Friends at All

DEAR DORIS — I am 18. This past year I have been going around with a bunch of kids from the other side of town. Just recently I was offered a cigarette. I took it and found out it had Marijuana in it.

These kids are all right except for a few faults. If I don't smoke these cigarettes I'm sure they'll think I'm square and disband me of their crowd. If I had lots of other friends I wouldn't mind too much, but I don't have too many.

Do you think I should leave this bunch or do you think I could stay with them and try not to participate in their unhealthy habits? — CONFUSED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CONFUSED — Is it better to be a square or a dope addict? These misguided "kids" should be avoided like the plague. They are no friends of yours.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — About children returning home from school to an empty house. I feel I must add one more point.

It's today's society that is wrong, that means both parents need to work to keep up with obligations. Let's hope that more people see this before they get involved in the same rat race. — OBSERVANT HOUSEWIFE AND MOTHER.

DEAR OBSERVANT — Right! Those first few years are vital to health growth. Parents must decide whether they are content to provide material comforts to the exclusion of loving, personality-growing, companionship.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I read your good advice each night and I'm sure you can help me.

Our daughter of 21 has been going with a very nice chap for 1½ years. Recently they went on a shopping trip and she came home with two dresses, the one she tells me the boy friend bought for her.

I was very displeased and claim she should not have accepted it. Have standards changed so much today that I am being stuffy? — DISPLEASED.

DEAR DISPLEASED — You are not stuffy but sensible. A man starts buying a woman's clothes after he marries her: not before.

• • •

Confidential to DESPERATE — A man 35 who has affairs with teen-agers is a poor mate for the mother of five. Call his bluff: go back to the lawyer and the police and be prepared to act. No good mother loses her children in seeking their welfare by separation from an abusive spouse.

IGNORE DICTUM

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal fashion commentator Iona Monahan doubts that Parisian couturiers' endorsement of trousers will influence Canadian women to wear them. "They'll probably ignore it, as they've ignored every other dictum," she said.

REAL SWINGER — Prompted to give up tennis 40 years ago because she could not run fast enough, Lucie Rankine took up golf. Now 90, she's still at it, playing 54 holes a week on a Vancouver golf course. (CP Photo)

Lucie Rankine, 90, Plays Golf Four Days a Week

VANCOUVER (CP) — "I just couldn't run fast enough to keep up my tennis."

That was why Lucie Rankine quit the courts and took up golf 40 years ago.

Today, at the age of 90, she's still at it.

And Mrs. Rankine doesn't think there's anything unusual about the fact she plays 54 holes a week—nine holes every Monday, 18 Tuesday, nine Thursday and 18 again Friday.

"Just jolly good exercise," she says of the five miles she walks during an 18-hole round.

Mrs. Rankine, whose handicap now is 36 where it used to be 18, can't offer any special recipe for her vitality.

Asked if she lived by an early-to-bed, early-to-rise routine, she replied:

"Certainly not. I'm at my best at 2 a.m. and I hate to get up in the morning.

"But I don't eat a lot of fancy stuff and I don't drink and smoke too much."

Mrs. Rankine moved to Vancouver in 1908 with her husband, who was killed in the First World War.

Her hobbies include knitting and reading — simultaneously — and she prefers mystery stories. "But those mysteries aren't so good for my knitting so I don't indulge too often."

What does she do during the winter when there are fewer days to play golf?

"Oh, I go to San Diego where I can play all the time."

DISCUSSION

If the art of conversation is dead as some people claim, the corpse is certainly giving a few lively kicks every two weeks when the discussion group which was formed last year gets into action.

Initiated by Mike Lucas, advertising salesman of The Ontario Intelligencer, the group now includes people of such varied professions as high school teachers, a doctor of entomology, non-professionals and housewives.

The group meets at the homes of the members and meetings have been held in Belleville, Rednersville, Stirling and rural areas.

At the first meeting this year Mr. and Mrs. Lucas entertained the group in their home. Recorded music from Mozart was enjoyed for about fifteen minutes before the discussion.

The German philosopher Hegel established the idea of a thesis, an opinion, theory or argument which enjoys power or influence over rivals; an antithesis which breeds opposition; and a synthesis which because of increasing dissension between the first two results in conflict. This branch of his theory is called historical dialectic.

It would appear that Hegel's historical dialect is just another part of the world's evolution. But there is no natural phenomenon at work here, merely people. There is no cause for repeated occurrences of conflict except men themselves.

The group discussed what if anything could be done to prevent the synthesis of war, with mankind once again faced with the thesis and antithesis of East and West, and the discussion led to byways and highways of the nature of man and his religious beliefs or lack of belief. The purpose of the discussion is to have an exchange of ideas, to broaden the individual outlook, as an exercise in stretching the mental sinews, and to seek solutions, if possible to the problems facing mankind.

THE BIRDS GO SOUTH

On a recent trip through Algonquin Provincial Park, I came across a little pamphlet called "The Elven" published by the Department of Lands and Forests, and would like to reproduce here an interesting story about the birds of the region and their migratory habits. I hope the department won't mind.

Naturalists have been trying for a long time to give us a satisfactory explanation of how migrating birds find their way over thousands of miles of sea and land between their summer and their winter homes. The majority of our birds migrate at night, covering hundreds of miles between sunset and sunrise, and it is inevitable that many are lost on these perilous journeys. Storms and predators are a constant hazard, man-made structures such as TV towers and lighthouses kill them by the tens of thousands, but a surprising number manage to return year after year to the same locality.

Here in Algonquin Park we have collected a good deal of proof that the same birds do come back to the same places. This proof is supplied by bird banding, that is, by catching the birds alive and fitting them with numbered aluminum leg bands, so when they are caught again we can be sure they are the same birds. In bird banders' language catching a bird which you have banded before is called a "return," and in the past five years we have had 25 returns of Park birds, made up of 14 sparrows, 6 warblers, 4 blackbirds, and 1 swallow. Fifteen of them had returned 1 year, seven for 2 years, and three for 3 years.

The swallow had travelled farthest, as it winters in Argentina or Brazil, but the warblers seem even more impressive, because they are so small and vulnerable to so many kinds of accident. Their flight is weak compared with a swallow, one of them weighs only a fraction of an ounce, yet they spend the winter in Central and South America or in the West Indies.

One of our Park warblers has returned here to nest for two years, another for three, which means that between them they have travelled at least 15,000 miles in safety since they were first caught and banded.

During September and October the great fall migration of birds is at its height, and if you listen on any calm night you will hear small bird calls coming down from above. It is one of the special sounds of fall.

Ann Landers

Neighborhood in Uproar With Carousing Killer Cats

DEAR ANN LANDERS — If you are brave enough to print this letter you will probably have a few thousand old maids and more than a few thousand cat lovers on your neck. My problem is going to be ours.

Dogs must be on leashes, but cats are free to stalk about at will. Not only do these feline roamers make blood-chilling noises at night but the itty bitty kitties are ruining our screens in their fiendish attempts to get at the canary.

This summer, the neighborhood cats killed several wrens and thrushes, scratched our grandaughter and have drastically reduced the squirrel population.

ANN LANDERS

I have discussed my dismay with the neighbors and they think it's too bad the birds aren't "quick enough" to get out of Tabby's reach. Beyond that they couldn't care less.

What can we do short of setting out poison — which my husband threatens to do the next time he finds a dead thrush in our yard? — F.C.

DEAR F.C. — Responsible cat-owners do not allow their pets to roam around and kill wild life. Such callousness should not be tolerated.

Tell your neighbors that any cat who turns up on your property will be considered a stray and will be turned over to the humane society. Then make good your promise.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Is it possible there are people in this world who don't know alcoholism is a serious problem in some families? Do they honestly believe they are being hospitable when they press a guest to have a drink after the guest has said repeatedly he doesn't care for one?

It's bad enough when a host or hostess forces food on people after they've said, "No, thank you," but when they do this with alcohol, it's more than bad manners, it's unforgivable.

My husband is an alcoholic. He refuses to admit it but I know the terrible truth. Weeks go by and he won't touch a drop, but once he takes that first drink he is helpless. He can't stop.

Friday evening we attended a party. The host, a notorious lush, kept badgering my husband until he had "just one." Well, my husband has been drunk ever since.

Please tell people how cruel it is to force liquor on a guest. That "one drink" could send him down the lonely road forever.— WIFE OF AN ALCOHOLIC

DEAR WIFE — I've said it — dozens of times — but it's worth saying again. Drinkers who pressure non-drinkers to "have just one" after they have said, "No, thank you," are not trying to be gracious. They are trying to drag non-drinkers down to their level.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The boy I am going with reads a lot. Paul can quote from Shakespeare, Shelley, Milton and Emerson and is able to come up with just the right passages at the right time. He wins every argument because he can get one of the greats of literature to back him up no matter what side he's on. He often quotes the Bible and what can a person say to that?

Last night we were in the parlor and Paul wanted to turn off the lights. I said, "No." He came back with — "But Shelley said, 'How beautiful the night. The balmiest sign which vernal zephyrs breathe in evenin's ear —'" And added, "The Bible says, 'Man's mettle is tested by toil in the darkness'".

How can I win? — STUMPED.

DEAR STUMPED — This is toil? Tell him the Bible also says "Let there be light."

C.A. SERVICE

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A.'s held their weekly meeting on Friday evening. President Keith Hehn welcomed everyone and opened the service.

Pastor David Simons of Montreal, Quebec led the song service. Miss Carolyn Satchert of R.P.B.C., Peterborough led in prayer. Solos were sung by Miss Mary Ella Grant of R.P.B.C. and Rev. Fred Spring.

The guest speaker was Mr. Mark Kidole of Kenya, British East Africa who at the present time is taking a special Bible course at R.P.B.C., Peterborough. He spoke on the subject, "One May Lose His Arrohead".

Family Goes Airborne in Big Way

VICTORIA (CP)—A Victoria family has gone airborne in a big way, with mother, father, son and daughter all receiving their flying licences during the last six years.

Vincent Walters, the father, was the first to qualify. Then his wife Paula worked as a nurse's aid to earn money for flying lessons.

Ted, now 26, learned to fly in 1958 on an RCAF scholarship.

Helen, 20, got her licence this summer, an event celebrated when the family took to the air in four rented planes.

Two other daughters, Judith, 27, and Vicki, 18, say they have no interest in learning.

The family plans to buy a plane shortly but it won't be big enough to hold them all. They're planning on a two-seater.

Susanna's Family Fare

How can a wife cope with annoying little habits of her husband? What can you do when clashes develop among youngsters who all want to practise their music at the same time? Is their any way to avoid those snags that send you running for another pair of stockings when you're late for your most important appointment? This is the sort of emergency that Susanna discusses in Family Fare. And she'll welcome ideas from her readers on how they handle similar problems.

Susanna is herself a typical Canadian housewife, with a family of four children ranging from 10 to 14. Susanna majored in English at Victoria College — and found time in the middle of raising her young family for: A postgraduate course in English; work on the executive of committees ranging from home and school to symphony; cottage-ing; gypsying with her family in their small car to such far-away places as Acapulco; helping to smooth the road for a very busy business man; supervising the homework, practising and after-hour activities of four sports-minded young Canadians.

As a young homemaker with an energetic growing family, Susanna is perfectly equipped to discuss the problems of other busy women.

FUNNY MONEY

Dear Susanna: I have a recipe and a suggestion for keeping small children busy and trust you will find them helpful. Both are very successful in our home.

1. Play-dough. It is made by mixing half a cup of flour and half a cup of salt with water to the consistency of pie dough.

This dough can be refrigerated in wax paper if the children tire of playing with it. Later, just add a few drops more water if necessary, and knead again. They can use it like modeling clay but it is so clean that bits can be vacuumed or swept up easily. I give the children a variety of kitchen tools (potato, spoons, cookie cutters, etc.) and they enjoy this immensely.

2. I have found it ever so helpful to keep a small "cutting and coloring box" in the hall closet for rainy days. In it we keep blunt scissors, crayons, smooth-edge, water colors, old, well illustrated magazines, coloring books, and discarded birthday and Christmas cards — as well as a few shirt cardboards since these make excellent backgrounds on which to paste and color. The children make books or pictures to hang up in their rooms or they just enjoy collecting the pictures. I always give them a paper bag for scraps and they are thereby encouraged to clean up after themselves and to keep their things together. — Mrs. R. Wilson

If any young-type readers such as parents, or grandparents wish to have a few stencilled pages outlining reading readiness methods for pre-schoolers, you may have them before you can spell C A T . . . all you have to do is ask. However, if a hint or two is included with your letter, it might bring you an even faster reply! SUSANNA.

Sausages with Orange Sauce – Good!

A leisurely Sunday breakfast stars spicy sausages with a fresh Florida orange sauce, and an eye-opening Florida grapefruit half topped with a dollop of your favorite jelly — cranberry, currant, guava or perhaps mint.

Did you know that ancient historical documents show sausages are practically five thousand years old? They are the world's first preserved food — sausage-making being the oldest technique known for preserving meat.

In the recipe below, the sausages are boiled in orange juice, then browned and served with a sauce of orange juice and sections, sugar and cinnamon. The sweet orange flavor blends deliciously with the spiciness of the sausages for a luscious breakfast dish everyone will love.

Mmmmmmm — doesn't this sound worth getting up for?

Sausages With Orange Sauce

2 Florida oranges, sectioned.
1 cup Florida orange juice, divided
1 pound link sausages
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

To section oranges, cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane. Remove any remaining membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section, over bowl to retain juice from fruit. Add additional orange juice if necessary to make 1 cup. Boil sausages in ½ cup of the orange juice in large skillet, covered, 5 minutes. Uncover and cook, turning often, until brown, about 10 minutes. Meanwhile combine remaining ½ cup orange juice, sugar and cinnamon; bring to a boil. Reduce heat; add orange sections and simmer very gently 5 minutes. Drain sausages and arrange on platter with orange sauce in center.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

It's the rare and unusual toddler who doesn't have a temper tantrum from time to time.

It's the wise mother who controls her own anger before disciplining the child. A few antidotes for toddler tantrums:

- Plenty of rest. Do not let baby get overtired or overstimulated before bedtime.
- Plenty of freedom. Outdoors or indoors, a toddler should have a chance to play without overstrict supervision.
- Try to avoid situations that are likely to produce tantrums. Use distraction when storm signals do appear.
- When the tempest is over, let your child know you love him.

Toddlers, creepers or babes-in-arms all benefit from fruits and vegetables for the vitamins and minerals they supply. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits and Vegetables are specially made to make your tyke like to eat these important foods. What's more, they're cooked in the absence of air to preserve the utmost in flavour and nutritive goodness.

Gerber Baby Foods are packed in Wide-Top jars with re-closable Twist-Pop caps for safe refrigeration of unused portions. Junior Fruits, Vegetables, Dinners and Desserts in large-size jars for growing appetites.

Cute "train of thought". To make a cost-cooling train for your toddler, just string several empty Gerber Cereal boxes together, leaving a good length for pulling. Makes a swell "choo-choo" worth hours of fun.

Cooked to order. It may interest you to know that Gerber "custom-cooks" its baby foods because different foods have different cooking characteristics. This simply means that different cooking times and temperatures are required to bring out the best in each product. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

If you want the private satisfaction of being a good provider without extravagant spending, buy some Canadian Concord grapes and make jelly and conserve. Mary Moore did and today she tells you how to do it in your kitchen.

Complete Plans For Auxiliary Fashion Show

The 26th annual fashion show to be presented at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium, on Wednesday evening, October 21st by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, promises to surpass all previous efforts of previous shows. "A Symphony of Fashion" not only includes the very latest in fashion wear, jewellery, furs, accessories, cosmetics and hair-styling, but also that outstanding and popular vocalist, Hazelanne Reid. Mrs. V. L. Lewis, an accomplished pianist, will provide the background music while Mrs. T. N. Davidson will be the commentator.

The convener of this extravaganza is Mrs. J. H. Forrester, who, with her committee has been planning this production for months.

There will be seven hand-some door prizes drawn for during the evening and ushers will see to it that each patron receives a small memento of the show.

Auxiliary membership is open to women in Belleville and district who are hospital minded with time to devote to the Auxiliary's various projects. Among the fund-raising projects are the opportunity shop in the city hall building, the fashion show, the gift corner and coffee cart in the outpatients' waiting room at the hospital. "In Hospital Volunteer Services" include the mobile library cart, an information desk, admitting hostesses.

PROVIDES EQUIPMENT

Since its organization 26 years ago the auxiliary has provided most lifesaving equipment to the hospital as well as many items to assist in greater patient comfort, such as Hi-Lo beds and the chapel. First floor of Education Hall was furnished by the Auxiliary at a cost of $10,000, and the most recent equipment provided was a laundry folder at a cost of $13,000.

ANCIENT CRAFT

There is evidence to suggest that the oldest home of cotton weaving is Pakistan which may have exported cloth to ancient Egyptians.

Grapes Make Good Jelly

by Mary Moore

My hands are scrubbed and there are rows of grape jelly and conserve on my kitchen counter.

They were both easy and economical to make and look beautiful and taste wonderful.

While the markets are bulging with big purple baskets of grapes, eat your fill and make the surplus into jelly and the conserve below.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Loaf with Tomato Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Crumbed Eggplant; Tossed Lettuce and Tomato Salad; French Dressing; Chocolate Eclairs; Coffee.

GRAPE JELLY:

5 cups grape juice (takes about 4 lbs. Concord grapes and 1 cup water — see below), 1 package powdered pectin, 7 cups sugar.

To prepare the juice sort, wash and remove stems from ripe grapes. (You need about 6 cupfuls stemmed grapes.) Turn them into a large pan and add 1 cup water. Bring to boil on high heat, then reduce heat and boil gently for 10 minutes. (Note: Use a large pot so that when mixture boils and spatters it does not splash you or stove or wall with purple spots.) Drain through cloth-lined strainer or colander overnight. In morning measure juice. You should have 5 cups. Turn into large kettle, add powdered pectin, stirring. Bring to full rolling boil which cannot be stirred down. Add sugar, stirring and bring to full rolling boil again and boil hard 1 minute, stirring. Remove from heat, skim off foam and pour into hot sterilized jelly jars (10 or 11 six oz. jars). Cover with clean hot paraffin, adding second coat when first is cool. Cover with lids, wash sides of glasses, if necessary, and store.

GRAPE CONSERVE:

4 cups grapes with skins removed (reserve skins) (wash about 4 lbs. Concords before skinning), 1 medium large orange (unpeeled), 4 cups sugar, 1 cup seedless raisins, ½ teaspoon salt, skins from grapes, 1 cup chopped nuts (optional).

Sort and wash grapes and remove from stems. Slip skins from grapes. Drop pulp into your 4-cup measuring cup at your left and skins into bowl at your right. (Note: This is the longest step so sit down at a low table or on high stool at regular table to do it.) When you have 4 cups of pulp turn them into a large pot, bring to boil and boil 10 minutes or until seeds show. Press through fine sieve to remove seeds. I had 2 2-3 cups of this puree. Chop orange fine, removing seeds and centre pith. In a large pot add the orange, sugar, raisins, and salt to grape puree and boil rapidly, stirring almost constantly, until it begins to thicken and clear — 10 or 12 minutes. Add grape skins and boil, stirring constantly for 10 or 15 minutes or if using thermometer to 221 deg. Fahr. (Do not overcook for this mixture thickens more on second day.) Add nuts, if used, stir well. Remove from heat, skim off foam and stir for 5 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jam jars, filling to within ½" of top. Cover with clean, hot paraffin, adding second coat when first is cool. Cover, wash if necessary and store.

SPEAKING of MANNERS by PATRICIA LEWIS

TELEPHONE TECHNIQUE

A man who admits that he is a "minor executive" caught my ear the other day to complain about the telephone.

Not the phone company. Only the people who misuse the instrument.

He calls the telephone a boon or a burden, depending on the manners of the individual.

What started him — and I'll admit it was hard to get him to stop occasionally so I could take notes — was a call he made to an executive of another company, apparently a major official.

A sweet-voiced girl was the first he heard. "Mr. Jones' office. I'll see if he's in. Who's calling?"

Having given his name, the caller waited. And waited. And waited. There was no way to attract the attention of the girl who had answered. He wanted to tell her that he would call back or that he could be reached at his office.

The "minor executive" theorized that the man was on the phone himself at the time or that he was away from his desk and the secretary was trying to reach him.

PREFERS "NOT AVAILABLE"

He would have preferred to be told that the man was 'not available and asked if he would care to leave a message, call back, wait for a return call or whatever.

That's one instance, said our "complainer" — let's call him "Smith." There's a turnaround involved, and it's just as much of a nuisance.

That happens when the sweet-voiced lady (some con, apparently) calls Smith and says "Mr. Smith? Mr. Jones calling. Will you hold on?"

Before Smith can say a word, there's a dead silence. Smith again waits. And waits. And waits.

Finally Jones, good old jovial Jones, comes on the line and spends at least two minutes asking about the kids, the golf score, the pennant standings, the coming elections before he finally gets down to business.

From Smith's viewpoint, most of the time had been wasted. The fact that he was called then kept dangling was, to him, a slap in the face.

And that's why Smith says he's a minor executive. The phone did it to him.

People are busy in the business world and it doesn't take much to throw an executive's schedule off-stride. But being an executive implies responsibility to others as well as to the person holding the title.

We can call around the world in minutes, thanks to modern technology, but what we need is a social technique to enable the Joneses and the Smiths to talk to each other when they need to.

Rev. B. Squire To Address University Club

Rev. Bowen Squire, authority on local Indian artifacts and history, will address the University Women's Club of Belleville and District at their opening meeting, October 15th, Education Hall, General Hospital.

Rev. Squire, a native of the Trenton area, as a Baptist minister travelled extensively in Europe and the United States until his retirement some years ago. Since making his permanent home near Consecon he has devoted much of his time to archeological digging in the region and this summer helped identify skulls and parts of skeletons teamed up on a Wooler Road farm.

A gentleman of wide and varied interests, he does historical paintings for schools and museums, and is at present doing one such for the John A. Macdonald Centenary Museum in Kingston. His topic Thursday evening will be "Indian History and Folklore of the Bay of Quinte Area". All women university graduates are cordially invited to attend.

New Officers Of Quintena Are Installed

Tuesday night the installation of Quintena Rebekah Lodge officers took place in the I.O.O.F. hall, which has been beautifully decorated with tall white standards and fern.

Noble Grand Sister Clara Ironside welcomed the District Deputy President, Sister Rhea Mitchell of District, No. 4, and the Deputy Marshal, Sister Bessie Boldrick and staff.

A quartet of singers of honor formed the background for the receiving and introductions of guests. Other guests were welcomed from Picton, Tweed, Thomasburg, Stirling and Trenton.

District Deputy President Sister Mitchell took charge of the installation ceremonies with the Deputy Marshal Sister Boldrick and staff consisting of the following: Past Noble Grands Alice Adams, Nellie Cooper, Eva Foden, Vera McMartin, Pearl Drury, Ruth Charlton, Phyllis Burley Clara Ironside, musician, and Dorothy Webber, soloist.

The guard of honor gowned in pink lace and carrying wands of white gladioli and evergreen, consisted of; Verna Oliphant, Doris Clarke, Beverley Kilpatrick, Ruth Easton, Margaret Morwenal, Hilda Joyce, Laura Downey and Barbara Elliot.

LIST OF OFFICERS

The deputy marshal presented the following Quintena officers for installation: N.G. Bessie Hall; V.G., Jill Empey; recording secretary, E. Judge; financial secretary, Lena MacMillan; treasurer, Annis Webb; warden, Ruth Easton; conductor, Venetia Valrear; chaplain, Elda Sopha; color bearer, Joyce Joyce; RSNG, Irene McMartin; LSNG, Lillian Summers; RSVG, Verna Oliphant; LSVG, Betti Anderson; musician, Lily Williams; inside guardian, Grace Akey; outside guardian, Carolyn Harwood; JPNG, Clara Ironside.

Each officer installed received a corsage from the Noble Grand, Sister Hall, presented by Mildred Scarrott and Winnifred Reed. Others presented and receiving corsages were the degree staff captain, Sister Alice Adams, PNG, and Marianne Ironside, Rebekah flag bearer.

Sister Dorothy Webber sang two solos during the ceremony.

Sister Rhea Mitchell, DDP, spoke on the duties of officers installed and several members and guests spoke briefly.

After closing, the guests and members adjourned to the upper hall for a basquet prepared by Sister Maysel Sills and Emily Beal and committee. The head table setting was a lovely centrepiece of 'mums with crystal candelabra and appropriate favors and place cards.

Appreciations were expressed, bringing an interesting and enjoyable evening to a close.

Club Activities

UNIONDALE 4-H CLUB

FRANKFORD — The second meeting of the Uniondale Serve-Ettes was held at the home of Mrs. Morley Sine on Tuesday evening with 15 members present.

Linda Fleming read the minutes of the last meeting.

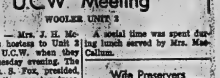
Mrs. Sine discussed the nutritional value of the four food groups and how milk can be used for supper.

Bernice Grills demonstrated cooking measurements. Linda Mallory and Monica Sine prepared bread, soup, while Joyce Frost prepared a scalloped vegetable dish of carrots Rosemary Storms and Rita Whiteman prepared croutons.

The meeting closed with the serving of the lunch prepared by the girls.

U.C.W. Meeting

WOOLER UNIT 2



WOOLER — Mrs. J. H. McCallum was hostess to Unit 2 of Wooler U.C.W. when they met last Tuesday evening. The leader, Mrs. S. Fox, presided, assisted by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Read, and pianist, Mrs. Hugh Fox. Mrs. S. Fox led in a Thanksgiving worship with Mrs. F. Van Veals and Mrs. J. Dorland reading the Scriptures.

The first chapter of the Bible study, "God and His Purpose," was given by Rev. MacCallum. His talk and discussion period proves most interesting and informative.

A special thanks was extended to Mr. MacCallum.

A social time was spent during lunch served by Mrs. MacCallum.

Community Concert Members Enjoy Program of Nina Dova

By EUGENE LANG

The 1964-65 Belleville Community Concert series of programs was launched last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium before practically the full membership with their initial pearance here of Nina Dova, soprano and guitarist. Born in London, Miss Dova has made her home variously in Canada, France and South America. Her figure is the folk song and ballad, of which she spirals back and forth in five different languages.

Her program last evening was one of decided variety and precocity, plus the addition of her scintillating charm and personality that seemed to flow over with sheltering and effervescence in her stage mannerisms that could not help but warm the audience to her in a minimum of time under her captivating performance.

The numbers were each described and itemized by the artist herself before their presentation, thus making the listener more knowledgeable of the various selections than through the usual cold formal way of program reading. Beginning with a lively Catalonian song of Youth, the first part of the recital traversed into the mournful ballad of "Mary Hamilton", then featured the humorous "Deaf Woman's Courtship" from Virginia via England, followed by "Handsome Winsome Johnny."

French Canada was exemplified by the Story of the Dancing Top, this song being balanced against the old nostalgic words of the tragic "I, Too, Lost My Love", a ballad from medieval France. Effectual use of the guitar was made in the latter number, by its swinging pendulum imitations of the clock tower bell as depicted in the words of the ditty.

Two selections with a decided Eastern flavor were included on the musical menu, the first a hauntingly lovely opus entitled, "Camel, Camel, Carry Me Over the Desert" and the second being a fragment of one of the Songs of Solomon. They being attached to Miss Dova's fingers, plus the use of the sounding board of the guitar as a percussive means of expression added immeasurably to enhance these Oriental offerings.

PERSONALIZED TREATMENT

Colombia, Cuba and Brazil, along with Venezuela, were represented by one example each of their native folk lore in song, each being given a highly personalised treatment by Miss Dova in her interpretation of same. The Brazilian Macumba "Prayer to an African God" was a highly dramatic and forceful number that demonstrated the two higher ranges of the soloist's vocal forces. The little Venezuelan tune was a sprightly thing capriciously cajoled in tones.

Following intermission Nina Dova took the audience on a more or less geographical tour through song, starting out in Ireland, with the ballad of "Oi'a!" and the "Enchantresses", then into northern Greece with an abandoned love ditty like unto pile of Hellenistic folk music.

Verses from the Ecclesiastics were set to modern form in such wise appeal to the words "A time to every purpose under Heaven." This being followed by a Spiritual in the form of a sermon entitled "Witness". Both of these sacred works were given fervent and deeply moving renditions by Miss Dova.

Richard Dyer-Bennett's translation of an old German Folk Song "Poor Old Man" was portrayed in humorous vein as was the Mexican (?) "The Backward Donkey" with oral clicketty-clacks from the singer. Both were pressing anecdotes in song to round out a delightful opening concert. Two encores were added, namely a 16th century French selection called "The Coach" and "Hello Bly" by Stephen Foster, the latter using rhythmic participation by the audience.

Running through under the restraint of that nasty affliction, the common cold, Miss Dova came through extremely well in all of her offerings. Her choices of selections and her charming personality left no feeling of apprehension concerning compromise on the part of her viewers.

Following the evening's entertainment Miss Dova and members of the Executive of the Belleville Community Concert Association were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wiggins, Rosewood Avenue.

Hurricane Isbell Strikes Savage Blow at Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Isbell struck a savage blow at Cuba's Pinar del Rio province, drove thousands of Cuban families from their homes and roared on today toward the Florida keys and the U.S. mainland.

Havana radio said houses and buildings collapsed under the battering of 100-mile-an-hour winds, and tide in Cuba's western - most province. Thousands fled the beaches and the threat of flooding rivers and steams.

Only one death, of a small child, was mentioned in broadcasts monitored in Miami, but they indicated that Isbell may have finished a day started by hurricane Hilda in August—destruction of Cuba's second-biggest money crop, tobacco.

Havana itself, the radio said, "will be battered by howling winds and torrential rains" before the hurricane is entirely through with Cuba.

R. A. Emerson New President C. P. Railway

MONTREAL (CP) — N. R. Crump, chairman of Canadian Pacific Railway Company, was elected to the additional post of chief executive officer by the firm's board of directors Tuesday.

R. A. Emerson was elected to the presidency of Canadian Pacific, succeeding Mr. Crump in that office.

Mr. Crump's job as executive officer is a new one, as is the post of chief operating officer to which Mr. Emerson also was elected.

Mr. Emerson previously was vice - president of the company.

Mr. Emerson, 59, had become vice - president in 1958. He was born in Plum Coulee, Man.

A spokesman for Canadian Pacific declined to comment on the significance of the new elections.

Robert Alton Emerson, the new president and chief operating officer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has a long family tradition of railroad service.

His grandfather, the late Robert Emerson, was a car-building, locomotive in the CPR's early days at Winnipeg.

Mr. Emerson's father, Bertram, and mother, Jessie, both worked for the railway. He was born in the railway station at Plum Coulee, Man., where his father was agent and his mother assistant-agent.

Mr. Emerson, 53, started working for the railway as a summer student in 1928, 1929 and 1930 when he was going to the University of Manitoba, prior to obtaining his bachelor of science in civil engineering.

He worked as an assistant at the university for one year then worked as a locating engineer for the Ontario government of northern development from 1931-33. Mr. Emerson took postgraduate courses at Yale University in 1933-34 after being awarded a Strathcona Memorial fellowship in transportation.

He then started his CPR career, working as transit man on the engineering staff of the railway in British Columbia and Saskatchewan from 1935-39. He then held positions as trainmaster for the CPR's Manitoba district in 1939-41, division engineer at Brandon, Man., and Moose Jaw Sask., 1941-44, assistant district engineer at Vancouver, 1944-46, and district engineer at Vancouver, 1946-48.

Mr. Emerson was transferred to the CPR's head office in Montreal in 1948 as engineer of track, became assistant chief engineer in 1950 and chief engineer in 1951. He was promoted to the post of vice - president - operations and maintenance in May, 1958.

He was elected director and member of the executive committee in October, 1962. His father retired from the CPR in 1947 as agent at Bird's Hill, Man. His mother worked for the company for 20 years.

Mr. Emerson is married and has no children.

He is a director of several other Canadian companies.

ANYONE FOR 'TAKE'

The name "tennis" is believed to have come from the French word for "take", since the player serving "the ball" is calling this to his opponent.

Youth Jury Can Be Tough Say Teen-agers

HINSDALE, Ill. (AP)—Juvenile delinquents in this suburb of Chicago are learning fast that a jury of fellow teen-agers can be tougher than adult justice.

Nevertheless, every young offender is given the chance to be chosen the Youth Jury for sentencing since its inception in Hinsdale township a year ago.

By doing so, offenders can make restitution without getting a police record.

The punishments handed out by the Youth Jury usually consist of menial but constructive work—such as mowing lawns, scrubbing walls, cleaning streets or working as a hospital orderly.

"We think it's really helping. Our acts of vandalism are going down," says Police Sgt. John Beukema, Hinsdale youth officer.

The jury does not rule on guilt or innocence. It passes sentences in cases presented to it. The sentences themselves can be increased or tempered by a magistrate.

Beukema decides which cases should go before the Youth Jury after analyzing the past record of the offender and holding an interview with his parents.

Quebec Fears Loss of Millions In Tourist Trade

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec province's $200,000,000 annual tourist business is built around the slogan "hospitality spoken here," but authorities fear this highly advertised come - on may have a hollow ring after the weekend events during the royal visit.

"We're going to lose millions, and all because of a few students and the action of the municipal police," an official of the department of tourism said in an interview Tuesday.

"I'm worried about the effect this is going to have on the Montreal 1967 world's fair, I'll tell you.

"This is going to cost us millions and millions."

The official noted that dozens of United States photographers and reporters captured violent scenes last Saturday as police broke up small groups of demonstrators.

Veteran Reporters Try To Fit Together Various Angles in Queen's Visit

QUEBEC (CP) — When the Queen's weekend visit to Quebec City was over, after the controversy that preceded it and the way it worked out, veteran reporters tried to fit the various angles together.

Their speculation about the consequences was along these lines:

Separatist leaders who sought the passivity of a cancellation of the visit were satisfied with the headlines they did get over the fact few people turned out Saturday to see the Queen;

Some of the young Quebecers heretofore lukewarm about separatism will rally to the cause out of sympathy for demonstrators of the same age who were struck with police clubs, and otherwise treated roughly;

Probably a large proportion of the bread-winning population — families and trying to give their children the benefit of Quebec's education reform and its advantages will be angry about the way their city and its behavior will be represented outside the province;

The Quebec city police conduct will be investigated and perhaps they will get the kind of training in crowd-handling Police Director Adrien Robert has given to Montreal police, although it may not be needed for any royal visit for some time;

There may be a demand that separatists step out in front of the Quebec population on the hustings at the first opportunity to show whether they can win enough general confidence to get elected and put their formula into practice.

CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

Briefly, what happened on the weekend is that the old, easy-going city of Quebec, tourist mecca because of its hospitality, got caught in a complex political jam occasioned by the visit.

The Queen came to Canada to commemorate 1864 conferences that led to Confederation three years later. Some figures in Quebec felt the visit to Quebec City was inopportune in view of the climate over the future of confederation and separatists contended the symbolism involved was that of Anglo-Saxon domination of the French language population of Canada.

Reporting on the visit, one London newspaper referred to Quebec as "The City of Shame."

A French-language daily here said in an editorial: " We can rejoice over the fact this royal visit provoked no grave incident. whose consequences we don't like to think about."

What the London paper was astonished about was that Quebecers stayed home when the Queen travelled the streets Saturday and police kept breaking up demonstrations in the streets.

What the Quebec newspaper was refused about, while it enjoyed over the fact its own police let themselves get too edgy and violent, was that order was interfered with, shot at, or tossed an explosive in the direction of the Queen.

ABNORMAL SITUATION

Experienced observers felt Quebecers and their children acted normally in staying home during the frequent comings and goings of the Queen through the uptown streets, because of abnormal circumstances and the fact the symbolism of the Crown has not the appeal it has in the English-speaking provinces.

Among the other circumstances of the visit were:

1. The two- or three-square-mile area through which the Queen travelled was an armed camp crammed with 2,000 Provincial police and city police;

2. One former separatist leader had been quoted widely as saying the situation on the Queen's visit carried the fuse of a Canadian civil war if any thing happened to her;

3. Much of the population is confused over day-by-day publicity about separatist ideas, the strength of which has never been gauged in an election;

4. In view of all the talk about Confederation and Quebec, many people don't know whether it is unpatriotic in the Quebec sense to appear on public occasions when they are told have "Anglo - Saxon" or "British" overtones even though they are fond of spectacles;

5. One province-wide patriotic organization urged the people of Quebec City not to turn out for the Queen. Its Quebec-city affiliate said the provincial organization exceeded its authority in making the recommendation;

6. Many people don't understand that some extremist threats published by newspapers before the visit simply quoted cast - to - mail writings, looking like communiques, but signed with official-sounding initials that just provided anonymity for their authors

OF COLLEGE-AGE

As it turned out Saturday, a day of dismal weather, the forces that did come together were a group of college-age people, sprinkled with older coaches, which moved from place to place in a compact mass to demonstrate views they are entitled to have; and, an enormous security operation that dealt with disorders on a scale nobody here really would conceive.

Most likely, in their enthusiasm for an exciting cause, the boys and girls—some unemployed youngsters and most of them from big-city Montreal — forgot they were playing with national and international TNT.

Some non-Quebec reporters on the Saturday evening to continue with the Royal Tour at Ottawa expressed surprise at the way the young separatists who broke no windows, tore down no Union Jacks, molested no one and in some cases kidded the police a bit before the confrontations got rough.

There was sneaking admiration among some of the report ers over the fact the young demonstrators walked into places loaded with police and servicemen, used no rocks, trucks and all the apparatus of riot prevention.

No official separatist leaders were on the scene with them.

Quebec servicemen were upset at the sight of few tourists here for the visit running as though for their lives during one police charge in the Saturday evening demonstration.

LESAGE BOOED

Premier Lesage was booed by the separatist group when he hurried into the legislature from outside greeting ceremonies Saturday morning to get to the legislative council chamber ahead of the Queen for formal speeches of greeting there.

It was reported that he had been booed by the same people against his eight-year-old son and when he read his official speech his voice trembled either due to nervousness or to the hot temper he usually keeps under control.

In private circles, it was learned that there was anger in Quebec Reform Government—who has the job of trying to maintain order among the spokesmen for clashing ideas within his own party—was expressed at the amount of the billed newspaper stories preceding the visit. He felt they gave the impression that unwarranted tension around the Queen's appearance in his provincial capital.

The Quebec daily that replaced over the Queen's visit was unharmed also said in its editorial:

"As a whole, the Quebec population showed itself to be dignified and reserved."

On the other hand, it was a very few of the 200,000 people in Quebec district who did anything disrespectful or uncourteous toward the little woman visitor whose job is to be Queen.

Queen's Visit Applauded By Senators

OTTAWA (CP) The Senate roundly applauded a statement by Senator Connolly on Queen's visit to Ottawa Monday made the day "a genuine day of thanksgiving in Canada."

Senator John Connolly, the Senate's government leader and a member without portfolio of Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet, welcomed the senators back from a month's recess.

He said he was delighted that so many senators had attended the reception given by Mr. Pearson for parliamentarians and others Monday.

SALES DECLINE

Sales by chain stores in Canada in August declined 1.5 per cent in value to $343,800,000 from $332,186,000 in August of last year, the bureau of statistics said Tuesday. This was the first month this year that sales were below year earlier figures. However, sales in the first eight months of the year were up 7.5 per cent at $2,647,479,000 compared with $2,460,958,000 in 1963.

APPARENTLY WINS

Encyclopedia Britannica Inc., apparently has won the contest to acquire G and C. Merriam Co., publisher of dictionaries. McGraw - Hill, Inc., another publisher, admitted Tuesday that its efforts had failed.

APPROVE SPLIT

The board of directors of Polaroid Corp. Tuesday approved a 4-for-1 split of common stock. The split is subject to shareholder approval of an amendment to the company's certificate of incorporation increasing the authorized common stock from 10,000,000 shares from 4,000,000 with no change in the $1 par value.

ACQUIRES INTEREST

Industrial Acceptance Corp. Ltd., announced today it has acquired a half interest in Placard Investments Corporations, Montreal, the sponsor of Canada Growth Fund and an affiliate, Canadian distributor of other Canadian and American mutual funds.

FORM COMPANY

Federal Savings and Loan Corp. has been formed to accept savings deposits, issue debentures and make first mortgage loans. It will issue 70,000 shares at $12.50 a share to the public through a syndicate headed by Bongard and Co.

Weekend Events Go Unmentioned In Parliament

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec City's cold-shouldering of the Queen and overzealous police action during demonstrations went unmentioned in the Commons Tuesday.

But the weekend events were a lively subject of discussion in the lobbies and offices of the Queen's departure. One reason they may not have been raised in the Commons was the fact that the Queen still was en route home when the Commons met.

However, several quarters of the Commons are expected to raise the matter later.

The opposition is expected to hold the government responsible for escaping the Queen to a situation which could be interpreted as an insult to the sovereign.

ASKED QUESTIONS

Some of the opposition has fired questions at the government about guaranteeing the Queen's safety and whether postponement of her visit would be considered.

Government supporters argue that the pressure for strict security from the Progressive Conservatives makes it impossible for the Opposition to complain about police actions in Quebec.

However, among other parties on the opposition side there was discussion of demanding a full inquiry into the security aspects of the visit and the orders given the various police forces—the RCMP, Quebec provincial and municipal police departments in the cities where the Queen visited.

Both sides of the Commons took the stand that the coolness of the Queen's reception in Montreal and the small crowds which turned out to see her were the direct result of fear of violent demonstrations by separatists.

Whatever the outcome of any discussion of the visit in the Commons, it seemed certain that official Ottawa will be doing a post-mortem with an eye to the future of royal visits to this country.

Queen Messages Thanks For Kind, Loyal Welcome

OTTAWA (CP) — Queen Elizabeth, who arrived safely in London Tuesday night after her eight-day visit to this country, messaged her thanks for "the kind and loyal welcome" accorded her by the Canadian people.

The message was flashed to Governor-General Vanier here from the Air Canada plane which flew her across the Atlantic.

In his reply on behalf of the Canadian people, Gen. Vanier told the Queen that her visit "strengthened our admiration and affection for, and pride in, our sovereign."

The Queen's message:

"Please convey my warm thanks and those of my husband to the prime minister, government and people of Canada for the kind and loyal welcome which they have given us.

"We are both very glad to have been able to be with you at the time when you are commemorating the first meetings of the Fathers of Confederation, and I send you my deep and sincere congratulations on all that has been achieved since these days, together with fly heartfelt prayers and good wishes for the continued welfare and prosperity of all who dwell in this great country.

"In thanking Madame Vanier and yourself for your gracious hospitality in the capital, I would ask you also to express our sincere appreciation to all those whose skill and care contributed to the admirable arrangements which were made for all parts of our program."

Gen. Vanier's reply:

"On behalf of the Canadian people I wish to express warmest thanks for Your Majesty's gracious message which has been conveyed to the prime minister, the government and people of Canada. It is deeply appreciated by all.

"The presence of Your Majesty and of His Royal Highness amongst us has strengthened our admiration and affection for, and pride in, our sovereign.

"The kind words concerning my wife and me and all those associated with the arrangements for your visit and the orders given the various police forces—the RCMP, Quebec provincial and municipal police departments in the cities where the Queen visited.

"Both sides of the Commons took the stand that the coolness of the Queen's reception in Montreal and the small crowds which turned out to see her were the direct result of fear of violent demonstrations by separatists.

"Whatever the outcome of any discussion of the visit in the Commons, it seemed certain that official Ottawa will be doing a post-mortem with an eye to the future of royal visits to this country.

Stratford Man Sent to Trial On Rape Count

STRATFORD (CP) — Orlie Reginald Dwindell, 23, of Stratford was committed to trial Tuesday on a charge of raping an 18-year-old girl.

The girl testified at a preliminary hearing here that she was forced into a car by two men and driven about three miles from Stratford where the alleged rape took place. She said she was blindfolded with her own stocking during the trip and made to walk back to Stratford.

Maitland McRae, also of Stratford, also is charged with rape in connection with the incident but his hearing has not yet been held.

Dwinnell will be tried in Ontario Supreme Court later this month.

To Study Solid Procedures For Admitting OAS Members

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Concrete procedures for admitting new members to the Organization of American States will be the chief item of conference expected to be held next month.

Argentina Oct. 9 specifically requested such a meeting, following speculation that this step was imminent that the whole OAS reorganization is expected to be undertaken at a conference next spring.

Two British Commonwealth governments — the Queen's beach, Trinidad-Tobago and Jamaica—have been soliciting admittance, especially Trinidad-Tobago. Informants say both may succeed before Christmas.

The situation has implications for Canada in pondering its long - deferred decision on whether to join the 21-nation OAS. External Affairs Minister Martin has called membership a part of Canada's "ultimate destiny" in hemisphere relations.

Not that the admission of new states, particularly from the British Commonwealth, can be considered an automatic one.

Even though the late president Kennedy strongly urged Canadian membership in his speech before Parliament in Ottawa in early 1961, there are elements which could be hostile for reasons directed more at Canada's Commonwealth ties than anything Canada represents at a country.

Guatamala, for example, bitterly resents the fact that Britain has declined to cede her British Honduras.

Venezuela has reservations about strengthening British Guiana and its left-leaning government.

Argentina has been at odds with Britain for years about the Falkland Islands in the South Atlantic, under British rule, plus the South Pole areas.

Argentina has not opposed the admission of Jamaica or Trinidad-Tobago but it does fear that difficulties could arise from other sources.

There are no clear rules for admitting new members to OAS. The Argentine reasons that areas now controlled by Britain and other European nations — and claimed by Latin American countries—should be their independence and seek OAS membership .

Thus it is expected that the meeting of the OAS will decide to consider only those applications from areas which lie outside such disputed territory as the Falklands or British Honduras, which Mexico also covets.

Refuses to Give Information On Banks Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Trembley Tuesday refused to table any departmental correspondence in relation to the case of bullpusher Hal Banks, dethroned chief of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.).

Mr. Tremblay simply said "no" when Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) asked in the Commons question period by asking what co-operation Mr. Tremblay had given the Toronto Star, which published extracts from departmental papers and a reproduction of a letter written by former immigration minister Walter Harris in 1956 to the cabinet approving allowance of Banks' appeal against deportation.

Mr. Tremblay asked Mr. Fisher to submit his question in writing.

Mr. Fisher suggested Mr. Tremblay was "seaking" information not available to Parliament.

Mr. MacDonald said in a statement Tuesday that the time had come for the attorney-general to act.

"When the united counties' council gives a unanimous vote of non-confidence the public has every past for action from Queen's Park, particularly when this man is a cabinet minister."

Mr. MacDonald suggested that, at the least, the magistrate should be transferred elsewhere.

To Keep Watch For Organized Crime Signs

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says criminal intelligence officers will be attached to the Ontario Police Commission next month to begin a permanent watch on the drift of organized and syndicated crime in the province.

The two men, will in no way become involved in police investigation or law enforcement. Their job will be limited to sifting criminal intelligence signs of organized and syndicated crime creeping into Ontario.

TITO TO VISIT CYPRUS

NICOSIA (Reuters) — A Cyprus government spokesman confirmed Wednesday local newspaper reports that President Tito of Yugoslavia will pay a one-day visit to Cyprus Friday at the invitation of President Makarios.

NDP Leader Says Time Comes for Wishart to Act

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Monday he received a letter in July from Attorney-General Arthur Wishart in which the latter stated he was closing his file on an incident involving Magistrate Gordon Jermyn of Brockville.

The incident involved remarks made by Magistrate Jermyn during the course of a trial of five members of a family charged with assaulting a teacher who had strapped a young girl member of the family. At the time the Augusta Township school board demanded the magistrate's dismissal.

Mr. Jermyn's name came into the news again last week when the United counties of Leeds and Grenville also asked for his dismissal from the bench.

Mr. MacDonald quoted Mr. Wishart as saying to him in a letter dated July 8:

"Certain of the remarks made by Magistrate Jermyn during the course of the trial were unwarranted and out of order. This, Magistrate Jermyn admitted, and he has written me a letter of regret and apology and has given me an assurance that such outbursts will not happen again."

WROTE TO ALL

Mr. MacDonald said the letter from Mr. Wishart concluded: "I have written to all of the persons who corresponded with my office in connection with this matter giving them the above information, and I now propose to close my file."

The attorney-general wrote to the NDP leader because Mr. MacDonald had brought the subject of Magistrate Jermyn up in the legislature May 5, saying there was a growing sense of public opinion in the Brockville area over the magistrate's statements and his rulings.

During the trial of the family accused of assaulting the school teacher, Mr. Jermyn was quoted as having said: "If I didn't get an explanation from the teacher, I would have would have done what they did."

Of the teacher, the magistrate was also reported to have said: "I'll give you 2-to-1 I could walk her off and get better order than this man could."

SENDS PETITION

Because of these and other remarks, the Augusta Township school board, the county and Attorney-General Wishart asking that the magistrate be dismissed.

Last week the council of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville said that Magistrate H. Bruce Hunter replace Magistrate Jermyn as juvenile and family court judge in the two counties.

Mr. MacDonald said in a statement Tuesday that the time had come for the attorney-general to act.

"When the united counties' council gives a unanimous vote of non-confidence the public has every past for action from Queen's Park, particularly when this man is a cabinet minister."

Mr. MacDonald suggested that, at the least, the magistrate should be transferred elsewhere.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN LRESS

TUESDAY, Oct. 13 1964

The Commons approved amendments broadening the scope of the 1959 Crop Insurance Act.

Approval was unanimous for the change making the federal government responsible for 75 per cent of a province's claims above reserves and premiums collected from farmers.

Agriculture Minister Hays said he hoped this would encourage all provinces to set up broad insurance plans.

The Commons adopted an international Labor Organization convention against discrimination in employment.

The Commons opened debate on a labor code bill that would provide a $1.25 hourly minimum wage for 500,000 workers under federal jurisdiction.

Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) suggested the 40-hour week be shortened to cope with automation.

The Senate began consideration of a bill to provide $25,000,000 in credit to farm syndicates organized to buy farm machinery.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 14

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. It continues consideration of the labor code bill. The Senate meets at 8 p.m. It continue consideration of the farm syndicate loan fund.

Loblaws Give Extra Dividend To Shareholders

TORONTO (CP) — Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd., had good financial news for its shareholders Tuesday but company President George C. Metcalf was faced with many of critical questions at the company's annual meeting.

Mr. Metcalf announced that the company's annual dividend rate would be increased to 29 cents a share from 24 cents for each Class A and B share, effective with the Dec. 1 quarterly payment. It would be the first consecutive annual dividend increase.

The first-quarter profit exceeded the first quarter in any previous year in the company's history; he said, but gave no figures.

The company's failure to provide figures was one source of criticism.

Shareholder J. D. Tigert of Toronto asked for Loblaw's profit margin in the 1963-64 fiscal year and suggested it had fallen to about one per cent from 1.36 per cent in 1961-62, the last year for which figures had been published.

"Is the current trend in the company's Canadian profit up or down?" Mr. Tigert asked.

DIFFICULT TO ANSWER

"This is a very technical question," Mr. Metcalf said. "It would be very difficult" to answer.

Another shareholder, J. E. Penhale of Toronto, asked if Loblaw had control of Power Super Markets Ltd. of Toronto.

"Naturally, progress gives rise to many things," Mr. Metcalf said in avoiding a direct answer.

"You have so many of these things — takeovers and acquisitions. It really gives rise to rumors and it is a very hard thing from an employee standpoint.

"I think these are the things that are very delicate, that you don't understand the position of it."

Russia Launches New Satellite

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today launched Cosmos 48, another unmanned satellite in the Cosmos series to explore space, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

The launching came within 24 hours of the successful return to earth of the three-man Voskhod spacecraft, sent aloft Monday.

Brecdlove Might Have Hit 500

Roars To World Record At 468.72 MPH

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP) — Craig Breedlove, jarred so hard by rough course that his head cracked the canopy, roared to a world land -speed record of 468.72 miles an hour in his jet-powered car Tuesday.

He said he "almost certainly" would have exceeded 500 miles an hour if he hadn't slowed his car after slamming into the glass. As it was, he hit 498.13 miles an hour on the run.

Breedlove, 28, of Los Angeles, a year ago averaged 407.45.

This month Tom Green drove Walt Arfons' jet car for a record speed of 413.20. Then Walt's brother, Art, got his jet car to a record 434.02.

On one run, Art reached 479 mile an hour.

Breedlove said the course would have to be improved before it could handle 500 plus speeds.

BITS ROUGH STUFF

Breedlove hit the rough stuff on these western Utah flats just before starting his three-wheeled Spirit of America into the measured mile when he hit a bump that sent him spinning out of the course that caused Breedlove to pop his drogue parachute early Monday and call off an earlier record try.

Breedlove's first run through the mile was timed at 422.59. The average of 468.72—the official record — was computed from total time and distance of both runs.

The jets are in a special class as far as record recognition is concerned.

Britain's Donald Campbell holds the record of 403.139 for piston-type engine drives the wheels directly with a drive shaft, even though his engine was a turbine.

Breedlove's car has a J-47 engine and three wheels — one, instead of two, in the front. The Federation International Motorcycling recognizes his car as a special vehicle in the motorcycle class.

DISCOVER ANCIENT TOOLS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flint cutting tools, believed used by men more than 3,000 years ago, have been discovered in the Twin Lakes area 18 miles south of Churchill in northern Manitoba, about 600 miles north of Winnipeg. Prof. W. J. Mayer-Oakes, head of the anthropology department at the University of Manitoba, made the discoveries in a two-day search of the site, discovered in 1960 by amateur archaeologist Joe Robertson of Winnipeg.

Ed Wynn and Red Skelton Excellent in Short Sketch

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) - Viewers could easily get the impression that this is Ed Wynn week on CBS television.

That fine actor and great comedian who has passed his 78th birthday appeared Monday night playing the serious role of a resident of a home for the aged in Slattery's People.

Tuesday night he was having a fine time committing mayhem in a weak, defenceless comedy sketch in the company of Red Skelton. Wynn, with his droll face and hesitant manner, was dandy in both appearances.

Red is in his 14th year as a "star" of television. The way he triumphs over usually shoddy sketch material is a weekly demonstration of his enormous talent for comedy. He and Wynn were great together.

Tuesday night Skelton was explaining that a tripod he set up was a "desert camera—no camera, li takes pictures of mirages."

Wynn, with a look of distaste after hearing the line, observed: "That's really how I got into fantastic work."

Later, when he asked whether a girl had a peaches-and-cream complexion, Skelton looked at the cue cards and replied: "She she does — she's yellow and furry."

"He'll be in dramatures, too, real soon," Wynn quipped.

Skelton's great talent however is pantomime.

Liston Out In Ninth Says Clay

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay predicted Tuesday he will knock Sonny Liston out in the second minute of the ninth round in their Nov. 16 rematch in Boston.

He said he will wait until he gets to Boston and then name the second the referee will count 10 over Liston.

"After a prediction like that," he mused, "I could retire, leaving a record never to be equalled. No other fighter could ever call the exact second.

Jim Begley Flirted With Perfect Game

Begley was competing in a field of 140 bowlers in a team-game TV qualifying round. The top three bowlers earned the right to compete on the CBC network bowling show.

Begley rolled nine strikes to start his 10th and final game of the competition. In his 10th frame he rocked the corner pin but left it standing. Begley took it out for his spare but he again left a corner pin with his one remaining ball.

This time he was sparkling 416 and had he made the perfect game, Begley would have received a special $1000 prize.

Begley started the day with an over-300 game but his middle eight games were enough to put him among the tournament leaders.

Jack Canning, another Belleville bowler had a 2478 total and finished in 15th position.

Eric Rank, former Trenton bowler who now lives in Toronto, had a high game with 2732. Andre Morrisette, of Montreal, was second with 2645.

Eastern Football Scoring

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts took the Eastern Football Conference with little hope of improving their status, but they have the top aerial attack in the league.

EFC statistics released today by league officials game to last Saturday show the Toronto club out in front with 100 first downs by passing. Ottawa is second with 74.

The Argos have an overwhelming lead in yards gained by passing with 2,992 followed by Ottawa though Hamilton with 2,432. Toronto also has completed 144 passes for a .550-per-cent average, tops in the league.

But the Ottawa offence completely dominates the EFC in every other department.

Riders' Ron Stewart, Russ Jackson and Dave Thelen are down the first three places in that order in the rushing department with a combined yardage of 1,704 and 11 touchdowns.

Stewart is the top ground-gainer with 1,000 yards and Jackson's 7.3-yards-a-carry average is tops in that department.

Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson leads the league in completed passes in 176 attempts for a total gain of 2,726 and 16 touchdowns, the longest pass-and-run gain of 107 yards and an average gain of 10.1 yards, all are tops in the EFC.

George Bork of Montreal Alouettes has the highest individual average of passes completed—.600.

Don Sutherin of Hamilton leads in pass interceptions with nine as well as in scoring. He has made five interceptions as well as in scoring. He has made five interceptions for 62 yards returned and has a longest return of 36 yards. He has 66 points, 14 more than Moe Racine of Ottawa in scoring statistics including Monday's games.

Solunar Tables and Their Use

As you know, weekly schedules from the solunar tables are published here in your newspaper. A great many sportsmen have found that if they plan their days in the open so that they take full advantage of the solunar periods, the quality of their sport improves considerably. But, unfortunately, not all of the fishermen and hunters are familiar with the solunar tables and know their value to those who enjoy the outdoor sports.

First off, exactly what are the solunar tables? The answer to that is easy. The solunar tables list, for each day of the year in all parts of the world; the actual times when the moon sets and rises. These times are known as lunar periods. Naturally, the degree of response varies considerably with the species of fish to be individual, depending upon the order of development, but it is there and easily recognized if you know how to look for it.

Far too many people seem to regard the solunar tables as being useful only with fresh-water fishing. Nothing could be further from the truth. Salt - water fish respond to the solunar periods as well or, in some cases, even better than fresh - water fish.

HELP TO HUNTERS

In view of the fact that birds and animals respond to a solunar period, you will find that the solunar tables can be a big help to you on your hunting trips. Take, for example, ringneck pheasant shooting. A ringneck, being a wary creature, spends his time in heavy protective cover when there is no solunar period in progress. In the evening or the high weeds and brush. Then he is difficult to find and even more difficult to flush.

But with the arrival of a solunar period he becomes hungry and active. He will leave his protective cover and move into the feeding grounds. Once there and feeding, he is not easily scared until his appetite is satisfied. Instead of running for safety, he'll more apt to hide and wait for you to go by. Thus, he will lie tight in the dog and give you some shooting.

The same thing is true of quail. Quail move about according to their individual fashion, they will pattern their behavior much according to the time of the ringneck, hiding in the feeding cover instead of running. Those are the times when you are apt to get your real good upland shooting.

Most duck hunters regard a "blusbird day" as being a bad day for duck shooting. They prefer cloudy weather. Generally that is true, but not entirely. On bright, sunny days the ducks are apt to "stop" out over deep water. But let a solunar period come along and the big flocks of ducks gradually will break up into small bunches and those will fly low as they leave the grounds and come readily to your decoys. One of the best shoots I ever had in Chesapeake Bay was in shirtsleeve weather, windless and warm, with the sun shining its calm and mosquitoes, bees and butterflies buzzing around the blind. Those broadbill ducks came in the solunar period just as though somebody rang the dinner bell.

For big-game hunting the same general rules hold true. Between activity periods, the game is more apt than not to be in hiding, lying down in heavy cover and taking things easy. But when a solunar period comes along, the picture changes. Then game is on the move, feeding and walking about. Deer are particularly responsive to solunar periods.

These rules hold good only for undisturbed fish and game. Self-preservation is the first law of nature and when wildlife is disturbed, especially by humans, they go into hiding until the danger is past and forgotten.

MAJOR AND MINOR

The solunar period are listed as major and minor periods. The major periods, under good conditions, last from two to three hours. When conditions are not entirely favorable, the activity is of shorter duration and severely adverse conditions sometimes neutralize completely the effects of the solunar periods. So keep this in mind. After all, you don't get 100 percent performance from anything.

And don't neglect the minor periods. These are of shorter duration but often you will find the best sport of the day during the minor periods.

We have learned over the years that a surprisingly large number of hunters and fishermen seem to disregard the solunar tables to help them plan their days in the open. Now and then one of the newspapers in which the weekly schedules are published learns about this more or less hard way. Recently, a letter came in from a sportsman, telling us about it. The following, in part, is what the writer had to say.

"About a dozen of my friends and myself depend on the solunar tables and swear by your predictions.

"We read the newspaper daily for these predictions and when the tables are not printed we get panicky. We think your newspaper did not have space every time for these tables. When their absence is called to them, they promptly came forward with 15 days in a row."

We like to hear from you. These men have formed the habit of keeping track of the daily solunar periods. Believe me, it's a habit that pays big dividends in sport.

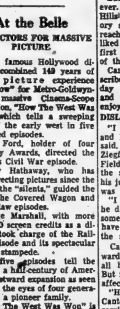
3 DIRECTORS FOR MASSIVE PICTURE

Three famous Hollywood directors combined 149 years of motion picture experience to direct Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer massive Cinema-Scope production, "How The West Was Won" which opens at the Belle today.

The story of the early west in five interlocked stories.

John Ford, holder of four Academy Awards, directed the picture's Civil War episode.

Henry Hathaway, who has been directing pictures since the days of the "silents" guided the River, the Covered Wagon and the Outlaw episodes.



George Marshall, with more than 450 screen credits as a director, took charge of the Railroad episode and the Cheyenne buffalo stampede.

The five episodes tell the story of a Kaleidoscope of America's westward expansion as seen through the eyes of four generations of a pioneer family.

"How The West Was Won" is now being shown at the Belle Theatre, for an extended engagement, at popular prices for the family. It is the first time its world-wide triumphant road show engagement, including 6 months at the Eglinton Theatre, Toronto.

COULD SET RECORD

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If Bob Gibson gets another chance to pitch for St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series, he probably will set an all-time strike-out record. Gibson fanned nine in the second game and 13 in the fifth game for a total of 22. Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers set the mark in 1963 when he whiffed 23 New York Yankees.

Writer Tells of Last Visit With Eddie Cantor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A last visit with Eddie Cantor:

Cantor in his final years was far from the vital, dynamic figure who had danced across the Ziegfeld stage and the screens of movie houses. His speech had grown slow and heavy tongued, evidence of the heart attacks that had withdrawn him from the entertainment scene. He moved with a deliberateness of a man who knew he was existing on borrowed time.

But his mind was sharp as ever. As I visited at his Beverly Hills home one day, his memory seemed unimpaired as he reached back to those days he liked to recall, when he was first flashing across the horizon of the entertainment world.

Cantor's doctor had prescribed a shot of whisky each day to assuage his ailments, and the comedian still didn't enjoy taking it.

DISLIKED DRINKING

"I never enjoyed drinking, and I think I know why," he said. My first contract with the Ziegfeld Follies was W. C. Fields. He never drank before the show—he couldn't and do his juggling. But when the show was over, he got plastered.

"I saw him three days before he died, and he said to me, 'I sometimes wonder what I could have been if I hadn't been on the stuff.'"

Cantor felt a mellowness toward Fields, as he did toward all his old fellow performers but for Fields he had a special affection.

"He helped educate me," Cantor said. "Fields always carried books with him, and every day he would read the New York Times and several other newspapers. Each night he would get out the dictionary and pick out three words that he made me learn and use in sentences. By the end of two years with the Follies, I had amassed a pretty good vocabulary."

Cantor refused to let his heart disability end his good works. He was signed by Fields to line up a big television spectacular to raise money for Dr. Salk's polio research foundation.

"I can no longer raise money retail: I have to go after it wholesale," said Cantor, who had collected millions of dollars for other causes.

RECALLS GOLDWYN

He reminisced about the great names he had worked with. He spoke affectionately of Samuel Goldwyn, who had brought him to Hollywood for a series of film extravaganzas. One was Whoopee, in which Cantor had starred on Broadway for Flo Ziegfeld.

The stage producer wanted Cantor to star in the show and make the movie version of Long Island during the daytime Goldwyn argued that the film could be made cheaper in Hollywood, "because I can get the Indians right off the reservation."

Eddie laughed at his joke, but there was little mirth in his voice. I didn't realize the measure of his loss of life. his beloved wife for 48 years who had died in 1962. At the mention of her name, he dissolved in tears and had to leave the room.

He returned composed but it was obvious that the great zest for life he once possessed now had departed. He was compliantly serving out his time which ended last Saturday night.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Dean Chance the "wonder pitcher" of the Los Angeles Angels is a young man with a yen for a yen.

The Angels' twenty-game winner and one of the second sensations of the year, is a farm boy with a great interest in cultivating "lettuce." And not the kind you use in a salad.

Young Mr. Chance apparently realizes his money-making potential, baseball-wise and otherwise, and intends making the most of it.

So much so, that he expects to have between $40,000 and $50,000 in the bank come spring training, garnered from an elaborate post season agenda.

Chance expects to be greeted with a $50,000 parchment offered by the Angels front office come spring, but he'll wait to cross that bridge until his wiener harvest is in the local trust company.

He'll start off by trading sentiment for "cash." He intends to make his first post-season haul when he raffles off the baseball with which he whitewashed the Minnesota Twins for his 20th victory, at a car-lot drawing.

"Not going to make anything out of it watching it sitting on the mantel," opines the mercenary Mr. Chance.

He intends jumping from the figurative rags to riches with a diversified program of payoff activities. Last winter the 23-year-old righthander pumped gas at a Los Angeles service station.

I don't know whether Chance is a one expert but he has fashioned himself a fine tour with the Brunswick people, his financial angels. He has bookings from New York to San Diego at $240 each. He will be master of ceremonies with two experts as a body guard.

Yup, you guessed it. This has to be part of the funds-raising gimmick. He will do two shaving type spots for which the sponsor will lather up $2,000 each, apart from residuals.

And as a baseball glamor boy he will team up with a well-known counterpart, Bo Belinsky—who sometimes cannot see by the dawn's early light—in an acting role in the Disneyland version of "Sam Yankee."

Then he will engage in bowling exhibitions for a well-known American sponsor between cultivating edible lettuce and other garden products on the Chance farm.

He has signed contracts for appearances at banquets with the tabs up to $750. The dinner is on the house.

SPORTS SHOW

One of the most elaborate sports shows produced in the city will be offered in the armouries on Thursday and Friday nights.

It is sponsored by the Belleville Quinte Kiwanis Club which claims the production will have "Everything for the Sportsman."

There will be the latest in hunting and fishing equipment, boats, guns, skills, and other outdoor necessaries for the sportsman. The Lands and Forests will have an interesting display of wildlife and conservation items. In fact practically everything connected with the outdoors will be on exhibit.

There will be movies on hunting, fishing and other sports, the RCAF Band and other enjoyable entertainment features. The show will open at six p.m. through eleven o'clock both nights.

UNITED APPEAL

Looking over the sports news the other day, I noticed a few lines about the United Appeal Campaign and it set me thinking about the biggest game of all—the game of life—the great game we all play as sportingly as we can. We believe in fair play—clean play—and naturally, we all want to come up a winner. Then I began to think about the people who are forced to play the game with a handicap. Maybe it's a physical one—maybe it's mental—or maybe it's just a set of unlucky circumstances—whatever it is, a handicap sure makes the game of life a lot tougher—and these unfortunate people don't have any special rules to help them through their ordeal.

No sir, it's the same rugged course, the same hard knocks, whatever the handicaps may be. Now what CAN WE do to give these people the break they're so desperately hoping for? I'll tell you—the surest, most direct way I know to help our less fortunate fellows is to give our support to the United Appeal Campaign.

Bouton Faced Simmons Today ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Loss Of Ford Hurt Yankee Chances

By JOE REICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The proud New York Yankees, straining to avert their second straight World Series disaster, were hoping for a near miracle as they faced St. Louis Cardinals in the sixth game today.

Down three games to two—just one away from elimination—Yankee manager Yogi Berra pinned his hopes on the right arm of 25-year-old Jim Bouton in a return mound engagement with veteran Cardinal southpaw Curt Simmons.

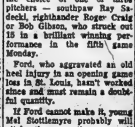
The two hooked up in the third game with Bouton the winner, 3-1, on Mickey Mantle's ninth inning home run in Yankee Stadium.

Even should the Yankees win today, a herculean task still faces the American League champions since the uncertainty of Whitey Ford's physical condition leaves their pitching weakened.

CURT SIMMONS

On the other hand, Cardinal manager Johnny Keane's pitching is in fine shape.

Simmons, of course, will be pitching with his normal four-day rest. Should a seventh game be necessary, Keane has the choice of one of three pitchers — Ray Sadecki, righthander Roger Craig or Bob Gibson, who struck out 13 in a brilliant winning performance in the fifth game Monday.



Ford, who aggravated an old heel injury in an opening game loss in St. Louis, hasn't worked since and must remain a doubtful quantity.

If Ford cannot make it, young Mel Stottlemyre probably will pitch the seventh game, if needed. The 22-year-old rookie righthander pitched a tough seven innings Monday.

BEAT CARDS 8-3

It was his second fine effort, coming four days after he had beaten the Cardinals 8-3 in the second game.

A defeat on top of their four straight losses to Los Angles Dodgers in 1963 would mark the first time the Yankees have lost two post season classics in succession since their back-to-back losses to the New York Giant in 1921 and 1922. They've won 20 out of 36 since.

JIM BOUTON

After a workout Tuesday in his home stadium, Keane said:

"We've gotten the breaks so far but we've taken advantage of them. We've also had a few bad breaks but we've overcome them. The Yankees haven't.

"Take Tom Tresh's game-tying home run off Gibson in the ninth inning Monday. That was enough to knock out almost any club. But we bounced right back with three runs in the next inning.

"It's a good thing we did. I don't think Gibson could have pitched much longer. He was a tired young man at the end."

Young Dal Maxvills also has surprised everybody with his fine all-around play as Julian Javier's substitute. The St. Louis lad has not only fielded well but has contributed several timely hits which figured in run scoring.

"I'm surprised by his (Maxville's) coolness under fire," said Keane. "Nobody is paying any attention to the kid Maybe that's good. I was afraid the pressure of a World Series might affect him. It hasn't."

Vic. Leafs Need Fan, Player Help

VICTORIA (CP) — Coach Rudy Pilous, whose Victoria Maple Leafs Tuesday night suffered their third straight defeat in the young Western Hockey League season, was disappointed but not discouraged.

He said following Leafs' 5-4 overtime loss to Seattle Totems that all he needs for a winning combination is a bit more player help from the parent Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League.

"I need two defencemen and two centres," Pilous said, "and (Toronto manager) Punch Imlach is looking around."

Tuesday's encounter was the first home game for Leafs who have the franchise held last season by Denver Invaders. But the return of pro hockey to Victoria after a three year absence was witnessed by only 1,722 fans.

Bob Barlow's second goal of the game, at 57 seconds of sudden-death overtime, gave the Totems their second win in three games and moved them into a points tie with the unbeaten Los Angeles Blades for first place.

Ray Kinasewich, Bill MacFarland and Gerry Brisson scored the other Seattle goals.

The overtime was forced by Lou Jankowski's third goal of the night for Leafs, at 8:33 of the third period. Jankowski also assisted on the other Victoria goal, scored by Gordie Redahl.

Wants Bout For Chuvalo In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Irving Youngerman, manager of heavyweight boxer George Chuvalo of Toronto, said Tuesday he hopes an elimination bout for the world heavyweight title between Chuvalo and a ranking contender can be held in Toronto.

His comment came after he met Merv McKenzie, president of the World Boxing Association, to urge that Toronto be the site for the elimination bout.

Youngerman said the 27-year-old Chuvalo is ready to accept any challenger for the title now held by Cassius Clay.

Chuvalo stopped Doug Jones of New York, fourth ranked heavyweight contender, in the 11th round of a scheduled 12-round fight in New York Oct. 2. The victory moved the Toronto boxer up to fourth spot among the contenders, displacing Jones. Previously he was ranked eighth.

Habs Bow To Generals

BOWMANVILLE (CP)—Oshawa Generals staved off a late rally by Montreal Junior Canadiens to post a 3-1 victory in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A home opener here Tuesday night.

The win gave Oshawa four points and moved them into first place tie with Toronto Marlboros.

The teams battled to a 1-1 tie in the first period before Bobby Orr scored the winning goal for the Generals in the second.

Aces Take 4 In Row

QUEBEC (CP) — Bernard (Boom Boom) Geoffrion's flying Quebec Aces scored their fourth consecutive win without a loss in the American Hockey League Tuesday night whipping Hershey Bears 5-1 in their home opener before 7 448 fans.

Gaalle Lorne (Gump) Worsley missed a shutout when Bruce Kline's flip shot in goalmouth scramble bounced in off the post. Worsley has allowed only five goals in Quebec's four games.

John Hanna, Gary Peters, Wayne Hicks, Bill Sutherland and Leon Rochefort scored the Quebec goals.

Habs Blank Rangers In Opener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens have opened defence of their National Hockey League championship with the same formula that earned them the title last season.

The Canadiens captured the NHL crown last spring because of Charlie Hodge's outstanding work in the nets and super efforts from several performers generally not thought of as "stars."

The summer layoff has changed nothing.

The defending league champions bombarded New York Rangers with 48 shots Tuesday night and Hodge turned in a 14-save shutout as Montreal blanked the Rangers 3-0. Claude Provost scored twice and sophomore John Ferguson added a third goal.

It was the first game of the season for Montreal and the second for the Rangers, who whipped Boston 6-2 in the league opener Monday.

Three teams have yet to see action as the NHL slowly unveils its performers one game at a time. Chicago makes its debut tonight as host to Boston while Toronto and Detroit sign on Thursday when they meet in Detroit.

The Canadiens mobbed the disorganized Rangers and goalie Marcel Paille, substituting again for Jacques Plante. Only his tireless efforts and Montreal's over - anxiousness kept the score respectable.

New York's lack-lustre play was witnessed by 13,731 Madison Square Garden fans.

After Provost netted his first goal at 8:30 of the first period with a 15-footer to the far corner, the Habs scored once in each of the last two frames on power plays.

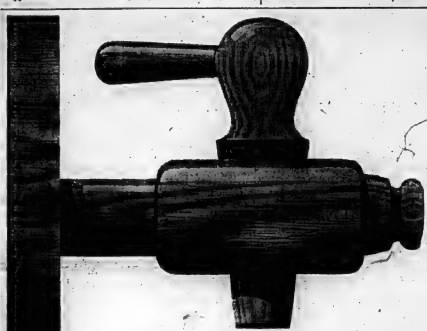
Provost got his second at 2:06 of the second while two Ranger defencemen, Harry Howell and Jim Neilson, were off and Ferguson tallied with 2:36 left in the game as Arnie Brown watched from the penalty box on a holding infraction.

May Enter Marathon

Kidd Beaten In 10,000

TORONTO (CP) — "He must have got off to a bad start," Robie Kidd said early today after his son, Bruce, tailed in his bid to win the 10,000-metre event at the Olympic Games in Tokyo.

Bruce, 21, finished far back in the field of 38 runners. Billy Mills of the United States won the six mile, 376-yard event in 28 minutes, 24.4 seconds.



"I hope he's all right," said the elder Kidd, who was unable to sleep and spent several hours in the Toronto newsroom of The Canadian Press waiting for the Olympic result to flash over the teletype wires. It came at 3:47 a.m.

Asked what he thought Bruce would now do, Kidd said his son probably would run in either the 3,000-metre event or in the marathon, "depending on how he feels."

"But, I rather think he'll run in the marathon."

CONDITION GOOD

HAMILTON (CP)—Leo Back 65-year-old Hamilton Tiger-Cat team manager, injured during a Canadian Football League interlocking game against Saskatchewan Roughriders Oct. 4, was reported in good condition in hospital Tuesday. Back suffered a concussion and bruises when Hamilton flanker Tom Grant ran into him on the sidelines after taking a pass from quarterback Bernie Faloney.

Jerome Rated Gold Medal Prospect

Wins Two Heats

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Harry Jerome of Vancouver found a measure of vindication at the Olympic Games today, sprinting to victory twice in the heats of the men's 100-metre spring eliminations in such a strong fashion that he was rated one of the men to beat for the gold medal.

Jerome, 24-year-old son of a railway porter, turned in an excellent 10.3-second clocking in the quarter-final eliminations after doing 10.5 in the opener.

Half-miller Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., easily qualified too, in the 800-metre eliminations, but the third-ace of the Canadian track and field team, Bruce Kidd, falled in the long-distance run and finished far back.

Jerome, who faced bitter criticism after he pulled up lame in the 1960 Olympics in Rome in the same sprint, and Crothers now must face one more hurdle — the semi-finals Thursday—before reaching the finals and getting a crack at a medal. LEND CANADIAN FLAVOR

The performances of Jerome and Crothers lent a Canadian flavor to the 18th games for the first time in four days of competition as the track and field competition got under way before more than 50,000 persons who braved drizzling weather early in the morning to watch a record-breaking series of performances.

It was a darkhorse Olympics as far as track and field was concerned today as unknowns won gold medals in the rugged 10,000-kilometre — six miles and 376.11 yards—race and the men's javelin and women's broad jump.

Lieut. Billy Mills, a U.S. marine, turned in an amazing upset when he sprinted away from the field that included Australia's world record-holder, Ron Clarke, and won the 10,000 metres in Olympic record time.

The 26 - year - old American shaved a fantastic 7.8 seconds off the previous Olympic mark set in 1909 by Peter Bolotnikov of Russia, winning the race in 28 minutes, 24.4 seconds. But Miller didn't come close to Clark's world standard of 26:15.6.

Clark had to settle today for the third-place bronze medal as an unknown Tunisian, Mohamed Gamoudi, beat him out for the second-place silver.

WINS JAVELIN THROW

Blonde Pauli Nevala, 24-year-old strongman from Finland, won the gold medal in the javelin with a throw of 271 feet, 2½ inches.

Hungary's Gergely Kulcsar took the silver with a best toss of 270-0¾ and the bronze medal set was Russia's Yan Lusis with 264-2.

The women's broad jump went to a British housewife from Henley on Thames, who set a world record in winning the gold.

Mrs. Mary Rand, a 24-year-old housewife and mother of a small boy, jumped 22 feet, 2¾ inches, eclipsing the previous mark of 21-11¾ set by Russia's Tatyana Schelkanova this year. The Russian finished third today while Irena Kirszenstein of Poland won the silver with a jump of 21-7¾. Miss Schelkanova's leap was 21-6¾.

As expected, the United States added the men's Olympic springboard diving championship for the 10th straight time in a one-two-three sweep.

SURPRISE WINNER

But the big surprise was the winner, Ken Sitzberger. The American was third going into the final round but put on a dazzling display of free diving and won the springboard competition with a total of 159.90 points.

Frank Gorman, a U.S. naval officer who had led all the way, finished second with 157.63 points and Larry Andreasen was third with 152.77.

American swimmers set world records in winning both the women's 100-metre backstroke and the men's 400-metre freestyle relay title.

The powerful U.S. team, anchored by Don Schollander, the Olympic freestyle sprint champion, defeated Germany by more than five yards in 3:33.2, bettering the world mark of 3:36.1 set by a U.S. national team at Tokyo in 1963.

Germany's quartet was second and Australia third. Canada did not qualify for the final.

Swimming the first leg, American leadoff man Steve Clark also equalled the world record of 52.9 seconds for 100 metres set by France's Alain Gootvalles last September.

Gootvalles, a member of the French team, never got a chance to defend his laurels. For France was disqualified because the third man on the team, Pierre Caarreze, leaped into the water too soon.

TAKES BACKSTROKE

Cathy Ferguson won the women's backstroke in the world record time of 1:07.7 as Canada's Marion Lay (Topp) Wet placed seventh among the eighth finalists.

There hasn't been a swimming event yet contested in the games in which an Olympic or world mark hasn't been broken.

Today, all three medallists in the backstroke came under the mark mark including another American girl, Virginia Duenkel, the last owner of the world mark.

Miss Ferguson, a tall, 16-year-old blonde from California, just nipped France's 16-year-old Christine Caron in a thrilling finish. Miss Duenkel was third.

Christine was clocked in 1:07.9 and Miss Duenkel in 1:08.0. The world mark of 1:08.3 was set by Miss Duenkel at Los Angeles last Sept. 26.

Miss Weir, 18-year-old Toronto high school student, was clocked in 1:09.8, her fastest time ever.

Dick Roth and Roy Saari of the United States, also broke the world standard in finishing one-two in the men's 400-metre individual medley final. Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., was fifth behind Gerhard Hertz of Germany, American Carl Robie and Roth and Saari.

Roth broke his own world record at last July, giving the United States a total of six gold medals in swimming and diving out of the nine decided so far.

Roth's time of 4:45.4 broke his own world mark of 4:48.4, set last July. Saari's time was 4:47.1. Gilchrist also was under five minutes in 4:57.6.

A trio of American girls took turns at lowering the Olympic women's 100 - metre butterfly record in the heats and a pair of Canadians, Marianne Hunenkuk of Toronto and Mary Stewart of Vancouver, joined them in the semi-finals Thursday.

Sharon Stouder, a California high school student, eventually ended up with the best time of 1:07.0 to lead the 16 qualifiers. CANADIAN IS THIRD

Miss Hunenkuk, a freckle-faced blonde, placed third behind Ada Kok of The Netherlands and Finland's Ella Pyy-bonen. The Canadian's time of 1:09.5 was good enough to make the semi-finals. Miss Kok, who holds the world butterfly mark of 1:05.1, won the heat in 1:07.8.

Miss Stewart, who set a world mark of 1:07.3 two years ago in Vancouver that was lowered by Miss Kok, also finished third behind heat winner Kathy Ellis of the U.S. and Britain's Mary Cotterill. Miss Stewart's time was 1:09.9.

Big Bats Lack Power

Long-Ball Hitters' Averages 'Shocking'

By JACK HAND

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The World Series swings back to Busch Stadium with its friendly fences today and not one opened too early for sluggers Bill White, Roger Maris, Ken Boyer and Orlando Cepeda.

The batting averages of the proven long - ball hitters are truly shocking after the first five games. St. Louis Cardinals, with a 3-2 edge in games, have five of their eight regulars hitting .200 or less. New York Yankees, supposedly a bundle of muscle, have four starters batting under .200.

White, with 21 home runs and 102 runs batted in during the regular season, is batting .053 with only one hit in 19 at bats. Boyer, despite his grand slam homer that won Sunday's game has only three hits in 19 trips and a .158 average.

Brock, the slugger who came to the Cardinals from Chicago, has a .182 average.

Over on the Yankee side, Maris, the 61-home run hitter of 1961, does not have an extra base hit or a run batted in and his hitting .182. Joe Pepitone normally a power hitter, has a .167 mark.

Johnny Keane, the Cardinal manager, offers a partial explanation for the weak hitting in the last three games in New York:

"Yankee Stadium is a tough park to hit in. The shadows at this time of year make it difficult. Of course, that big centre field gives the fielders plenty of room to roam and catch fly balls that might have been hit out of our park."

The shadows didn't seem to bother Tim McCarver much. The Cardinals' young catcher leads all the hitters with a plump .471 average. Bobby Richardson, .321, Mickey Mantle, .333, and Elston Howard .313, are the three Yanks over the .300 level.

Despite the low averages, the club averages, Yanks, .243, and Cards, .238, aren't close to records. The all-time two-club low for a six-game series was 1906 when Chicago White Sox batted .198 and Chicago Cubs .196. And in 1911, New York Giants hit only .176 against Philadelphia Athletics.

Quinte COSSA Soccer

Prince Edward Collegiate Institute swept a low-scoring twin bill from Belleville's Quinte Secondary School as the Quinte COSSA soccer schedule opened yesterday.

The Picton school nipped Quinte 1-0 in both the junior and senior games.

In the junior contest, Lucas Girouard scored the game's only goal.

The games were played at Q.S.S.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don Marshall of New York leads the National Hockey League scoring race with three points and Montreal's Claude Provost owns the distinction as top goal-getter with two.

But the big guns—Stan Mikita, Gordie Howe, Bobby Hull etc—have yet to be heard from as NHL unveils its performers one game at a time.

The Rangers dominate the point parade as the strength of a 6-2 win over Boston in the season' opener, while Provost and Marshall their ranks with two goals in Montreal's 3-0 win in New York Tuesday night.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dale Dufty piloted two winners which were both largely overlooked by the 2,019 fans at the Western Fair Raceway Tuesday night.

His first came in the third when Ozark Peter went the mile first in 2:11 4-5 and paid $41.60. He scored again in the ninth when Wayne Brook returned $14.60 after pacing the mile in 2:10.

The daily double on worthy Frisco in the first and scion Grattan in the second paid $50.80.

Won't Break Rules

Marlies Have 'Holdouts'

TORONTO (CP)—Two members of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League are hiding out for more money, Jim Gregory, the team's coach and general manager, said Tuesday night.

He said the players are forward Barry Watson, 19, of Toronto and defenceman Jim McKenny of Ottawa, both members of last year's Memorial Cup winning team.

Watson has played two exhibition games with Marlboros. McKenny has not shown up for practice.

"The league ruling is that the players get $60 a week and tuition at the school of their choice, and we don't intend to break the rule," Gregory said. "I'd like to see them come back and I'm not going to lose any sleep if they don't show up," he said. "They are the property of the Toronto Maple Leafs and can't move unless officials of the Leafs say so."

Watson, a high school student, said he thought he should get $80 a week. "I've got two years left in junior hockey and if I don't come to terms with Marlboros I'll sit out a year

Hold First Vote Without Winnie In Forty Years

WOODFORD, England (AP) The 44,000 electors of Woodford, Essex, voted Thursday in 13 miles from the centre of London, are in the throes of a parliamentary election that for the first time in 40 years does not present Sir Winston Churchill as a candidate to represent them in the House of Commons.

Thursday's election is they choose from three candidates Conservative, Labor and Liberal. All are in a parliamentary fight for the first time and their average age is only 37, com pared to Churchill's 90.

Not surprisingly, Sir Winston's shadow has loomed importantly over the campaign even though he has retired from politics.

There is relief that the former prime minister has finally decided to call a day.

Said Mrs. Mary Crockrell, wife of an electrical engineer, who will be voting Conservative:

"Sir Winston was marvellous but I don't think he should keep on. He should settle down."

Mrs. Edith Balding, tobacco store clerk, said: "I voted for Churchill at the last parliamentary election and wouldn't have dreamed of doing anything else. But this time, now that he's gone, I shall vote Liberal."

Sir Winston's successor as Conservative candidate is Patrick Jenkin, a 38-year-old Scottish-born barrister.

The other two candidates are James Morrell, 41, an economist (Labor) and John Lockwood, 33, sales manager (Liberal).

Ontario Liberal Leader Holds First Caucus

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said Tuesday the Ontario party will begin immediately to prepare for a provincial Liberal candidates for the next provincial election even though one is not expected until 1967.

"I've always believed that we should start fighting the next one right after the last one," Mr. Thompson told a press conference following the first meeting with the Liberal caucus since he was elected leader last month.

In the last Ontario general election on Sept. 25, 1963, former Liberal leader John Wintermeyer, suffered personal defeat and the party lost all but only 24 members to the 108-seat House. Since then, byelections have returned Liberal representation to 23.

Seventeen of the caucus members met with Mr. Thompson for the party's new office in Queen's Park. The leader said the meeting was to discuss how he expected to work with the caucus and what he could expect from them individually.

Mr. Thompson told reporters that he had asked the Liberals members each to give him an idea of the subjects they would like to pursue in the session of the legislature. Then jobs could be assigned to the Liberal critics.

One of the criticisms of the Liberal party in opposition has been that its spokesmen on the various government departments have not been chosen far enough in advance and that they have not been fully prepared. By contrast, the New Democratic Party has been regarded by some observers as the most effective opposition for its size—only seven members during the last session.

Hold Profit-Sharing Issue Divides Union and Firm

DETROIT (AP)Moving toward a strike deadline less than 48 hours away, American Motors Corporation and the United Auto Workers Union have no sign of agreement or near-agreement on major economic issues.

Set on the No. 1 question they were poles apart. That is: Will their new profit-sharing survey forward the U.S. automotive industry's only profit - sharing plan?

Edward L. Cushman, AMC vice - president who proposed and got profit sharing in 1961, told reporters Tuesday night he feels "profit sharing is still dead" so far as any new contract is concerned.

On the other hand, Douglas Fraser, the UAW's American Motors department chief said: "We think it is still alive. We'll try by Thursday midnight."

Economic areas reported settled or nearly so parallel those in new national contracts already reached by the UAW with the U.S. automakers big three—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

In Thursday's negotiations AMC says the union is demanding the same money package it got from the big three—plus profit sharing. It also says the union is unwilling to gamble possible wage gains in the event of a profitless AMC year.

While conceding AMC's workers would get more than others in high profit years, the union says it is willing to take next week's vacation and two added holidays in a poor year. It estimates this would cost company costs to what it agreed to forego in 1961 if profits were non-existent

CUBAN PILOT DEFECTS

KEW WEST, Fla. (AP) — A discontented Cuban pilot flew a Russian - built crop-duster to freedom Tuesday. U.S. jets forced it down at a tiny landing strip just north of here. The biplane overshot the runway and ended up on a highway, blocking traffic for several hours.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

HAMILTON (CP) — About 500,000 Canadians of Italian descent in Ontario are observing the 100th anniversary of the landing of the first Italian immigrants in Canada. The celebrations began here when Mayor Vic Copps asked the city to observe Oct. 11—Columbus Day—as the centennial year of the country's Italian ethnic groups. Communities throughout Ontario will stage balls and parades until Oct. 31.

Sport Snapshots

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP)—A gamble that Montreal would support American professional football was behind the birth last winter of Quebec Rifles.

J. I. Albrecht, who conceived the idea and promoted it with the financial backing of Montreal's barrel - making Katz brothers, thinks the gamble is already paying off.

As general manager, Albrecht says he's so certain the Rifles are here to stay that he plans a bid in November to obtain a National or American Football League franchise.

The Rifles, as a team, are hardly off the ground. They are first-year entrants in the United Football League, a semi-pro loop that embraces such minor league cities as Joliet, Ill., and Charleston, W. Va.

In their first three home games, played at leased 22,000-seat Delormier Stadium, the Rifles drew an average of a little more than 8,000 fans.

This doesn't disturb Albrecht who sets an average attendance of 7,500 as "the make-money point."

"It's like fighting a war," he says. "You establish a beachhead, entrench your forces, and then advance. We've established our beach-head. We're here.

"Our business formula differs from any other kind of business. It goes like this: First, you must not lose too much money. Second, you must win at home, and only thirdly must you make money.

"Usually, in other businesses the formula is to make money by beating your competitor at all times.

"If I break even this year I'm a genius."

Owners of the team, Bill and Hyman Katz, have already said they are prepared to lose money the first few years while the team becomes established.

"I'll tell you this," says Albrecht, "if we do lose money this year it isn't likely to be a catastrophic figure. In other words, we won't fold."

Rifles have 3,000 season ticket - holders compared with 14,000 for Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. Tickets to Rifles home games are $1.50 to $3.50 while the Als sell theirs at $2.50 to $4.

$100 A GAME

"You have to really want to play football to play on this league," Albrecht says. Players get $100 a game for a 14-game season. "Those guys don't come here for money. They come here because they want to play."

Nevertheless, UFL teams travel first class by air except for short hops, and Rifles will spend $20,000 this season on charter flights.

Can Montreal support two professional football teams?

Albrecht says he thinks so, even while taking issue with the suggestion that Rifles don't compete with Alouettes because the teams play a different brand of football.

"We are in competition for the entertainment dollar with the Alouettes. I'm not a paying fan but I think that if I were, when it came time to dole out that dollar I would have to consider carefully which game would give me the most value. There aren't too many fans who can afford to pay to see both teams play."

Albrecht would like to arrange a game between the two teams.

"Nothing would give me more pleasure than to have the Alouettes win the Grey Cup and us win our championship. Then the two of us could meet in an exhibition game for charity. It's a natural."

Wooler

WOOLER — On Sunday, October 11th, Wooler United Church held their Thanksgiving Anniversary which was largely attended. The minister, Rev. J. M. MacCallum, was in the pulpit, assisted by the guest speaker, Rev. Earl S. Santenschager, Principal of Emmanuel Theological College, Toronto. Music in the morning was by the Wooler choir, also a quartet with Suzanne Whaley at the organ.

The evening service was again taken by Rev. MacCallum with the guest speaker, which was greatly enjoyed. Music was by three young men from Brighton, McMullen, and the Hamilton brothers assisted by their teacher Mrs. Baker.

After the service a social hour was spent in the church parlors.

Givings for the day reached nearly $1,200.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Redcliffe and Vivian, also Mr. Morgan spent the weekend at Manitoulin Island with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens.

Steel Tenders Being Called For New Bridge

PICTON (Staff) — Further progress on the high level bridge connecting Prince Edward and Hastings counties near Deseronto is indicated in a letter received Saturday by Norris Whitney, M.P.P. from the Ontario Minister of Highways.

It stated that tenders are to be called the middle of this week for "supply, fabrication, shop painting, delivery and erection of structural steel for high level bridge at Crook's Ferry".

About two weeks ago, it was announced that tenders had been called for the sub-structure of the same bridge. These have not been let.

Latest contract means that tenders have now been called for complete bridge.

CHARGES PENDING

A 66-year-old man, Asel Marisette, was injured and taken to Prince Edward Co. Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon when he was struck by a car at the top of the town hill at the intersection of Main and Bridge Streets. The car was driven by 21-year-old Philip M. Yarrow of Demorestville. Yarrow made a left turn from East Main to go down the Bridge Street Hill and struck the elderly man as he was crossing the street from West to East. Marisette was admitted to hospital with a dislocated left shoulder and lacerations to his chin. Dr. S. W. Hart attended the injured man. The accident occurred at approximately 1.10 p.m. Charges are pending.

Tourist Council Wants Highway Left Scenic

PICTON (Staff) — The Bay of Quinte Regional Tourist Council is sponsoring a public meeting at the Royal Hotel in Picton, Thursday night, October 22nd.

Purpose of the meeting is to devise a possible plan which would assure the continuance of Highway 33 as a scenic one and preserve the waterfront area for generations to come.

At this meeting a panel representing the Quinte Parkway Association, headed by Dr. R. M. Lower of Queen's University will be present to outline their views and offer suggestions.

Local opinions are also being sought and representatives from municipal bodies, chamber of commerce, the Historical Society and such interested groups and others are asked to attend.

It is emphasized that there is no attempt to prevent industry from locating along Highway 33.

However it is felt that zoning, or some such action, is necessary if the waterfront section is to be preserved.

Zoning would set out Indus trial areas and at the same time assure that the waterfront area is preserved for park purposes as it might be needed in future years.

Such land would not necessarily be taken over by the government's St. Lawrence Parks Development Commission, but through zoning could be preserved in its natural state or as park land.

The matter has been widely discussed but there has been no concrete action to make a survey or decide on what can actually be done.

The Bay of Quinte Regional Tourist Council hopes that through this meeting that the public can be made aware of the need of some concrete action being taken.

REVIVING PARADE

The Santa Claus Parade is being revived in Picton. While the popular fellow has made a visit each year, there has not been a large parade for which the town became famous a few years ago. This was the work, chiefly, of a small committee who failed to receive the co-operation of merchants whom it was felt benefitted most, and it was replaced by Santa coming by helicopter or appearing in the armories or at the county centre.

Retail Merchants Association met recently and decided to revive the parade with floats, bands, etc. A number have been promised and those willing to help should contact Association President Vic Lord. Tentative date is Saturday, November 28.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — The annual banquet of the Prince Edward County Holstein Club will be held in the Eastern Star Temple, Talbot Street, Picton on the evening of Friday, October 23rd. The speaker this year will be Dr. George C. Fisher, Manager Veterinary Services, The Quaker Oats Company of Canada Limited, Peterborough. Dr. Fisher is an excellent speaker and we know that Holstein breeders and their friends are looking forward to hearing him on this occasion. Tickets for the banquet are available from directors of the Prince Edward County Holstein Breeders Club.

INTER-CLUB CONTESTS

The 34th annual Provincial 4-H Inter-Club competitions will be held at the University of Guelph on Friday, October 16th. Competitions will be held in Dairy and Beef Clubs, Swine, Grain, Field Crop, Potato, Forestry, Tractor, Fruit and Electric Clubs. Prince Edward County will be represented in the Dairy, Potato, Grain, Tractor and Electric Division. Team members are as follows: Milford 4-H Calf Club — Margaret Walker R.R. 3, Picton and Linda Waggins, R.R. 1, Cherry Valley; Picton 4-H Calf Club — Helen Whitehead, R.R. 1, Bloomfield and Bill Cumming, R.R. 2, Picton; Sophiasburg 4-H Calf Club — Barbara Dorsee, R.R. 3, Demorestville and Tom Mills, R.R. 2, Picton; Picton Kiwanis 4-H Potato Club — George Black, R.R. 7, Belleville and Howard Pulver, R.R. 1, Carrying Place, Prince Edward 4-H Grain Club — John Thompson, R.R. 2, Picton and Don Weekes, R.R. 6, Picton; Prince Edward 4-H Tractor Maintenance Club — Leslie Latchford, R.R. 1, Picton and Brian McFaul, R.R. 1, Belleville; Prince Edward 4-H Farm and Home Electric Club — Anne Sprigings, R.R. 2, Bloomfield and Pat Townsend, R.R. 1, Carrying Place.

SOIL SAMPLING

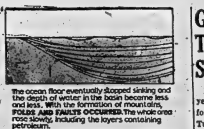
Farmers are reminded that this is probably the best time of the year to take soil samples from fields intended for next year's crops. A soil sample taken now and forwarded to the Soils Department of the Ontario Agricultural College for analysis will ensure that the results of the test will be available when required. Frequently soil samples are sent in too late to allow sufficient time to get a report back before the date that the fertilizer is purchased.

Farmers who order their complete supply of fertilizer in the fall for the next year's crop would be well advised to sample all of the fields that they intend to fertilize as early as possible and preferably by the middle of October. The weather is usually more pleasant for this type of work then, than later in the season and there will be a better chance of getting the reports back in time. There are always a great many samples sent in during the fall season and even though the test Lab. is operating at full capacity there may be considerable delay.

The biggest obstacle in analyzing soil samples has been the great volume of paper work involved. It took time to transfer the mass of data to individual forms. Interpreting this data and the information sheets accompanying the samples and typing. Computer machines are now being used which drastically reduce paper work and in turn will provide a more efficient soil testing service. All laboratory data plus pertinent management practices submitted on information sheets accompanying soil samples are punched on computer cards.

FED TO COMPUTER

The punched cards are fed into the computer which prepares the reports for mailing. The reports will give the sample numbers, soil test values and ratings for crops to be grown along with the net requirements of nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and lime. When reports reach the local Department of Agriculture the suggested fertilizer treatments are typed on the bottom of the report and it is forwarded to the farmer. On the report form now being used there is one situation with which the computer cannot cope. This is a sample number system, over simple digits of 1, 2 and 3, etc. The computer cannot use samples designated by letters such as A B C, A1 A2 B2 or terms such as front field or back field, etc. Farmers are asked to give careful attention to filling out the information sheet submitted with the sample.



This is particularly important to enable the computer to make necessary deductions or additions to give the net fertilizer requirement per acre. Management practices which affect soil test recommendations are manure applied, straw or stocks plowed down, the kind of crop plowed down and the crop to be grown. It is particularly important that this information be supplied on the information sheet if a satisfactory report is to be made.

In cases where the crop to be grown has not been determined a soil sample can still be analyzed and the report will be held until the cropping program has been determined. New recommendations can also be made on the basis of samples which were analyzed a year or two ago if a more recent test is not available. This is possible as long as the cropping history of the field is known. We can't emphasize the importance of a soil sample that has been properly taken and is representative of the field along with complete information regarding the sample.

SHAPING the EARTH

In sea basins, as material was deposited, often the BOTTOM SANK SLOWLY; thus, layers of eroded material from land, precipitated lime and remains of animals and plants, reached tremendous depths, in some places. MORE THAN 6 MILES DEEP. Petroleum formed in these deposits.

The ocean floor eventually stopped sinking and the depth of water in the basin became less and less. With the formation of mountains, FOLDS AND FAULTS OCCURRED. The whole area rose slowly, including the layer's containing petroleum.

Petroleum and gas move to the TOPS of folds, until stopped by an impermeable cover. Above sea level, sometimes EROSIVE FORCES RELEASE A RESERVOIR and oozing occurs on the earth's surface.

Given Money To Keep Quiet Says Witness

HULL, Que. (CP) — An 18-year-old Hull youth testified before Judge Avila Labelle Court Tuesday that a member of Parliament made indecent advances to him on a Hull street last Aug. 3.

Raymond Emond, a student at an apprentice school here, was testifying at the trial of Louis-Joseph Pigeon, 42, Progressive Conservative MP for Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm, on a charge of indecent assault against a male.

Emond said he was walking along one of the main streets here shortly after 9:30 p.m. on Aug. 3 when Pigeon grabbed him by the arm from between two buildings. He said a five-minute scuffle followed in which he fought off the MP.

He said Pigeon made indecent proposals to him.

Emond said Pigeon ended by putting $11 in his hand and asking him not to mention anything to police.

Under cross - examination by Pigeon's attorney, Dollard Dansereau of Montreal, the youth said he had not told police about the money until about a week after the alleged attack. Emond said he was afraid to do so earlier.

The trial is continuing.

Man Pinned Under Car

AJAX, Ont. (CP) — Robert Hickey, 24, of Ajax was killed Tuesday when he was pinned under his car after it rolled over on a street here.

Deborah Fletcher, 17, of Pickering Township, one of two passengers in the car, suffered back injuries and was taken to hospital at Oshawa. She was reported to be in satisfactory condition.

Harold Wilson, Labor Party Leader in British Election, Once Professor at Oxford

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — The pussy-cat smile of Harold Wilson covers an intelligence of feline swiftness and long - disciplined efficiency.

James Harold Wilson 48, the man who persuaded the British Labor party to doff its cloth cap and don a white coat, is leading the socialists for the first time in the campaign for the Oct. 15 general election.

Wilson, with his emphasis on a new scientific Britain evokes memories of John F. Kennedy, having even adapted slogans from the late United States president, whose autographed photo is in the living room of his modest suburban home.

"I want to get Britain moving again," says Wilson, his matter-of-fact Yorkshire accent at the far end of the scale from Kennedy's Boston twang.

"What is wrong with our society is that those who make the money are more regarded than those who earn the money."

"Government by amateurs" is a favorite target for the scorn of the life-long socialist—and you can be sure the "amateur" he has most in mind is Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

YOUNGEST LEADER

Youngest of the three party leaders, Wilson "towers" over his Labor colleagues—if a modelish, plump person can be said to tower — and is frequently termed a one-man band.

"A leader must conduct the orchestra," counters Wilson. "He doesn't play the instruments—but he must know the score."

Wilson recalls half seriously that he entered politics at age seven, three years before his father took a now-famous snapshot of him outside 10 Downing Street. A grammar school boy, he became an Oxford don at 21. At 31 in the Attlee government he became the youngest cabinet minister, president of the board of trade, in nearly 150 years.

The British are traditionally wary of brains in politics and the sleek-faced Wilson perennial "boy wonder" despite his white hair, has often been accused of opportunism and devious tactics on his way to the top. He seems interested in practical rather than ideological socialist matters—"policies, not theology," as he once put it. He has moved from left to centre in the party.

"No one knows where Harold Wilson stands or where his loyalties lie," writes Mark Bonham - Carter, a power in the Liberal party.

COMPETE WITH FATHER

Wilson and his 52 year-old father, Herbert like to compete with one another by multiplying two sets of four figures in their heads. The old man claims Harold is slipping.

"Perhaps it is his evident keenness that is off-putting," says one periodical. "His obvious self-sufficiency; the impression he gives of having thought out every question a year before it was asked."

Involved in party leadership rivalry for years, Wilson watched a Tory top-level smut gale with amusement. He grimly reported that R. A. Butler, Tory No. 2 man, once met former prime minister Harold Macmillan at the airport and "stripped him warmly by the throat."

Wilson enjoys the enthusiastic support of fellow pipe-smoker Lord Attlee and in his austere approach to life is similar to that of the post - war Labor prime minister They differed in this way from Hugh Gaitskell, the party leader who died in January, 1963, and from the late Nye Bevan, the fiery Welshman who once seemed a potential prime minister.

"He is a man entirely without intimates," says the Sunday Telegraph of Wilson. "He has seldom been seen dining and wining for useless pleasure."

"Nye Bevan loved good food and wine and reckless talk in the company of friends. So did Hugh Gaitskell in a rather different way."

"I'm a socialist not a socialiser," says Wilson, who told his parliamentary colleagues after he was selected to succeed Gaitskell:

"No one should be disappointed at not being asked to dinner. Nobody is being asked."

Yet Wilson, in Kennedy style, establishes a comradeship with campaign reporters and his nonsense ways and all give him an ease in meeting crowds.

Wilson resigned from the Attlee government with Bevan in April, 1951, over rearmament and the imposition of dental and health service costs. They resigned as a sensation at the time.

"If you try to move a piano that's too heavy, you won't move it—you'll just strain yourself," said Wilson of rearmament costs.

MEETS CROWDS EASILY

Attlee's government was defeated in October, 1951, and three years later Wilson replaced Bevan in the "shadow" cabinet after another of the Welshman's resignations.

"What matters," said Wilson then, "is the unity and strength of the party."

The party fell on hard days of dissension over Gaitskell's efforts to rewrite nationalization policy and over a powerful rebellion by pacifists and proponents of unilateral disarmament, bitterly opposed by Gaitskell. Critics saw Wilson's role as equivocal. The Sunday Times, in a lengthy profile, says:

"The crisis which cost him most personally was the decision to stand against Hugh Gaitskell for the leadership after the turbulent Labor conference of 1960.

"He lost to Gaitskell as he knew he would. To his enemies, the opposition was the worst in a long list of betrayals. To his followers, it was an act of courage."

Son of an industrial chemist, the member for Huyton Lancashire, was born in Huddersfield, Yorkshire, March 11, 1916, and by virtue of scholarships landed in Oxford where he was an outstanding student in philosophy, politics and economics.

He became lecturer in economics at Oxford at 21 and later research assistant to Lord Beveridge, preparing Britain's great plan of national social security.

At the outbreak of the Second World War, Wilson volunteered for the army but was drafted into the civil service, employed by several ministries and writing several studies of national importance. He was elected to Parliament in 1945 and went straight to the front bench as parliamentary secretary to the works ministry.

Moving to the board of trade, he conducted crucial export negotiations with Russia—making the first of 14 trips to Moscow—and also toured, boosting British sales there.

Wilson married Mary Baldwin, daughter of a clergyman, in 1940—they looked about age 13 and 15, respectively," a friend recalls—and they have two sons, Robin, 20, and Giles 16, living in a small Hampstead house at Hampstead Garden, North London.

Harold's one fault is that he will put HP sauce on everything," says Mary.

Hit-and-Miss Combo Makes Big Music Hit

By ALLEN SACKMANN

EDMONTON (CP)—Four Indian youths picked last spring on a hit-and-miss basis to form a combo to publicize the Indian Residential School here have played themselves into a two-year contract with a U.S. booking agency.

"It happened so fast we just haven't had time to really think about it or plan for the future," says Jack Cecil, 22, leader and oldest member of the Chieftones band.

With their hair in braids and wearing feathers and all-white outfits, the Chieftones play country and western music as well as rock 'n' roll from a repertoire of 130 songs.

They leave in late October for Chicago, then to Jacksonville, Fla., and a host of other American cities for a series of dates in nightclubs. Their contract promises them 48 weeks of work a year.

John Radcliffe, school supervisor and temporary manager of the group, says the boys seem to appeal to the older audiences as much as the young set.

During the Edmonton Exhibition they played at a local dining spot and some middle-aged women reacted like way teen-age girls do when they hear their idols," says Mr. Radcliffe.

"They particularly like Vinney."

Vinney is the nickname of Vincent Clifford, guitarist and vocalist who at 16 is the youngest member of the band. His partners say he is the joker, the shy one who wows the girls.

Besides Vincent and Jack Cecil, members are Barry Clifford, 18, Richard Douse, 20, and alternate Albert Canadien, 21.

It was the exhibition week appearance here that opened the door to professionalism. An agent of a Chicago booking firm heard them and promptly moved to put them under contract. Since then they have been practising five to six hours a day to prepare for the professional debut.

Mr. Radcliffe has set up a trust fund for each of the Chieftones but they stipulated that 10 per cent of their earnings be turned over to the student council fund of the Indian school.

So far they have contributed about $2,000 to the fund, money earned playing at high school dances and other functions.

Mr. Radcliffe emphasizes, however, that the Chieftones were not started with the idea of raising money.

"Fostering better relations for their race was the big thing. Then, too, Indians have been receiving charity for so long they wanted to switch it around for a change."

"Saddest Royal Occasion" UK Press Raps Quebec Visit

From AP-Reuters

LONDON (CP)—As the Queen flies back from Canada today to Into a Britain gripped by election fever, The Daily Express appeals to Londoners to forget politics and turn out to cheer the monarch home from a taxing Canadian tour.

The express says the Queen "showed true courage in going to Canada at this difficult time."

"She has conducted herself with a touching and unflinching serenity," adds the paper, part of the publishing empire of the late Lord Beaverbrook.

In another Beaverbrook paper, The Evening Standard, correspondent Anne Sharpley urges from Ottawa:

"I trust the citizens of London . . . will show the Queen that, election or no election, her courage and dignity have not passed unnoticed."

CALLS IT MISTAKE

In the assessment of The Daily Telegraph:

"Profound sympathy with her in the slights she has suffered does not require the judgment that her visit to Quebec was a mistake.

"That the result is—and was foreseen to be—distasteful does not mean that the test should have been shirked."

The Daily Mail says Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Lesage at Quebec "underestimated French-Canadian separatism."

"This has been called the saddest royal occasion of its kind. It may also have been among the most mistaken."

Hella Pick, in a report from Quebec in the Manchester Guardian, takes a similar line and adds:

"There is, however, some surprise that the Queen's adviser in England did not counsel her to abandon the trip in time to avoid this week's undignified scenes."

'MOST GRIEVOUS INSULT'

The Mail's Vincent Mulchrone cables from Quebec:

"The city which insulted the Queen and placed the future of the Canadian Confederation in hazard went to church this crisp Sunday morning as though nothing untoward had ever happened.

"Indeed, for the vast majority of Quebec's 230,000 people, nothing like The Queen had come. They had stayed at home.

"It was without doubt the most massive, the most grievous insult ever offered the monarch."

A Daily Telegraph correspondent reports:

"The Queen had the humiliation of having to be guarded by a dense mass of soldiers, sailors, airmen and policemen such as even a Hitler did not need.

"Yet the abiding memory . . . is of the Queen serene and brave."

LOOKS TIRED

The Telegraph says that at Saturday's state dinner the Queen "looked tired and her face was pale and somewhat strained, with every justification."

A Daily Mirror dispatch says: "It must be clear to the Queen that the Canadian government blundered in allowing her adriving her to visit Quebec. The French - Canadians refuse to accept her as Queen of Canada."

Daily Express correspondent Rene Macoll calls Quebec "a city of shame" and says:

"This was a city that had let itself be bullied, bulldozed and blackmailed by a handful of thugs.

"The reception was silent, glum, glacial. It was in essence, a city gripped by fear."

The mass - circulation Daily Mirror's columnist Cassandra wrote that those who planned the trip — "can congratulate themselves on a costly, disastrous, dangerous and wholly wretched misfire."

The Sun correspondent in Quebec wrote:

"It will be astonishing if she ever returns to this insulting city."

On Sunday, the reported sullen Quebec reception of the Queen got front-page treatment. Editorials suggested separatist demonstrations and the province's general coolness likely will force the Canadian government to take French-Canadian complaints more seriously.

MUST TAKE SERIOUSLY

The Sunday Telegraph headlines clashes between separatists and riot squads and adds in an editorial:

"There is nothing encouraging to be said about the Queen's presence in Quebec . . . except that her visit there should at least have forced the Canadians themselves, and the rest of the world, to take the problem of Canadian separatism seriously."

The Telegraph criticizes English-Canadians who say, in effect, "if the French want to secede let them."

"Far from fighting to maintain the union by force, English-speaking opinion is increasingly resigned to the prospect," The Telegraph says. "It is to be hoped the Queen's willingness to risk her life to promote the cause of unity will serve to emphasize the folly of this attitude."

MOOSE TOLL

Ninety-nine moose were killed by cars, trucks and trains in Ontario during 1963.

Adherents, "teen - agers" ranging in age from 13 to 25, carry cards saying they are members of the Bach Battalion or the Beethoven Brigade.

The cards also have these words:

"I declare I am not now or ever have been a carn-carrying member of a rock 'n' roll party and furthermore do solemnly pledge to honor Mom, the flag and Leonard Bernstein."

Club members have numbers after the James Bond fashion, each beginning with the prefix 00.

And they, along with a growing number of others, wear sweatshirts that say "teen-age Underground" on the back and carry a picture of Bach or Beethoven on the front — sweaters that enraged some 3,000 Beatle fans during the quartet's recent visit here.

The whole thing started as a tongue-in-cheek promotion by CHQM, a radio station that advertises itself as a good-music broadcaster.

Organizers frankly admit they didn't expect much reaction. But they say it has snowballed into 2,300 members, including one in Southern Rhodesia.

FLOAT IN PARADE

Keith McMyn, 27-year-old self-styled teen-ager . We're all teen-agers if we're honest") who has been in this from the start, says the idea was to promote a different type of entertainment "than is being handed around today."

"Instead of whistling Dixie out at the fair, teen-agers could be at Julius Caesar (the movie) or the symphony or some such."

He noted with reports of The movement was produ the doings of various secret agents and the underground generally. Membership applications poured in. The station arranged with a department store to sell TU sweaters, and sales have outnumbered memberships.

During the summer a group of high school members got together and arranged to include a TU float in a city parade.

The station arranged for reduced prices for club members at the Vancouver Symphony and the Playhouse, a new professional theatre, as well as at the movie house showing Julius Caesar.

Inner sanctum meetings are planned so that members will have a say in the operations of the club.

McMyn says applications for membership have come from the oldest teen-agers in the world—35. "Mothers writing in for memberships for the children, sometimes add: 'And by the way send one to me.'"

The Southern Rhodesian correspondent apologized for being late with his application but said he had just heard of Teen-age Underground.

North Atlantic's Sea Birds Gather at Storied Haven On Tip of Gaspe Peninsula

PERCE, Que. (CP) — The North Atlantic's sea birds, creaking in the salt wind, like rusty shutters, all gather at this storied haven on the tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

Alfred Hitchcock might easily have used Perce as the location for his chiller, The Birds. Some sort of odd-beaked aerial wonder is always blithely gliding past the tourist here.

The gannets alone outnumber the community's 1,781 inhabitants 10 to 1, and the gannets are far outnumbered by the thieving gulls.

Then there are the puffins the petrels, the auks, kittiwakes, cormorants and shearwaters, with occasional flights of Canada geese, mallards and ducts for variety.

Birds are continually wheeling about the high bald capes that surround the two deep coves here. They clean the beaches, lead the fishermen to the herring and sit atop the snug houses as if they owned them.

Both birds and tourists are attracted by Perce's striking physical attributes.

COVERED WITH EGGS

The birds plaster the windward cliffs of Bonaventure Island, a few miles offshore, with their nests and the tourists pay $3 a boat ride to see this sight.

Just a few hundred feet off the cape that divides Perce's two deep coves is Perce Rock, a 288-foot-high, 1,334-foot-long pierced limestone giant.

Its crumbling crevices and ledges are loaded with eggs, and a bylaw was passed this year to keep ornithologists and gourmets from climbing the rock to get at the nests.

Hubert Boulanger, a lean, pleasant man in his 50s, can't recall a villager ever scaling the rock to the top. The adventurous are stopped by memories of tons of it falling and denly into the sea.

It is eroding at the rate of 300 tons a year and this should give it another 13,000 years as Perce's main attraction.

A well-equipped team from Montreal climbed it in 1963—it looked like a cinch—but the ice - cracked limestone almost made them turn back.

Before the village is the rock, the island and open water and behind it is 1,050-foot Mont Ste. Anne, one of the crafty, rod Shickshock Mountains that pe ker into the sea here.

GOOD FISHING

Game, including bears, is plentiful in the Shickshocks and there is good salmon fishing in rivers throughout the Gaspe.

Jacques Cartier anchored off Bonaventure Island in 1534 and since then French, English and Portuguese fishermen have stopped in the coves to dry their cod catches.

Privateers in the 17th century and rum-runners in the 20th used Perce, and two English frigates ravaged the community in 1690.

Cod are still caught, and herring and lobster, but the tourist industry is the one on which the village now depends. Despite a short two-month season, the hard - working villagers have managed to make a success of it.

The Boulanger family has 16 motel units, half a dozen cabins and a dining room in the main house, as well as a general store.

Hubert, during the season, is up early to take lobsters from the traps he sets in 70 feet of water a few yards off shore. He cooks them on the beach and his charming sister Marie, 26, serves them at dinner.

Hubert's brother operates the general store, and his parents are always busy about the well-kept property. When he isn't off on a part-time job, Hubert strives to grow a lawn about his neat frame home — work frustrated by the salt wind.

"Once you get it started, it's all right," he says patiently, reflecting the attitude that has built the prosperous community against stiff odds.

EXCELLENT FOOD

High on Mont Ste. Anne, where the Micmac Indians once worshipped the sun, is Le Gargantua, one of three excellent restaurants that operates during the season.

Pierre Perusse, the owner, is a small, nimble Basque with the capacity for hard work that seems to be a trait here. He, his wife and a chef sometimes serve 200 persons a day.

At Le Gargantua, named after the monster in Rabelais' classic, one follows snails periwinkles, pate de foie gras, superb salads, transformed vegetables with dishes like roast duckling in orange sauce.

Frederic James, a United States artist, discovered Perce in the 19th century and his weathered studio still stands high on Cape Canon, just before Perce Rock.

In 1955, an art centre revived the colony here and now hundreds of students come each summer to sketch the birds and the rock.

The last great cod wharf slipped into the sea one windy night a few years ago, but tourists have more than made up for the dead fishing industry.

Chinese Commie 'Splitters' Join Red 'Whipping Boys'

MOSCOW (CP)—The splitters have joined the imperialists and colonialists as the favorite whipping boys of Soviet propaganda.

Warmongers hardly figure anymore.

"Splitters" is what the Soviet Communist leaders are calling the Chinese Communists in leaflet, art. The label is intended to convey the idea that Peking exerts a divisive influence on the world Communist movement.

It has become the key word in the increasingly bitter Sino-Soviet dispute, part of the lexicon of Communism.

With its close associate, "splitting activities," it is one of the most frequently used words in the Moscow press.

Printed criticisms of the Chinese leadership come in a steady stream. In the vanguard of the attack are Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, and Izvestia, the Soviet government paper. In addition to their own articles and editorials they carry reprints of pieces published in other Communist countries lambasting the Chinese Reds.

It is not uncommon for the two big newspapers between them to carry six full-scale editorials, articles and reprints dealing with the controversy in one week.

Each blast brings a rejoinder from Peking, each rejoinder another blast, and so on ad infinitum.

(For their part the Chinese return a compliment by also calling the Russians splitters.)

There still are regular denunciations of "U.S. imperialism" and Western "colonialism" or "neo-colonialism" in the Soviet press, but they carry nowhere near the bite of the broadsides aimed at China. They all have the tired flavor of a worn-out expression, as though the author were unable to shake an ingrained habit.

The once widely used terms "Wall Street warmonger" and "warmongering capitalist" have been retired—or given a rest.

By contrast the shafts aimed at China get more and more pointed. The sheer pastiness of the dispute was reflected in Pravda's recent report that the Chinese Reds are making $800,000,000 a year from the opium trade and using it largely to finance propaganda activities.

SCATTER FIRE

An intriguing characteristic of Soviet writing at this stage of history—when the U.S.S.R. is getting deeper and deeper into dispute with China while still not having composed its differences with the West—is its response to Soviet vulnerability.

Thus it often contrives to strike out in all directions at once—to come down on all sides of an issue. Izvestia, Sept. 12:

"The recent events in the Gulf of Tonkin have confirmed again that the U.S. imperialists and the South Vietnamese puppets executing their orders aim at taking advantage of the difficulties caused by the splitting activities of the leadership of the Communist Party of China."

This particular attack, and others like it, suggest that Russia has been painfully stung by Chinese accusations that it closed its eyes to the U.S. air strike against North Viet Nam bases.

WHAT IS A CREDIT UNION

CREDIT UNIONS ARE FORMED BY GROUPS OF PEOPLE WHO SAVE THEIR MONEY TOGETHER AND MAKE LOW COST PROVIDENT LOANS TO EACH OTHER. EACH CREDIT UNION IS CHARTED BY THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT AS A NON-PROFIT CORPORATION. CREDIT UNIONS OBSERVE NO DISTINCTION BETWEEN RACES, COLORS OR CREEDS. CREDIT UNIONS RANK FOREMOST IN ENCOURAGING GROUPS TO LOOK TO THEMSELVES FOR THEIR ECONOMIC SALVATION.

WHY CREDIT UNIONS

CREDIT UNIONS AROSE OUT OF A NEED. AND BECAUSE THAT NEED STILL EXISTS IN OUR COMPLEX SOCIETY TODAY, NEW CREDIT UNIONS ARE BEING FORMED EVERYDAY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD. THE SYSTEM OF FREE ENTERPRISE IS BASED ON PEOPLE EMPLOYING THEIR RESOURCES TO THEIR BEST ADVANTAGE. THE CREDIT UNION PHILOSOPHY AND ITS DEMOCRATIC PROGRAM OF SELF HELP IS NOT ONLY THE MOST EFFECTIVE MEANS OF STIMULATING DEVELOPMENT - BUT IS THE MOST SATISFYING TO THE INDIVIDUAL. CREDIT UNIONS HAVE EARNED THE ENDORSEMENT OF CHURCHES. SOCIAL AGENCIES AND HAVE GREATLY BENEFITED THE EMPLOYER - MANAGEMENT RELATIONS IN MANY OF OUR COUNTRY'S LEADING INDUSTRIES.

On the third Thursday of October each year, millions of credit union members throughout the free world celebrate International Credit Union Day in recognition of the many special benefits they have received from their credit unions. In a credit union the members save together, receive dividends, and lend the money at low rates to those members who need to borrow. The members are the owners and operators. Any group of 100 or more with a common bond of association (employment, club, church) can form a credit union.

QUINTE CHAPTER

WHERE ARE THE LOCAL CREDIT UNIONS

In the Quinte District Chapter there are 26 active Credit Unions with a total membership of over 5,700. The Belleville area has 12 Credit Unions with a total of 2,566 members.

PROCLAMATION

CREDIT UNION DAY

WHEREAS the credit union members throughout the world will celebrate International Credit Union Day on Thursday, October 15th, 1964, and

WHEREAS credit unions provide an invaluable means whereby people may pool their savings, and assist themselves to fill their needs for credit at a low cost, and

WHEREAS these credit unions not only promote the economic security of their members, but also strengthen democracy, encourage individual responsibility and the practice of true brotherhood and thus benefit our entire community, and

WHEREAS the City of Belleville now has NINE credit unions whose combined membership totals 2,265 representing a significant proportion of our citizens.

I Do Hereby Proclaim Thursday, October 15th, 1964

CREDIT UNION DAY

to be observed in the CITY OF BELLEVILLE and urge our people to give fitting recognition at this time to the many benefits brought to them through credit unions.

AND ON THIS OCCASION, I extend to the leaders and members of the credit unions of the Quinte and District Chapter my greetings, congratulations, and sincere wishes for continued success in serving their fellowmen.

Given under my hand and the seal of
J. R. Ellis
MAYOR

CANADA
PRIME MINISTER - PREMIER MINISTRE

For well over three million Canadians, and almost sixteen million other people around the world, the third Thursday in October has a special significance. It is International Credit Union Day.

I send my greetings to Canadian credit union members on this day, in recognition of the important contribution their self-help activities make to Canada's economic life. Credit unions encourage their members to save regularly and to borrow wisely for productive purposes; they provide useful counselling in money handling. All this helps to build a better economic life for members, and so the country benefits.

Through the Credit Union National Association, Canadian credit unions also contribute significally to the developng nations of Africa, Asia, Central and South America by helping people there to organize and operate their own credit unions. Not only does such organization help these people to raise their standard of living; often it provides their first introduction to democratic institutions.

To all credit union people in Canada, my good wishes on International Credit Union Day, October 15th.

Feels Like Eternal Spring In Moscow After Winter Of Fear During Stalin Era

Stirling

STIRLING — Rt. Wor. Bro. Lorne Hagerman, Grand Master of Ontario East Loyal Orange Lodge, Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, Past Grand Master of Ontario East Loyal Orange Lodges, Mr. Hagerman and Mrs. Bateman attended a memorial service in Ottawa in memory of Rt. Wor. Bro. W. S. McFall, past grand treasurer of Ontario East.

Mrs. Clarke Rodgers underwent surgery in the Belleville General Hospital, Belleville on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprentall, Mill Street have sold their home to Mr. and Mrs. John Ray. Before their departure to Cookville where they will take up residence a group of friends from the village made the presentation of a money tree. They have been residents of Stirling for many years.

Arthur Duncan, public relations officer of the Bata Shoe Company at Batawa gave a special message on Thanksgiving at the monthly meeting of the Mutual Aid Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Fire Departments held at the Stirling Community Hall.

At a special executive meeting held this week Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, Past Grand Master of Ontario East Orange Lodges was appointed grand treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of Rt. Wor. Bro. W. S. McFall of Ottawa.

Stirling District Memorial Arena committee have decided to install artificial ice in the local arena. A house to house canvass for financial support of this venture will take place at an early date.

Mrs. David Buckler and children of Windsor are spending sometime with her father Clarke Rodgers.

Mrs. Harold Martin is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Moore of Buffalo, New York.

Mrs. Myrill McTaggart of Edmonton, Alberta is visiting her aunt Mrs. W. C. Pitman and other relatives in this area.

Miss Sharon Reid an employee of the Glamour Coiffure, Stirling took a training course in Toronto last week on advanced hair styling.

Mrs. Gordon Bailey, Front Street entertained several friends at her home in honor of Miss Carol Burgess a bride-to-be.

Harry Cooke has the coniract to replace the old curb and sidewalk on Bill Street from Harold Martin's office to James Street. Part of the work of removal was done on Tuesday.

AFRICA BOUND

MONTREAL (CP) — Sixty-four Canadian university graduates will soon be in Africa as volunteers for the Canadian University Service Overseas, Canada's unofficial peace corps. Most will work as secondary school teachers and will be posted in Ghana, Nigeria, Northern Rhodesia, Uganda and Tanganyika.

MOSCOW (CP)—At times in Moscow you get the feeling of eternal springtime after the Stalin-era winter of fear.

The feeling is somehow conveyed by the Sunday afternoon crowds strolling in the parks, promenading on Gorky Street or milling about Red Square.

It is apparent among the chattering throngs in shops and restaurants, the queues of people waiting to go on a cruise on the Moscow River.

Those who were here in Stalin's time confirm that the difference is in the absence of an atmosphere of fear.

"In the past you never saw a smiling face in Moscow" — says a Westerner who returned recently following a 10-year absence. "Now you see lots of them. . . . People are no longer fearful."

Muscovites love to stroll, a pleasure that owes some of its popularity to the need to get out of crowded apartments. Weekends and warm evenings find thousands on the streets.

They walk slowly and look relaxed, seemingly intent on savoring their outdoor leisure.

CLOTHES CONSCIOUS

Longtime residents say the people of Moscow are also becoming more and more fashion-conscious despite the high cost of good clothes.

Despite the spring-like mood however, Moscow is still a brooding and rather oppressive place to most Westerners. Though the police state has been abolished, vestiges of it remain.

Palmiro Togliatti, Italian Communist party boss, drew attention to them in a memorandum published before his recent death in the Soviet Union.

It mentioned "a slowness and resistance" in the Soviet Union and other Communist countries "in returning to the Leninist norms that ensured within the party and outside it a wide liberty of expression and debate. . . . Fear is not dead. You see it.

Policemen are still held in a well not dead. You see it when a motorist stops his car and comes running after he is whistled down by a traffic policeman, and when a jaywalker 100 yards away hustles back to the curb.

Most Russians still won't have anything to do with foreigners on a social level, a throwback to the days of Stalinist oppression.

And perhaps most important, you never find a word of criticism of Nikita Khrushchev and other top leaders in the Soviet press.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Appliance service men are often at a loss as to what they may claim for expenses. They claim, if any, depends on their contract or verbal agreement with their employer. If the employer supplies a vehicle for their transportation, and pays all the expenses except the employees meals, he would have no claim at all. There is no difference between the employee carrying his lunch with him and the one that eats in a restaurant.

Should his contract of employment be that the employee use his own car and pay all his own expenses, then he may claim as a deduction the operating expenses on the motor vehicle. If it is a light truck and not used for any other purpose, he would be entitled to claim all the expenses on it, including tires, repairs and capital cost allowance (depreciation). The depreciation rate is 30 percent of the unprecipitated cost of the truck. This means that if the truck cost $2,000 and he claimed full depreciation last year of $600, he could only claim 30 percent of $1,400 this year.

Should it be his own private automobile that he uses both for pleasure and on his employers business he would have to determine what percentage of its use was for earning his income. If it was determined that the business use was 75 percent his expenses allowable as a deduction would be 75 percent of the total, including the capital cost allowance.

If the employer only pays part of the expenses, the amount received, should be added to the income, and then the total expenses would be deductible. If the employer pays all the car operating expenses but nothing for depreciation on the employees vehicle, the employee is not allowed to claim for this alone.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I service TV sets for my employer. Once in a while I sell a new set for which he pays me a bonus. I was told this was a gift and not taxable. Is this right?

ANSWER: No. It is a form of commission and should be reported.

QUESTION: I am employed as a service man on stoves, refrigerators, washers, etc. I have to buy my own tools. Can I deduct the cost of these or take depreciation on them?

ANSWER: No. You cannot deduct their cost or claim depreciation.

Nobody Running More Scared In Election Than Poll-Takers

WASHINGTON (CP) — Nobody is running more scared in the United States election than the poll-takers.

They can't forget 1948.

They don't like the taxing and consistent lead of 2 to 1 indicated for President Lyndon Baines Johnson over Republican challenger Barry Goldwater.

This is despite the fact that poll-taking today is a far more polished art than it was in 1948 Or that every passing day—with the Nov. 3 election now less than a month away—firms up their findings.

The polls have a difficult job in assessing how many people in an emotional election campaign—and this is an emotional campaign featuring racial and nuclear fears—will vote the way they tolicata they will. Or how many will bother to vote.

These are the elements capable of creating chaos.

In 1948, polls predicted a vote percentage of about 47 per cent for favorite Tom Dewey, the Republican who was supposed to mop the floor with President Harry Truman. But Truman. In his "give 'em hell" campaign," captured 10 percentage points more of the vote — some 49.5 per cent—than he'd been reckoned to attract.

CAUSED TURN-ABOUT

At that time, of course, polltaking stopped two weeks before the actual polling date and that was one election when underdog sentiment, spoke created by a big early Republican lead and other allied factors caused a turn-about

Poll-takers today can take samples up to a day or two before the event. On the record, their error of margin in assessing the voting trend has been remarkably small.

But there are some remarkable trends at work in this campaign, including the so-called "backlash" of dislike for civil rights and the "frontlash" of Republicans tempted to turn Democrat by the decision of Senator Goldwater to offer the electorate a "choice, not an echo."

Some argue that these factors are no harder to predict than the anti - Roman Catholic vote directed against President Kennedy in 1960. Polls called that pretty accurately, although it was tight.

A major hazard for pollsters is the fact that while 113,021,000 United States citizens will be eligible to vote Nov. 3, compared with 109,000,000 in 1960, only about 72,000,000 are expected to cast ballots In fact the record turnout in the tight 1960 campaign was only 63.8.

Some states reported lows of 30 per cent. Mississippi, with its big Negro population not encouraged to vote, recorded 25.5 per cent in 1960. This fluctuation can cripple poll indications

Water Level Will Be Rising In Six Months

DETROIT (AP) — The low low Great Lakes are going to start rising—six months from now.

And even in March, no more than a seasonal upturn is forecast by the late survey of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers

Lake Superior, the only one anywhere near its historic level, actually isn't expected to begin its seasonal upturn until April, seven months from now. Then it is expected to be slightly below its average for the last 10 years and also below the average from 1860 through 1963.

Lakes Michigan and Huron, now at their lowest October levels in recorded history, are expected to fall another two-tenths of a foot before making a slow upturn from an all-time February low.

Lake Erie, tilling downward since mid-May, will continue thus and be within about six inches of its record March low when the predicted rise begins.

Lake Ontario, losing at a sharp angle since July, will dip two to three inches below its record March low before starting a rise.

Lake St. Clair is expected to shoot up half a foot in March, but be only about four inches above its all - time April low when that month starts.

Lake survey engineers limit their forecasts to six months ahead.

TESTS COMFORTS

LONDON (CP) — Passengers of the King's Cross-Leeds train were filmed to help British Railways officials discover if they were comfortable in the latest train seats. A camera recorded how long passengers sat in one position, when they started to change places, and when they got up to go for a walk.

Hillier

HILLIER — The frost early this week damaged the tomato crop and now factories have ceased to operate.

Sympathy is extended to Mr and Mrs. Clark Clapp in the death of Mr. Clapp's cousin, Mr. Hilton Clapp at Stoughton Sask. He is survived by wife the former Ethel Jones and two daughters. The funeral was held at Stoughton on October 6th from Stoughton Grace United Church. Interment was in Stoughton Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Taylor visited Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mae Taylor at Ashburn recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Lloyd visited Mr. W. Smith at L'Amable and Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Runnon at DeHor recently.

Cherry Valley W.I. has invited the Prince Edward District executive officers and district directors to be their guests on October 13. Mrs. Sherman Fox her who attended the national W.I. conference at Wolfville, N.S. will be guest speaker and will accompany Mrs. W. Jordon and Mrs. W. Cunningham

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Spencer have moved to their new home at Alliston.

Mrs. A. Rattray and Mrs. Bert Rattray will leave by T.C.A. October 15 to visit relatives in California.

CHINESE LABOR

The first Chinese brought to North America as labor probably worked as miners in Kentucky's iron ore deposits.

REPORT POPULAR

LONDON (AP) — All 50,000 copies of a special paperback edition of the Warren Commission report on the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy were sold within 24 hours of delivery in London and Dublin, the distributors reported

Bolivian President Breaks With Three Men Who Helped Him Climb to Head of Govt.

Victor Paz Estenssoro has broken with the three men who helped him become Bolivia's president 12 years ago. His campaign to tighten his political hold on the South American nation is described in this story by Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, a student of Latin American affairs, writing for The Canadian Press.

By PAUL KIDD

LA PAZ (CP)—With its tiny shops and dusty streets, La Paz is like a Balkan capital in a 12,000-foot-high setting.

Surrounded by arid, brown-tinged mountains, this is the loftiest big city in the world.

The air is thin—and full of political intrigue.

The altitude does strange things to visitors. Some can't sleep, others have raging nightmares, people lose their memories and hardened drinkers fall off bar stools after only one drink.

This is a place where men wear too-big jackets and old-fashioned, broad-brimmed hats and almost everyone carries a gun.

The 16,000-strong tin-miners' militia has more guns than the army.

The military revels in parading behind brass bands. Originally trained by the Germans, its conglomeration of uniforms includes Second World War Nazi - style helmets and the spiked variety worn by the Kaiser's troops in the First World War.

Since it became an independent republic 139 years ago, Bolivia has had nearly 100 presidents.

EX-PRESIDENT EXILED

The latest political power-play has just been enacted, with former president Herman Siles Zuazo being packed off into Paraguayan exile and former vice-president Juan Lechin going into hiding.

Once the two were great friends of 56-year-old President Victor Paz Estenssoro. But, over the years, the friendship withered. A few days ago, it was given a final burial when Paz crushed a rebellion by Siles and Lechin.

When the National Revolutionary Movement was launched a generation ago, its leaders were Paz, a lawyer and economics professor; Lechin, a one-time professional soccer player who bossed a leftist tin miners' union; Siles a former president's son and Walter Guevara Arze, a law professor and Fascist - minded intellectual.

The new party was to be simultaneously Fascist and Marxist, nationalist and socialist, anti-Yankee and anti-Semitic—reflecting its leaders' various political viewpoints.

It was united in its aim to overthrow the landowning oligarchy—which it did in 1952—and by common agreement each of the four leaders was to have a spell in the president's chair.

SYSTEM BROKE DOWN

At the beginning, as the four ushered into Bolivia a new era of social justice during which the tin mines were nationalized and the land expropriated and distributed to peasants, everything went according to plan.

From 1952 to 1956, Paz was president, Siles vice-president, Guevara foreign minister and Lechin minister of mines.

In 1956, Siles moved into the presidency and Paz went off as Bolivian ambassador in London.

Then, in 1960, the system broke down. Paz, who had built a strong machine within the party during his term as president, returned from London and used the power to bounce Guevara out of the movement.

By ruthless tactics, he beat Guevara at the polls and took his former friend's scheduled turn as president.

To silence Lechin, Paz gave him the vice-presidency and promised him the presidency in 1964.

Then, as this year's elections neared, Paz decided that he liked the job of president and was in no mood to give it up.

DENOUNCED LECHIN

First, he pushed Lechin into an extreme left position and had him denounced as a subversive. Then Paz persuaded the Congress, controlled by the National Revolutionary Movement, to change the constitution so that he could serve a second consecutive term as president. Finally, he had Lechin drummed out of the party.

In a rage, Lechin formed his own party and swore to run against Paz. The miners' leader then withdrew from the election and, instead, challenged the president to a duel "at whatever site, whenever, and with the arms Paz chooses."

Paz ignored the challenge.

Siles, who was serving as ambassador to Spain, resigned his post and hurried home to Bolivia.

Then he, Lechin and Guevara settled down to a short-lived hunger strike as a protest against Paz seeking re-election.

Supported by the armed forces, Paz took Gen. Rene Barrientos, chief of the air force, as his vice-presidential running mate.

Although the opposition appealed to the voters to boycott the election, 70 per cent of the electorate turned out to support Paz.

FORMED NEW FRONT

A leftist, Lechin commands the support of the powerful tin miners, Bolivia's small Communist Party and the National Revolutionary Movement's rightists who hate Paz more than they fear Lechin.

A few days ago, rebel forces blew up oil pipelines and a railway bridge and attacked public buildings in Sucre.

The government ordered a 11 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew in all major cities and no one was allowed outside the city limits of La Paz without a safe conduct pass. Some 60 members of both rightist and leftist political parties were arrested.

As the rebellion was crushed, the interior ministry announced that the rebels had planned to assassinate Paz and place the government in the hands of a junta led by Siles.

Paz's views on his former political allies: "Some people are necessary for the very part of a revolution, others for a later stage.

"When the revolution enters the construction period, these people aren't necessary."

Obviously, in Paz's opinion, the Bolivian revolution has entered the construction period.

GOING IT ALONE — Victor Paz Estenssoro, president of Bolivia, has split with three men who helped him overthrow the South American republic's landowning oligarchy in 1952. The four men had agreed to alternate as Bolivia's president but Paz has abandoned the agreement, getting Congress to change the constitution so that he could serve a second consecutive term. Sixty Lumpas Slain by Forces In Rhodesia

LUSAKA, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—The revolt of the Lumpa religious sect which cost more than 600 lives in August is flaming again with 60 more killed, it was announced Monday.

The announcement said Northern Rhodesian security forces had killed 60 and wounded 20 of "prophetess" Alice Lenshina's followers on Saturday, in the Luangwe valley in the northeastern part of the country.

Mrs. Lenshina surrendered early in September after more than 580 had been killed, most of them followers of her Lumpa sect. Lumpas believe they must kill to attain heaven.

RECEIVES THREAT

LONDON (Reuters) — A Jewish Labor party candidate, Marcus Lipton, has been threatened with death unless he withdraws from the general election Thursday, party officials said. Frederick Bigger, Lipton's election organizer in the London district of Brixton, said the death threat came from an anonymous telephone caller who said: "Tell Lipton to withdraw or else he will be dead on Thursday — get that clear."
